WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Sobrado, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it, I would recommend it to all.—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P.Q., writes, "I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for several years and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit. until tried it Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man." A Maybee, Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundred bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rosan, Township Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness, It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes. "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured It is a most remarkable medicine.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE West Riding OF THE COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH

GENTLEMEN:

On the 18th of January last, I was elected as your Representative to the Provincial Legislature. That election has been set aside in consequence of treating on polling day by persons over whom I had no control, and entirely without my knowledge or consent, I have therefore again to appeal to you for a renewed expression of your confidence.

The seat having been declared vacant some two months ago, it is but right, that I should explain to you that I have been prevented from soliciting your suffrages at an earlier day, in consequence of a most determined effort on the part of my opponents to personally disqualify me. In this they have signally failed. The full Court of Error and Appeal unanimously decided in my favor, and the question as to whether I shall be your representative or not, is again referred to the Electors of West Peterborough. I ask no higher or better tribunal, and will be fully satisfied to accept your verdict.

My confidence in the Mowat administration remains quite the same as when I last solicited your support, and so long as they continue to evince the same prudence and economy in the management of our finances, and to adopt the same liberal and progressive policy in aid of our Railways, and other public improvements, that have characterized them in the past, I shall, if re-elected give them my cordial support.

Hoping before polling day to have the pleasure of personally visiting many of the Electors of the Riding, and bespeaking your very best efforts to again place me, by an increased majority, in the position so fairly won on the 18th of January last,

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
GEO. A. COX.

SISTER AND LOVER.

"Look not, linger not, if you can
My love is in the wood is waiting for me;
He will stand by the stem of the ash-tree old,
Where first his love he my ear he told"

"She changed me there, and I gave my word, Listen! I see then his footsteps stirred!"
Yet I fain would see but his figure dim,
For I know one will grave for news of him.

"Look not, linger not, if perchance
He should turn to you a curious glance;
For in the twilight of thickest pine
He will think my maiden form is mine."

Before he saw me, I promised to flee,—
Look, he is standing beneath the tree;—
But would she be glad if I came away
With naught of her love's fair face to say?

"Look not, linger not, if he spy
And chase you, speedy of foot and eye;
For when you turn from the shade of the trees,
He will prove that he has not my face he sees."

And haply now is the time to flee,—
See, he has turned, and is coming to me!
But if he caught me with flushed cheeks red.
Toward mein so far fearful love I feel.

"Look not, linger not, if he haste
And catch and question you on the waste;
Too little to talk with you canst he,
Lost to ask how long he must wait for me"

When he sees not her, he will turn away.
But perhaps some message he has to say;
And if he be eager to ask of her,
Cruel 'twould be o're he come to stir.

"Look not, linger not, if he gaze
Into you'r eyes with his bright eyes' blaze;
He will only seek in their tender skies'
The look of the sister's eyes more dear.

But now he has set his hand in mine.
How bright in my eyes his brown eye shine.
But I cannot close in their depths; they seem
With more than questioning love to gleam.

"Look not, linger not, if he seek
To know of your life from week to week;
For he only cares of you thus to know,
Where with your sister, and when you go?

I can not go for he holds my hand,
His clasp is hot as a burning brand;
Her voice is low and I scarce can hear
What he it that he whispers in my ear.

"Look not, linger not, if he speak
Of his heart with love that is ready to break;
It is but a message that he would send
To his own dear love by a trusty friend."

"I love you, dearest," he murmurs low,
He does not say, "Tell your sister so,"
But if his message be for her ear,
I must stay the end of his tale to hear.

"Look not, linger not, if he clasp
Your waist with a tender, loving grasp;
It is but as he should say, 'Like this,
Give your sister from a kiss.'"

How can I flee so closely pressed?
How sweet it is in his arms to rest?—
How can I turn me away, or upraid,
While his kisses shower on my lips and cheek?

"Look not, linger not, if he say,
Cruel you are to hurry away;
For when his son is hid from his sight,
You may seem as the moon to reflect my light."

But in vain I cry to him, "Let me go!"
How sweet to be held in his strong arms so!—
And in vain I struggle and try to speak,
"Those kisses should be for my sisters cheek."

GERMAN GUNS AND ENGLISH SHIPS.

The military contributor of the Cologne Gazette, referring to the trials which have taken place this summer on Herr Krupp's shooting-ground at Visbeck, near Dulmen, observes that it has now been proved that even ironclads of the class of the Devastation would be powerless to force an entrance into a harbour guarded with the new heavy guns worked by the German navy. "The condition," he proceeds, "in which the target, an iron plate 16 inches thick, was left after eleven shots from the 26-centimetre coil gun and ten from the new 30½-centimetre gun, shows that any further strengthening of the iron plates of armoured ships would be fruitless. It appears from the photographs taken of the target after each shot that even when the firing was only half over the target was a mere wreck, so that a plate of 18 or 20 inches would be equally incapable of resisting the new guns as the one on which the experiment was made. These trials have also proved that there is no necessity for increasing the size of our guns, as, if the system of simultaneous discharges by means of electricity were applied to the guns on our ironclads, 24 and 26 centimetre guns would be sufficient to penetrate the strongest plates known. How far the results of the trials will have an influence on naval construction remains to be seen. That in fighting at close quarters a broadside frigate firing its guns simultaneously at one point must produce a much more powerful effect than a turret-ship, which can only fire two guns at a time, is beyond doubt. The latter, however, ensures a more accurate aim at distant objects, and it is therefore probable that a certain number of turret-ships will continue to be used in our ironclad fleet." The Borsenzeitung says that the 26-centimetre Krupp, with a charge of 35 kilogrammes and a projectile of 175 kilogrammes, is now regarded by the German Admiralty as the best ship-gun, and that the larger calibres of 28 and 30½ centimetres will only be used for coast defences. As to the ships with 24-inch plates, such as the new English turret-ship Inflexible, Herr Krupp has already laid before the German Admiralty plans for the construction of guns with calibres of 35·5 centimetres, 40 centimetres, and 46 centimetres.

DR. D. FRASER, Graduate and Medalist of the University of Trinity College, and University of Toronto, Member ter in 1866, or at the rate of one pound of butter from 28 pounds of milk.

An Ayrshire cow recently yielded 399 lb. 2 pounds of butter in ten months after calving, or between March 10th 1866, and January 10th, 1867, besides supplying a family with milk and cream.

It must be apparent that the proportion of butter will vary, not only with the breed but with the season of the year. The milk of the Ayrshire cow is generally richer in butter than that of the Short Horn, not so rich as that of the Jersey or Britanny. The best returns of butter are generally got late in summer or early in fall, September and October.—Canada Farmer's Advocate.

DIGGING IN MARKET GARDENS.

Market gardeners are particulary careful that their ground is deeply dug once a year if it is not trenched; and, as a rule, it is slightly dug over for every successive crop. Ground that is merely dug over one winter has most probably been double dug or trenched the previous one; hence there is not so much necessity for trenching it is as soon again. In digging, the ground is first of all cleared of the refuse vegetables on the surface, which are forked out of the ground, raked or gathered in heaps, and carted to the manure heap or to the piggery. If manure is to be applied, it is done at once, and is spread equally over the surface, short or well-decayed manure being preferable to rank material.

The plot of ground, if an open one, is then marked off into strips, say 12 paces wide. This done, about as many men are set to work in a line as the piece is paces wide, digging right abreast of them, and not going from side to side of the piece the whole length of the opening, as is commonly done in private gardens. No soil is thrown out of the opening at first to be carried to the other end of the field, to fill in the opening at the end, but it should be cast a little to one side; close up the opening at the end of the next strip when coming back. More frequently, however no notice whatever is taken of laying aside the soil excavated from the opening, digging merely commencing at the shallowest end.

Permanent roots, if any, such as those of seakale, horseradish, parsnips, onions, and the like that may exist in the soil at the time of digging, are carefully picked up and thrown in a heap on the top of the dug ground, from which they are afterwards gathered. In digging between a plantation of fruit trees or bushes, it sometimes occurs that, were all men placed abreasted across the whole space, they would be too thick to work conveniently; hence, a few are placed in each alternate row going one way, and they dig the other when coming back.

Digging amongst fruit trees is done every year, and that deeply too, adding large quantities of manure at the same time. When one crop is removed, and the ground is not already occupied with some other catch crop, it is slightly dug and lined off for another. In the case of borders that have been trenched in due season, and have been cleared of their crops in early summer, the ground sometimes, in place of being re-dug, is merely gone over and loosened with a three-toed hack; but no manure must be given in this case.—Garden.

A MAN DIES UPON THE STREET IN BROCKVILLE.—On Sept. 30th, at an early hour, Louis Grieve, formerly an Agent for the N. T. Company in Brockville, was found lying on the road on John Street, near the residence of Mr. Rowe. The unfortunate man who was addicted to drink, had fallen near a pile of stones, and, no doubt, being unable to help himself had remained there during the storm which raged with great fury. When discovered he yet breathed but upon being removed to the side walk immediately expired. Death is supposed to have resulted from exposure and cold combined with the effects of the liquor. When last seen previous to his discovery on the road, he was upon Perth Street, near midnight, and in a state of intoxication. The deceased had an aunt and nephew residing in Hamilton, and also a brother in California, but no relatives in this section.—Recorder.

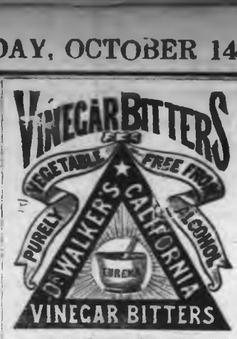
VINEGAR BITTERS



GRATEFUL THOUSANDS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like those Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF
J. A. DELANEY & SONS'
"Empire" Fanning Mill,
WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING
AT THEIR SHOP, ON AYLMER STREET, PETERBORO'.
(Near Mr. Toole's Factory.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one ailment is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it quickly excites the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels miserable well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Burnett's Extracts

The superiority of these Extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from the poisonous oils and acids which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavors now in the market. They are not only true to their names, but are prepared from fruits of the best quality, and are so highly concentrated that a comparatively small quantity only need be used.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its unfailing character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a preventive against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed in all the settlements subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the agues districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the Ague Cure daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Choice Poetry.

THE GLEANER.

I am a little gleaner
Among the harvest sheaves;
I follow in the reaping,
For what the reaper leaves;
For, lapty, by the wayside,
Some handfuls may be found:—
As said the careful Master,
That nothing shall be lost.

Drops fill the boundless ocean,
Shade pile the mountain high;
So all the bounteous gamer
Must single grains supply.
And when to feed the hungry
The richer offering comes,
The full loaf on the table
May not disdain the crumbs.

I'm sorry 'tis so little
My little hands can do;
But Jesus will accept it,
If but my heart is true.
And sometimes—'tis the promise
My heart in hope believes
I'll bring the blessed Master
The full and joyful sheaves.

THE LAST OF ROBERT BRUCE.

"In the meantime," says Froissart "it happened that King Robert of Scotland was right sorare aged and feeble, for he was grievously oppressed with the great sickness, so that there was no way with him but death; and when he felt that his end drew near, he sent for such barons and lords of his realm as he most trusted, and very affectionately entreated and commanded them, on their fealty, that they should faithfully keep his kingdom for David his son, and when this prince came of age, that he should obey him, and place the crown on his head. After which, he called to him the brave and gentle knight Sir James Douglas, and said, before the rest of the courtiers,—'Sir James, my dear friend, none knows better than you how great labor and suffering I have undergone in my day, for the maintenance of the rights of this kingdom; and when I was hardest beset, I made a vow, which it now grieves me deeply that I have not accomplished; I vowed to God that if I should live to see an end of my wars, and be enabled to govern this realm in peace and security, I would then set out in person, and carry on war against the enemies of my Lord and Saviour, to the best of my power. Never has my heart ceased to bend to this point, but our Lord has not consented thereto; for I have had my hands full in my days, and now, at the last, I am seized with this grevious sickness, so that, as you all see, I have nothing to do but to die. And since my body cannot go thither, and accomplish that which my heart hath so much desired, I have resolved to send my heart there, in place of my body, to fulfill my vow; and now, since in all my realm I know not any knight more hardy than yourself, or more thoroughly furnished with all knightly qualities for the accomplishment of the vow; in place of myself, therefor, I entreat thee, my dear and tried friend, that, that, for the love you bear to me, you will undertake this voyage, and acquit my soul of its debt to my saviour; for I hold his opinion of your truth and nobleness, that whatever you undertake I am persuaded you will successfully accomplish; and thus shall I die in peace, provided that you do all that I shall tell you. I will, then, that as soon as I am dead you take the heart out of my body, and cause it to be embalmed, and take as much of my treasure as seems to you sufficient for the expenses of your journey, both for you and your companions; and that you carry my heart along with you, and deposit it in the Holy Sepulchre of our Lord, since this poor body cannot go thither. And it is my command that you do use that royal state and maintenance in your journey, both for yourself and your companions, that into whatever lands or cities you may come, all may know that you have in charge, to bear beyond seas, the heart of King Robert to Scotland.'

"At these words, all who stood by began to weep; and when Sir James himself was able to reply, he said,—'Ah! most gentle and noble king, a thousand times do I thank you for the great honour you have done me, in making me the depository and bearer of so great and precious a treasure. Most faithfully and willingly, to the best of my power, shall I obey your commands, albeit I would have you believe, that I think myself but little worthy to achieve so high an enterprise' 'Ah! gentle knight,' said the king, 'I heartily thank you, provided you promise to do my bidding on the word of a true and loyal knight.' 'Assuredly, my liege, I do promise so,' replied Douglas, 'by the faith which I owe to God, and to the order of knighthood.' 'Now praise be to God,' said the king, 'for I shall die in peace, since I am assured that the best and most valiant knight of my kingdom has promised to achieve for me that which I myself could never accomplish.' And not long after, this noble king departed this life."

At this or some other interview, shortly before his death, Bruce delivered to the Scottish baron his last advice regarding the best mode of conducting the war against England. They concentrate, in a small compass, the wisdom and experience which he had gained during the whole course of his protracted but glorious war; and it is perhaps not too much too say that their is no instance in their subsequent history in which the Scots have sustained any defeat where it cannot be traced to a departure from some of the directions of what is affectionately called the "Good King Robert's Testament." His injunctions were, that the Scots in their wars ought always to fight on foot that, instead of walls and garrisons, they should use the mountains, the morasses, and the woods; having for arms the bow, the spear, and the battle axe; driving their herds into the narrow glens, and fortifying them there, whilst they laid waste the plain country by fire, and compelled the enemy to evacuate it. "Let your scouts and watches," he concluded, "be vociferating through the night, keeping the enemy in perpetual alarm; and worn out with famine, fatigue, and apprehension, they will retreat as certainly as if routed in battle." Bruce did not require to add that then was the time for the Scots to commence their attacks, and to put in practice that species on warfare which he had taught them to use with such fatal effect. Indeed, these are the principles of war which will in every age be adopted by mountaineers in defence of their country; and nearly five hundred years after this, when a regular Russian army invaded Persia, we find Aga Mohammed Khan speaking to his prime minister almost in the very word of Bruce. "Their shot shall never reach me, but they shall possess no country beyond its range; they shall not know sleep, and let them march where they choose I will surround them with a desert.

Bruce undoubtedly belongs to that race of heroic men, regarding whom we are anxious to learn even the commonest particulars. But living at so remote a period, the lighter shades and touches which confer individually are lost in the distance. We only see, through the mists which time has cast around it, a figure of colossal proportion, "walking amid his shadowy peers;" and it is deeply to be regretted that the ancient chroniclers, whose pencil might have brought him before us as fresh and true as when he lived, have disdained to notice many minute circumstances with which we now seek in vain to become acquainted; yet some faint idea of his person may be gathered from the few scattered touches preserved by these authors, and the greater outlines of his character are too strongly marked to escape us.

In his figure the king was tall and well-shaped. Before broken down by illness, and in the prime of life, he stood nearly six feet high; his hair curled closely and shortly round his neck, which possessed that breadth and thickness that belong to men of great strength; he was broad shouldered and open-chested, and the proportion of his limbs combined power with lightness and activity. These qualities were increased not only by his constant occupation in war, but by his fondness for the chase and all manly amusements. It is not known whether he was dark or fair complexioned; but his forehead was low, his cheek-bones strong and prominent, and the general expression of his countenance open and cheerful, although he was mained by a wound which had injured his lower jaw. His manners were dignified and engaging; after battle, nothing could be pleasanter or more courteous; and it is infinitely to his honour that in a savage age, and smarting under injuries which attacked him in his kindest and tenderest relations, he never abused a victory, but conquered often as effectually by his generosity and kindness as by his great military talents. We know, however, from his interview with the Papal legates, that when he chose to express displeasure his look was stern and kingly, and at once imposed silence and insured obedience. He excelled in all the exercise of chivalry, to such a degree, indeed, that the English themselves did not scruple to account him the third best knight in Europe. His memory was stored with the romances of the period, in which he took great delight. Their hairbreadth 'scapes and perilous adventures were sometimes scarcely more wonderful than his own; and he had early imbibed from such works an appetite for individual enterprise and glory, which, had it not been checked by a stronger passion, the love of liberty might have led him into fatal mistakes; it is quite conceivable that Bruce, instead of a great king, might, like Richard the First, have become only a kingly knight-errant.

But from this error he was saved by the love of his country, directed by an admirable judgment, an unshaken perseverance, and a vein of strong good sense. It is here, although some may think it the homeliest, that we are to find assuredly the brightest part of the character of the king. It is these qualities which are especially conspicuous in his long war for the liberty of Scotland. They enabled him to follow out his plans through many a tedious year with undeviating energy; to bear reverses, to calculate his means, to wait for his opportunities, and to concentrate his whole strength upon one great point, till it was gained and secured to his country for ever. Brilliant military talent and consummate bravery have often been found amongst men, and proved far more of a curse than a blessing; but rarely indeed shall we discover them united to so excellent a judgment, controlled by such perfect disinterestedness, and employed for so sacred an end. There is but one instance on record where he seems to have thought more of himself than of his people, and even this though rash, was heroic.

By his first wife, Isabella, the daughter of Donald, tenth Earl of Mar, he had one daughter, Marjory. She married Walter, the hereditary of High Steward of Scotland, and bore to him one son, Robert Steward, afterwards king, under the title of Robert the second. By his second wife, Elizabeth, the daughter of Richard de Burgh, earl of Ulster he had one son, David, who succeeded him, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret.

Immediately after the king's death his heart was taken out, as he had himself directed. He was then buried with great state and solemnity under the pavement of the choir, in the Abbey Church of Dunfermline, and over the grave was raised a rich marble monument, which was made at Paris. Centuries passed on, the ancient church with the marble monument, fell into ruins, and a more modern building was erected on the same site. This, in our own days, gave way to time; and in clearing the foundations for a third church the workmen laid open a tomb, which proved to be that of Robert the Bruce. The lead coating in which the body was found enclosed was twisted round the head into the shape of a rude crown. A rich cloth of gold, but much decayed, was thrown over it; and, on examining the skeleton, it was found that the breast-bone has been sawn asunder to get at the heart.

There remained, therefore, no doubt, that after the lapse of almost five hundred years, his countrymen were permitted, with a mixture of delight and awe, to behold the very bones of their great deliverer.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 21, 1875.

THE CONTEST.

Mr. Cox's meetings have every where been decidedly successful. The electors are determined to replace him where they put him in January last. A host of new friends are rallying round him, and all his old ones are still warmly in his favor, and hence, it is confidently asserted, that he will receive an increased majority. It would be a great mistake however, because of the general expectation of his success to become careless. There are only a very few days more, and then a united effort and success will be beyond a doubt. His opponents are making desperate efforts to win Mr. Scott and his friends feel that this is his death struggle, and with this in view, they are stopping at nothing. Misrepresentation, their old game, is resorted to freely: not afraid to make the falsest assertions, and where this might expose them to detection, they resort to the basest insinuations. Reformers would do well not to accept their version of any question; their past history in this county ought to render them unworthy the confidence of respectable men. One of their schemes is to assert that Mr. Cox is against railway progress in the country. Now, every one who knows Mr. Cox's position, is fully aware that he is in favor of railways to and through the county, but he has no confidence in anything originating with or advised by Mr. Scott, and a few of his friends. Mr. Cox believes in going before the country with men of means, and judgement as directors, and because he would not join some of those who are now in the directorate, they go about asserting that he is opposed to the rail way, and then skulk behind the railway to save themselves from exposure. They have often heretofore escaped, fearing that the enterprise might be injured by placing the promoters before the public in their true light. Their mode of action is highly dishonorable and censurable.

Mr. Scott's verbose sophistry is also used in the hope of deceiving the unwary. With any number of words he asserts that Ontario is building a large portion of the Pacific Railway, and in this way would leave the erroneous impression that it is the Government of Ontario, and yet it is merely because Ontario contributes to the Dominion funds, and in this sense all the provinces are building large portions of the Railway.

Mr. Scott says he voted for some government measures and hence deserves support. The measures were so popular and imperatively called for by the people of Ontario that he dare not oppose them and come back seeking election He therefore deserves no credit for supporting wise measures. What did he introduce? What act did he inaugurate? Let him point out anything he has done in this county or in the Legislature deserving of popular support, unless forced on him by others, and yet he claims re-election because he moved one resolution in the house and made a short speech. He has spoken in town, but of what benefit to the town have been his speeches? All his efforts consist in windy aspirations of forced breath. He has always been willing to allow others to do the work when necessary.

Mr. Scott and his friends have manifested a spirit of the most determined and bitter hatred towards Mr. Cox, and yet when brought to task, they whine and mourn. They used the most doubtful and questionable means to unseat him, and yet come before the people asking to elect Mr. Scott to carry this same spirit into Parliament: but we feel satified that the people will visit deserving punishment for the course pursued by Drake, Scott, Wood and Co'y, and let us hope that the Electors will, on the 26th inst., say to Mr. Scott, they have no confidence in the promoters of the Claxton Fraud. they have no faith in the persecutors of Mr. Cox, that they believe their conduct inimical to the interest of the country, and that Mr. Scott's misrepresentations are as subversive of the morality of the country as was Sir Hugh Allan's money.

Electors you want honest, upright men to represent you, and thefore elect Mr. Cox.

WEST RIDING NOMINATION.

The nominations for the West Riding, took place on Saturday last, at the Court House. There was a large number of Electors present

The Sheriff read the Writ and then called for nominations.

Mr. Cox was proposed by John Walker Esq., seconded by John Moloney, Esq.

Mr. Scott was proposed by Henry Collins, Esq., and seconded by Dr. O'Sullivan.

Mr. Bertram was proposed by Charles Taylor, Esq', seconded by John Graham, Esq.

Mr. Carnegie was proposed by Wm. John Johnston, Esq., seconded by T. E. Bell, Esq.

Mr. Dumble was proposed by James Mann, Esq., seconded by T. E. Fitzgerald. Esq.

Mr. Haggart was proposed by Wm. Croft, Esq., seconded by T. Thornton, Esq.

Mr. Dumble on behalf of Mr. Cox, demanded a poll, and Mr. Scott demanded a poll on his own behalf.

The Sheriff then read the polling places as follows:—

South Monaghan, at the Courthouse
North Monaghan, No 1, Town Hall;
North Monaghan No. 2, No. 2 School House.
Smith, at No. 1, Bridgenorth; No. 2, Garbutt's School House; No. 3, Selwyn.

Polling to commence at 9 a. m, and to continue to 5 p. m, of same day.

Mr. Scott wished to know if the time of speakers could not be fixed. Mr. Cox wished the time to be unlimited; hence the matter remained so.

The Sheriff stated that Mr. Fairbairn was appointed Mr. Cox's agent, and Mr. W. H. Moore Mr. Scott's agent.

Mr. Cox first addressed the electors. He said that it was scarcely necessary to define his position in reference to the government. In January last he was elected to support the government, and his mind was not an iota changed. He believed the present government the best that had been in our history as a country, and because he believed that they would have his support, so long as they continued to conduct our affairs so wisely and justly as they are at present. He was willing to admit that no man or set of men could do all things to please every one, and therefore the Mowat Government could not please all, but they had so managed public affairs, that no one unbiassed could find much fault, and because of the just and liberal policy, their honesty of purpose they deserved and would have his support in all good measures. He then referred to Mr. Scott as the Review candidate, and as party to the dishonorable and bitter persecution of the Government. In their opposition they had harped on worn out thread bare questions of proton scandals, timber limits, speak now scandals, debenture sales, all of which had been exploded and were now only spoken of because they had nothing else to complain about. On the other hand he could point to the useful and wise legislation of the government, to the liberal policy inaugurated, the impetus given to provincial progress and to the settlement of difficulties that their predecessors feared to touch. For those commendable and liberal acts they should have his support while no doubt Mr. Scott, if elected, would vote want of confidence. if he saw any opportunity to drive them from office.

He then referred to the arguments used by Mr. Scott and friends during the canvas, one was the sale of timber limits. The government had sold about 5,000 square miles of timber limits, on the most advantageous terms, at a time when the lumber trade was prosperous; from the sale they had realised about $550,000; this money they had wisely applied for the best interests of the Country, and he, Mr, Cox, believed that this was a lawful and wise act, which deserved the praise of the people. Mr. Scott, of course, condemned it, but could give no good reason for so doing The Country reaped the advantage of having $550,000 in the treasury or in improvements. The interest of this sum was about $40,000 a year, besides timber dues &c., and this while money was needed to build railways colonization roads and public buildings, together with the benefits of aiding the settlement of the county, as settlements always follow the lumberman's enterprise.

Mr. Cox also defended the sale of the Municipal Debentures on several grounds The first was, they were well sold, and at rates higher than can be realized for any debentures of similar dates bearing five per cent. It was a wise act as it for ever settled a matter that had been used to corrupt the Electors, and had been used by Mr. Carnegie for that purpose, when he was in Parliament. And he showed that Mr. Carnegie then had given advice subversive of honesty and justice. He also defended the division of the Municipal Loan Fund, and showed that no other result could have been devised so likely to meet the wishes of the people of the whole province, while at the same time about $3,115,000 in cash have been or will be given back to the people. In disposing the money due by the Municipalities, Mr. Crooks had applied to the best houses in England, but was not successful at first, and when he did dispose of them, he did it at rates very favorable to the Country. He gave instance of the last sale of the Town of Peterboro' debentures, which was 94, bearing 6 per cent. Mr. Crook's sale was 84 bearing 5 per cent., and this latter was equal to 97 at 6 per cent., so that Mr. Crook's sale was better than the Town sale of debentures by $3 to every $100.

His opponents were raising the cry of hard times. This he said was dishonest, as they well knew, that the crisis in the United States and the depression in the lumber trade caused the hard times. At the present time, over $20,000,000 worth of lumber was piled up at the mills. If this were sold and the money in circulation how brisk it would make things, Therefore, it is not our Government, but the crisis in America and England that is causing stringency.

Another false cry was, that the surplus was all gone and the country is $60,000 in debt. This was like the other false positions assumed. Mr. Crooks in September last, stated that he had nearly $5,000,000 in cash and cash assets. That was not all gone, and by their wise expenditure, the country was being improved, Railways built and public buildings of the greatest utility built and maintained, and after all this there was about $750,000 more in the treasury than under John Sandfield's do-nothing policy. At several public meetings Mr. Carnegie talked about $1,500 given to Professor McCandless, but he was always silent about a certain $4,000 spent on a pleasure trip on the Chicora, at which Mr. Carnegie was one of the jubilant pleasure-seekers.

Mr. Cox then defended himself against the personal slanders circulated against him: one was opposition to the railway, this he said was wrong, for he was not opposed to it. If a railway benefited anyone it would be beneficial to him. But he was opposed to some things about its management, which he would explain hereafter. The Review charged him with opposition to the poor man. It was needless for him to say that this was not true, and their own acts last January would prove this, for then, they charged him with being once one of the poor men and they held that as a sin, but he, (Mr. Cox, was not one who thought it a sin not to belong to the party which claimed for Scott, for the opposite reason, viz., because Mr. Scott was a gentleman; perhaps he was. He had also been accused of using strong language. To this he would say that he was not generally guilty of so doing, but the character of the man who opposed him, led him to use strong words. But no one could fight with chimney sweeps and not get their hands dirtied.

He concluded a very able and effectual speech of over an hour and a half, by asking the electors to again place him where he had been, and from which he had been removed by no act of his own, by an act which he could not control.

Mr. Scott followed, but those who have heard his speeches through the riding, have heard already his speech on Saturday.

The two candidates occupied the whole afternoon, except a few minutes occupied by Mr. Bertram; none of the other persons nominated spoke as they had no audience to address. Indeed, after Mr. Cox's address, a large number of the electors left the court room.

MR. THOMAS WHITE CAUGHT FIBBING.

Mr. Thomas White, true to his natural instincts and Conservative education for over twenty years, continues to utter the most deliberate falsehoods against the Reform leaders, to damage the party.

The last false statement is that Hon. Mr. Mackenzie let a contract for steel rails to his brother. The following denial cast the whole falsehood on the shoulders of Mr. White.

OTTAWA, 14th October.—"The statement of Mr. Thomas White, as reported in the Montreal Gazette, that 'Mr. Mackenzie purchased of a Montreal firm, one of the partners in the firm being his own brother 40,000 tons of steel rails,' is a deliberate falsehood. No steel rails were purchased by me from any Montreal firm —all were obtained by open competition after a months advertising for tenders, the lowest tenders being in all cases accepted. The contracts are all made with the English makers. No brother or relation of mine has any interest direct or indirect, near or remote, in any of these contracts, or ever received, or has any claim to a cent of profit from one or any of them."

A. MACKENZIE.

Changing his base, he next states that the contract was let to a firm of which his brother was a member, and it is now known that his brother has ceased to belong to the firm, and that the contract was it for an English firm, through agents here. Mr. White and his party have so accustomed themselves to make reckless and truthless statements that they forget almost to speak the truth on any political subject. How demoralizing such a course must be.

OUR OWN MANUFACTURERS.

This week we had the pleasure of a look through the boot and shoe establishment of Mr. Wm. McCullagh, George Street, of this town, Mr. McCullagh has become very much celebrated for the excellent quality and stylo of his work in all the different branches of his trade. His Ladies and Gentlemen's wear is admired by every one, for beauty and quality combined.

The very splendid display of his work at the Central Exhibition, was an object of admiration to the thousands of people who visited it. There was a special feature in his work. It was all ordered work, and not got up for mere show, He employs none but good workmen and warrants his work to his customers. His agreeable and gentlemanly reception of his patrons, has made his shop a favorite resort for intending purchasers.

We understand also that so fair and far-famed is his work for neatness and ease, that his order work from Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and other cities and towns in Ontario, is now a considerable business in itself. He pays special attention to every branch of his business, and thus has established for himself a large and increasing trade.

VOTE EARLY.

We ask all our friends to vote early for Mr. Cox, on Tuesday next, and let those who have teams volunteer to go and take a neighbor along. Let there be no carelessness. The enemy is doing his very best. A liberal vote on the 26th will leave Mr. Scott at home for four years.

THE ROMAINE BY-LAW.

This By-Law was defeated on Monday. The vote stood as follows:

	For.	Against.
Ward No. 1	42	49
Ward No. 2	22	43
Ward No. 3	18	101
Ward No. 4	8	48
Total	90	241

Majority against, 151.

From this it would appear that the rate payers were not in favor of it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

KINGSTON.—Mr. Robinson is to be a candidate for the Mayorality of Kingston for 1876.

THE CENTRAL SHOW ended in strong words, we understand. It is said here that a spirit not just to Port Hope was manifested, if so, it is a shame. Let us prove by our act that we can be honorable.

THERE is no reason for saying hard times. Montreal has imported this year:

of Brandy	$214,354	worth
" Gin	44,200	"
" Rum	9,799	"
Ale & Porter	54,509	"
	$322,852

Apetites are strong still. Hard as the times are, since Montreal has imported $322,862 worth of intoxicating liquors. For this large sum there can be no return; it is all lost money, and then think of the hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of the home made article.

JACOB COPE, of Norwood, a veteran of 84, who went to Cobourg a few days ago, to receive his pension, died on Friday the 8th inst. He served in the First Norfolk under the celebrated Col. Joseph Ryerson, and was in several engagements in that troublesome time.

DAVIS, the abortionist was tried in Toronto, last week, the trial lasted three days. He was found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged on the 8th of December. His wife was also found guilty as accessory to the crime. Davis said nothing of importance before the Judge passed sentence—except asking for mercy for his young wife. There are no reasons for hope, for Davis to escape the penalty; his wife may.

THE TRUTH WILL OUT

Who brought out Mr. Sargent? Read Mr. Sargent's letter in this EXAMINER.

"Mr. Burke," a Conservative, "waited on" Mr. Sargent, "asked him to become a Candidate;" "offered to get up an influential deputation to wait on Mr. Sargent."

John Carnegie wrote to Mr. Burke. Mr. Burke wrote to Mr. Carnegie.

Read the last Review also last Register. They fixed the matter, and deceived Mr. Sargent. Oh dear, the truth is out. The Conservatives did it.

John Carnegie and Thos. Burke at the bottom of the whole matter. Mr. Burke did John's work it appears, and then sold Mr. Sargent. Save me from my friends.

BANK STOCK.

The Monetary Times, a usually well informed Journal says:—

The continued fall in the stocks of some banks is occasioning much anxiety in Montreal, But no creditor of any of our banks need be under the least apprehension. Even in the case of the concerns that have failed the depositors and noteholders will all be paid. Let depositors rest in quiet: their money is all safe. But in the meantime we have this counsel to give: let parties holding produce send it to the market and realize at the earliest moment. Let those who are about entering on engagements and commitments pause a while until matters assume a more settled shape. As to bank stocks, it is no time to speculate either for a rise or a fall. Even if some bank dividends are reduced they will probably still pay good interest on the investments. There is no need, therefore, for persons to be selling out and changing the investment.

The advice to farmers may be worth money.

UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS.

STANDING OF THE PETERBORO' PUPILS.

In a former issue we barely gave the result of Mr. Miller's examination, but below will be found full particulars:

Our Collegiate Institute sent up to the University of Toronto, two candidates for Senior Matriculation. These were Isaac N. Marshall, of Brockville, and Peter Miller, of Peterboro'. The former did the "Pass Work" creditably and also obtained "2nd Class Honors" in French; and the latter was awarded two Scholarships amounting to about $160. At the University Examinations, candidates who obtain a sufficient number of marks in the "Pass Work" are put into Class III, and those, who in addition to this, obtain Honors are put into Class II or Class I. Class I being the highest. Isaac N. Marshall's standing was as follows: In "Pass Classics" 2nd; in "Pass Mathematics" 4th; in Pass English 2nd; in Pass German 3rd; and in Honor French 2nd, in Class II. Peter Miller's standing was unusually high, being as follows: In Honor Mathematics 1st, in Class I; in Honor German 1st, in Class I; in Honor Classics 2nd, in Class I; in Honor French 1st, in Class II; and in Honor English 1st, in Class II. He therefore obtained Honors in all Departments. The Teachers who had charge of the various Subjects of Examination were; Principal Dixon, Mathematics; French and German, Mr. A. W. Finlay; Classics, Mr. G. F. Shepley, B.A., and J. F. Jeffers B.A.; and English, Mr. B Earl. We understand that quite a number of boys at the Institute are preparing for both Senior and Junior Matriculation at the next Examination, which will be held in September, 1876, and we have no doubt, if they work as they ought to do, up to that time that some of them will distinguish themselves.

THE CONTEST IN MONTREAL

The interest that attaches to the approaching election of a member to represent Montreal West in the House of Commons is felt remotely beyond that constituency. Mr. Thomas White, who has so often carried the Conservative banner to the breach there to see it torn and trampled in the dust, bids fair to repeat on the coming occasion a similar exploit. The Conservative party is certainly not superstitious or they would have long ago have deserted such a champion of disaster as the editor of the Gazette has proved himself to be on many previous occasions. False prophets, however, have never been wanting of followers, and the Conservative champion in Montreal is no exception to the rule. He has unbounded faith in himself. Already he beholds the soiled mantle of Sir John Macdonald falling upon his shoulders and like Joshua of old, he is impatient to lead the forlorn travellers in the desert of opposition into the land of milk and honey. Aspiring, as he does, to the leadership of the Conservatives of Canada; boldly claiming for himself few equals and no superiors. it is but natural that the public should examine upon what foundation these lofty pretensions are based. He claims to be a protectionist yet he opposes a Government that raised the tariff. He grows eloquent over the union of the Provinces yet he worships Sir John Macdonald, who advised British Columbia to secede. He talks loudly against the failings of the present Government, yet he condones the sale of the Pacific Railway charter by Sir John to Sir Hugh for money to corrupt the electorate. He accepts a prima facie case, yet when the charge is proved he rejects the evidence. He loudly condemns the the land swap transaction, yet he supports with all his power the men who perpetrated it. These are the corner stones of his pretensions, and we recommend them to the consideration of the electors of Montreal West.

UNWISE FAULT-FINDING.

The fault-finding of the party at present in Opposition is of a kind that cannot be readily understood. Usually there is a foundation in fact for most of the charges that politicians of one stripe fling so freely and so recklessly at those of the other: but now the case is altogether exceptional. We have no recollection of a single one of the many grave accusations that have been made against the party at present in power being substantiated. Charges, many of them of the most serious character, have been showered upon the heads of the leaders of the Liberal Party, and repeated again and again, but certainly the element of truth has been wanting in a painful degree. The Ministers at Toronto and at Ottawa alike have been the objects of these assaults, with what consequences to themselves other than to increase their popularity we do not see. Not that it is of any moment to us, but simply to establish the value of unqualified slander as a political weapon or as a party auxiliary, we shall be much pleased to learn what value the Conservatives themselves have received from this particular branch of their service. It would be well, we think, that they should take stock and learn as accurately as they can whether it will be advantageous or otherwise to continue the system of warfare that since their expulsion from power they have practiced. It is to be expected that our estimate and theirs must differ radically as to the expediency of the course that they have pursued. Yet we cannot help stating it to be our impression that nothing has been, nor is much likely to be, gained by adhering to the instrumentality of slander.

No Government can be regarded as perfect. Ministers are exposed in a peculiar way to temptations. The weaknesses of human nature are presented to them every day, and the wonder is that they so rarely commit themselves. Those who the most loudly condemn Ministers for corrupt practices, which have no foundation whatever, will be found to be too often closely identified with those who sought to be the other party to the corrupt practice. There is too often to be found at the bottom of these absurd charges of corruption, not the guilt of Ministers but the disappointed expectancies of the scoundrels who sought out-put relatives but who did not succeed. Then again a very large class of political agitators in the Opposition business under a misapprehension. Their own party was grossly corrupt. Misdeeds were matters of every-day occurrence. Charges made than were almost invariably true, and never were without foundation more or less substantial. Under these circumstances it could not be otherwise than that the political atmosphere would be rank of accusation. Startling tales were told, and while they were only too true, the public were impressed with a sense of their truth The Conservative press and politicians by a most extraordinary appreciation of their privileges and duties, have assumed that they can take up the work of accusation just where their opponents left off. They seem to have come to the conclusion, that they could, at the moment of their going into opposition, jump into the possession of a first-class stock of "outrages," corrupt acts, and all the other evils with which their opponents for many years had the opportunity of charging them. It was manifestly their idea that it was quite needless to wait until guilt had been incurred before venturing to charge it. And they have been operating upon that idea ever since they were driven from office. The public know perfectly well that nineteen-twentieths of the charges made against Ministers are untrue, and that those who make them do so with a full knowledge of their untruthfulness. The very slow progress being made therefore towards creating a state of unpopularity to the embarrassment of ministers is not at all a surprising circumstance. It is just possible that after the Liberal party have been a long series of years in office that grounds of offensive action may present themselves. But it is bad judgment that directs a party to assume that its opponent is corrupt in thought, word, and deed before it has been exposed to those influences and those necessities of which corrupt action is the all but inevitable result.—Cornwall Gazette.

THE CONDITION of the COUNTRY.

At a time like the present, when gloom and uncasiness extensively prevail in some quarters, and many are looking nervously forward to the coming winter, it is most important to have an accurate estimate of the real position. Anxiety is apt to be contagious; apprehensions are easily diffused. And so many people take a perverse pleasure in spreading bad news that is sometimes positively difficult to get persons to take a rational view of all that is to be said on the other side, and make a fair estimate of the position.

Now, we have no hesitation in expressing our conviction that there is vastly more real soundness in the country than is generally supposed. The evils under which the country has suffered are largely confined to a few places. These are important, it is true, but they are not the whole country. Montreal has suffered most severely, but then, that city has had an extraordinary amount of rapid growth and a development of speculation that is most unhealthy. The present is a time of reaction, and matters will come round again. The timber trade of Quebec has been severely depressed for some time back, but the leading houses in the trade maintain their position unimpaired. And signs of improvement are distinctly visible. The English market is reviving. Merchants are willing to buy at present quotations, which is a very much better state of things than that prevailing some months ago. The quantity shipped is largely reduced, and that which is now in stock in the English market will undoubtedly bring fair returns.

But passing from these two centres to the West we find signs of a better state of things on every hand. In a large number of towns and rising villages there have been no failures at all. The great farming interest is prosperous in a high degree. Splendid crops have been reaped, and are now being marketed at remunerative prices. Some wholesale houses that have exercised reasonable caution in selecting customers, have had remittances in excess of even last year. There have been a number of failures in Toronto and Hamilton. But some are men who never ought to have been in wholesale business at all, and others are those who have long been "above their business," and trading without capital on a former reputation. Failures from these causes will occur at any time. Foolish and venturesome young fellows, with much ambition and no caution, will always come to grief. And extravagance and inattention to business will invariably bring their natural consequences, no matter how sound the country may be as a whole. Stock speculation has diverted the minds of many men from their legitimate business: and if they have burnt their fingers, and lost money, the lesson will be a useful one for all time to come. Others have been tempted during the last two years to take money from their business to put into real estate; generally, to build handsome residences or warehouses, too fine for the business to be done in them. This, however, is only a temporary evil. Property has been created which has a value, even if more has been spent on it than it is worth. The way to make up for the mischief is by more economical living. To take less out of business for household purposes will bring matters round in a year or two. And some men would do well to sell their residences and come down to a plainer style of living altogether.

But that the country is generally sound there can be no doubt, although there are threatening symptoms in some quarters.—Monetary Times.

THE BEER QUESTION.

Mr. Leonard, Issuer of Licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors has received instructions to forward to the proper authorities the names of all parties found selling or peddling beer without License from the proper authorities in Ontario.

The matter has arisen in this way:—

"The question of brewers' licenses has again been brought into prominence by a recent decision of the Court of Error and Appeal for the Province of Ontario. As the case of Regina vs. Taylor is a test one, all who are interested in the matter have doubtless watched closely the various stages through which it has already passed A brewing license is a species of indirect taxation, and as taxation is amongst those questions coming within the jurisdiction of the Federal Parliament, it is necessary for brewers to take out their license under the Dominion Act relating to the subject. Having done so, it was not unnatural to suppose that they were thereby empowered to dispose of manufactured articles in any quantities they pleased. To sell beer in small quantities, however, is in direct contravention of a law passed by the Ontario Legislature, 37 Vic., ch. 32, and last year a Toronto brewer was fined for retailing without having taken out a special license under the Ontario Act. The matter came ultimately, in connection with another case, before the Court of Queen's Bench, which decided that the Ontario Legislature had no power to pass an Act requiring brewers to take out a license to sell ale brewed by them under the Dominion license. The case was appealed by the Crown to the Court of Error and Appeal, which has just reversed the decision of the Court of Queen's Bench, and decided that the passage of an Act compelling brewers to take out a license to sell was not beyond the powers of the Provincial Legislature. The Judges were unanimous in regarding a brewer's license fee as a species of indirect taxation, but they also held that the words "direct issues" occurring in the Act should not be limited to shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneers, and other similar licenses. The matter is not likely to rest here, however, and in all probability it will be one of the first cases to be dealt with by the new Supreme Court for the Dominion, to which it will undoubtedly be carried on appeal. It is necessary that an authoritative decision should be given in the case, which is a test one, and has an interest for the whole Dominion. The same conflict of jurisdictions might occur in any other Provinces as well as in Ontario."

Where two books are allowed in the same subject, a discretion is permitted, which should be exercised by the Master, with the concurrence of the Trustees, and of the Inspector, which will enable him to meet the complaints as to the cost of changing the text-books.

Due notice will be given as to the time when the new scheme of payment by results will come in to operation in the High Schools, and the new programmes are as yet incomplete.

(From the Toledo Blade.)

"Success is never achieved without merit. A man may make a poor article and sell it once, and there being 40,000,000 people in the United States, the sale to each one would be enough to make a decent fortune. But an article that holds the field year after year, and the sales of which increase regularly and rapidly, must have absolute merit. Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., occupies our entire eighth page today with his various articles. We admit it, because we know the Doctor, and know of his articles, We know him to be a very regularly educated physician, whose diploma hangs on the wall of his office, and we know that he has associated with him some of the most eminent practitioners in the country. We know that parties consult him, by mail and in person, from all the States in the Union every day, and that they are fairly and honestly dealt with. This grand result has been accomplished by two agencies—good, reliable articles—articles which once introduced, work easily their own way—and splendid business management. They succeeded because they ought to have succeeded." If you would patronize Medicines, scientifically prepared by a skilled Physician and Chemist, use Dr Pierce's Family Medicines Golden Medical Discovery is nutritious, tonic alterative, and blood-cleansing, and an unequalled cough Remedy: Pleasent Purgative Pellets, scarcely larger than the mustard seeds, constitute an agreable and reliable physic; Favorite Prescription, a remedy for debilitated females; Extract of Smart-Weed, a magical remedy for Pain, Bowel Complaints, and an unequalled Liniment for both human and horsefleah; while his Dr, Sage's Catarrh Remedy is known the world over as the greatest specific for Catarrh and "Cold in the Head" ever given to the public. They are sold by druggists.

20 YEARS A SUFFERER.—CURED BY THE GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Dear Sir,—Twenty years ago I was shipwrecked on the Atlantic Ocean, and the cold and exposure caused a large abscess to form on each leg, which kept continually discharging.—I was attended by doctors in Liverpool, Harve, New Orleans, New York, and at the hospital on Staten Island (where the doctors wanted to take one leg off). Finally, after spending hundreds of dollars, I was persuaded to try your "Golden Medical Discovery," and now, in less than three months after taking the first bottle, I am thankful to say I am completely cured, and for the first time in ten years can put my left heel to the ground. I am at home nearly every evening and shall be glad to satisfy any person of the truth of this information. I am, sir, yours respectfully.

KNOX COLLEGE.

The new buildings erected in Toronto for the use of the students of Knox College were formally opened on Wednesday the 6th inst., with appropriate ceremonies. The cost of construction amounts to not less than $120,000, nearly all of which has been subscribed and will be paid within three years. The building stands on Spadina Avenue, just north of College street, in the immediate vicinity of the Provincial University buildings. The curriculum of the College includes subjects in divinity only, it being the belief of the Presbyterian denomination that instruction in unprofessional branches of study can be as well secured in the non-sectarian college, leaving the full strength of the Knox faculty to be applied to the theological training of students. The opening exercises were presided over by Rev. Dr. Cook, Moderator of the General Assembly and a number of men of the denomination took part. Speeches were the order of the day, the principal subject being of course, the proverbial arrest of the Presbyterian Church education and the prospects of the denominational college with its new institution. The announcement was made that the heirs of Sir Hall, of Peterborough, intended to donate $40,000 towards the endowment fund, which will be a handsome assistance in raising out the work of preparing endowment for the subsidy. The Presbyterians have now at their command an income of which they may be proud, and that new college, opened under such promising auspices, is doubtless destined to become exhaustive influence for good.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—

I am somewhat surprised at the line of conduct pursued by Mr. T. Burke, Editor and Proprietor-in-chief of the Norwood Register, in reference to myself.

There was no man in Norwood did more to induce me to become a candidate in the recent contest, than did this same Thomas Burke. Not only did he wait on me himself, asking me to become a candidate, but on my refusal he proposed to get up an influential deputation to wait on me. with the view of securing my consent. and further, he proposed this same matter to leading men in this village, who will attest the same if required. When he spoke to me he pledged his honor as a man "Not to put so much as a straw in my way,"—to use his own beautiful phrasseology—"as he was pledged to support Dr. O'Sullivan he had to vote for him, but he would do that and nothing more." But, Sir, he was a wolf in sheep's clothing; nor do I, nor any honest minded elector want any stronger proof of this than his letter of the 12th inst. to the Editor of the Review. So much, by the way, for Mr. Burke's independence and blatant detestation of the aforesaid editor. The Elder says, "Burke, stand up and recite, and Burke stands up and recites." He is a veritable bat bird as best suits the shade of light Mr. Burke attempts to play upon words. I emphatically say, that neither a copy nor a proof nor anything else in connection with that fly sheet was ever submitted to me. When the sheets were all struck off, and in Mr. B's pocket for delivery, he showed me a single sheet.

By the way, Mr. Editor, I know of no place where an honest, truthful and independent journal (having not more than one half the words wrongly set up) would be more likely to succeed than in our Village of Norwood. Surrounded by a good agricultural country, there would be an abundance of job work, and no competition save from our aforesaid circular shaped friend, which wings in a short time would be applied to their proper use, viz.: bearing him ont of the country.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM SARGENT.
Norwood, 19th Oct., 1875.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH.

SIR,—I am no great politician, but I solicit your attention for a few minutes, to discuss the situation we are placed in by the conduct of our Tory neighbours. The duly elected member, Geo. A. Cox, Esq., has, through their enmity and persecution, as you are aware, been unseated; but they did not succeed in disqualifying him, as they hoped, and he now comes forward again and asks your support; Mr. Scott, his former and vanquished opponent opposes him again; which places the Electors in the identical position they were in at the last election. Now Gentlemen, let us take a common sense view of the matter, and see what conclusions we can come to. Mr. Geo. A. Cox is a gentleman of unblemished character, and as a sterling business man, he has no superior, either in the Town or Country. He has done nothing since we last elected him, that should cause us to withdraw our confidence from him at the polls, when the time comes not only so, but he merits our warmest sympathy and support, seeing by the acts of the unprincipled, and outrageous conduct of the Tories, he has been put to a great deal of anxiety and trouble, and the loss of hundreds of dollars, which, no doubt, his opponents chuckle over. Geo. A. Cox is as good a man to day, as he was when we last elected him, then why not elect him again, and show that the West Riding Electors have full confidence in him.

Mr. Scott, the opposition candidate, is a Lawyer, which ought not to be in his favor He is an enemy of the Mowat Government; he says the laws they have enacted, are most grievous, unjust and progressive. You can't see these things as Mr. Scott sees them. Not much danger of ruin with nearly five millions of dollars in the Treasury.

Electors, do not be carried away from the right path, and by your own interests, by those stale, stereotyped, long winded speeches of Mr. Scott and his friends, but what do they all amount to? Do they benefit either Town or Country? But he never tells you anything about the great Pacific Swindles, the most gigantic fraud of modern times, if it had been carried out—not a word.

Mr. Cox has been a resident of this Town for the last 18 or 20 years, and no man can with truth say, that he ever was guilty of a mean act; if he left the Tory ranks, no man could blame him for leaving bad company. He has always attended to his own business. He bears an unblemished character, and no man in the County knows our wants better than he does. He may not spin such long yarns as Mr. Scott; it is not in his line of business, but his word can be relied on, and what he promises, he will do.

Elect Mr. Geo. Cox, and then you may expect to be benefitted by your representative; but if you record your votes in favor of the Lawyer you have no hope—therefore be wise, and to use a homely phrase, don't cut your own throats. When the time arrives, get your neighors along with you, and go and vote for Geo. Cox, all wise men will do so.

LOCAL ITEMS.

MUSIC HALL.—Mr. Cox will hold a meeting in the Music Hall on Friday, to-morrow, evening, at 7.30.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—Thursday, 28th instant, will be a general thanksgiving day in Ontario, and in towns will be a holiday.

LEADING Sewing Machine Makers recommend CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice the ANCHOR on each Spool.

Mr. James Sheridan, piano tuner for Messrs. A. & S. Nordheimer, between Toronto and Kingston, will visit Peterboro regularly until further notice. All orders left at Mathias and Reid's Book Store will be attended to promptly.

THE GAS PIPES are being laid to the new bridge with a view to lighting it up. It is said that the Ashburnham council contemplate getting two or three lamps on Elizabeth street, the movement would be acceptable to the people.

THE NEW BRIDGE.—We understand that the Joint Committee have taken the bridge off the hands of the contractors and settled the matter finally. The construction has cost the town $4,527,50, and the county, $4,362,50; total $8,890,00. $300 have been witheld for delay in completing the work, under the contract to retain $10 a day after the 10th of September.

CONCERT AND ASSEMBLY.—The Firemen's Band gave an entertainment in the Drill Shed on Tuesday evening, the attendance was very slim. After the Band gave some of their select pieces, they adjourned from the Drill Shed to the Music Hall, where they had an Assembly which was largely attended and we learn was quite a success.

PROMENADE CONCERT.—A Promenade Amateur Concert with popular readings interspersed, will be held in Mr. G. Shaw's house, over the Ontario Bank, on Wednesday evening next, the 27th inst., at 8 o'clock. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the liquidation of the debt on the organ used in the Mission School House in the South end of the town. Admission 25cts.

MILLINERY OPENING.—W. G. Thomson's Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms were opened yesterday, with a grand display of handsome pattern bonnets and hats, richly trimmed mantles, and an endless variety of feathers, flowers and ribbons. The ladies were in crowds to see the display. Miss Currie always has her Rooms arranged in splendid style, and is most obliging to customers and visitors.

PHILHARMONIC PROMENADE CONCERT.—The 57th Band, under the leadership of Mr. Haumerschmit, gave an entertainment in the Drill Shed, on Friday eve'g. last, which was well attended, there being between four and five hundred present. The Band played some very fine music, which showed that there was music in the 57th regiment. This Band is making great improvement of late in its playing, Mr. Gehricke's Violin and Cornet Solos were loudly encored. By some disappointment the Quadrille Band of Port Hope did not put in an appearance.

REFITTED.—Mr. H. LeBrun has fitted his premises in good style, he having all his ready-made clothing on the second flat. His business has increased so much during the last few months that this change has been found necessary.

He has a very large and well assorted stock of Ready-made Clothing, suitable for the coming season. His stock of Tweeds, &c., are also complete in every line. Clothing made up on the shortest possible notice, and in a manner not to be surpassed by any house in the Dominion. Look out for his advertisement next week.

THE OSBORNE SEWING MACHINES.—In addition to the honours already awarded the Osborne Sewing Machines, we have to chronicle two more, The Osborne Family Machine took the 1st prize at the Peterboro Central Exhibition, and also the 1st prize at the Kingston Fair, held this week. These honors come crowding fast on the Osborne machines, and are the best evidence that could be afforded of their excellence and adaptability to all kinds of work.—Guelph Mercury Oct. 7th, 1875. Shortly & Hazlehurst Agents for the above machines, George Street Peterboro.—42-3ins.

LOCK YOUR DOORS.—On Saturday night some person or persons entered Mr. Freeman's hotel, near the Station, and succeeded in finding a gold watch worth $75; a silver watch worth $25, and ten dollars in cash, and got away safely. No clue to the party has yet been found. On Sunday night some one raised the window of Mr. W. H. Wrighton's back premises, entered and attempted to get into the store but failed; a light in the hall up stairs, it is believed, prevented further attempts. It would be well to keep a watch that doors are properly closed. It is not believed that there are any notorious burglars among us. These first attempts have been made by gentlemen who will not work, cannot want, and to beg are ashamed, and will be found to be the work of bar room and billiard room loafers.

THE SHOW ROOM of Macdonald & Elder which were opened to the public last week, was the most successful display they have ever had. Certainly a finer display of really choice and beautiful millinery, mantles, flowers, ribbons, ornaments, &c., would be difficult to find any where. The evidences of highly cultivated taste and rare skill in combining color and materials so as to give the finest effects to the various articles was manifest. The hats and bonnets, which the ladies would say, were sufficiently trimmed, were not over-loaded with trimmings, and while rich in appearance were not gaudy. Their new styles in shapes are such as any lady might wear with satisfaction. It is no wonder that the millinery department at the "Elephant" is so popular. It must be a great satisfaction to our lady friends to know that they can always obtain there, that which will equal any thing of the same class turned out of the best city houses, either in style or finish.

HISTORY OF CANADA.—We have been favored with a copy of a History of Canada for the use of schools, published by James Campbell & Son, Toronto, and compiled by J. Frith Jeffers, Esq., B.A., at present classical teacher in our collegiate Institute. It purports to be one of the Campbell series of school books, and as it consists of about 300 pages will, so far as size is concerned, be a very suitable book. The manner in which the subject is treated, makes it a desirable book for students. The principal events are nicely arranged at the head of each chapter, thus preparing the pupil for the general features and characters of the period treated of. The author has also given contemporaneous events and persons that will not only assist the reader to acquire a knowledge of events connected with British history, but will serve to fix on the memory the events of Canadian history proper. The style of the author is as free as a rehearsal of dry facts will admit. So far as a cursory examination will enable us to form an opinion, this little book will prove popular. It will very soon be in the bookstores for sale. It is also very pleasing to the patrons of our Collegiate Institute to have a gentleman of Mr. Jeffers' erudition as teacher of their children.

You will save time and trouble with your Sewing Machine by using CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice ANCHOR on each Spool.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The council met in special session on Monday evening.

Present, His Worship the Mayor in the chair, and Messrs. Hopkins, Patterson, Beal, Helm, Dixon, Thornton, Cahill.

The Mayor explained the necessity of calling them in special session this evening, so as to give him (Mr. Toole) and the town treasurer authority to raise money to pay off the town share of the New Iron Bridge.

The minutes of previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

Mr. Rutherford then entered and took his seat.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Patterson, that this meeting go into no further business except the New Iron Bridge.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Patterson, seconded by Mr. Hopkins, that the Mayor be authorized to pay on the part of the corporation to the Canton Wrought Iron Bridge Company only the amount due under the condition of the contract with the exemption only of the 30 days extension of time granted by the joint committee.—Carried.

The Mayor said that they had passed a by-law some time ago, authorizing them to borrow $10,000, and as the money had been partly spent and that there is not enough left to pay the town's share of the Bridge. He also explained to them that the Bridge Company had been 32 days behind the time specified in the contract allowing 30 days extension of time, and that the town had been at some expense watching the old one and lighting it up, he thought that they should deduct $10 per day, the sum named in the contract, for the 32 days the company were behind time.

Mr. Cahill asked if the bridge was satisfactory to the committee.

The Mayor said that it was and that the gentleman who was here agent for the company had said that the test put on it last week was no test at all considering the strength of the bridge.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Patterson, that a by-law to authorize the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow a further sum of four thousand dollars from the Ontario Bank, was read a first and second time.

The Mayor read over a by-law amending the previous one, and authorizing the Mayor and Treasurer of the town of Peterboro to borrow $10,000, and if necessary, to add $4,000 more to it.

The by-law went through its several readings and was passed.

Moved by Mr. Beal, seconded by Mr. Patterson, that the by-law entitled a by-law to authorize the Mayor and Treasurer of the town of Peterboro to borrow from the Ontario Bank a further sum of $4,000 and to amend by law No. 309, be now read a third time and passed, and that the 28th rule of this council be temporarily suspended for that purpose.—Carried

The council then adjourned.

LAS CRUCES DESTROYED.

TWO WATERSPOUTS THAT SWEPT AWAY EVERY HOUSE IN THE TOWN.

LAS CRUCES, New Mexico, Sept. 12.—A great water spout suddenly appeared in the hills about one mile thick of the town at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, and before the inhabitants had time to comprehend the impending calamity it was upon them. The tall column, composed of water and dust, approached with such velocity that in less than ten minutes from the time of its appearance, sixty-three houses had been hurled to the ground. The streets were soon covered to the depth of four or five feet with water, and the current was of such great strength that bowlders of large size were carried away. On Sunday the entire population were out repairing the damage as much as possible in order that the homeless might be housed and cared for. The work was kept up on Monday, and everybody began to look cheerful when, at 4 o'clock, another water spout came on with equal celerity. Sixteen houses that escaped the previous visitation were tumbled down and their contents destroyed. The flood lasted three hours. The damage done by these storms will amount to $150,000.

MANITOBA.—Lieut. Gov. Morris has concluded a most satisfactory treaty with the Saulteaux, and swampy Crees. The territory surrendered covers an area 50,000 square miles and also affords free navigation of a portion of the lower Saskatchewan as well as the lakes of Lake Winnipeg.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' EXCELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN COLD.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it, I would recommend it to all."—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P.Q., writes, "I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until tried it Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man." A Mayhew, Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundred bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Ruman, Township Percy, writes. "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. M. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes. "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Mayhew of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured it is a most remarkable medicine.

PARTED.

"'Tis Destiny, unshunnable as Death."

When the frosts crowned we met,
My love and I,
In the near fly the ships
Tossed heavily;
Lamps had gone out on earth,
But those in Heaven
Trembled, for two more hearts
That God had riven.

His accents broke the pause,
My tongue was tied.
He found last words to speak,
My sobs replied.
Then he drew my white face
Up to the light,
And said, "Farewell poor love,
Dear love, good night."

At the cross-roads we kissed,
I stood alone;
He took the homeward path.
Mine led me home.
He said, "I shall return,"
I knew not so,
Not one of ten returns
Of those that go.

Dreary the great world grew,
And the sun cold;
No young no hour ago
I had grown old;
One God made for him,
We loved each other.
But Fate gave him one road,
And me another!

How it Began, and How it Ended.

Done with a revolver! Shot himself through the head! That was the story of a young life suddenly ended, told in the morning papers a few days ago.

What for? Why should a young man, full of health and strength, in love with a fair young girl—for he left some dying words for her—and with a father and mother to be heart-broken by his terrible death—why should a young man so situated take his own life?

He had betrayed his trust and defrauded his employer. He had been discovered, and the shame which before was secret was about to become open and known. He could not face it. He preferred to face Death—grim and terrible as Death is! So he died by his own hand.

But what led to such a culmination? Expensive habits. He had been living beyond his means. From this one criminal weakness came all his woe.

Young men, take warning by this fearful example, added to thousands that have gone before it. Above all things cultivate simple tastes and ways of living and inexpensive habits. Make your money before you spend it. Real wants, real necessities are few, and may be cheaply provided for. Avoid extravagance in advance of means to support it, as you would avoid the Evil One in more visible form.—New York Ledger.

Keep clear of a man who does not value his own character.

Nobody is more like an honest man than a thorough rogue.

In any business never wade into water where you cannot see the bottom.

Do not choose your friend by his looks; handsome shoes often pinch the feet.

Not every one who has the gift of speech understands the value of silence

FIRST CLASS CERTIFICATES.

SUBJECT OF EXAMINATION IN ENGLISH LITERATURE.—JULY, 1876.

The following Report from the Central Committee of Examiners, communicated in a letter from the Rev. Professor Young, the Chairman, has been concurred in by the Chief Superintendent of Education, and is published for the information of all parties concerned.

"In re arranging the programme for the Normal Schools, so as to adapt it to the new system of annual sessions, the Council of Public Instruction decided, in accordance with a recommendation of the Central Committee, that English Literature with its History, should be substituted for the History of English Literature; but, as it is neither possible nor desirable to make a survey of the whole field of English Literature, during a single session, the Normal School course was to consist of a sketch of the literature of particular eras, with critical examination of one or more works in Prose and Verse.

"The Central Committee, though they have received no express instructions on the subject, understand that it is their duty, in their Examination of Candidates for First Class Certificates, to meet the wishes of the Council in this matter, and accordingly they now request that the Chief Superintendent would, for the information of those who intend to compete for First Class Certificates, give public notice of the special eras in the History of English Literature, and of the works in prose and verse, which they intend to make the subjects of examination next July.

"They have selected a part of the works of four eminent authors, each of whom represents a different period in the literary history of England, and they purpose examining candidates for First Class Certificates on these selections, as well as on the lives of the authors, and on the literary history of the period in which each author lived, with the causes to which the several periods owed their peculiar literary character.

"The following are the works selected:—

I. The Tragedy of Macbeth—Shakespeare.

II. Il Penseroso—Milton.

III. Ten Essays from the Spectator—Addison.

(i.) No. 18. History of the Italian Opera.

(ii.) No. 21. Divinity, Law and Physic, overburdened with Practitioners.

(iii.) No. 68. On Friendship.

(iv.) No. 69. The Royal Exchange—Benefit of extensive Commerce.

(v.) No. 81. Female Party-Spirit discovered by Patches.

(vi.) No. 112. A Sunday in the Country—Sir Roger at Church.

(vii.) No. 159. The Vision of Mirza

(viii.) No. 239. Various ways of Managing a Debate.

(ix.) No. 281. Dissection of a Coquette's Heart,

(x.) No. 289. On the Civil Constitution of Great Britain.

IV. The Lives of Milton and Addison—Samuel Johnston.

"While the Committee will attach due weight to a close study of these selections, they will consider it of far greater consequence that candidates should show themselves able to enter into the spirit of the authors read, and to appreciate the beauty of their style. They will prefer a knowledge of important facts and general features to the most minute acquaintance with details, if unaccompanied by an ability to distinguish what is important from what is not. Further, in order to impart a stimulus to the study of English Literature, and to improve the teaching of English throughout the Province, the Central Committee—acting, as they believe, in harmony with the spirit of the regulation of the Council—purpose increasing the relative number of marks assigned, in the Examination of Candidates for First Class Certificates, in what may be termed the English branches. In future the number of marks allowed for Algebra, Geometry and Natural Philosophy, will be 675 in all; and exactly the same number will be allowed for English Grammar and Etymology, English Literature and Composition."—Journal of Education.

WORK.

Parents should teach their children to work, and to depend in a great measure upon themselves. Those who have been taught to despise labor and know nothing about work are poor indeed. The most forlorn and miserable of all men and women belong to this class. They may have wealth. Still, riches do not always last, and the rich as well as the poor require this training. Skill to labor is no disadvantage to the rich, and is indispensable to the poor. All should labor in some way to make the world richer and better; to lift it up to higher levels of enjoyment and progress; to make its homes brighter and happier by devoting to our fellows our best thoughts and influences; all should live for something besides themselves, worthy of life and its capabilities, for noble deeds and achievements.

VINEGAR BITTERS

Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In those, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP, ON AYLMER STREET, PETERBORO',

(Near Mr. Toole's Factory.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Sieve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, tried it, know that it cured them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh, makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels miserably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

The superiority of these Extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from the poisonous oils and acids which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavors now in the market. They are not only true to their names, but are prepared from fruits of the best quality, and are so highly concentrated that a comparatively small quantity only need be used.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the nations of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is, at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. No complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. What a blessing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses. So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or attempt more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does it fall. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is powerless to injure any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our space is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all round the world.

Choice Poetry.

AUTUMN.

—Written for the EXAMINER.

Sweet Autumn, once again thou'rt here.
Ingathering season of the year,
In changeful dress thou dost appear
For a time, all breathless.

Thy woodlands gay that charm the eye,
Might well the artist's skill defy,
With gayest leaves of every dye,
And tints of every hue.

Here human life in all its stages
Is shadowed forth, in mingled glades,
Where greenest leaf and loudest fades,
Some sooner, but certain all.

How lovely are the sunny days,
How sweetly calm the mellow'd haze,
How tenderly the mighty plays
With the downward fluttering leaf.

A brilliant carpet now is spread
Of yellow, golden, brown and red,
Low resting 'neath the shipmonk's tread
Home hasting with winter's food.

Autumn, what solemn preacher thou,
With sacred truth stamped on thy brow,
And looking sweetly mournful now,
For a time impaling life

But Autumn still in midst shed
For fadling life Him that's we 'en end,
Just planning thought we can be glad
With hopes of a higher life.

THE HEREAFTER.

SERMON BY REV. D. J. MACDONNELL.

Much quiet comment having been made on a sermon lately preached by Mr. Macdonnell, of St. Andrew's, Toronto, the Montreal Witness has obtained what it professes to regard as a fair summarized report of it. Believing that it will be read with much interest by our readers, we transfer it to our colums:—

The text was taken from Romans v., from the 12th verse to the end of the chapter.

He began by expounding the passage at some length. The turning point of it was the representation in the 14th verse of Adam as the type of the coming one, Jesus Christ. In the 12th and 21st verses, which were antitheses, the points were stated that as the sin of Adam brought death upon all men, so the righteousness of Christ brought eternal life to all men, and in the 15th, 16th and 17th verses there was a contrast stated to show that the free gift by Christ was greater beyond all comparison than the transgressions by Adam. Some points were quite clear—first, that sin is unalterably linked with death, righteousness with life. There were the five words:—Sin, death, grace, righteousness, life. Sin and death, the two evil powers, on the one side;—righteousness and life, the two grand results of God's grace, on the other side, and God's grace between abolishing sin and death, and bringing forth righteousness and life. The favour of God could only rest on the righteous. So if you would be blessed on earth, living as a man morally and spiritually in the image of God you must be righteous; and the righteousness of no other being, and of no myriads of beings, would do you a particle of good if you were not righteous yourself. In regard to death, sin, and righteousness, the human race is an organic whole, not a mass of isolated units, and the whole body feels the power of the sinful head, or the power of the righteous head. Sin is traced to its source in Adam, our natural head; righteousness is traced to its source in Christ, our spiritual head. When you come to explain how we get our sin from Adam and our righteousness from Christ, you come to the human interpretations of the Divine record, which often leads us into great perplexity. The Pelagian theory, that every child is born into the world perfect, but falls through the bad example set it by its parents as Adam from the beginning set a bad example; the Augustine theory that the act of Adam was the act of mankind, the whole race being contained in him as the germ; the Federal theory, that there was a covenant between God and Adam, that the latter should stand as a moral probation on behalf of the race, and his obedience or disobedience should be imputed to his descendants; or the Arminian theory, that there being an organic unity of the race, corruption of the nature of man has been entailed upon the descendants of Adam by Adam's sin, which, however, is rather to be called an original misfortune than an original sin, for which God in Christ has provided an abundant remedy,—he did not consider as reasonable as that of the Westminster Confession of Faith which was a kind of combination of the Augustinian view and the Federal theory. After quoting the Confession on the subject, the speaker went on to say:—"This is a human account of the matter—it is as good an account as any philosopher that I have ever read anything of, can yet give—for this is a matter for the philosopher as well as for the theologian. It is not started by the Bible; it is started by man's conscience. There is the fact staring you in the face that men are sinners. If there were no Bible you would still see that such is the case. Observe, it is not a bare legal imputation of Adam's sin to men who had no share in it. That we could not believe—it would be unjust. It is an imputation of sin to men who share the nature of Adam. The poison that is in the root comes out inevitably in the leaf—the mud that is in the fountain head mingles with the stream as it rolls onward. I think that is the intelligent view, and I don't think it conflicts with God's righteousness. I say death passed upon all, because all sinned. There never has been a man yet that did not sin, and so with regard to Christ, the righteous head, there is no bare imputation of His righteousness to men who have no share in it; but there is an imputation to men who live in Christ as the branch in the vine. All His fulness overflows into them; every part of His righteousness becomes theirs. For good or for evil the race is one organic whole. The stream of sin has flowed uninterruptedly from the one fountain, Adam; the stream of righteousness flows perennially from the one fountain, Jesus Christ. As the whole race suffered through Adam's sin, so the whole race shall be benefitted by Christ's righteousness. That is what three phrases mean to say, and this question at once occurs. Does this passage teach universal salvation—salvation of men without exception? Is that what the words mean? It is what they seem to mean. The passage seems to say, as clearly as human language can say it, that the justification is co-extensive with the condemnation; that the pardon is co-extensive with the judgment; that the sanctification is co-extensive with the sin. And it seems to say that there will be a mighty preponderance of the good secured by Christ over the evil inherited by Adam. Just read the 18th verse; when you say that "judgment" came upon all men to condemnation, you don't except anybody; then when Paul says, "Righteousness came upon all men to sanctification," why should you except any? I state the question boldly, for this is the question we have to our face; and I just simply didn't preach on these verses two or three Sundays ago, because I didn't know exactly what to say on the point. Plain men reading these words without any theology in their heads, and without any preconceived notions, will say that it means that all men who became sinners through Adam, are to be made holy through Christ; candidly, that is what it does mean. I reiterate that there is to be a mighty preponderance of good over evil; for if through the one transgression by one the many died, much more shall the gift of the grace of God abound to the many. Where sin multiplied, grace did much more abound. Are these statements consistent with the cherished views about the saved and the lost respectively—about the eternal blessedness of the saved and the eternal misery of the lost?" He quoted the opinion of the Rev. Dr. Hodge, that the saved would be infinitely more numerous than the lost, and asked, "How does Dr. Hodge get at that fact? With the expectation that there will be in the future a time when men will be nearly all righteous, when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth. That is one assumption, and the other is that all who die in infancy will be saved. This is a sad way of bringing in the promise. Does it not lead us to cry out, 'Oh, that all the wicked had died in infancy!' We see men going down to death, dying as drunkards and licentious libertines. Oh that these men had died in their mothers' arms! And then the terrible question comes, How do you known that all infants are saved? The Word of God does not say it any more than it says that all men will be saved. Now we must face this question fairly, as men who believe in Scripture, in God, in righteousness, and in love." After referring to the question of baptism, and expressing his belief that baptism had nothing to do with the salvation of infants, remarking that the idea was too monstrous for him to entertain for a moment that God would condemn any human being to eternal infamy for the want of a few drops of water on its forehead, he proceeded:—"I believe that all infants will be saved—not because I find it in the Scripture, for I don't, but just because it seems to be in accordance with God's love and God's grace, and with what Jesus Christ said about little children coming to Him. It is not because children are not sinners; we know they are. Here is the question:—Can God, through all eternity look complacently upon, not only the misery, but the sin of the lost? I heard a good man say not long ago—speaking of this very matter—of how it would effect the redeemed in Heaven to know that there are thousands of men suffering in hell—that we, who are going about our ordinary occupations in this city, do not have our happiness interfered with because we know that there is a certain number of persons in prison. No! and why not? Because we have not enough of the love of God in our hearts. But how about God? We may forget, and eat, and drink, and be merry, while there are souls there pining in wretchedness. But how about God? You talk about prison walls; are there any prison walls that will shut in men's spirit from the Father of Spirits? Ah, no, and there is a kind father whose son is languishing in the Central Prison? He does not forget—while we are all forgetful—that his boy will have to be there for months and years, before he will get into the sunshine again. Can the Father of Spirits, think you, forget His poor lost ones who are gnashing their teeth in hell? Is sin stronger than God? Is the devil stronger than God? Is evil co existent and co-eternal with the good? These are the questions. I don't say no to them, and I won't say yes, because if that is the case you see you have two Gods, and the evil God is just as powerful as the good God. Now, I am just stating to you my difficulties about this matter of the eternity not of punishment, merely, but of sin—my difficulty of understanding how the Omnipotent, all-loving, all gracious God can make beings who are to sin against him to eternity, and whom he cannot conquer; that these men must go on, stronger than God, rebelling against God, and never able to be subdued by His power. Is that the teaching of Scripture? If so, I will accept it—little as I can understand it—I was going to say believe it. I have said it here before, and I say it again, there are some statements in Scripture that seem to me almost to shut out the belief of anything but eternal misery—eternal punishment. Now, let me read a few passages—not with a view of explaining them, but with a view of having you Christian people taking them home and thinking about them and finding out what you believe.

Matt. xii, 32:—And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.

Matt. xxv, 46:—And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal.

Mark ix, 43:—And if thy hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter halt into life, than having two hands to be cast into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched.

"While this is figurative language, the word 'never' is not figurative.

2 Thess i, 8, 9:—Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power.

"'Everlasting destruction!' They are awful words, whatever they mean!

1 John v, 16:—If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death; I do not say that he shall pray for it.

"Just like one unforgivable sin again! There seems to be a line beyond which if man pass, even their brethren should not pray for them. Why, this is terrible.

John ii:—And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

"Well, that don't refer to men, but to angels; and if punishment may be eternal in the one case, it may be in the other. These are the strongest passages I know on that side. Let us see some on the other side; for I say that the teaching of Scripture is not clear and unmistakable on this point. It is not such as to give any one the right to say dogmatically:—'This is true, and that is false.' In Romans xi., after a long argument about the Jews and the Gentiles, and about how the fall of the Jews was for the good of the Gentiles, and about how the gathering in of the Gentiles was to be for the good of the Jews, and all Israel was to be saved, we read (32nd verse), 'For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that He might have mercy upon all,'—the mercy is as wide as the belief. This is the natural interpretation of these words:—

1 Cor. xv., 22:—For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

25th verse:—For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet: the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.

28th verse:—And when all things shall be subdued unto Him, then

WEST RIDING ELECTION

The contest in this Riding has been sharp and close. The official papers have not yet been received, but the figures below are believed to be correct.

South Monaghan,	76	84	2

Majority for Scott 1.

This is very close indeed, and indicates the warmness of the contest, but leaves no room for boasting. The old tactics have been resorted to. The most unblushing slanders were circulated, and with a disregard of truth only to be found in the breast of such men as John Carnegie, who with a determination worthy of a better cause, gave currency to the vilest and most infamous reports. He appealed to the bigotry and fanaticism of creeds: in the north part of the Riding appealing to Catholics to vote against Mr. Cox because he is an Orangeman; and in South Monaghan appealing to Orangemen to vote for Scott as he was opposed to Catholic Frazer. He also succeeded in getting unprincipled Orangemen to gather together certificates to injure Mr. Cox if possible, and used Dr. O'Sullivan and Timothy Cavanagh to carry these papers to Ennismore to hawk amongst Catholics; and gave currency to slanders originated by such men as Cavanagh and O'Sullivan. Thus they used the Orange cry in Ennismore and the Fenian cry in South Monaghan, besides using the basest means to blacken his private character.

There is a remarkable feature in this election not much over two-thirds of the votes in the Riding have been polled. There are over 3,000 voters on the lists, and only about 1,000 or with rejected ballots about 2,030 have been polled; about 200 may be considered not available. Thus over 800 electors have failed to take enough of interest in the election to induce them to give a vote to either candidates.

STEEL RAILS.

A great ado has been made by Mr. Thos. White, about steel rails, said to have been purchased by Mr. Mackenzie.

When the story came to light Mr. Mackenzie at once proved the falseness of the report, and showed that he had made good bargains by purchasing, not from his own brother, but from an English Firm.

Mr. Workman, who was also a tenderer for some of them, fully explained that Mr. Mackenzie's brother had not been interested in any way in the contracts. The Globe, however, retaliates and from the evidence before a commission, tells what transpired under John A. He says:—

"Under the regime of Sir John A. Macdonald, Mr. Lewis Carvell, brother-in-law of Mr. Peter Mitchell, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was superintendent of Government Railways in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. In that capacity his authority, according to his own account, was absolute. In his evidence before the Committee above-mentioned, Mr. Carvell said: "Both previous "to, and after the amalgamation of the "railways I had authority to order "everything required for the working of "the road." In 1872 it became necessary to order some 6,000 tons of steel rails. How did Mr. Carvell go to work? Did he advertize for tenders? Did he seek competition in any form? Did he even make inquiries of the manufacturers as to current prices? He did nothing of the kind. In Liverpool is a firm known as John Hawes & Co., but as it appeared consisting only of Mr. John Hawes himself. Mr. Hawes has the good fortune to be the brother-in-law of Mr. Carvell, and also of Mr. Peter Mitchell. Mr. Hawes was formerly in business in New Brunswick, and now trades under the style of a commission merchant. He had from time to time executed orders for the Marine and Fisheries Department, and once, it was said, had shipped to Government order some 200 tons of steel rails. But practically Mr. Hawes had no more to do with the steel rail business than with the moon.

In giving "John Hawes & Co. the orders to purchase," said Mr. Carvell, "I did not expect them to invite public "tenders. I told them to buy to the "best advantage." " " " It was "their duty to charge the Government "exactly what they paid for the rails." The first order was for 2,000 tons, supplemented by others, which made an aggregate of some 6,000 tons in the course of a few months. The shipments consisted of 500 tons from the Ebbw Vale Company; 2,000 tons from Guest & Company: 1,750 from Bolckow, Vaughan & Company; and 1,750 from the Mercey Steel and Iron Company. The Ebbw Vale Company charged originally £15 12s 6d per ton; those supplied by Guest & Co. were charged £15 7s 3d per ton; the Mersey Company's £14 12s per ton. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co. refused, when applied to by Sir John Rose on behalf of the Canadian Government, to disclose any particulars of the transaction so far as they were concerned.

On the transaction under the John A. Regime, no less than £7,795 16s 8d, was given in excess of regular rates or prices

In addition to this enormous overcharge on the steel rails, a similar excess was discovered between the manufacturers' prices for bolts and nuts and those with which Hawes & Co. debited the Government, the result being that over and above any loss the Government may have sustained by the absence of competition, owing to the failure to call for tenders, THERE WAS A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE MANUFACTURERS' PRICES AND THE PRICES PAID TO HAWES & CO., ACTING SOLELY IN THE CAPACITY OF AGENTS, AMOUNTING TO THE ENORMOUS SUM, ON 6,000 TONS OF RAILS AND A FEW SMALLER ARTICLES, OF SOME NINE THOUSAND POUNDS STERLING!

An attempt was made to show that, whatever were the original prices, Hawes & Co. had been obliged to buy of third parties, some of whose invoices were produced. But as these persons were merely brokers, they were not entitled to act in any case as principals. The responsibility of the overcharge rests, therefore, between these parties and Hawes & Co. But that, in the first place, no attempt whatever was made to secure the best bargain, and that in the next, the Government was shamefully defrauded by somebody or other, there can be no doubt whatsoever. The late steel rails slander has after all only disclosed facts highly creditable to the Minister it was sought to libel; the other steel rails business is about as redolent of recklessness, waste, and plunder as can well be imagined.

THE ASSIZES.

The Assizes were concluded on Thursday.

All the civil cases were heard previously, and the only case on Thursday was the Queen against Silas Burnham on the charge of Forgery. The Indictment was to the effect that he had forged two receipts, one for $15 and one for $18, purporting to be signed by Dr. Donnelle, of Bobcaygeon, which signatures the Doctor declared to be forgeries, as he had signed no such receipts.

The defence was that the Doctor had signed the receipts and taken a due bill for the indebtedness.

The Doctor in his testimony said that he almost, if not always signed his name with a terminal "e" and with a scroll, but the signatures to the receipts had neither the "e" nor the scroll, and the Doctor further testified that he never signed such receipts, nor rendered the accounts, nor received a due bill. Several witnesses were sworn as to the Doctor's signatures on the receipts, but the writing was so good an imitation that they would have taken in nearly every case for the genuine signature, except that it had no terminal "e" or scroll. Evidence was also given by the defence, as well as drawn from witnesses for prosecution that the Doctor writes his name without the "e" final, and that he often does so. One witness, Waller, swore that he was in the Forest House, when he saw Burnham give a due bill and got the receipts, and a letter of Mr. McSweyn, who acted as Solicitor to Doctor Bonnelle, was produced, in which, he had been instructed to say that the Dr. thought he had received a due bill or something of that nature. The Judge charged the jury strongly in favor of the prisoner. They after a moment's deliberation brought in a verdict of "not guilty," which under the circumstances was considered the only reasonable course open to them.

The Queen vs Lewis was the next case on the docket. Mr. Armour, Counsel for the defence entered a Demurrer to the indictment as not drawn according to the Statute, and also that perjury not forgery was the crime for which Miss Lewis should have been tried even if the letter referred to had been been written by her. After three hours delay in arguing the demurrer, Mr. Cameron, who conducted the case for Mr. Scott, joined in the demurrer, and the case fell through for the present, until the Indictment be amended. The case, therefore stands over to some future time.

The Queen vs. Scott for forgery, the grand jury in this case, brought in "no bill."

HERESY in the PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Rev. D. J. McDonnell, of Toronto, formerly of this town, has given words to his thoughts on certain doctrines, which he holds, but which are at variance with the teachings of the Presbyterian Church. Before leaving here he was believed to hold strange notions on the confession of Faith. He now sets forth doubts as to the eternity of punishment, or indeed as to final punishment, of any one. On the first page will be found a synopsis of a sermon preached by him, which will enable our readers to see and understand for themselves. This sermon must necessitate action on the part of his presbytery or the church will allow error to creep in.

It is expected that the Crown Prince of Germany, will visit America and the Philadelphia Exhibition next summer.

Floods.—An immense amount of damage is being done in many parts of England by the floods, and several lives are reported to have been lost.

The Bell for the New Methodist Church, Port Hope, has arrived in that town. It weighs about fourteen hundred pounds, and cost over $550.

Temperance.—On Sunday last, Mrs. Youmans addressed one of the largest temperance meetings ever held in Toronto, in the temperance hall of that city.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Mackenzie inspected the works at the new Military College. He was afterwards entertained at luncheon by the City Council.

Mr. P. R. Randall, of Port Hope has been appointed Inspector of Weights and Measures, for the County of Durham.

At Brooklyn, U. S., a man named De-Mott was sentenced to 13 months imprisonment, for making and circulating counterfeits of nickle coins.

Mail Robbery.—About the time the branch train was leaving Prescott, on Tuesday, for Prescott junction to go west. The lock of the mail box was forced, and one bag east and one bag west was taken therefrom. They were found this morning in a snow plough in the yard, the straps cut, and the contents rifled. There is no clue as yet to the perpetrators of the robbery.

Irvine, who Killed Mr. Burke in Toronto about a month ago, was found guilty of manslaughter at the Assizes there. Murphy and Hammil were acquited. All three were drunk at the time of the dreadful deed. Irvine when sober bore a good character. With all the cases of murder, robbery, assault, poverty and misery, caused by this infernal traffic is it not strange that the lovers of order and peace do not band themselves together to get rid of it?

Mr. Cauchon.—In view of Hon. Mr. Cauchon's acceptance of a seat in the Cabinet a number of his constituents met and unanimously resolved to work for his return should there be opposition offered.

Weather prophets say this winter will be far more severe than last winter. Musk rats are building their nests in ten feet of water, and lining them with wool and feathers, and are laying in twice the usual amount of firewood. Frogs have been observed standing on their heads, and everything indicates that before winter is half out it will cold enough to freeze a cent from main road. As these wise people were entirely out in their calculations last fall, let us consider them wrong now, at least until we have mutual proof of this unprecedented severity.

THE DEAD AND THE LIVING.

Letters received yesterday and to-day state that for several years past no dead bodies have been received by our medical schools from New York for purposes of dissection, but that they are procured nearer home. It now forms a very interesting subject of enquiry as to where the corpses were obtained which have undergone dissection. Have they been dug up from the graveyards so secretly and skilfully as to cause no suspicions in the surrounding communities, or have a portion been supplied from other questionable sources? Our correspondent fully corroborates our former statement that bodies have been purchased from strangers, without knowing definitely how they were procured, the main question, apparently, being as to whether they have undergone dissection. Have they been dug up from the graveyards so secretly and skilfully as to cause no suspicions in the surrounding communities, or have a portion been supplied from other questionable sources? Our correspondent fully corroborates our former statement that bodies have been purchased from strangers, without knowing definitely how they were procured, the main question, apparently, being as to whether they have undergone dissection. The Inspector of Anatomy, an officer empowered by law to regulate the whole business, should take this matter up on behalf of the public, and learn, if possible, the sources from whence the supplies are obtained if there is nothing questionable, his public statement to that effect will relieve our medical students from the unpleasant suspicions which have been aroused by the mystery surrounding the subject. The Inspector of Anatomy should on his own behalf take this matter up and make an official report.

Another question of equal importance not only to medical students, but to the public at large, is how the necessary subjects for dissecting purposes are to be obtained. No one wants to have a doctor at work on his arteries who has never seen or handled arteries before Even in medical treatment which does not involve surgery an exact knowledge of anatomy is the A B C of science It is evident that instead of interposing every obstacle in the way of the lawful acquirement of this knowledge it is the duty of every good citizen to facilitate it by every means in his power. It is not only his duty but his interest if he wishes the resting places of his own dead to be peaceful. All charities that accept Government aid to do so with the understanding that their unclaimed dead shall be used for the ends of science, but it is much too common, though doubtless well-meant, to have bodies looked after and claimed by comparative strangers, simply to avoid post-mortem surgery. It is a mistake to think that bodies so used are not to be properly buried. It is doubtless true that at present great carelessness exists on this point, but the medical schools here have an interest in discouraging the practice which obtains in better regulated countries of carefully interring the remains of each subject separately after they have served their purposes. Indeed we are informed that it is not an uncommon thing among our poorer classes to confide the burial of their own dead to the doctor, which saves them the expenses of a funeral, and which, in cases where they are satisfied with the cheapest mode of burial, actually puts some temporary dollars in need cash into the pockets of survivors. Any of these methods is better than that our doctors should pass during their formative process through a period of outlawry, and that in such employment as is calculated to blunt forever the best feelings of a man's nature.

Daring and Extensive Burglary.

(From the Montreal Witness.)

This morning at seven o'clock, when the clerks in Messrs. Henry Morgan & Company's wholesale and retail clothing and dry goods establishment, corner of St. James street and Victoria Square, came down to open the premises, signs of disorder were apparent on the first and second flats, where are stored the silks and laces; papers and card board were lying around, covers of packages had been torn open, and it was soon seen that burglars had visited the premises. A search revealed the fact that a large quantity of the most valuable silks were missing, and likewise the thread laces Fifty-three pieces of silk have been stolen; some of these were not whole, having been cut from, but a number were intact. The black silks were of the finest quality, several retailing as high as $6 and $6 50 a yard. The burglars were evidently skilful and practised, as they went about their work in a systematic manner, and succeeded only too well in their evil designs. They entered, it appears, from Fortification Lane into a narrow courtyard adjoining Mr. Currie's carpenter shop, which lies in rear of Grant's gents furnishing store. From this they easily found their way into an out house at the back of Grant's premises, and climbing up through a hatchway into the garret above, they found themselves facing the brick wall of Morgan's building. This is three bricks thick; here they went to work, using tools from Mr. Currie's carpenter shop, and dug out the bricks, making a hole through, about 2 feet high by 2½ broad, into the hoist way in Morgan's store, and about ten feet above the first floor. It is supposed they then slid down the ropes of the hoist into the cellar, and from thence made their way upstairs into the first flat. Here they found where the laces were stored, and gathered nearly the whole stock together, carrying it out of the building through the hole in the wall, into the adjoining garret, where they striped the laces from the boards, leaving a pile of boards about two feet high, which were this morning returned to the store. All the marks and numbers are on these, so an exact estimate of what laces have been taken can be made.

The thieves also seemed well aware as to the location of the black silks on the second flat, for they cleared out the shelves carrying away over fifty pieces, taking the precaution, however, to strip off the coverings, which were found lying on the floor. These also bear price marks, which will give an exact idea of the loss sustained. The thieves, not content with making these extensive hauls, searched for the lace shawls, of which Mr. Morgan had a valuable stock. Fortunately, however, the salesman in charge had last week removed them to the store-room, and the thieves were foiled. In their vain search they had gone along by the table covered with packages of cashmere shawls and torn down the coverings, but evidently were too much flushed with success to remove these less costly articles. At noon yesterday one of the firm's staff visited the store and found everything in perfect order, so that without a doubt the robbery occured last night, and probably an early hour in evening, as Mr. Grant, who resides over her store, a little east of Morgan's was alarmed about 6 p. m. by hearing a noise. Nothing could be seen outside, but it is presumed the noise was occasioned by the burglar pushing a mass of brick work into the hoist down which it fell into the cellar. The exact loss is not yet of course known. Some reports place it as high as $50,000; but a member of the firm states that it lies between $15,000 and $25,000. Considerable excitement prevails in the store, and crowds of curious spectators flock in to see the hole in the wall. The detectives have been notified and are on the alert, hoping to capture the thieves or their plunder before they leave the city.

LATER.

Mr. Morgan has made a careful estimate of the value of the goods stolen, and foots it up as follows: Silks, $10,450; laces, &c., $7,550. Total, $18,000. It appears the hoist stood just under the opening made in the wall, so that the burglars would have no trouble in getting up or down upon it.

A merchant on examining the scene of the burglary exclaimed, "Well, we are reaping the fruits of the tailing system in our Police Court."

Mr. Thomas Bengough, brother of the Grip cartoonist, has been appointed private secretary to Hon Oliver Mowat

Money.—The fear of inconvenience, to which the Banks gave expression last week on the receipt of the notice that the Provincial Government would shortly require seventy-five per cent of its deposists, has now almost entirely disappeared. The movement of produce from the country has been followed by a large flow of money into it, and it will be observed from the statement of the Banks that the circulation has largely increased. That the Banks will be able to meet the want of the Government without the curtailment of their discounts is generally admitted, as the amount required will probably not exceed $600,000. And this being payable for the most part to enterprises in the country, the Banks will retain much of it in their keeping. Advances on Stocks are scarcely obtainable at 10 per cent. except in the case of call loans, which are done at 8 per cent; but for these latter there is little demand. Commercial paper for current months is discounted at 8 or 9 per cent., an exception always been made to customers. The enquiry for sterling exchange has been limited, and 60 day bills are weak at 7¾, and cash at 8¾ to 9 for round amounts. Gold is rather higher then on this day week, and at latest reports yesterday was 115. Gold drafts have met with steady enquiry at 4 premium. Operations in stocks during the week have shown nothing really new or interesting, except a slight downward tendency.—Mont. Times.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S RETURN

RECEPTION AT MONTREAL AND OTTAWA.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.

This morning at six o'clock His Excellency the Governor General, accompanied by Countess Dufferin; Mr. Hamilton, A. D. C.; Lieutenant-General O'Grady Haly; and Sir George Bowen, Governor of Victoria, Australia, arrived from Quebec on board the steamer Montreal. The Governor-General and Countess Dufferin breakfasted this morning before eight o'clock on board the Montreal, and then drove direct to the depot, a fine-looking guard of Honor from the Victoria Rifles, under command of Captain Sully, being in attendance at the wharf, while fifty men of the Prince of Wales Rifles, under command of Major Rose, Captain Stevenson, and Lieutenant Claxton were in attendance at the depot, and gave a general salute on the arrival of the Vice-regal party. Mr. Reynolds, of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway, placed the Director's car of that road at the disposal of the Vice regal party.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.

May it please Your Excellency.—The Corporation of the City of Ottawa, respectfully approach Your Excellency, and in the name of their fellow-citizens tender you a hearty welcome on this your return to the capital. Your Excellency's safe arrival is a matter of sincere gratification, not only to the citizens of Ottawa, but to the whole people of the Dominion, to whom you have become endeared through your personal affability, and the lively interest you have at all times manifested in the advancement of their welfare. The words of practical testimony and encouragement spoken by Your Excellency of our young country and its resources during your stay in Great Britain and Ireland have been freely discussed by the people of Canada, and have confirmed the high opinion entertained of the ability and will at all times shown by your Excellency to compre hend the great extent and the varied resources of this Dominion, as well as the loyalty and devotion of its entire population to the rule of their beloved Sovereign. To the Countess of Dufferin, whose efforts to aid Your Excellency in fostering the good-will and promoting the interests of the Canadian people are fully recognized and appreciated, we also tender a cordial welcome home. In conclusion, we avail ourselves of this opportunity to express the hope that for many years Your Excellency may continue to represent in Canada our gracious Queen, and to guide the political destinies of our young and rapidly developing country with that forethought and moderation which have always characterized your counsels, and which are so eminently calculated to build up our wealth and power and contribute to our happiness and prosperity.

The Governor-General replied briefly. He assured Mayor Featherstone and the citizens generally that he felt deeply the warm welcome which they were kind enough to extend to Lady Dufferin and himself on their return home. He said it was an unspeakable delight to find himself in Ottawa after so long an absence. Lady Dufferin was anxious to see her children, and he would not detain them any longer. but would express all he felt in return for the address in writing.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER.

On Thursday night, Mrs. Simons, a woman who sells milk in town, and who resides in a house owned by Geo. Howison, situated above the toll gate on the Lyn road, was awakened by the dog barking and hearing some person in her bed room which is down stairs, the remainder of the family sleeping in the chamber.

In the dim light she saw a man, without coat, hat, or boots, holding in his hand a sharp hatchet, which he had found in the woodshed. Mrs. Simons screamed, when the robber advanced with the hatchet uplifted and attempted to strike her, but was prevented by her grasping him by the arms when a terrible struggle took place. Finding that the men in the chamber had been aroused, the robber dropped the hatchet and sprang through the window, carrying with him the cash and making good his escape. Mrs. Simons received no serious injuries except the fright, from which she has not recovered. No clue has been obtained as to who the burglar was The object, no doubt, was plunder, as the money for the sale of the milk is kept in the house.—Brockville Recorder.

LIVER COMPLAINT.

The liver is the great depurating (purifying) organ of the system, and has very appropriately been termed the "housekeeper" of our health. I have observed in the dissecting-room, and also in making post-mortem examinations of the bodies of those who have died of different diseases, that in a large proportion of cases, the liver has given evidence of having at some time been diseased. Liver affections are equally prevalent in beasts. Every butcher knows that livers of cattle, sheep, and swine, are often times as frequently diseased as any other organ. A healthy liver each day secretes about two and a half pounds of bile. When becomes torpid, congested, or ill, from any cause, it is disabled in the performance of its duties, it is evident that the elements of the bile must remain in the blood, this irrating poisioning, and preventing every vital process. Nature attempts to rid the system of these noxious materials by means of other organs, as the kidneys, lungs skin etc., which become overtaxed in performing their additional labor, and and are unable to withstand the pressure.

The brain, which is the great electrical centre of all vitaly becomes overstimulated with unhealthy blood, and fails to normally perform its functions. Hence there is dullness, headache, impairment of the memory, dizziness gloomy forebodings and irritability of temper. When the blood is diseased, the skin manifests discolored spots, pimples, blotches, boils, carbuncles, and scrofulous tumores. The stomach and bowels, sooner or later become affected, and consumption, piles, dropsy, dyspepsia, diarrhœa, is the inevitable of suit. Symptoms of Liver Complaint. A sallow color of the skin, or yellowish-brown spots on the face and other parts of the body; dull eyes and drowsiness, with frequent headache; dizziness and bitter or bad taste in the mouth, dryness of the throat, and internal heat: palpitation of the heart, a dry teasing cough, sore throat, unsteady appetite, sour stomach, raising from the food, and a choking sensation in the throat; sickness and vomiting, distress, heaviness, and a bloated or full feeling about the stomach and sides; aggravating pains in the sides, back, or breast, and about the shoulders; colic pains and soreness through the bowels; consumption altering with diarrhœa; piles flatulence, nervousness, coldness of the extremities rush of blood to the head, with symptoms of apoplexy; numbness of the limbs (especially at night), and chills, alternating with hot flashes; kidney and other urinary difficulties, dullness, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings. Only a few of these symptoms will be likely to be present in any case at one time. Treatment.—Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small dose of his pleasant Purgative Pellets, which act as alternative on the liver. For Liver Complaint and the various affections caused by the diseased liver, these remedies are unsurpassed. The Golden Medical Discovery does not simply palliate the disease, but it produces a lasting effect. By its use, the liver and stomach are changed to an active, healthy state the appetite is regulated, the blood purified and enriched, and the entire system renovated and restored to health. The Discovery is sold by druggists. R. V. Pierce, M. D., Proprietor, World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y.

MONTREAL WEST.

MR. WHITE'S LIES.

A large meeting of Mr. Workman's friends and supporters was held last evening at the corner of Mountain and Beaver-hall streets.

Mr. Thomas Workman, who was received with loud applause, said he offered himself as their candidate because he was a merchant, and had been engaged in business for a very long time in Montreal, and because he thought he had formed his views and opinions on such a basis as if elected to give an intelligent vote and likewise an intelligent declaration of his opinions on the floor of the house. (Applause) He came forward as a manufacturer—one who had a great stake in the country; as one who knew the wants of the manufacturers, and as one perfectly cognizant of the depression that exists; he believed, if elected, that he might be able to obtain from government such chances of amelioration as he was sure his opponent could not obtain were he sent there. They were to a large extent here in Montreal, and he thought over the greater part of the country, overrun with American manufactured goods sent in here and forced upon our markets at sacrificing rates. These goods interferred with our mechanics, manufacturers and artizans, he would therefore advocate the imposition of a duty on all goods coming in from the United States, equal to what the Americans charge on all goods sent from Canada. That was what he called reciprocity in duty. He replied to some of the personal attacks made upon him by Mr. Tom White. He believed in having the section of the Pacific Railway to Manitoba built at once but did not believe in extending it to British Columbia, as it would entail a fearful load of debt. One of the charges brought against him was that he opposed the silver nuisance bill; he did oppose the penal clause in the bill, for he did not think it right to imprison any man for paying out money at par. The man who was appointed by the conservative government to carry out that policy in Montreal was an undischarged bankrupt, and could not get credit for $5 in any bank in Montreal. When he, Mr. Workman, came down from Ottawa at that session, several gentlemen complained of the appointment because the man was ——; I don't like to mention it. (Laughter). One man who spoke at a late meeting of Mr. White's had the audacity to accuse him of paying his workmen in silver money; he was too well known for the last forty-five years to have his character blackened by such a slimy dog as that. He said of Mr. Gough, a New Brunswicker, and a nephew of Hon. Peter Mitchell, who made a long and tiresome speech at one of Mr. Tom White's meeting, that his history was written in the blue book at Ottawa. (Laughter). He was the contractor of the remarkable No. 5 Section of the Intercolonial Railway, and before the Committee of Enquiry it seems some very gross charges of—but I don't wish to say anything more—it is understood. (Laughter and applause.) It is known by your Excellency to compre hend the great extent and the varied resources of this Dominion, as well as the loyalty and devotion of its entire population to the rule of their beloved Sovereign. To the Countess of Dufferin, whose efforts to aid Your Excellency in fostering the good-will and promoting the interests of the Canadian people are fully recognized and appreciated, we also tender a cordial welcome home. TO GIN DRINKERS.

(From the Monetary Times.)

The counterfeiting of trade marks is a crime much more rarely met with than the counterfeiting of coin, and the conviction of a man named W. H. Monsell, on this charge, lends interest to a trial which took place last week in Montreal. The prisoner was a manufacturer of liquor in that city, and had succeeded, by means both fair and foul

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL will meet on Saturday at 1 o'clock.

No Quorum.—There was no meeting of the Council on Monday evening; no quorum.

IN next issue we intend giving an analysis of the votes of this riding, and the causes producing present results.

LEADING Sewing Machine Makers recommend CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice the ANCHOR on each Spool.

PERSONAL.—Our thanks are due to Mr. John Cameron, at present on a visit to his friends in Scotland, for copies of the Glasgow papers.

TUESDAY EVENING.—So uncertain were parties of the result of the contest on Tuesday, and not being able to get word from Harvey, there was hardly a cheer. What a change from old times.

BANK CLOSING.—All the banks have agreed to close on Saturday, at 1 o'clock, after the 13th of November. Parties having business with the banks will do well to keep this in mind.

You will save time and trouble with your Sewing Machine by using CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice ANCHOR on each Spool.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.—Divine Service will be held this day, (Thursday), at 10.30 o'clock, A.M., in observance of the Provincial Thanksgiving. A business meeting of the congregation will be held at the conclusion of public worship.

Mr. James Sheridan, piano tuner for Messrs. A. & S. Nordheimer, between Toronto and Kingston, will visit Peterboro regularly until further notice. All orders left at Mathias and Reid's Book Store will be attended to promptly.

THE NEW BRIDGE will cost about $16,750, when all the incidental expenses are fully known. If Mr. Choat's advice had been taken two years ago, and a new chain put on the old bridge, at least 10,000 would have been saved to the county.

BLIND TOM, this musical wonder, will appear for the first time before a Peterboro audience on Friday, to-morrow evening, in the Music Hall. He is said to possess rare musical talent, and is everywhere spoken of as the greatest wonder in performing rare and difficult pieces in the most artistic manner on the Piano. All who can should avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him. Reserved seats for sale at T. Menzie's Bookstore.

POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS.—There seems to be some misapprehension as to the amount which should be put upon newspapers when mailed by private parties. Some continue to put two cent stamps upon papers, which, it will be seen by the 23rd clause of the Postal Act, is a waste of money. The 23rd clause of the provides that "newspapers and periodical weighing less than one ounce each, may be posted singly at a postage rate of half a cent "each, which must be in all cases prepaid "by postage stamps affixed to each."

THE OSBORNE SEWING MACHINES.—In addition to the honours already awarded the Osborne Sewing Machines, we have to chronicle two more, The Osborne Family Machine took the 1st prize at the Peterboro Central Exhibition, and also the 1st prize at the Kingston Fair, held this week. These honors come crowding fast on the Osborne machines, and are the best evidence that could be afforded of their excellence and adaptability to all kinds of work.—Guelph Mercury Oct. 7th, 1875. NORTH ONTARIO.

Many people were not aware till yesterday that an election for a member of the local house was going on, and as a consequence a great many votes were not polled to the great loss of the Reform Party, who were so confident of their man getting in that little interest was taken by the majority of our party. During the week meetings have been held in various parts of the Riding. Messrs Pardee and S. C. Wood speaking on behalf of Mr. Paxton, and Messrs. Leeder, and Wandering Willie doing the like for the little lawyer from Beaverton.

BOBCAYGEON.

A little girl of Mr. James Mortimer, of the township of Verulam, was very badly scalded on Sunday, 17th inst., by falling into a pot of boiling water. Dr. Fidler attended the little patient and relieved her suffering as much as possible.

Mr. Hammerschmidt, of Peterboro', is going to give a concert in the Town Hall on Thanksgiving day.

The Young Britons will have a ball on the 5th of November.

Mr. Boyd's saw mill has shut down for the season. The hands partook of a supper at the boarding house, previous to breaking up, and had a gay time, generally.

A very large number of sportsmen have been enjoying themselves in the neighborhood lately. The fishing, hunting and shooting being remarkably good this season and the last week we had splendid weather.—COM.

CHANDOS.

TEA-MEETING.—A very pleasant evening was spent in the Chandos C. M. Church on the 13th inst., when quite a respectable audience assembled to partake of the nice dainties that where provided by the ladies of that vicinity to raise funds to repair the Church. As all good enterprises have found an echo in the feminine hearts that has aroused their sympathy and enlisted their energies. We have a very practical illustration of it in this place. The ladies very willingly assist and efficiently carry out their design in endeavoring to make comfortable and beautify the Church of the living God. Some of those ladies do not belong to this branch of the Church, yet they very cheerfully assist for which they deserve credit. After the audience had satisfied the demands of nature. There was still some remaining, which was disposed off in a profitable manner. After which the Rev. T. Grandy, C. M. Minister, made some remarks, and having realised a handsome sum. The meeting was brought to a close by pronouncing the benediction.

BELLEVILLE.

MYSTERIOUS DEFICIT.—The people of this town are sorely exercised to discover the cause for a deficit of some $30,000 in the accounts of their late Treasurer. Various rumors are afloat, some to the effect that certain town councillors, who have the reputation of being good business men, have a little more knowledge of the way the money went than they admitted at a recent meeting of their body when murmurs loud and deep were expressed on the subject. Some pertinent questions were asked relative to appropriations for certain docks, and honorable members shook their head with an injured and innocent air.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—The nomination of candidates for Montreal West took place to-day, when Mr Thos. White, jr., and Mr. Thos. Workman were proposed. There were no electors present at the time and the who'e proceeding was very tame.

Last night High Constable Bimonnette arrest on a warrant Mr. Francis P. Stuart of the firm of Stuart Bros. & Co., wholesale wine merchants, and Messrs. Omer, Allard and Achille Vilbon, Customs' officers, the former on the charge of defrauding the revenue out of over $10,000 by abstracting liquor from his warehouse without due notice and paying the duty thereon, and the Customs' officers with collusion in accepting money as bribes to enable Stuart to perpetrate the alleged frauds. The parties were brought before the Police Magistrate to-day, when Stuart was committed to gaol and the officers admitted to bail. These frauds have been going on for a considerable time, and there are strong suspicions that they were not confined to the warehouse of Stuart, but that gigantic frauds in other warehouses have been also perpetrated. Stuart cot long since became bankrupt. The Customs' officers implicated are men long in the service, and were looked upon as above the suspicion of being guilty of dishonourable practices.

COBOURG.

ENTERPRISE.—As will be seen by this, our enterprising townsman, Mr. W. Lech, intends to open a branch of his business in Cobourg about the 1st of November:

☞ Our readers, especially the ladies, will be glad to learn that Mr. Lech, of Peterboro', is about to open a branch of his establishment in this town; and that he will supply the best classes of Furs, of his own manufacture, and warranted genuine, at prices which leave out the profits usually added upon these articles by their passage through several hands. The best may now be procured at a lower price than has been usually paid for the worst.—World.

FENELON FALLS.

Several of the horses here are showing signs of having the Epizootic, though in a milder form than in 1872.

A little boy the son of Mr. J. Nevison, of this Village, while climbing over a fence, fell to the ground, dislocating his right wrist and breaking both bones in his arm between the elbow and wrist.

The complimentary supper to the Brass Band was a decided success; about 100 persons were present, who greatly enjoyed themselves. A subscription book was passed around in aid of the Band fund, which was liberally signed by those present.

MINDEN.

Furs are getting perceptibly scarcer about Minden, and the fall hunt this year will not be so extensive as formerly.

During the last five weeks, Mr. H. Nelson has been bereft of five of his children it is supposed that possibly their death was caused from potatoes that had become infected from using Paris Green, which had been largely sprinkled on the tubers while growing.

A considerable amount of building has been done here this summer, and is still going on.

The Nipissing R. R. Co., are reported as being willing to extend their line as far as Moore's Falls, if the Government and the Municipalities interested give them a Bonus. If this were done the Locks at the Falls would not be required, a little dredging would be all that is required, to allow boats drawing three feet of water to reach our fast rising town.—COM.

SOUTH MONAGHAN

We are informed that a disgraceful fight took place at the door of the brick church, South Monaghan, on the afternoon of Sunday last, between two young men both old enough and well enough brought up to know better. The cause of the trouble was, we understand, a fair damsel residing in the neighborhood, whose favor both the men are anxious to secure, and some stories having been tattled about the two meeting at the church determined to settle the difficulty between them in a rough and tumble fight, very much very much to the disgust of the peace-loving good people of the neighborhood. We hope they will not escape having an interview with one the magistrates residing in the neighborhood.

Rapid Fall of a Young Man.

A FORTUNE SQUANDERED IN A FEW MONTHS —FORGERY.

In March of 1873, Mr James Mullins, the well-known grocer, on Craig street, donated a large amount of property, consisting of some $6,000 worth of stock, a bakery with plant and fixtures and a house valued at over $3,000 to his nephew James Lowe, a young man at that time about twenty-two years of age. Lowe also received money to a considerable amount from his father and his aunt and to all appearances had excellent prospects before him. Unfortunately for Lowe, however, he had not been long placed on this footing before he fell into fast company and began to shun the society of his uncle and seek advisors among the frequenters of hotels in the vicinity. In May this year he sold the business which had been left him by his friends and entered into the grocery and liquor business, the firm being known as James Lowe & Co. This was done much against the will of Mr. Mullins, who earnestly advised the young man never to deal in liquor, but to no avail. From that period his fall was rapid. He was often observed in neighboring saloons in the company of men who took advantage of his youth and inexperience to fleece him, and that they did so most effectally may be gathered from the fact that it is estimated that he squandered from $8,000 to $10,000 recently within a few months. Lowe has been observed often in the midst of a number of these land sharks, treating them to champagne. Finally, however, the money run out, and to obtain further means he forged the name of his uncle on several notes, which he succeeded in getting cashed. One of these notes bears the endorsation of a hotel keeper. The creditors have seized the stock in the grocery, and Lowe himself cannot be found, and it is supposed that he has fled the country.—Exchange.

SCOTTISH ITEMS.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT BUSBY.—DAMAGE £15,000.

On Sunday afternoon, about half-past one o'clock, it was discovered that fire had broken out in the extensive calico printing works of Messrs Inglis & Wakefield, Busby. The premises of that well known firm are situated on the side of the river Cart at Busby, and cover a considerable area of ground. The principal building consists of a tenement about 100 feet in length, 30 feet wide, and three stories in height. This block, which, like all the other buildings belonging to the firm, is of brick, is divided into to compartments —a predsring room and a warehouse. To the west of this building is a one-storey erection, 35 by 30 feet, used as a starch house, and the joiner's shop, another building of one storey in height, abuts the eastern extremity of the preparing house. It is not yet known in what part of the premises the fire originated, but the flames spread very rapidly after they were discovered. Fortunately the arrangements in force at the works for the prevention of fire are of an admirably complete description, the male employes being trained and organised into a very efficient fire brigade; and the firm being in possession of a donkey engine and a plentiful supply of hose. Owing to the very close proximity of the works to the river Cart a copious flow of water was obtained with little or no trouble, and very soon after the alarm was raised every effort was being made by the workmen and a number of volunteer assistants to subdue the flames. They succeded in this before the Glasgow fire brigade arrived. Altogether the damage done by the fire is estimated at from £15,000 to £20,000, and we are happy to state that the loss is covered by insurances in various offices.

TRADES AND PROFESSION.—In 1842-43, the first year of the income-tax, the profits on trades and professions were estimated at £52,787,348, and in 1873-74 at £148,853,731. and this year £2,112,563.

SHOCKING DEATH.—Thomas Wilson, a Preston spinner, is in custody charged with causing the death of his illegitimate child, aged five weeks. In an altercation between the prisoner and the little child's mother the prisoner struck at the woman and the blow, falling on the infant killed it.

SAD DEATH.—As the choir were singing the hymn before the sermon in the parish church of Ockham, near Guilford, on Sunday, Miss Alice Hill, daughter of Mr Charles Hill, farmer and corn merchant, was observed to fall forward on her face in the channel. She was at once raised, and it was then found that she was dead. Death had arisen from long-standing disease of the heart. The sermon was dispensed with, and the service was summarily concluded. The deceased lady was 23 years of age, and was on the point of being married.

Mr. McLaren, M.P. for Edinburg some time ago secured from Parliament an order for a return showing the stipends of all the parish ministers in Scotland. This return has lately been published. It is approximately correct, having only fourteen defaulters. From this return it appears that the total annual income of the Kirk, including the value of Glebes, Manses and so forth, is £330,372 13s 8id or more than a million and a half of dollars. From this sum has to be deducted what is raised from seat rents, &c. After this is done, it is calculated that the annual drain upon the national resources is £312,709. For this yearly sum it is supposed people are supplied with religious instruction. This, however, is far from being the case. When certain counties are taken, the religious instruction supplied by the Kirk is found to be very different in amount to the money spent upon it. For instance, in Roxse shire, with a population of 80,955, there are 42 Kirks, costing annually £12,000; yet the aggregate membership in all those is only about 1,200, or an average of not quite 30 each. In Sutherland, with a population of 24,317, there are sixteen Kirks, which annually cost the nation £3,572, and an adhering membership of 416. In other districts the Established Church does not make so poor a show, but all over the country its adherents are in the minority, and their zeal in benevolent and missionery work is at the lowest point.

The Temperance Colony.

Mr. Alexander Begg, a gentleman well known in this city, one of the emigrtion agents for the Dominion in Scotland passed through Ottawa the other day en route to what is known as the "Temperance Colony." This colony is now being organized in the Township of McMurrich Parry Sound District, about 150 miles north of Toronto. It is near the line of the proposed "Ontario Pacific Junction Railway" which will connect the Northern Railway, from Toronto, with the Georgian Bay Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway by intersecting that line at about seventeen miles south of Lake Nipissing. Mr. Begg is the founder of the colony, and has built a first-class sawmill, and proposes to build also a flour and oat meal mill. The land is given by free grant to the settlers on the terms usual under that system, together with the futher stipulation that they agree to "discountenance the use and prohibit the sale of intoxicating drink within the Township." In this excellent undertaking Mr. Begg is supported by the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance the Grand Worthy Patriarch of that body, Mr. J. M. T. Hannan, having quite recently issued a circular setting forth the basis of organization, the objects in view, the mode operations.—and all other necessary details of information. The scheme is a novel and most interesting one, and its promoters are worthy of the sympathy and encouragement of the public.

STONEWAAL JACKSON.

Richmond, Va. Oct. 26—The formal inaugnration of the statue by Foley, presented to Virginia by a number of English gentlemen took place to-day. An imposing pageant and interesting ceremonies contributed to make it one of the grandest demonstrations ever witnessed in this city. The city was thronged with people, and decorations of every description were to be seen in all directions. Flags of many nations, Fedral and English colors predominating, were displayed. The procession occupied an hour and a half in passing any given point, and was composed of all the city military, Infantry and Artillery, also the visiting Companies from different cities of the State. Gen J. E. Johnson was chief marshal, and Gen. Harvey Heth his principal assistant As it passed the central Presbyterian Rooms, at the upper window of which sat Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, her daughter and friends, the enthusiasm was unbounded. The members of her husbands staff paid her a touching tribute, halting in front and with uncovered heads silently paying their respects.

Governor Kemper gave an introductory address, in which he spoke in most feeling terms of the occasion, and in eulogy of Stonewall Jackson, Rev. Dr. Hage was the orator of the day. In his address he alluded to the condition of the country, and said that a soldier's parole was a sacred thing, and fellowers and comrades of Stonewall Jackson would be true to their parole and the union of the United States, but at the same time that union can only command their hearts and love when it returns to the great fundamental principals of the constitution which gives to all of the States equal rights with Massachusetts and New York. At the conclusion of the address the monument was unveiled amid the cheers of the multitude. The city to-night is brilliantly illuminated and there is a gorgeous display of fireworks.

Westervelt, convicted of being implicated in the abduction of Charley Ross, has been sentenced to seven years' solitary imprisonment.

Father Lacken, pastor of the German Catholic Church in Springfield, Ill., has thrown off his priestly robes, and taken a wife in the person of Miss Mary Langeman daughter of his housekeeper. They were married in Cincinnati last week.

PAUPERISM IN SCOTLAND.

The curse of pauperism is fastening itself upon Scotland. The percentage of paupers to population there is said to exceed that of Ireland. This is an amazing fact, in view of the proverbial thrift of Scotland. It is explained by the prevelance of reckless charity. The administration of the poor-law is in the hands of ecclesiastical authorities, and the funds are worse than wasted. They are so spent that they promote pauperism, instead of preventing it. Applicants for aid are not required to go to the poor house, but are helped while remaining at home. The pernicious practice has completely demoralized the poor. They having no sense of shame in asking and this "out door relief." It is granted to almost everybody, with scant inquiry into the reasons of the application. One incidential evil has been to increase the percentage of illegitimate births. This is now nearly 10 per cent. Every woman who has an illegitimate child sends word to the parsonage, and round comess weekly dole—the premium paid for her sin. In one small parish, nine unmarried women, provided with an average of two and one-third children apiece, were receiving relief from the rates. In some parishes seven out of every fifty persons are paupers, and one out of every three children is illegitimate. These frightful results are attributed to the maladministration of the poor-law. They form another chapter in the long argument which shows that charity is apt to be most cruel kindness and that it not unfrequently breeds paupers faster than it could feed them.

"Use temporal things, but desire eternal; to seek God is to desire happiness, and find Him in that happiness.—St. Augustine.

The Caticook Observer says that A. J. Bean, formerly of that town, lately recovered a verdict against the United States for some $15,000 for false imprisonment. He was arrested in 1864 on a charge of aiding soldiers to desert, tried, and sent to State Prison. His suit for damages has terminated as above.

The contest in North Wentworth, vacant by the unseating and disqualification of Mr. Stock, promises to be very hotly contested. The candidates are Dr. McMahon, Reform, and Dr. Miller, Conservative. The conservatives are making a desperate struggle to hold the Riding, which it will be remembered they won through the sympathy of reformers last winter, and their candidate is the strongest man that could have been selected. However, in so staunch a reform constituency, and with so able a standard bearer as Dr. McMahon, there ought not to be any doubt about the victory being for the government. Let Wentworth reformers follow the example set them by those of South Oxford.

A fatal accident occurred a few days ago in the township of Digby at Mr. John Adams' shanty, about six miles north-east of Lindsay. by which a young man named Staples lost his life. It appears that while he and another man, who were sawing, were getting out of the way of a falling tree, part of which fell in a cross direction, striking Staples on the back of the head, fracturing that part of the skull, and otherwise injuring him. Dr. Butler was in attendance as quickly as possible, but the the nature of the wounds were such that it was impossible to save his life. He expired on the second night following the accident.

The St. John, N. B Telegraph says:—About a fortnight ago a lady residing in one of the villages on the River St. John, in Queen's County, assisted to prepare she body of a neighbour for burial. While so engaged some of the virus from the dead body was absorbed into a slight cut on the lady's finger, and a few hours later she was seized with intense pain in her hand, attended by a rapid swelling. The pain continued to increase and a day or two later the lady's husband brought her to this city for treatment. By that time the swelling had increased, and the pain had proceeded to the arm. It was then too late to stay the progress of the poison and after days of most severe suffering, rendered still more painful by other circumstances regarding her condition, the unfortunate woman died on Saturday.

Have you a cough Cold pain in the chest, or Bronchitis? In fact, have you the premonitory symptoms of the insidiate archer consumption? If so, known that relief is within your reach in the shape of DR. WISTAR'S Balsam of wild Cherry, which, in many cases where hope had fled, has snatched the victim from the yawning grave.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE,—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it, I would recommend it to all.P.—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P.Q., writes, "I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until tried it Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man." A Maybee, Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundred bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rusan, Township Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. W. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured It is a most remarkable medicine.

THE DISMAL SWAMP.

They made her a grave too cold and damp
For a soul so warm and true.
And she's gone to the lake of the dismal swamp,
Where, all night long, by a fire-fly lamp
She paddles her white canoe.

And her fire-fly lamp I soon shall see,
And her paddle I soon shall hear;
Long and loving our life shall be,
And I'll hide the maid in a cypress tree
When the footstep of Death draws near.

Away he speeds to the Dismal Swamp,
His path was rugged and sore,
Through tangled juniper beds of reeds,
Through many a fen where the serpent feeds,
And man never trod before.

And when on earth he clasp'd his sleep,
O, sleeper, his wedded lover,
Lit by a fire-fly's lamp that night,
He lay where the deadly vine doth wrap
Its venomous tear, and nightly steeps
The flesh with its blistering dew.

And near him the fierce wolf stirred the brake,
And the copper-snake breathed in his ear,
Till he starting cried, from his dreams I wake,
O, where shall I see the dismal lake
And the white canoe of my dear?"

He saw the lake, and a meteor bright
Quick over its surface played,
"Welcome," he cried, "my dear one's light,"
And the dim shore echoed for many a night,
The name of that death-cold maid.

Till he hollowed a boat of birchen bark
Which carried him off from shore,
Far, far he followed that meteor spark,
The wind was high, and the clouds were dark,
And the boat returned no more.

And oft from the Indian hunter's camp
That lover, and maid so true
Are seen at the hour of midnight damp
To cross the lake by a fire-fly lamp
And paddle their white canoe.

ONE MARK of a GENTLEMAN.

There are many people who pass for very genteel folks in society who have not yet learned the very foundation principles of politeness. It is not in the drawingroom, in the society of his equals, that you can determine whether a man is a gentleman or not, but in the society of his inferiors and dependents. How does he deport himself among his workmen? Does he put on the airs of a petty tyrant where he dare not tyrannize? Does he speak haughtily to his boot black, and find needless fault with those who serve him? If so, mark him down girls, as not a true gentleman; and I shall not blame you if you seriously mistrust the sincerity of any religion he may profess.

True religion softens the heart to all around us, even the dumb creatures made subject to our will. True high breeding is shown by courtesy and kindliness of manner towards inferiors and dependents. A gracefulness of demeanor here tells far more of a person's true character than the most punctilious etiquette in society.

It is at your peril girls that you accept a suitor that is not a "true gentleman," He may possess this noblest distinction, and wear the roughest homespun. His hand may be toil hardened and his brow sun-burnt, but if he is a true gentleman, he is the peer of any prince.

The man who is coarse and careless in his behaviour to his mother and sisters, will never be a desirable life companion. The one who is very exacting towards those he employs will make life a home burden by his endless fault-finding. Weigh the character of one who seeks your hand far more critically than you weigh the fortune. A happy life is more desirable than a guilded cage.

WOULDN'T MARRY a MECHANIC

A young man commenced visiting a young woman and appeared to be well-pleased. One evening he called when it was quite late, which led the young lady to enquire where he had been.

'I had to work to-night.'

'What, do you work for a living?' she enquired with astonishment.

'Certainly,' replied the young man, I am a mecanic.'

'I dislike the name of mechanic,' and she turned up her pretty nose.

This was the last time the young man visited the young lady. He is now a wealthy man, and has one of the best women in the country for a wife.

The young lady who disliked the name of a mechanic is now the wife of a miserable fool—a regular vagrant about grog shops—and the soft, verdant silly, miserable girl is obliged to take in washing in order to support herself and children.

You dislike the name of mechanic, eh?—You whose brothers are but well-dressed loafers. We pity any girl who is so verdant, so soft, to think less of a younn man for being a mechanic—one of God's noblemen—the most dignified and honourable personage of heaven's creatures.

Beware, young ladies, how you treat young men who work for a living, for you may one of these days be menial to one of them. Far better to discharge the well-fed pauper with all his rings, jewelry, brazenness and pomposity and to take to your affection the callous handed, industrious mechanic.

Thousands have bitterly repented their folly who have turned their backs on honest industry. A few years have taught them a severe lesson.

UNDER THE SEA.

NEW MESSAGES ARE SENT BY THE OCEAN CABLE.

(From the Boston Herald.)

The ocean telegraph operator taps the "key" as in a land telegraph, only it is a double key. It has two levers and knops instead of one. The alphabet used is substantially the same as the Morse alphabet—that is, the different letters are represented by a combination of dashes and dots. For instance suppose you want to write the word "boy." It would read like this: "— . . . — — — . — — — —". B is one dash and three dots; O three dashes; Y, one dash, one dot, and three dashes. Now, in the land telegraph, the dashes and the dots would appear on the strip of paper at the other end of the line, which is unwound from a cylinder, and perforated by a pin at the end of the bar or armature. If the operator could read by sound, he would dispense with the strip of paper and read the message by the "click" of the armature as it is pulled down and let go by the electric magnet.

The cable operator, however, has neither of these advantages. There is no paper to perforate, no click of the armature, and no armature to click. The message is read by means of a moving flash of light upon a polished scale produced by the "deflection of a very small mirror," which is placed within a "mirror galvanometer," which is a small brass cylinder two or three inches in diameter shaped like a spool or bobbin, composed of several hundred turns of small wire wound with silk to keep the metal from coming in contact. It is wound or coiled exactly like a bundle of new rope, a small hole being left in the middle about the size of a common wooden pencil. In the rentre of this is suspended a very thin, delicate mirror about as large as a kernel of corn, with a correspondingly small magnet rigidly attached to the back of it. The whole weighs but a little more than a grain, and is suspended by a single fibre of silk, much smaller than a human hair, and almost invisible. A narrow horizontal scale is placed within a darkened box two or three feet in front of the mirror, a narrow slit being cut in the centre of the scale to allow a ray of light to shine upon the mirror from a lamp placed behind said scale, the little mirror in turn reflecting the light back upon the scale. This spot of light upon the scale is the index by which all messages are read. The angle through which the ray moves is double that traversed by the mirror itself: and it is, therefore, really equivalent to an index four or six feet in length, without weight.

To the casual observer there is nothing but a thin ray of light, darting to the right and left with irregular rapidity; but to the trained eye of the operator every flash is replete with intelligence. Thus the word "boy," already alluded to, would be read in this way: One flash to the right and three to the left is B. Three flashes to the right is O. One to the right, one to the left, and two more to the right is Y, and so on. Long and constant practice makes the operators wonderfully expert in their profession, and enables them to read from the mirror as readily and as accurately as from a newspaper.

A FALSE IMPRESSION.

There are more ways than one to tell a lie. The natural liar—let us be merciful and believe—has no twinge of conscience when he utters a falsehood. The ingrained principle smothered the monitor long ago, and he can't help falsifying. The community know him as a liar, and a genuine one at that—for he never had any other reputation.

The smoothtongued teller of untruth, the man whose bland smile 'backs' his simple utterances, is just as well known and is always closely watched. His acquaintances and neighbors put on the armour of defence when they meet him and hold his declarations in utter contempt; but this fellow is apt to be well-to-do in the community, he has acquired wealth through his suavity of manner, and although the widow's mite and the orphan's portion, had been filched from them to make his position, he is tolerated, and keeps his place as a citizen, when he ought to be dragging a ball and chain on the Island. Beware of the smiling hypocritical liar.

The liar most to be dreaded in a personal encounter, is the man whose cat-like approaches give you no notice of his coming—whose adroit ways are past finding out and whose nose wedges itself in wherever he can push it. He is a first class mouser, and would fill the bill as a pioneer to a "squatter sovereignty" expedition, for he is a good "setter"—always on the alert for some thing to turn up that he may appropriate. Beyond his reach, everything is safe. This character is always chief of a gang of the most detestable liars. He is cunning, and he has the monkey's gift, of mimicry. If he has discovered any eccentricity in a man whose name is prominent, forthwith he apes his follies and becomes a veritable clown without having been trained in the ring. The complete obsequiousness of the sycophant we are writing of reminds us of something that crawls and slimes it path. We have no use for any such creeping thing.

The business liar shall be last on the list, although his deceptions are best known to the community. His dealings are with every class and his word goes for its real value. Men know him, women know him, and children are familiar with his reputation, for he has made his own bad name and it will stick to him through life. False impressions then are nothing more or less than a bunch of well concocted lies. They are made by merchants as often when he says "he don't know," as when he declares that he does, and speaks falsely. He warrants a fabric not to fade, he declares it is durable when he is aware of its unstable color and unreliable texture. He sells other products and is equally glib of tongue to praise his wares, which he never acknowledges are anything but genuine and of full value. He is made up like a "cunningly devised fable," while of oil and honey, the supply with him is inexhaustable. He is never wrong but has a plausible excuse for everything you find fault with and declares himself, by his utter disregard of all demands for reclamation, infallible. He makes it a rule never to "own up or pay up," but when he comes to "shut up," behold the wisdom in his face now his lips are sealed. This tradesman is called shrewd; "he is very smart, so they say;" but no father advises a son of his to, "go and do likewise." In the long run a dealer of this kind finds his level, and the verdict is, "Let him alone"—they who trusted him, have done with him, and he sinks out of sight, with a dishonored name which is the only legacy he leaves behind him.

We have referred to a few of the ways too frequently practiced, whereby a false impression is made, that young men, just entering upon the stage, may not their parts without copying from either character.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY CALIFORNIA

D. WALKER'S

VINEGAR BITTERS

DYSPEPTIC Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the Body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANEY & SONS'

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP, ON AYLMER STREET, PETERBORO',

(Near Mr. Towle's Factory.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "EMPIRE." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and buttery grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Color and Beauty.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, economical and effectual in preserving the hair, checking its decay, restoring it, when prematurely gray, to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It is wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so effective. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil the finest fabric, nor leave the hair in any unnatural condition. It is the best dressing for the human hair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The remarkable and excellent medicine enjoys a reputation based upon its cures, many of which are truly astonishing. Inveterate Scrofula, which, defying the skill of the ablest physicians, baffles their utmost efforts, and yields only to the subtle alterative power of this Sarsaparilla, has been cured in such great numbers in the neighborhood where it is made, as to become well known to all the inhabitants. Even those who have only heard of its wonderful cures, are prepared to believe in the power of this medicine over the obstinate disease to which it is adapted.

Scrofulous poisons lie at the bottom of the most destructive and painful of the organic troubles to which the human frame is subject. Often, this unseen foe entails upon the system loathsome disfigurations of the face, and invites the attack of other diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed life-long torments in the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, it will develop into one or other of its hideous forms, and put on the surface an outward sign of its inward existence. Tumors may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Scrofula Sores, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for eliminating these obstinate maladies from the system. A long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Choice Poetry.

I'll Not Forget Thee Mother.

I'm going far away from thee,
Our hearts we never more sever
Yet thoughts of thee shall dwell with me,
I can forget thee never.
Then banish all thy silent fears
All pain and anguish smother,
Until I'm called from earth away,
I'll not forget thee, mother.

Chorus.—For thee art all the world to me.
I cannot love another.
Come lay thy head upon my heart,
I'll not forget thee, mother.

You guarded well my tender years,
Thus I may never perish,
Oh, then thy voice, thy smiles, thy tears,
Like sacred things I'll cherish.
I'll not forget thy tender care
'Till earth my form shall cover,
Come, let thy head rest on my heart,
I'll not forget thee, mother.

Though time hath left its traces there
Upon thy brow so tender
Though streams of silver line thy hair,
To me they shine in splendor.
For thou art all the world to me,
I could not love another,
My heart shall ever hide for thee,
I'll not forget thee, mother.

WHAT SHALL I DO FOR A LIVING?

There are among our readers multitudes of young men who are asking today, with much solicitude and anxiety, "What shall I do for a living?" We do not think that there has ever been a time when it was more difficult to answer this question.

Society is divided into two classes—the workers and the non-workers. The workers are, again, divided into two classes—those who work with their hands and those who work with their brains. The latter distinction is not as clearly marked as the former, for manual toil is generally supplemented by some activity of the mind, and mental labor by a certain amount of bodily exercise. The man who hammers stone must use his judgement in order to strike in the right place; and the man who hammers his brains must use his hands in order to record his thoughts.

In the choice of a vocation, there are five great mistakes to be avoided. The first is crowding into what are called "the professions," or mercantile life, or some other employment where there is but little manual labor, or the supposition that this must promise to the young man a comparatively easy life. There are none who work harder than some who are supposed not to work at all. An aching brain may be more trying than a weary arm.

The second mistake into which young men are liable to fall—and this is worse than the first—is that of trying for a place in some of those branches of business where there is a possibility of achieving a great fortune at a stroke, with the strong probability of not making a cent. This is simply "running for luck," with the prospect of breaking your neck in the race. The few, who succeed, every one hears of; the multitude, who fail, pass out of sight and are soon forgotten.

The third mistake is that of rushing from the country to the large cities without any reasonable prospect of finding remunerative employment. If all the groans sighs which come from the stores and offices, where our clerks, and salesmen, and book-keepers congregate, could be heard through our country towns and villages, there would not be the same eagerness to join the crowd who haunt the city streets. If their be a fair chance of your attaining a confortable living in an honest way, stay near home, and build upon a sure foundation, even though the structure rise somewhat slowly. Wherever and however they may begin life, as a general rule men will gravitate to their true level. If it be in you to burst the narrow bounds which at first restrict your steps, you will be quite certain to do it sooner or later.

The fourth mistake to be noticed is the prevalent notion that to work with the hands can never be as honorable as it is to work with the brain. If indeed a man is nothing but a tool or part of a machine, he cannot expect to take an elevated position in society. But suppose the hand and the head to work together—as they always will, to some extent, just as soon as you rise out of region of mere servile toil—how does the matter stand then? Here is a practical farmer, who is also a student of scientific agriculture, and brings his knowledge to bear upon the improvement of land, the increase of crops, the perfecting of seeds ecomony in labor—under his skilful hand barren wastes are redeemed, and his culture makes the human race richer as well as his own household—could anyone ask for more honorable employment? Here is a young mechanic, who has learned his trade thoroughly and well, and starting in life as a skilled accomplished workman, he brings his mind to the watchful study of every progress in his work—contriving, experimenting, inventing, and gradually rising from his inferior position till he becomes a masterworkman, a contractor, the head of a grand establishment, "saying to this man, go, and he goeth, and to that come, and he cometh," is that not better and more honorable than to be a feeble advote at the bar, or an impecunious, half-starved member of any other learned profession?

And, lastly, it is very sad when one finds that he has chosen a line of life to which he is not adapted. It works badly, whether the peg is too large or too small for the hole.

MARRIAGE SUPERSTITIONS.

The numerous superstitions that still linger among us constitute a very interesting, though painful, field for thought and reflection. A few of the most popular, in connection with love and marriage, we place before our readers:

On St. Mark's Eve the custom still lingers among the maidens of Northamptonshire to make the dumb cake. The number of the party never exceeds three. They meet in silence to make the cake, and as soon as the clock strikes twelve they each break a portion off to eat; and, when done, they walk up to bed backward, without speaking a word—for, if one speaks, the spell is broken. Those that are to be married see the likenesses of their sweethearts hurrying after them. Those that are to die unmarried neither hear nor see anything, but they have terrible dreams, which are sure to be of new-made graves, winding-sheets, and churchyards, and of rings that will fit no finger, or which, if they do, crumble into dust as soon as put on.

There is another dumb ceremony also prevalent in Northamptonshire of eating the yolk of an egg in silence, and then filling the shell with salt, when the sweetheart is sure to make his visit in some way or other before morning.

The young women of Scotland, in former times, determined the figure and fate of their husbands by drawing cabbanes blindfold on All-Hallow Even, (or Hallowe'en, the 31st of October,) and, like the English, flinging nuts into the fire. It is mentioned by Burns that "the first ceremony of Hallowe'en is pulling each a stock or plant of kail. They must go out hand in hand, with eyes shut, and pull the first they meet with. It being big or little, straight or crooked, is prophetic of the size and shape of the grand object of all their spells—the husband or wife. If any yird, or earth, sticks to the root, that is tocher or fortune; and the taste of the custoc—that is, the heart of the stem—is indicative of the natural temper and disposition. Lastly, the stems—or to give them their ordinary appelation, the runts—are placed somewhere above the head of the door, and the Christian names of the people whom chance brings into the house are, according to the priority of placing the runts, the names in question."

The Welsh have a play in which the youth of both sexes seek for an even leaved sprig of the ash; and the first of either sex that finds and calls out Cynwer, is answered by the first of the other that succeeds; and these two, if the omen fails not, are to be joined in wedlock.

Burning the nuts was once a favorite charm in Scotland. They name the lad and lass to each particular nut, as they lay them in the fire, and accordingly as they burn quietly together, or start from beside one another, the course and issue of the courtship will be.

In Ireland, when the young women wished to know if their lovers were faithful, they put three nuts upon the bars of the grate, naming the nuts after the lovers. If the nut cracked or jumped, the lover would prove unfaithful. If it began to blaze or burn, he had a regard for the person making the trial. If the nuts named after the girl and her lover burned together, they would be married.

Eating an apple at a glass was another charm once in vogue: "Take a candle and go alone to a looking glass. Eat an apple before it, and (tradition says you should comb your hair all the time) the face of your conjugal companion to be will be seen in the glass, as if peeping over your shoulder."

"Throwing a stocking" is a singular sort of love divination on the first evening of a wedding. After the bride has retired, and while she is undressing she delivers one of her stockings to a female attendant, who throws it at random among the company assembled on this occasion. The person on whom it happens to alight will, it is supposed be the next to enter into the blessed state of matrimony.—Jewish Messenger.

Dr. Doellinger on the Roman Catholic Doctrine of Purgatory.

A foreign paper gives the following condensed summary of a portion of Dr. Doellinger's address, given at the Bonn conference, on the papal doctrine of purgatory:

Purgatory, as the burning away of sins, was an idea unknown in the East, as well as the West, till Gregory the Great introduced it. What was thought was, that after death those who were not ready for heaven were kept for some time in a state of preparation, and that the prayers of the living were an advantage for them. Gregory the Great added the idea of a tormenting fire. This the schoolmen gradually converted into doctrine which they associated with papal indulgence, till it came to apply to the dead generally, which, of course, made all men seek indulgence. It went on to have degrees; some could receive indulgence for a few of their sins, others for all, and so on; so that eventually the pope, having already the keeping of heaven and the dominion on earth, obtained also sovereignty under the earth. He could save and condemn. This idea of purgatory was confirmed by the visions and dreams of old afflicted people, from whose dictation the agents of the See of Rome prepared accounts which form a copious literature.

Seeing that such is the origin of purgatory, Dr. Doellinger proposed that it should be swept from their system. Pope Urban (he continued,) gave indulgence to all who joined the Crusade. Innocent III, gave it in different degrees, according as assistance was given to the Church. Then the bishops obtained the power of giving it, till it came into the hands of even the priests. In the time of Pius V. anybody could carry about his indulgence in his pocket, around his neck, or in his button-hole. The abuse grew and increased until, in this year of grace 1875, we have a grand jubilee year of indulgences, in which the pope may perhaps clear out purgatory altogether. The pope's triple crown is now justified He is supreme ruler over three kingdoms, the kingdoms of heaven, of earth, and of the world of spirits. You may go, for example, to certain churches in Spain, which are privileged with indulgences, and there you may see written on the doors, 'To-day you can bring souls out of purgatory.' We, Old Catholics, utterly repudiate this doctrine; we adjure the whole system of papal indulgences, whether for the dead or living, and we believe what the old undivided Church taught about the middle state.

A Useful Table

To aid farmers in arriving at accuracy in ascertaining the amount of land in different fields under cultivation, the following table is given by an agricultural contemporary:—

5 yards wide by 968 long contains one acre.

10 yards wide by 484 long contains one acre.

20 yards wide by 242 long contains one acre,

40 yards wide by 121 long contains one acre.

60 feet wide by 726 long contains one acre.

110 feet wide by 396 long contains one acre.

220 feet wide by 178 long contains acre.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS.

Men and women wed each other to be happy And why not, if they marry wisely? The man should always be a little bigger than his wife, and a little older, a little braver, a little stronger, a little wiser, and a little more in love with her than she is with him. The woman should always be a little younger and a little prettier, and a little more considerate than her husband. He should bestow on her all his worldly goods, and she should take good care of them. He may owe her every care and tenderness that affection can prompt; but pecuniary indebtedness to her will become a burden. Better live on a crust he earns than a fortune she has brought him. Neither must be jealous nor give the other cause for jealousy Neither must encourage sentimental friendships for the opposite sex. Perfect confidence in each other, and reticence concerning their mutual affairs even to members of their own families, is a first necessity. A wife should dress herself becomingly whenever she expects to meet her husband's eye. The man should not grow slovenly, even at home. Fault-finding, long arguments, or scoldings, end the happiness that begins in kisses and love-making. Sisters and brothers may quarrel and "make up." Lovers are lovers no longer after such disturbances occur, and married people who are not lovers are bound by red-hot chains. If a man admires his wife most in striped calico, she is silly not to wear it. If she likes him most in black cloth, he is a fool if he neglects to indulge in it. They should contrive to please each other, even if they please nobody else, for their mutual happiness can only be the result of their mutual love, and that love will never fail to exalt its object.

FATAL FALL.

HAMILTON, Oct. 15.—About 7 o'clock last evening a very decently attired young man, apparently about thirty years of age, entered the Victoria House, King street east, and stepping up to the proprietor, Mr. Alex. McKay, asked for a room and bed. He was shown to room No. 14 on the second flight. Nothing more was heard from the stranger until about 2 o'clock this morning, when Mrs. McKay was awakened by the sound of a heavy body falling on a roof near the window of her room. Immediately after the fall the lady heard a moan, and then awakened her husband. Mr. McKay went to to the window and observed the stranger lying at his full length on the roof of the building just underneath where it was apparent he had fallen from his room above. Calling aid at once Mr. McKay removed the injured man to a room in the house and immediately sent for medical assistant, also notifying Policeman Griggs of the accident. Dr. White was sent for and did all in his power to relieve the sufferer, but the skull was bodly fractured, and in one hour from the time the accident occurred the unfortunate man was dead. He was speechless during that time, and of course could in no way account for the sad misfortune. It appears that the deceased opened the window of room fourteen from the top and intentionally jumped out, or else was in a somnambulistic state, alighting on his head, the skull was fractured by contact with a brick cornice. He was well-dressed, and in his pockets were found a deposit receipt on the Band of Commerce for $130, over $100 in greenbacks, and $81 in Canadian currency; also, a diary with the name "Frank Beaupre, Simcoe," on the fly-leaf. His friends have been telegraphed to, and will arrive in this city to-night. The accident cannot possibly be accounted for. The young man was perfectly sober when he entered the house, appearing cool and collected, and went quietly to his room. It may be that he was a somnambulist, and walked out of the window while asleep. The distance from the window of the room to the roof beneath is not great, being about 14 feet. It is said that deceased was at one time agent for a leading manufacturing firm in Hamilton, and that his father is a wealthy resident of the Port Dover neighborhood.

A Remarkable Tragedy.

A remarkable tragedy has lately occurred at Rome, the details of which are of peculiar interest. In August last great alarm was created by the disappearance of two children, a boy of nine years of age and another of eight. It was supposed that they might have fallen into a stream where they went to fish and bathe, but no traces of them or their clothes could be found. Recently a lady heard frightful shrieks proceeding from the workshop of one Carlo Grandi, a carpenter. The neighbours quickly made for the workshop, and, after vain attempts to get Grandi to admit them, they broke open the door an I found him struggling to force a boy through a hole. He had cut the boy fearfully about the head and had tried to force a wedge in his mouth to gag him. After the man was secured, it was observed that some of the bricks of the flooring were loose, and on these being removed the first thing seen was a child's hand. The place was quickly dug up, and the mutilated bodies of the two boys who had disappeared ten days before, and other children's bodies were found at the bottom. It seems that the murderer, Grandi, was a deformed man of diminutive stature, high rounded shoulders, very large head, upon which there was not a scrap of hair, and repulsive features—a kind of Quilp. As is only too often the case in Italy, such unfortunate creatures become the object of open public ridicule. The boys had been in the habit of teasing Grand and playing jokes upon him, and it was in revenge for this that he had, as opportunity offered, enticed now one and then another of the urchin ring-leaders into his workshop and there murdered them under the floor.

"FRIENDS AT A DISTANCE!"—An advertisement in the "agency column" of a daily contemporary requests dear Tom—who must be a Tom of amazing ability—to do something extraordinary. Come immediately if you see this. If not, come on sunday." The only parallel we can find to this is in the anecdote of the Irishman who, meeting a "distant" friend, said at once—"I never received your letter asking for a loan of five pounds, or I'd have sent it at once."—Fun.

A SAD CASE OF SUICIDE.

(From the Christian Visitor, N. B.)

It seems melancholy to reflect that the crime of suicide is on the increase, both here and in other countries. In this city during the past year we have had many sad cases of self-murder to record, but the saddest occurred here last week, when a man named Edward McFadden, depressed by the hard times and his inability to obtain work, put an end to his own life, leaving a wife and family to battle alone with poverty. The following letter, penned under the influence of depression and melancholy, reveals a sad state of mind, and shows the danger of giving way to gloomy and morbid feelings instead of cheerfully and hopefully sriving against a hard fate, and with a humble reliance on God to struggle against poverty and despondency.

"I die by poison taken by my own hand. I do not want to live any longer and see you suffer so. My life has become a failure, and I dare take a leap in the dark, for I do not believe in dying a thousand deaths in fearing one. The Great Judge will not judge me too harshly. Darling Abby, you have been a true, loving and faithful wife to me these ten long years, and if you only knew the agony of mind my smiling lips

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 4, 1875.

POLITICAL.

As we went to press next day after the polling in the West Riding and before complete returns were received, we were not able to give the official figures, but we believe they were so near correct that no change in results can now be chronicled.

As our Returns last week were not official, we this week supply the proper figures.

It will be seen, therefore, that Mr. Cox has received 24 more votes than he received in January, while Mr. Scott has received 70 more votes than in January. This sets aside the idea of Conservative reaction. In the township of Smith the list of 1875 were used, and as there were some new votes put on owing to the increased valuation of property, there is no change of reform votes except perhaps three or four arising out of enforcing the fishing laws, which hitherto had been a dead letter. Enniskmore gave exactly the same majority as in January and this in face of the strenuous exertions of Dr. O'Sullivan and his "awful fellow to treat." This reflects great credit on Enniskmore Reformers. North Monaghan was changed about 23 votes in favor of reform principles, and South Monaghan three. Harvey and Galway combined, only changed one vote in their comparative results, and hence the change took place in town, in part owing to the Auburn Mills shutting down for a while, thus causing a few of the workmen to remove to other places.

The South Ward gave Mr. Scott an increased majority of 23, this too can be accounted for by a few who live out side of the Ward, but who went there to vote. As we intimated last week there is no falling off of reformers, and when we reflect that over confidence has caused present results, we cannot refrain from blaming those who thought the election could be easily carried with out them.

Not less than 800 votes were not polled at all, of these we may reasonably claim a majority, as the Conservatives made their most determined efforts and had two months longer time owing to the delay in the Judge's decision.

The most frantic attempt was made to arouse the Catholic feeling against reformers on account of the vote in the East Riding, but we are glad to find that their fanaticism received no response from the intelligent Catholics of the West Riding. The party triumph gained in this way will be as shortlived as Mr. John Carnegie's political life, for a single term at the most and perhaps not so long.

If we are permitted to draw conclusions from the history of Conservatism in West Peterboro, the record is dark and not hopeful. Mr. Claxton sat two Sessions in Parliament with a majority of 41 against him. Mr. Scott by means of a row in Ennismore, sat one Session And if he goes again, he will be the representative of a unit—the representative of himself.

Mr. Cox, during the two campaigns has been the object of the most relentless hate, and the most bitter persecution; and hounded by the basest slanderers, and yet he comes out of the contest honorably and more respected by his supporters than when he first took the field, and with the answer of a good conscience, and against whom not one reproachful word can be uttered.

NEW WARD SCHOOL SITES.

The School Board, on Tuesday evening, as will be [illegible] the report, spent considerable t[illegible] discussing the best location for a school site.

Some were in favor of Smithtown hill, and building but one school at present, and others favored two new school-houses, one north of Mr. Dennistoun's, and one westward—place not mentioned. But the expression of the members was in favor of one north and one west. The necessity for a new reformatory building arises out of having to use the cellar portion of the present buildings as schoolrooms.

This is not advantageous in many ways, but chiefly because those damp underground rooms cannot be healthy. About four additional rooms would meet the wants of the Board for some time to come, but the trouble is where shall those rooms be located? If new buildings be placed at the extremes of either the north or western portions of the town they will not relieve the Board from procuring accommodation for the small children of the centre and east of the town, and these will be found numerous enough to continue the present difficulties as to using the basements. But if the Board shall adopt a medium course, and locate the north school about the head of George street, or as near there as possible, it will be convenient for those farther north, it will suit the Auburn section of the town, if a change should be thought desirable, while it would be convenient also for the greater portion of the second an third wards. By this means the Board could establish regulations that would do away with the use of the basements referred to.

If the Board shall determine to erect a west ward school and take the precaution not to place it too far west, it will provide accommodation for the centre and west and completely remove the present difficulties. If the new buildings be properly located there will be no portion of the town too distant from them for even small children. But it on the contrary extreme sites be selected, the centre and east must put in their claims for a ward school, as their children cannot continue to be taught in a cellar while the extreme sections are provided with first class buildings.

The Committee in whose hands the matter of sites now is, can easily meet all the trouble and remove it by locating the new buildings with a due regard to the centre as well as the extreme limits of the town.

WEST MONTREAL

Mr. Thos. White has been again defeated. This time by 59 of a majority. This is the fourth time, and with a very largely increased majority His first defeat was in Wentworth by 4, his second in Brockville by 2, his third in Montreal by 6, and now in Montreal West by 59. This will be a quietus to his political campaigning. The steel rail slanders were more than he could carry, his sins more than he could bear, and he had to succumb to the popular will. That the country will lose thereby no one believes except, perhaps his own ardent admirers. His abilities have always been over-rated by his friends, owing to the glibness of his tongue and perseverance towards his own preferment. An ardent admirer of John A. Macdonald, he is an apt disciple and hence his absence from the House of Commons will not retard the advancement of political morality. Conservative reaction is not very great in Montreal yet.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

HON MR. MCKENZIE addressed the the citizens of Halifax on Monday evening on public affairs. He promised them justice and nothing more.

SMITH has been found guilty of the murder of Mr. Finlay in Sombra. Mrs. Finlay will not be put on trial at the present assizes. Her turning Queen's evidence may save her.

YORK ASSIZES.—A man named Miller and his wife have been tried for the murder of a man and woman named Nash who were burned to death in a room over Miller's store in Toronto. Miller it is thought having set fire to the property after insuring it.

HALTON.—Mr. Lyon, Ministerialist, was elected on Tuesday by a majority of 87. This is the County where Mr. Barber was elected, but disqualified through the evidence of the Robbins. It is no gain in strength, but goes a good way to prove the much boasted of reaction in favor of the Conservatives; but we may ask where is it?

WEST TORONTO—Alderman Turner, reform, is opposed by John B. Robinson, conservative, in West Toronto, vacated by the elevation of Mr. Moss to the Bench. Their great cry is Mr. Turner is not of the old family compact, while Mr. Robinson is. Surely the common sense of the electors will see that this is one of the most cogent reasons why Mr. Turner should be elected and Mr. Robinson left at home.

CONSERVATIVE REACTION.—In North Ontario Mr. Paxton's (Reform) majority in January was 132; in October it be comes 185. That is reaction not likely to bring comfort to conservative. In Wentworth Mr. Stock (Conservative) was elected in January, but unseated and disqualified. In October, Dr. McMahon, reformer, was elected by a large majority. This is conservative reaction the other way.

THE STEEL RAIL SLANDER.

The whole history of the Steel Rail purchase The transaction the very best that could be made in the interest of the country.

MR. T. WHITE'S CHARGE.

"When Mr. Mackenzie came into office what was the first thing he did? He purchased from a Montreal firm—one of the partners in this firm being his own brother—40,000 tons of steel rails, ostensibly for use on the Pacific Railway, but these very rails were to-day piled on the banks of the Lachine Canal, which they might be seen by any elector. The Premier's plea was that he had done so owing to the cheapness of the price, his view being to save the country the expenditure of a considerable sum in money; but gentlemen thoroughly informed on the subject stated that these very rails could now be purchased for $7.50 or $10 less than the Premier had paid and they had thereby lost not only so much money but also the interest on the two millions which was paid for the rails."

HON. MR. MACKENZIE'S DENIAL.

"Ottawa, 14th Oct.

"The statement of Mr. Thomas White, as reported in the Montreal Gazette, that 'Mr. Mackenzie purchased of a Montreal firm, one of the partners in the firm being his own brother, 40,000 tons steel rails,' is a deliberate falsehood. No steel rails were purchased by me from any Montreal firm—all were obtained by open competition after a month's advertising for tenders, the lowest tenders being in all cases accepted. The contracts are all made with English makers. No brother or any relation of mine has any interest, direct or indirect, near or remote, in any of these contracts, or ever received, or has any claim to a cent of profit from one or any of them.

"A. MACKENZIE"

MR. WORKMAN'S STATEMENT.

About the 8th of October last year he, (Mr. Workman) saw an advertisement in the Montreal Herald asking for tenders on or before the 14th of October, for a supply of steel rails, to be delivered between the months of May and October following. The advertisement also stated that specifications could be obtained from the Board of Works. He saw at once that the time allowed was too short, as hardware men could not acquire the proper knowledge to enable them to make their tenders properly. He immediately wrote to Mr. Mackenzie, asking him that he should extend the time to a month to enable persons who desired to tender to communicate with the makers. The time was extended thirty-two days. So anxious was Mr. Mackenzie to consult the interests of the trade that he gave these thirty-two days to enable them to communicate with the makers in England. The extension of time was telegraphed to the papers, so that no time might be lost. He, on behalf of his firm, spent money and got the lowest prices, as well as tenders for freight, for the rails had to be delivered free of everything. He sent up what he supposed to be an exceedingly low tender. There were three prices, £11 5s. being the lowest. He had hoped to have received a contract, but others were lower, viz., the firm of Cooper, Fairman & Co., of which Mr. Charles Mackenzie was a partner, though not a full partner. This firm were the agents for the West Cumberland Iron and Steel Company, Middlesboro', from whom were obtained 15,000 tons and 5,000 tons from the Mersey Steel Company. He thought there were four tenders lower than his own.

MR. WHITE'S PROOF OF THE ALLEGED PARTNERSHIP.

In the Province of Quebec there is a way of ascertaining who are the partners of a firm. Registration is required by law, and here is a copy of the registered declaration of partnership :—

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, }
District of Montreal. }

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we have entered into co-partnership, under the style or firm of "Cooper, Fairman and Company," as merchants, which firm consists of James Cooper, of the city of Montreal, and Frederick Fairman, at present residing at Waterloo, in the said Province, as general partners, and Charles Mackenzie, of Sarnia, in the Province of Ontario, as a special partner, the said Charles Mackenzie having contributed fifteen thousand dollars to the capital stock of the said partnership. Which said co-partnership commenced on the first day of January, inst., (1873,) and terminates the first day of January, 1878.

COOPER, FAIRMAN AND CO.'S STATEMENT.

To the Editor of the Gazette :

SIR,—With respect to the charge made by Mr. White against the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, of having favored Mr. Chas. Mackenzie, by improperly awarding a contract for steel rails to the firm of Cooper, Fairman & Co., in which firm the said Mr. Charles Mackenzie was interested, we wish to state distinctly that Mr. White's assertion is totally and unquestionably untrue. Mr. Chas. Mackenzie was interested in the late firm of James Cooper & Co. in 187-, but he ceased to have any interest in the latter some time ago, and has, never benefitted by, nor participated in the slightest degree in any of the contracts to which Mr. White alluded. So far as Cooper, Fairman & Co. are concerned, we would state that they have merely acted as agents in all these transactions; the contracts having been awarded to large firms in England, from which firms all the tenders to the Government came direct. Far from having been favored, in these awards, we know of two other houses who obtained contracts at higher prices than those given to the English houses which Cooper Fairman & Co. represent, this being the best possible proof that these latter were justly entitled to the award of contracts on their own merits.

COOPER, FAIRMAN & Co.

PROOF OF THE DISSOLUTION OF THE PARTNERSHIP.

To the Editor of the Gazette.

SIR :—Your article in reference to our firm makes us once more, and for the last time, recur to this matter.

You say that the dissolution of the the firm in which Mr. Chas. Mackenzie was a partner has not been registered; that turns out to be true, by the oversight of the professional gentleman who had the matter in hand The failure to register, from the same cause, is known not to be unusual, and if you had looked a little farther you would have found evidence of the truth in the registration of the new firm without Mr. Charles Mackenzie's name being in it. Owing to the absence of our Mr. Fairman in England from the month of December to March last, it was impossible to take the formal steps for closing the partnership, long before the time mentioned upon, till the 30th April last, so that Mr. Mackenzie was nominally a partner until that time; but we repeat he had no interest in our business since December last.

And we wish you and the public to understand that the contract made by the Canadian Government was made direct Mersey Steel and Iron Company, and the payments are made to them in London, England, by the representative of the Canadian Government. We are employed here by the Mersey Steel and Iron Company to receive the rails, pay the ocean freights, and make proper delivery to the government, on behalf of the Company, and are not known in any other capacity to any member of the Dominion Government; and would further state, in conclusion, that no portion of our commission was earned or received until long after Mr. Mackenzie had ceased to have any interest in our business.

COOPER, FAIRMAN & Co.

STILL MORE POSITIVE PROOF.

The following is the copy of a duly registered document :

Province of Quebec,
District of Montreal.

We, James Cooper and Frederick Fairman, both of the City of Montreal, Hardware Merchants and Importers, hereby certify that we have carried on and intend to carry on business as such at the said City of Montreal, in partnership under the name or firm of Cooper, Fairman & Company, and that the said co-partnership hath subsisted since the fourth day of May, and that we the said James Cooper and Frederick Fairman are and have been since the said day the only members of the said partnership. Witness our hands at Montreal this twentieth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five,

F. FAIRMAN.

MR. WORKMAN ON THE CIRCUMSTANCES ATTENDING PURCHASE.

The circumstances attending the purchase of the rails were as follows: About September, 1874, Mr. Brydges, Chief Commissioner of the Intercolonial Railway, had represented to the Minister of Public Works, who was the Premier, that a certain quantity of steel rails were required, and that, the price being very low, that time was the best in which to make the purchase. Mr. Mackenzie sent for Mr. Sandford Fleming, who was known as an engineer of the highest repute, and who was Chief Engineer of the Government railways, and he also advised that it was a judicious time to make the purchase. Mr. Mackenzie, it would be seen, had the opinion of two of the most eminent experts, both gentlemen who had been high in the opinion of the late government.

THE PRICES SIR JOHN PAID WHEN IN POWER.

The Macdonald-Cartier Government purchased steel rails at £16 10s and £17 (or $85) per ton delivered on the ship. To this £17 had to be added, the cost of freight, insurance, and wharfage, which had brought up the cost to upwards of £18 5s (or $91) delivered in Canada. It also paid $300 per ton for telegraph wire, while at the same time the Montreal Telegraph Company were buying it for $100 a ton.

WHAT MR. MACKENZIE PAID.

The contracts entered into by the present government were as follows :

The West Cumberland Iron and Steel Company, Workington, England, 5,000 tons at $53.53; the Ebbw vale Steel and Iron Company, Wales, 5,000 tons at $53.53; the Dowlais Steel and Iron Works, Wales, 10,000 tons at $54; the Mersey Steel and Iron Company, Liverpool, England, 20,000 tons at $54.26 per ton.

WHAT THE RAILWAYS ARE PAYING.

The Grand Trunk is paying this year £10 10s., f.o.b., which, with freight and insurance, will be brought up to some thing like £11 15s. (or $59) delivered at Montreal. The Great Western is doing a little better, and is paying £11 5s. delivered, which, however, is still somewhat higher than the Government price.

STATE OF THE MARKET WHEN THE CONTRACTS WERE ENTERED INTO.

The London Economist, which will, we suppose, be accepted as an authority, in reviewing the English iron market for the week ending 26th September, 1874, said :

Prospects are improving, and confidence returning. There is much appearance of a revival of more or less steadiness, but though the tendency is perhaps better, the turn has not yet actually come. * * * In anticipation of a better trade a few more furnaces have been put into blast. * * Prices in the north of England and South Staffordshire are already so low as to cause much surprise, and are still flat in tendency. From Barrow, how ever, a large centre of steel rail production, and from South Wales, there is an appearance of the period of depression having passed away.

The above was published in the Canadian papers about the 10th of October, 1874. On the 6th of November prices of iron were reported as firm. From the Economist of the 30th of October there was also published an extract setting forth that, though "In the heavy districts of the North of England and South Wales rails were especially in limited request in the former district labor disputes and prices in the coal trade have probably something to do with keeping quotations up and orders back; in the latter iron was dear, and wages and prices generally are found too high to attract business. In South Staffordshire, however, however orders for finished iron are reported more numerous, prices firm, and the condition of the district better that for twelve months past."

PRICES RULING AT PRESENT.

As to the prices ruling at present, Iron that undoubted authority, says in its number of september 25th, 1875 :

"The increased price of first class pig iron has produced a corresponding effects upon the Bessemer steel, which has advanced in a week some 7s. 6d. per ton. Bessemer converters, who have had a hard time of it for some months past accept the present improvement as a herald of approaching prosperity, many holders of stock refusing to part with it at the rate of the day."

The London market rates of September 23rd ultimo, for Bessemer rails were £10 to £10s. sterling. Take the very lowest figure to calculate upon, it will be found that even now they could not be laid down here as low as £11 free of all charges, as the following table will show.

Rails, per ton	£10 0s 0d
Freight	1 0 0
Insurance	2 0
Wharfage	1 2
Total	£11 3s 2d

POLITICAL PARTIES IN QUEBEC

The present condition of parties in Quebec is one which is pretty difficult to understand. The Toronto Nation, which disbelieves in party, has derived some comfort from the apparent chaos. The cause of the disorganization, however, seems to be rather the fruit of weakness than of an increasing intelligence, such as in the view of the Nation is to bring about a more patriotic system than that of government by party. The fact seems to be simply that neither party has enough of able men to form a Ministry. This has been painfully apparent in the case of the Conservative party, which had to give up its two mighty men, Messrs. Ouimet and Chapleau, on the occasion of the Land-Swamp, and which has been helpless since. There was little to hinder the Liberals from supplanting so weak a Government except their inability to form combination any more respectable, and this weakness will be brought to a climax if Mr Joly, their tower of strength, should accept office at Ottawa. Another thing has been painfully evident to both parties, and that is that the present Government, or any Liberal Government, is necessarily at the dictation of its one or two English members, who would not by their constituents be permitted to take part in the more daring kind of jobs or the more glaring concessions to Rome. Under such circumstances what is there more natural than that men of both parties, out of office, and whose ruling desire is the desire for office, should consider and even discuss with each other whether they could not form a combination which would give them at least the control of the Treasury and the patronage? We quite agree with the Nation in desiring to see men who will serve the country for their country's sake rather than men whose highest allegiance is to their party. We are, therefore, not prepared to say, as the admirers of party government sometimes do, that governments formed otherwise than on the basis of party are necessarily immoral. When, however, such a combination is formed for no other purpose than to supplant those already in office, it becomes a question whether much is gained by the change. The question will, it seems, be between a Government ruled by the clergy, in so far as the French section is concerned, but kept considerably in check in that direction by its well meaning English members, and a Government to which railway and land jobbing will be more dear drink. On the whole the higher order of morality seems to be on the side of the former, and honest, religious men, however misled should always have our sympathies in preference to the profane and bad. We have warned the country against the possible attempts of the clergy upon the liberties of the people, and when the protests are sent for the time being be content, unless there should appear some better prospect than at present appears for the formation of an honest Liberal Government. It is perhaps best that events should progress in the direction in which they are going, so that the time may the sooner come when a reaction will set in, as set in it must sooner or later, whether healthily or otherwise.—Witness.

BAD IT THEE.—The Oshawa Reformer says:—A short time ago some youths entered the House of Mrs. Rose, near the station, and committed her, when she shot one of them with a fowling piece. Since then we have heard that the young man has died from the wound. It is said he lived near Whitby. If the report of his death is true it should operate as a terrible warning to the roughs who seem to infest their neighborhood. A woman can scarcely be blamed for shooting in such cases.

THE SOMBRA MURDER.

In May last, a farmer named Ralph Spence Finlay, of the township of Sombra, in the County of Lambton, was shot in his own stable The murder caused great excitement at the time, and a hired man named Smith was suspected as the guilty party, with the knowledge of Mrs Finlay with whom he (Smith) had had improper intimacy. Mrs Finlay's story was that her husband hearing a noise in the stable and fearing that his horses had got loose and got at some potatoes which were in an adjoining stall, went to tie the horses, and that he got kicked so as to cause death. The neighbours, however, thought differently, as a gun shot wound was found in his cheek, and a hole corresponding discovered in the other side of the head. So strong did the suspicions become on her not going to the funeral, as is customary in that part of the country, that Smith was taken in custody at the grave of the unfortunate man, and shortly after Mrs Finlay revealed the facts to her brother-in-laws The trial commenced on Friday last at Sharnia, before Mr. Moss. Buchanan, one of the witnesses, testified to improper conduct on the part of Smith and Mrs Finlay, and therefore it may be fairly assumed that this foul murder was committed by Smith under the foulest motives.

Mrs. Finlay has turned Queen's evidence, and consequently her testimony will explain the whole matter.

MRS. FINLAY'S EVIDENCE.

Mrs. Ann Finlay wife of the deceased, was next called. She is a woman of apparently about 35 years in appearance, having a rather dull, sallow countenance, although her face altogether is rather intelligent looking. Those who saw her shortly after the murder say, however, that she has altered in appearance very much for the worse since her imprisonment. She was stouter and ruddier than since her confinement in gaol. Her evidence was given in a very straightforward and collected manner, and though subjected to a long and searching cross-examination she made no contradictions, either in to day's testimony or between that and her previous confession. She said—I was the wife of the late Ralph Spence Finlay; three years last winter we moved on the farm in Sombra; prisoner worked for us at intervals from shortly after we went there, and lived with us in the house; I remember the prisoner going to Wallaceburg on the Thursday before my husband's death; he left about four, and did not return until we were all in bed; I saw him with some liquor on the Friday forenoon in a black bottle; I think it was brandy. my husband was working at home all day Friday; he was working out in the field preparing the ground for potatoes, and in the evening he and Smith and Shanks were cutting potatoes; they came in from the stable about dark; we had no supper before they came in: I think Smith went to bed first that night. Witness pointed out the rooms in which the various parties in the house slept that night. My husband and I occupied the parlour as a bedroom in the winter, while we had another girl; Shanks went to bed, and the little girls and the children went next; the prisoner went to bed about nine, my husband went to bed between that and ten; I slept with him that night, I went about ten; my husband got up during the night; I don't remember getting up between the time I went to bed and when my husband got up a little before midnight as he heard a noise in the stable; I heard the noise when my husband spoke of it; he spoke about the horses getting loose and getting at the potatoes; he went out of the back door, the one nearest the stable; I did not see him taking a light with him; the lantern was hanging behind the kitchen door; I got up I think within a quarter of an hour after my husband; I heard, shortly after my husband went out, what appeared to be the report of a gun; I cannot say whether I was then in bed or up; I then listened at the window at the head of the bed to find out if there were any other noises; I heard the loud snorting of a horse; I remained at the window a short time and then went to put on some clothes; Smith came to the front door on the side next to the road, it was the door leading into the parlour; he tapped, and I opened it; this was less than ten minutes after the report of the gun; he said, "I have done it, and it's well done."

This evidence, given in a low but distinct voice, created a very decided sensation in the Court-room, but the officers of the Court at once repressed the audible expression of indignation which followed.

The witness continued—Prisoner was dressed in his shirt and trousers; I think he had his boots on; after saying this I said, "Have you killed him?" he said, "I have, and it is for your sake I have done it;" he made on further remarks just then; he went away, and he went into the House; I cannot be sure how he got in; he told me to keep quiet, and gave him time to get in bed; I then closed and locked the door, as there was no catch to it; I did not see Smith coming in after that I do not think I saw him after that until I called him to get up, which was a few minutes afterward I went first to the back door to see if I could hear any more noise; I then called on Shanks and Smith; I called Shanks telling him to get up, that my husband had got up, and that I feared he had got into trouble I said its bad there to a stable; that the lantern was gone and that I could see no light at the stable; both came out about together; I think both had their boots on when they went out; after they had gone to the stable I also went out; before going, I called to them from the door, asking what was the matter; Smith replied that he was dead; I went over immediately, but did not go in, I think I said, "perhaps he's not dead," or something to that effect: I remained there a few minutes, and came back to the house; Smith and Shanks came back with me but did not go in; they went to call Mr. Roebuck; I don't think Smith went into the house between the time he went to the stable with Shanks and when he went to Mr. Roebuck; when he tapped at the door his breath smelt of liquor; he told me on Friday that he had it planned to put Finlay out of the way, or words to that effect; he said he had it planned the night before but he had not been sure about there being a cap on the gun; I am almost certain Smith had boots on when he tapped; when he told me he had planned my husband's death, I said "I guessed he was drunk and did not know what he was doing" he replied that he was not so drunk but that he could climb like a cat, he told me that he would climb up into the stable and let one of the horses loose, and then when my husband would come out he would shoot him; I told him he had better take care or he would get himself into trouble; he said that there was no danger, or something to that effect; he knew the gun was in the stable; my husband loaded it in the house in prisoner's presence for the purpose of killing squirrels; I have seen the bottles of shot and powder produced before; they are like the ones my husband had when prisoner was telling me about planning Finlay's death; he commenced the conversation by his asking me if I had heard him come in the night before; the lower sash of the window in prisoner's room was unfastened; I told him I did not hear him come in as I did not expect him back that night; I said this because that I thought he would be on the spree; he said he did not at first think he would himself, but that a thought had struck him and he started for home; he then began to tell me all about what he had planned; when prisoner told me he had done it on my account he did not say in what respect it was for my sake; I said the prisoner were always on good terms, but we were not particularly intimate; I don't know why he did it on my account. The questions having been repeated, the witness, after long hesitation, said: The prisoner always pretended to think a great deal of me, and I to a certain extent reciprocated that feeling; did not try to make him believe I thought a great deal of him, but I believe he did think I had an affection for him; he expressed an affection for me amounting to love; when he expressed himself I made him think I thought a good deal of him; I think prisoner wrote to me while in gaol, as I got some scraps of coarse paper with writing in pencil upon it; they were lying in the gaol yard next to the side where I was; I gave them to the governor of the gaol or his wife, and I have not seen them since.

By Mr. Glass—There was no improper conduct between Smith and me on the occasion when Mr McLean called for a drink, my husband was well initiated with Smith's work, for the time being he content, unless there should appear some better prospect than at present appears for the formation of an honest Liberal Government. It is perhaps best that events should progress in the direction in which they are going, so that the time may the sooner come when a reaction will set in, as set in it must sooner or later, whether healthily or otherwise.—Witness.

BAD IT THEE.—The Oshawa Reformer says:—A short time ago some youths entered the House of Mrs. Rose, near the station, and committed her, when she shot one of them with a fowling piece. Since then we have heard that the young man has died from the wound. It is said he lived near Whitby. If the report of his death is true it should operate as a terrible warning to the roughs who seem to infest their neighborhood. A woman can scarcely be blamed for shooting in such cases.

was awake when he heard the noise, I think he might have heard Smith going out before, I was sworn at the coroner's request, but I did not tell the truth, I do not remember saying to any one that I believed Buchanan had committed the murder, I lit a candle for Smith and Shanks when they went out to the barn, I think it was Smith took it out, we always understood Smith was an unmarried man. On being asked if there had been any improper intimacy between herself and the prisoner the witness hung down her head and did not answer. The question being altered so as to refer to the occasion mentioned by the witness McLean, she denied that anything improper had occurred on that day. She continued—I saw the tracks on the shed after my husband's death, no stockings with mud upon them were found about the house on the morning after my husband's death, something was said about going down to Dover to tell my friends, and Smith volunteered to go; I gave him money for the purpose; the people said a horse had kicked my husband and I let it go that way because I didn't want to tell what I believed, Buchanan had been forbidden our house; don't remember whether I said to John Finlay that I thought Buchanan had committed murder; he urged me to tell the truth; John Finlay told me that it was better for me to turn Queens evidence for he felt satisfied, he said that I knew something about it, if I would only tell, and that Smith would tell against me if I didn't against him; I said, "You don't mean to say I did it;" he said no, but Smith would tell against me if I didn't against him I believe John Finlay did say," Clear yourself Ann, and I'll be the same to you as before but till you do so we can never be the same;" John Finlay said that I was doing all I could to screen the prisoner; I said I couldn't see that I was, and he replied that others could see it if I couldn't; he and I went to the woods along away from the crowd, after this conversation and he spoke to me about turning Queen's evidence, and said that would save my life; Finlay took down my statement in the woods and I heard it read at the inquest; I did not know when I made my confession to John Finlay that I was admitting myself guilty of murder, and I thought it would be to my advantage; I didn't believe Smith would say anything against me until John Finlay spoke to me; I gave Smith four dollars when he went to tell the Rankins; he did not give me back any change; I said at the coroner's inquest that some people said sometimes that my husband was crazy; he was in his usual health the day before his death he complained about pains in his back; I did not think him particularly despondent; he seemed sometimes to have trouble in getting on in the world; I did think he had a good deal more property than would pay his debts; there was a mortgage on the farm; I know there were some debts owing, but I do not know their amounts; I don't think my husband was in financial trouble; people used sometimes to say my husband was crazy, on account of some of his peculiarities; he had peculiar ways of going around and doing his work; one of his peculiarities was that he would not allow us to keep geese for fear of their browsing on the trees; he told me that one time when he had a severe fever he had contemplated going in the river and drowning himself; my husband was in the habit of working a little while at one place in the field and then at another, as if he forgetting; I did not like the farm because he didn't understand work very well and had to keep so much hired help that it got him into debt and was making a great deal more work than was necessary; from the time he got hurt he did not rest well in bed; there was some poison about the house and barn to kill the rats and squirrels; I remember him tasting the strychnine after he came in from the barn and saying it was bitter; Mary Ann Alleley, the hired girl, said, "Why, you are not going to poison yourself are you."

Mr. Glass here before the witness suddenly opened out a drawing representing a woman standing behind a man and shooting him, and asked her if she knew anything about her husband being shot in that way. She at once replied that he was not killed in that way. She continued—I once shot off a revolver at a rat in the yard some years before my husband died: I did not examine Smith's bed to see if there were any marks of mud upon it, and cannot say whether there were; the mud I saw upon the shed looked like footprints; the hired girl Alleley, was away at her home on the night of Mr. Finlay's death; she wanted to go home and I told her she could go a few days; I don't think she was at the house when the gun was loaded; my husband was a pious man, and he attended church; I did not often go with him I have been educated in the principals of Christianity; I swear positively that I did not put the gun where it was found.

By Mr. McMahon—My husband established a Sunday School in the neighborhood and he was superintendent of it; he was a studious man, fond of books; the reason we would not keep geese was because my husband had got a bundle of small trees and he thought they would peck at them; he was also afraid that they would come around the house; when J. Finlay was speaking to me in the woods I did not know that I was equally guilty in the eye of the law with Smith; he told me he thought I knew about it, and had better tell it; I think the statement I made to him is the same as I made to-day: it is the truth; when Smith started off to get me to tell my father the last thing he said to me was "remember my life and yours is in your hands, so keep quiet;" I said something about not knowing what to do.

By Mr. Glass—No one was present but Smith and me when he made this remark; it was not put on oath when I made the statement to John Finlay; the latter told me that what I had said before would make no difference; Finlay came into the prison to see me, and thinking my former statement was binding; he told me to speak the truth; I said in the prison that he had heard I had changed my statement: I said I had not. and told he me the first was binding.

By Mr. McMahon—When John Finlay called upon me in the gaol, he told me that it was better when I had made a statement to stick to the truth.

This closed the evidence of Mrs. Finlay, her examinations and cross-examinations having lasted considerably over three hours.

Mr. McMahon said this closed the case for the Crown.

Smith has been sentenced to be hanged on the 23rd of December. He completely broke down during passing of the sentence. Mrs. Finlay will not tried till next assizes.

THE LAKES

A number of disasters have happened to inland vessels on the lakes, during the past week. The following tale of suffering shows the troubles and dangers of a Sea boring life.

The following is the statement made by Capt. Malone, and which is corroborated by the mate, Joseph Lennox:—

I left Oswego last Thursday afternoon between two and three o'clock, loaded with two hundred and fifteen tons of Blossburg coal shipped for Jas. Mylne & Co., of Toronto. When we left Oswego the wind was southerly—about a three-mile breeze—there being some nine vessels in company We steered west, half south, until we got to Little Sodus, about fifteen miles up the Lake. The wind then canted to the eastward of south; seeing that our canvass would not draw on one side we put a sail on each side of the vessel, mainsail on the port side, and foresail on the starboard We steered that way until twelve o'clock that night, the wind canting to the eastward all the while, so that the vessel would not head any more than west by south, which ran us in on the land too much. At 12 o'clock we were abreast of Charlotte light between three and four miles from the land; jibed over foresail, wind canting to the eastward all the while, when we jibed over and hauled her up west-northwest to clear Braddock's Point. Immediately we got the canvas trimmed and took in the gaff topsails and furled them, the wind canted north-east, with a heavy sea on. We then hauled the ship up northwest, and made for Toronto. The vessel began to lay over from the force of the sea. Settled away the mainsail to reef it, and put a reef in the mainsail. The vessel appeared to be laying over all the while. Took in the jibstaysail and settled away the foresail. Thinking there was something wrong by the vessel acting in such a manner, headed down the flying jib and staysail with the intention of bringing the vessel to. She would not come head to wind. Heard something crack; put the bucket on the wheel and went amidships, and made inquiry of the men on to what was the matter. The man said it was a trough for carrying water, which had struck aft aft the bulwarks. Told the mate to furl the jib, while this was being done I went down into the after cabin to see if there was any water coming out on the port windows. Finding everything all right, I spoke to my wife who was in bed. I told her there was no danger, to remain where she was. I then went on deck, and found the vessel [illegible] I thought best. I ordered [illegible] in the [illegible] I went into the cabin to get a piece of spun yarn, which I brought on deck, together with a sharp axe in case of being needed cut away the mast table. Seeing the vessel was settling down in the water, I went and got my wife out of the cabin. She was in her night clothes. I told her to get into the boat and lie down in the bottom and hold to the thwart. I then cut the raising lashing of the boat, and the main sail on the gripes and the port-fall. The stern of the boat sunk in the water, when the crew jumped into the boat. The gripes jammed, and I had to cut them again. During this time the schooner settled so much that we unhooked the starboard tackle-fall of the boat and shoved off from the ship, which was sinking fast; she appeared to be going down bodily. The vessel afterwards listed to port. In getting clear with the boat we dropped to leeward and the ship also dropped to leeward The mainmast fell and the mainstopmast fell across the boat. We had a sea on in the scuttle-hole which we had to use as a lever in order to get her clear

THE NEW BRIDGE has been duly tested and fast driving over it is now the rule—walking the exception It may be that it is strong enough at present for any rate of travel, but to continue crossing it at full speed must in the end injure it, and as its cost is very little under $11,000 it might not be amiss to protect it from undue and foolish racing over it. About $20,000 has been spent in the two bridges in two or three years. This should be enough for twenty years at least.

THE OSBORNE SEWING MACHINES.—In addition to the honours already awarded the Osborne Sewing Machines, we have to chronicle two more, The Osborne Family Machine took the 1st prize at the Durham Central Exhibition, and also the 1st prize at the Kingston Fair, held this week. See their advertisement in another column.

CONCERT.—Blind Tom, the coloured musical genius, gave one of his entertainments in the Music Hall on Friday evening last before a good audience. The programme consisted of selections from the masters, interspersed with songs and plantation melodies. This wonderful musician produced three distinct airs at the same time, playing with one hand "Yankee Doodle," with the other, "Fisher's Hornpipe," and singing "Tramp, tramp". He also played the imitation of the bag-pipes, and the imitation of the Church organ playing 'Old Hundred' which was loudly enchored. The very remarkable part of the performance was his reading of words from Musical Notes, and after hearing him spelling the word correctly to the audience. He could also play any piece on the piano after hearing it played once. A few examples of his Phonitics spelling was given which would make Josh Billings blush. Tom's discription of the battle of Manassas was very fine and was loudly enchored.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Wednesday evening, 27th inst.

Present:—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs Hopkins, Beal, Dixon, Helm, Elliott, McDonald, Cahill and Patterson.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

The Mayor stated that he had called the present meeting in consequence of their being no quorum on Monday evening, and as the agent of the clock manufacturing company of Boston was present, and as he had learned from the Treasurer that all the money appropriated for streets and bridges was expended, and it was necessary to make further provisions for procuring funds.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From D. W. Dumble, stating that he had done some work on London street asking the Council to expend a small sum of money to gravel the same.—Referred to committee on sidewalks.

From John Dunlop, asking for a Gas Lamp to be erected on the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets.—Received.

From Lawrence Smith, asking leave to open a Butcher's stall on the corner of McDonell and Reid streets.—Referred to License Inspector with power to act.—Carried.

The Clerk read his certificate of the disapproval of the By-law submitted to the ratepayers on the 18th inst, providing for granting $6000 to Robert Romaine for making bricks.

From D. G. Hatton and R. A. Morrow, submitting a statement of the expenditure on McDonell Street, west, showing the total cost of $327.75; beside work to the amount of $22.25, given gratiously.—Received.

ACCOUNTS.

From J. Z. Rogers, for Boom Timber, $6.90.—Referred to the Joint Committee on Bridges; Peterborough Manufacturing Company, $2.75; William Langford, $2.50.—Ordered to be paid: H. Morgan, drawing engine to fire, $5.00.—Referred to Fire Committee.

GRADE OF RUBIDGE STREET.

Councillor Thornton said there was a difficulty as to the grading of Rubidge street and there might be a law suit.

Mr. Chambers being heard on motion said Mr. Dumble had altered the grade of this street, to the injury of his property and there was no necessity for doing so. He had called the attention of the street inspector to this.

Councillor Beal asked what authority Mr. Dumble had for doing this.

The matter was referred to the committee on sidewalks.

THE TOWN CLOCK.

Councillor Beal thought it would be well to appoint a committee with full power to act.

The Mayor stated that he had made enquiries as to the public clocks in the neighbouring towns and he believed that we could deal more advantageously with the company who had tendered than with a local clock maker.

Councillor Beal moved, seconded by Councillor Patterson that the Council considered it advisable to place a clock in the new Town Hall, and that the Mayor and Councillors Helm, Patterson, McDonald and Thornton be a committee to obtain a clock and superintend its being set up in the clock tower.—Carried.

GAS COMMITTEE REPORT.

Councillor Cahill read the report of the gas committee recommending the erection of gas lamps on London street, at the corners of Bethune and London Sts., on Simcoe street near Phelan's hotel, as the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets and two on London street, east of Water street.

The report was received and adopted.

Councillor Beal thought there was something wrong in the arrangement with the Gas Company, for on some nights when it was very dark the lamps were not lighted.

Councillor Helm asked if there was any contract signed.

The Mayor stated that by the by-law the Company had to accept a contract similar to that at Port Hope.

It was resolved to call the attention of the Gas Company to the lamps not being lit on some dark nights.

FIRE ENGINES.

Councillor Helm reported verbally that the tank and platform at the North end of the Town were completed and the old fire engine was repaired; it would soon be placed there and a shed would be put up for it unless the Council suggested otherwise.

The Mayor explained that there was some prospect of selling the old engine and they might buy a steam fire engine smaller than the present one in the spring.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

The appropriation for streets and bridges was increased by resolution by $500, and the Treasurer was authorized to borrow money for that purpose.

The Council adjourned for two weeks from next Monday.

BURGLARS.—Two burglars attempted to effect an entrance into the residence of Dr. S. B. Chandler, L. D. S., Newcastle about 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning last. They were heard when they first came to the place, and Mr. Chandler was waiting inside watching them as they went from window to window, ready to give them a few indigestible pills. It is supposed the rascals saw the host inside, and they started from that locality in a hurry. Mr. Chandler followed for some distance, and fired a few shots after the rascals, but did not succeed in bagging the game.—Newcastle Statesman.

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The Board met on Tuesday evening. Present—Messrs. Edwards, A. Smith, McClelland, Robertson, Johnston, J. M. Smith, Rutherford and Edmison.

In the absence of Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Edwards occupied the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary read a communication from Miss English tendering her resignation to take effect at the Christmas holidays. The resignation was accepted.

From Miss Bagsaley applying for a situation as teacher in the South Ward School. Referred to the Committee on appointments.

A letter from the Janitor asking that his salary be increased to $400 so as to enable him to get assistance as he had more to do than he could reasonably get done. Referred to the Committee on appointments.

Mr. Rutherford wanted to know if the Janitor was engaged to keep the firm furnished when required, and said that complaints had reached him that he had refused to do so, saying it was none of his business.

Accounts from Mr. Tanner were referred to the Finance Committee.

The chairman of the Finance Committee reported, recommending the payment of Mr. Stethem's account and of the Witness account $2, but as the account of Messrs. McKee & Davidson did not agree with the pass book it was delayed. The Report was adopted.

The Secretary submitted plans of Ward School Buildings received from Cobourg and also from Toronto.

Mr. McClelland reported verbally that the Committee appointed to report on sites for a north ward school had examined several sites but had not fully agreed on recommending any particular one as they had not full information as to prices, etc. He said they had looked at one belonging to Mr. Roddy on Smithtown's Hill and one known as the Powers lot, also at one belonging to the Wm Hall estate; all of which were considered good sites. And asked for instructions from the Board.

Mr. Rutherford thought all these sites were too far west as another ward school would have to be built for the western portion of the town, and he thought the site ought to be selected now so that the two buildings might not be too near each other.

Mr. J. M. Smith remarked that the Board ought to be careful least by increasing the number of schools with an accompanying increase of teachers and care takers they might over burden the rate payers with taxes. He thought that perhaps by changing the Auburn building across the river as there was to be a new bridge near Judge Dennistoun's, it might answer for that portion of the town for many years, as the distance would not be too great for children in that part of the town.

Mr. Edmison thought that it was not distance the Board had to consider, but accommodation. The present buildings would not accommodate all the children, and the consequence was, basements no better than cellars had to be used. A new building was required to obviate this, and he thought it should be north of Mr. J. F. Dennistoun's residence. He was opposed to the site on Smithtown hill as difficult of approach and because another building would have to be built in the west part of the town.

Mr. A. Smith also opposed the site on Smithtown hill as they could not be approached in winter for snow drifts. He thought the building should be further east and north.

On motion of Mr. Edmison, seconded by Mr. Rutherford—The Committee were instructed to select two sites, one for the north part of the town and one for the west part of the town.

The Principal reported the attendance, and also the papers of a monthly written examination of the pupils and results, the report shows the attendance to be

Total in Inst. & Schools	760	966

(a) During the month I examined most of the Divisions of the Public Schools and of the Institute, and found them in as good a condition as could reasonably be expected.

(b) In the Fourth Division of the Public Schools and in the First Form of the Institute, competitive written examinations have been held, and I take this opportunity of laying before you copies of the examination papers.

Respectfully yours,

J. BYRON DIXON, M.A.

November 2nd, 1875.

Mr. Edmison asked for information as to the number of pupils preparing for Senior Matriculation, and expressed himself in favor of the boys going up for Junior Matriculation.

Mr. McClelland thought some arrangements might be made for more room, as in Mr. Earl's room he saw there were only 14 pupils.

The Principal explained in reference to Junior and Senior Matriculation, and said the boys were taking the subjects for Junior also, and that only a portion of each Friday was occupied with Senior Matriculation subjects solely.

The subject of copy lines instead of the present copy books was referred to and left in the hands of the Principal.

The Board then adjourned.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are so compounded from concentrated principals, extracted from roots and herbs, as to combine in each small grause, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, as much cathartic power as is contained in any larger pills for sale in drug stores. They are not only pleasan to to take, but their operation is easy—unattended with any griping pain. They operate without producing any constitutional disturbance. Unlike any other cathartics, they do not render the bowels costive after operation, but, on the contrary, may establish a permanently healthy action. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. $500 Reward is offered by the proprietor to any one who will detect in these Pellets any calomel or other form of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug. They are sold by all druggists.

—ELECTRICITY—

THOMAS' ECLELSIOR OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

WHAT THEY SAY OF IT! A FEW FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.—There are but few preparations of medicines which have withstood the impartial judgement of the people for any great length of time. One of these is Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Read the following and be convinced:—Thos. Robinson, Farnham Centre, P. Q., writes, "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without relief, until I tried Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and since then have had no attack of it. I would recommend it to all.—J. H. Earl, Hotel Keeper, West Shefford, P.Q., writes, "I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for several years, and have tried different medicines with little or no benefit, until tried it Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which gave me immediate relief, and I would say that I have used it since with the best effect. No one should be without it. I have tried it on my horses in cases of cuts, wounds, &c., and think it is equally as good for horse as for man." A Maybee, Merchant, Warkworth, writes, "I have sold some hundred bottles of Eclectric Oil, and it is pronounced by the public, one of the best medicines they have ever used; it has done wonders in healing and relieving pain, sore throats, etc., and is worthy of the greatest confidence."—Joseph Rosan, Township Percy, writes, "I was persuaded to try Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lame knee which troubled me for three or four years, and I never found anything like it for curing lameness. It is a great public benefit."—A. W. Hamilton, Warkworth, writes, "For weeks I was troubled with a swelled ankle, which annoyed me very much. Mr. Maybee of this place induced me to try Eclectric Oil, and before one bottle was used I was cured It is a most remarkable medicine.

THE FIRST SNOW FALL.

The snow had begun in the gloaming,
And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With its silent work deep and white.

Every gable and fir, and hemlock,
Wore ermine too dear for an Earl,
And the poorest fairy on the elm tree
Was elegant task deep with pearl.

Fruit sheds now roofed with Carrara
Came chanticleer's merriest crow,
While rustic voices entranced to noon's dawn,
And still fluttered down the snow.

I stood and watched by the window
The noiseless work of the sky,
And the sudden flurry of snow birds
Like brown leaves whirling by.

I thought of a mother in town
Who'd a little boy gone,
How the flakes were falling in pearls
On the pillow, the button in the snow

For under our feet Death Medal,
Saying, "Father, who makest it snow?"
And I told of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snow fall,
And thought of the leaden sky
That arched over our first great sorrow,
When that merciful one stooped so nigh.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud like snow,
Flake by flake heeding and healing
The scar of our deep plunged woe.

And again to the child I whispered,
"The snow that hideth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall."

Then with eyes that saw not, I kissed her,
And she kissed me back, could not know
That my lips were given to her sister,
Patient Love under the deepening snow.

THE ROCHESTER RAILWAY TRAGEDY.

(From the Rochester Union.)

A terrible accident occurred on the Central Railroad in this city at the depot, about fifteen minutes past three o'clock this morning. By it two well known citizens, employees of the road, lost their lives. From reliable sources we gather the following particulars of the disaster:

About 11 o'clock last night a train of cars, thirty-five, drawn by locomotive 445, Wm. J Vianco, Engineer; Andrew Northrup, Fireman, son-in-law of Vianco; W. F. Sullivan, conductor; Dennis Sullivan and Joseph Dremel, brakesmen, left Buffalo on the Central Railroad for this city. It was due at three o'clock this morning. The train is what is called the "Return Emigrant" and the cars are loaded with perishable goods—ocean freight. The forward part of the train is generally made up of refrigerator cars and in this instance it was so. The car next to the locomotive was laden with whitefish. The schedule time for this train is fast. At Bogen it was announced at the Central office here as being half an hour behind time. On the road Dennis Sullivan was taken sick and was left at a time station. This left only the conductor and Dremel to handle the train.

When the train reached Coldwater the conductor discovered that the three rear cars had broken loose from the rest of the train. They were soon brought to a stand still, and the rest of the train shot ahead without a person upon it except the engineer and fireman. The orders are for all eastward bound freight trains to stop on the hill at King street, in the western part of city, and there await orders before descending the grade to the depot. They cannot leave that point until the order is received. An order was sent to the King street operator to hold the train for a minute or so. He tried to do so, but it sped by at the rate of thirty or forty miles an hour, there evidently being no effort to slack up. All were amazed. Between that point and John street crossing, signals were displayed for the train to stop. The engineer blew his whistle for brakes, but, alas! none were set.

The dispatcher at the Central office discovered that he could not let the freight train take its usual course, and run on the track north of the depot, for on the river bridge it would come in collision with the express train approaching from the east. The King street operator had informed them that the train had not stopped, and the only recourse was to let the train pass through the depot on the south track. Signals were displayed and messengers dispatched to change the switch for that purpose. The John street switch had been changed, and all the rest up to the one near Flint's saw factory at the State street crossing. The train came thundering along with no signs of slackening of speed. The locomotive left the track at the switch above indicated and was forced over ties, cross bars and planks to the depot. It was far enough from the rail on the north side to bring the poderous machine in contact with the stone pillar of the first entrance door of the depot.

The crash was tremendous. The pillar was crushed, the arch fell and the brickwork of the larger arch still further south. The front of the locomotive took a course to the right, almost at right angles with the track, and struck the south brick wall of the depot a few inches east of the west door of the gentlemen's sitting room. It turned partly on its side, and tore the wall eastward for a distance of twenty-five feet. The tender was thrown across the second track in a northerly direction. The first freight car was forced into the door of the gentlemen's sitting room; the second one mounted the tender. The following cars were brought up with a crash, the bumpers and trucks broken, and the cars themselves thrown from the track and out of line. The wreck was general.

As soon as possible they commenced search for the engineer and fireman. Policeman Keith got some jacks and raised the end of the freight car to the door, and the dead body of Engineer Vianco was taken up. A car wheel was across his arm, holding him as if he were in a vice. He was not mangled at all. Between five and six o'clock the debris was removed sufficiently and the fireman was discovered standing with his back against the boiler. The throttle valve stem had been forced through his back into the cavity of the abdomen, and the hot steam had forced itself into his body. His left leg was forced upward into the abdomen and chest, displacing the intestines. The brakesman was missing and search was commenced for his body. In due course of time he came into the depot, having just arrived from the place where he had been left with the cars which had broken loose.

AGRICULTURAL LIFE.

Farmers' Families.

One would suppose from much that is written, that farmers' families were to be pitied above all others. Is this so? Is the lot of the farmer's wife necessarily lonesome and dreary? Are farmer's children more abused than other children? I can not see that such is the case. With a good husband and children, I would rather take the risk of farm life in any comfortable part of the country, than to undertake any other kind of life I have had a chance to try or observe. No position is exempt from troubles and temptations, but for a family of little children, a farm seems to me the safest place. And yet everything depends upon circumstances, and if the children take no interest in farm or country objects, and if parents take less interest in the children's daily happiness and growth than money-making, the case is a hard one for all concerned. I have lived in city, village and country, and nothing suits me so well as the farm. In this the whole family are all agreed. At present agricultural papers and catalogues are voted among the most interesting of literature, and there is a never-failing interest in the growth of everything upon the place. I shall not tell what small business our present farming is; it is all that we can manage just now, and looks likely to increase with the passing years.

Farmers' wives are not necessarily over-worked more severely than other housekeepers. This depends upon the kind of work done on the farm, and the facilities for doing it. In fact, it depends mainly upon the husband. By proper consideration he can generally save his wife from undue labor—at least he can do so as well as other men, for I think that is almost impossible for husbands in average circumstances, at the present stage of civilization, to give the mothers of their children as easy and pleasant houses as all mothers ought to have, for the sake of the human race; this, however, is a matter of public concern quite as much as of private duty, and it is a business in which society and the individual must co-operate.

If the farmer has children, he must remember that their proper care is the most important business of their parents, and it is a great folly or gross wickedness, for him to carry on work that is injurious to them, work that keeps himself and his wife constantly anxious and hurried. If he slaves himself and wife, and children too, as they grow old enough to be yoked to his business, for the sake of having plenty of money for his children to spend in coming years, he is a very foolish man; but if he is simply bound to get rich, and does not care how much it hurts his wife and children, he is a very wicked man. If the children are not well brought up, they will only squander the money so hardly earned.

Child life on the farm may have a wider range of wholesome experiences than child life in almost any other situation. Stock kindly cared for and petted, trees thoughtfully planted and tended, fruit well selected and cultivated, vegetables raised with a purpose and with a thought about their habits and uses, flowers lovingly gathered and sown—all these are wholesome in their influence upon the youthful mind, and furnish a kindergarten of the best kind. Farmers' children who are not overworked, and whose book education may seem to be neglected, often make excellent scholars when they go to school or college, and go with robust health gained from their early training on the farm.

It farmers' families have the good sense to dress with simplicity, and choose plain articles of furniture that are not too good for daily use and comfort—if they know enough to live on plain substantial food, with home-raised fruit served plainly but plentifully, instead of cake and pie, if among the necessaries of life they reckon good books and papers, they need not be so badly over-worked as they often seem, nor lead such lean poor lives intellectually. As for the social isolation, this is sometimes to be deplored, but it makes all the difference in the world whether it is a loving, happy, improving kind of family set by itself upon the farm, or a selfish, growling, ignorant set of people. The quiet of the farm is one of its chief attractions for me. There are few farms so isolated that our friends cannot find us there, and they who show themselves friendly will have friends.

COMMON SENSE OF VENTILATION.

'The best practical statement I have met about ventilation,' says Colonel Waring in the last Atlantic, 'was contained in the remark of a mining engineer in Pennsylvania: 'Air is like a rope; you can pull it better than you can push it.' All mechanical appliances for pushing air into a room or a house are disappointing. What we need to do is to pull out the vitiated air already in the room; the fresh supply will take care of itself if means for its admission are provided. It has been usual to withdraw the air through opening near the ceiling, that is, to carry off the warmer and therefore lighter portions, leaving the colder strata at the bottom of the room, with their gradual accumulation of cooled carbonic acid undisturbed. Much the better plan would be to draw this lower air out from a point near the floor, allowing the upper and warmer portions to descend and take its place. An open fire, with a large chimney throat, is the best ventilator for any room; the one half or two thirds of the heat carried up the chimney is the price paid for immunity from disease; and large though this seems from its daily draft on the wood pile or coal bin, it is trifling when compared with doctors' bills and the loss of strength and efficiency that invariably result from living in unventilated abastments.

NATURE IN CARPETS.

What we desire in a carpet is something that shall be to our parlor what a well-kept lawn is to our grounds, something so complete in itself, so in harmony with its surroundings, that we shall scarcely notice it, though always agreeably conscious of its presence. For such a carpet we would choose but one color in two or more shades, and no set figure save an arabesqued border, if the room is large enough to admit it. The delicate tracery of wood and sea-mosses forms the most pleasing of designs, and may be of any color that will harmonize with the walls and furniture of the rooms. Especially beautiful are the shaded crimsons of the sea-mosses found on rocy tropical coasts; the many-flecked browns and grays of those found on the Atlantic shores; the softly blending drabs of the so-called white mosses which edge the weather stained rocks in New England sheep pastures; and the rich, dark and light green of the dewy mosses which fringe mountain banks, or carpet the cool damp recesses of oak or maple groves. If more distinctness of figure is desired, let us go no further than the pattern furnished us by the carpet of the pine woods, where the creeping feathery prince's pine mingles with the small, dark, glossy leaves of the wintergreen and the checkerberry, and the lighter green plumes of low-growing delicate ferns. This sort of carpet will give us something to look at, it we choose, without obtruding upon any of us those startling colors which (as the keen French phrase has it) 'swear at each other' in so many parlors around us.

The night watchman connected with the Mason Manufacturing Co., Newcastle, last week was picking apples from a tree, for winter use, and falling to the ground received such severe injuries that death soon ensued shortly after.—Ib

PURE TEA TONIC FREE FROM ALCOHOL

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

CURATIVE PROPERTIES proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANEY & SONS'

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP, ON AYLMER STREET, PETERBORO',

(Near Mr. Towle's Factory.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and containing neither cylinder or any description of beater-drag, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them (I assume to make, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. Observing feeds judiciously will often find that a dose of these Pills makes them feel decidedly better, from their influence upon the digestive and assimilating organs.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Family Physic.

Perhaps no one [illegible] is more generally required in every household than a cathartic medicine. [illegible] all classes for the mild but efficient purgative Pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have once used them, and learned their virtues, know that they may be relied upon for the cure of all the derangements of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other internal organs of the body, which require a cathartic medicine. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take, and are harmless in any condition of the system. All seek relief sometimes from the suffering caused by constipation or costiveness, which is the first stage of disease, and many from the absolute necessity of an occasional cathartic to relieve the system of impurities. For children, the mild but efficient Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best physic that can be used. They are sugar-coated, so that no child will refuse to take them, and they are the safest purgative for infants known. They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Select Poetry.

We commend a perusal of the following sarcasm to those rowdies who congregate around street corners and make remarks on the lady passers:—

He was standing on the corner,
In the place where loafers meet,
And he watched the dressy damsels
As they waded o'er the street.
From his mouth came lunacies,
And his eyes were opened wide,
As on tip-toe they came dancing
O'er the rainbly, dampy tide.
When a lady and her daughter,
Stepping carefully along,
Closely veiled from rabid inspection,
Heard his slimy, vanished tongue.
Then the little wife was filled,
And with shame his head he hung,
For his mother and his sister
Thus had struck the spunker dumb.

THE ETERNITY OF PUNISHMENT, OR THE FINAL RESTORATION.

About two weeks ago, we published what purported to be a sermon of the Rev. D. J. McDonnell of Toronto, which favored the doctrine of Universal Salvation, through a kind of purgatorial efficacy in the hereafter, which would effect what was found wanting when men left this present state. We then intimated that the Presbytery would be compelled to deal with the new fangled doctrine promptly. A special meeting of the Presbytery of Toronto was called on Thursday last, and the matter discussed, but with great leniency to Mr. McDonnell. He explained his position before the Presbytery, and as we published the sermon, it is only fair to publish his own defense and version of the discourse, which we give below.

REV. MR. MACDONNELL

Then addressed the Presbytery. He said:—I need hardly say that the matter which brings us here to-day has caused me much and anxious thought. I wish to say at the outset that, whatever the result of your deliberations may be, I have no fear that these deliberations will be carried on in any other than a spirit of brotherly kindness. I shall be the last to raise the cry of unreasonable interference—the readiest to admit that the claims of truth are vastly more important than any personal considerations. I have to desire to deviate needlessly from the current teachings of the Church. Nor do I wish to have any deviation exaggerated or intensified. I feel it to be necessary to guard against being drawn by the sympathy of those who approve of my utterances, or driven by the opposition of those who denounce them, to take a position which I otherwise would not have taken. Moreover, while willing to stand or fall by my real opinions, I do not wish to be held responsible for more than I have honestly advanced. I trust that I can honestly say that I am willing to be guided by "the Spirit of truth," who has promised to guide us into all the truth: and, further, that I am ready to listen to the counsels of truth-loving men who are older and wiser than myself. While the report which appeared in The Witness and The Mail is, in the main, correct, it is only fair to myself to state that there are some omissions and some alterations (unintentional, no doubt,) the general effect of which is to lead to the supposition that I declared my acceptance of the doctrine of the final restoration of all, and denied the eternity of future punishment, whereas I simply stated the difficulty I had in arriving at any conclusion, inasmuch as the teaching of Scripture appeared to be conflicting. It is difficult to make verbal corrections inasmuch as the latter portion of the discourse was not written. On two or three points I can speak with certainty, though one who speaks rapidly and extemporaneously, must always be ready to admit that he may not have said precisely what he intended to say. E g., one of the strongest statements I made was after quoting Matthew 25 46 to the effect that I could hardly see how this passage could be reconciled with any view limiting the eternity of punishment—that these words of Jesus seemed to me the strongest in the Bible on that subject. Again in the sentence, "Who could read these words * * * without thinking that by-and-by the time will come (as the Scriptures plainly teach there will be such a time) when all things shall be put under Jesus Christ," &c., the parenthetical clause ought to read thus: "As the Scriptures seem plainly to teach." Again, in referring to the confession of Faith, I used the following words, which do not appear in the report: "I do not say that the teaching of the Confession of Faith on the subject is unscriptural. I do not think that the following sentence in the report represents at all fairly the spirit of what was actually said. "I think the Christian Church, instead of putting into its Confessions of Faith that there is to be eternal punishment for the majority of the human race, would be wiser to sit down in a devout posture and study Romans, Ephesians and Colossians." If I did use such language I regret it; and I may add that these are a few other expressions—especially one regarding my relation to the confession of Faith—which I acknowledge to have been unwise and improper, and which, but for the excitement of the moment, would have been uttered, if at all, in a different tone. I have the greatest confidence in making the above corrections and explanations, inasmuch as several persons who heard the sermon, and who did not all sympathise with my difficulties, have volunteered statements which confirm my own recollection. Of this I am quite sure, that again and again I was careful to guard myself against the positive assertion of the universality of salvation. While I do not complain to be misreported to any great extent, I do regret that the sermon was reported at all. I am in no sense responsible for its publication either in The Witness or in The Mail. It is one thing to speak out of the fulness of the heart to one's own people who hear other portions of one's teaching and can view the questionable in the light of the unquestionable, and quite another thing to send one detached sermon, and that on a difficult subject, broadcast over the land. I was not in any way consulted as to the publication of the sermon, and it is only fair to myself to state that had I had any intention of publishing it, it would have appeared in a different shape. There are expressions made use of which I do not like, and which I would not have preserved. Sermons prepared at the feverish rate of two per week are not usually fit for publication. Of course, while disowning all responsibility for the publishing of the sermon, I freely admit that the Presbytery has a perfect right to deal with me for preaching it—nay, may even be under obligation to do so. It may not be amiss to state the circumstances under which the lecture was delivered. I did not go out of my way to seek a passage on which to preach the view set forth. I had been engaged for some Sundays in expounding the Epistle to the Romans. This passage in the 5th chapter should have formed the subject of discourse, on the 29th of August, but I have found so great difficulty in giving a satisfactory interpretation, that, after spending a good deal of time in reading, &c., I gave up the subject and fell back upon another which was less difficult. On 26th September, after an interval of an absence from home, I preached the discourse now under consideration, having made the best preparation I was able in the time to make. I need not enter into the difficulties which the passage presented to my mind, further than to say that it was not merely the use of the expression "all" and "the many" in parallel clauses that impressed me, but the triumphant tone of the statements concerning the abounding of grace over sin. I was led to put together and to weigh against each other two sets of passages in scripture—the one set appearing to reach the eternity of punishment, and the other appearing to teach that there would come a time when alienation from God and rebellion against Him should cease, when all things should be reconciled, when God should be all in all, and when consequently punishment should come at an end. I did not deny the eternity of punishment, but expressed doubts as to its eternity—doubts based partly on grounds of reason, and partly on Scripture. I did not say that the teaching of the Confession of Faith was unscriptural on this point, but that there were passages of Scripture which I found it hard to reconcile with the statements of the Confession, and to which sufficient weight had not, in my judgement, been allowed. I expressed the wish that the doctrine of the final salvation of all might be true—quoting the words of Tennyson—and I indicated that the passage quoted from the writings of St. Paul appeared to favor that doctrine. At the same time I urged just as strongly the force of the expressions in which, apparently, the eternity of punishment is set forth. The general conclusion which I drew, therefore, was that the teaching of Scripture was not clear and decisive on this point, and that it was one on which further study and investigation might throw light.

I feel disposed to ask members of the Presbytery what I should have done under these circumstances. Here was a difficult passage—one of acknowledged difficulty—which met in the regular course of exposition. What was I to do with it? Pass it over? or give a superficial explanation that left the difficulty exactly where it was, or make the best I could of it after honest and prayerful study? The last course was the one I adopted, and one which still commends itself to my sense of right. It may be said that it was not right to speak on such an important matter in a way opposed to the general teaching of the Church, when my own mind was in a state of uncertainty and perplexity. That view would carry more weight with me if I held that a minister is at liberty to say nothing from the pulpit except that on which no doubt can possibly be entertained. I have been accustomed, however, to hold that I was doing my people real service in leading them to think for themselves, and it has been my habit to state difficulties frankly, often without even attempting to solve them. Moreover, I found that some of the best of modern commentators, such as Tholuck, Lange and Olshausen, who have noble service to the cause of Bible truth and who are looked upon as safe guides in the interpretation of Scripture, favor with more or less distrust the view of restoration. One does not feel that, in such company he can be so very far astray. I urge this point, not to establish the correctness of the view; but simply to show that in following men who are the leaders of evangelical thought in Germany, one does not necessarily exhibit any lack of modesty. To the names already quoted may be added that of Baldwin Brown, one of the best preachers and writers among Englsh Nonconformists, these names are of consequence as indicating that men who stand high in the evangelical world are upholders of the view suggested. It is less and less the case that the Christian people receive with assent all that is taught from the pulpit. are accustomed to weigh and discuss every opinion advanced. There is all the more reason, therefore, why a minister should take them into his confidence. At the same time I have been almost forced, by the opinions of many whose judgment is better than mine, to the conclusion that it was unwise to speak as I did on this subject when my own mind was in a state of perplexity. At the best there is little ground in Scripture for the hope, and I feel more and more the force of the argument that we ought not to try to make the matter clearer than God has chosen to make it in His Word. But it may be said, is not the teaching of Confession of Faith explicit enough? and is not that the standard by which the preaching of a Presbyterian minister is to be tested? Inasmuch as sentiments of dishonesty have been made against me in various quarters on account of real or supposed deviations from the Confession of Faith, I can not sorry to have the opportunity of stating before this Presbytery what I think about my own relation and that of other ministers to this document. I think most men will admit that, were we now for the first time forming a Confession which was to be the test of office in the Church, the result would be a document containing fewer propositions than the Westminster Confession, and leaving more room for difference of opinion. The tendency of Christian thought now a days is to regard fewer and fewer articles as essential, and so to make it possible to embrace within one Church a larger body of believing men. Most men will likewise admit that the Church has the right to revise and amend her Confession from time to time. It might have been better for the Presbyterian Church had there been a periodical revision, and certainly of the Confession. One may be ready to assent to all that the Confession contains, and yet may not accept all its propositions as matter of faith necessary to be believed in order to the holding of office in the Church. Reverence for the Westminster Confession on account of its antiquity as well as on account of its undoubted excellence has stood and does stand in the way of any attempt at revision. Besides, it is felt that it would be a pity for any one section of the Presbyterian Church to act alone in this matter. It it is difficulty for a church to move in the direction of change still more difficult it is for an individual. The only plan then left open to him is to qualify the terms of assent to the confession. This is what I did. The words of the question put to candidates for ordination in the P. C. of Canada, Church of Scotland, at the time of my induction, appeared to me so stringent that I declined to answer without qualification in the affirmative. The Presbytery, after full deliberation, accepted the qualified answer. The year following the question was altered, and the terms of adherence were made much more to the satisfaction of a large number of those concerned. I mention these facts by way of answering the charge of dishonesty which has been hastily put forward. I have been at pains not only to be but also to appear honest in my subscription to the confession. I do not understand, however, that other men have not precisely the same freedom I have. The very use of the term "subordinate" in the basis of union indicates that there is an appeal to a higher standard, which is supreme and final. What is the meaning of calling the Scriptures 'the only infallible rule, &c., if one is not at liberty to appeal to them. The Confession of Faith moreover, itself sanctions the appeal. At chapter, section 10, it says:—"Supreme Judge by which all controversies of religion are to be determined, and all decrees of Councils, opinions of ancient writers, doctrines of men and private spirits are to be examined, and in whose sentence we are to rest can be no other but the Holy Spirit speaking in the Scripture.' At chapter 31, section 4, it is said, 'All Synods or Councils since the Apostles' time may err and many have erred; they are not, therefore to be made the rule of faith or practice, but to be used as a help in both.'

In what sense, then, are we bound by the confession? Not, surely, in the sense that we are tied down to every proposition that it contains; but that we accept in its grand features the system of doctrine therein set forth. Every deviation must be judged on its own merits. The Church must decide in each case whether the error is foundational or not. It is a shallow view which is sometimes presented, that if you are not satisfied with a particular Church or 'denomination,' you are free to walk out and join another. This is not the view of the Church given in the New Testament. Nor is the view by the Confession of Faith. The Presbyterian Church is not an organization for the maintenance of the Westminster Confession; but an organization for the worship of God and for the spread of the truth. It has no right to make the terms of admission to the ministerial office narrower than Christ has made them. To define the limits within which tolerance should be exercised is almost an impossibility, and the matter must be left to the discernment of the Church courts. When I was inducted I promised to subrait in the spirit of meekness to the admonitions of the brethern of the Presbytery, and to be subject to them. This promise I am willing to fulfil to you, their successors. I leave the matter in your hands. I have no desire to disturb the peace of the Church. I have no desire to propagate error. I do desire freedom to investigate the truth. That freedom I seek for my brethern as well as myself. I seek it in the real interests of the Presbyterian Church—in the interest of the cause of Christ.

After some discussion as to further action, and the introduction of a resolution by Rev. Mr. Mitchell to the effect that the matter be now dropped, which was lost on being put to the vote the following gentlemen were appointed as a committee to fully investigate the charge against Mr. Macdonald, and report to the Presbytery: Prof. McLaren, Prof. Gregg, Prof Daven, Rev J M King, Rev J Garden Lobb, Rev Mr. Carmichael, Rev Mr. Dick, Rev Mr Rankin, Rev Mr Brookeridge, Rev Mr Smith and Rev Dr Topp.

The meeting was then adjourned till half-past seven in the evening, so as to enable the committee to deliberate and report.

In the evening, the room was crowded to the door, and shortly after eight o'clock the committee entered the room. The report of the committee was read by Prof. McLaren. Mr. Macdonnell had submitted a statement to the committee to the effect. 1. While admitting the correctness of the report of the sermon, there were some omissions and some alterations, the general effect of which was to lead to the supposition that he had declared his acceptance of the doctrine of the final restoration of all, and denied the eternity of future punishment. Whereas he had simply stated the difficulty he had in arriving at any conclusion. 2. That he felt it was unwise to speak in any way not in harmony with the Confession of Faith on this particular subject, when his own mind was in a state of perplexity, and expressed his regret for doing so. 3. He engaged, while seeking further light on this subject, not to contraven the teachings of the Confession of Faith on this point in his public ministry, and expressed his willingness to state his views on this matter to the Presbytery when called upon.

The Presbytery deemed the above admissions sufficient, and the meeting was dissolved.

The Whitby Gazette says:—It becomes our unpleasant duty this week to record the death of Mr Henry Balser, of Brooklin, who took his own life while in a state of temporary insanity by drowning himself in Cook's pond. Mr Balser had been unwell for some days and had retired to bed early as usual. About half past eleven his wife missed him, and the alarm was at once raised, being joined that he would be sorry with himself. A large number of the inhabitants turned out in search, and about six o'clock the next morning the body was discovered by his brother, Mr James Balser in Cook's pond in seven feet of water. On taking out the body a leather strap with a buckle attached was found round his neck.

The SELF-MADE MEN of our TIME

WILLIAM CLUXTON. PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA.

(From the Chimney Corner, Oct. 23rd, 1875.)

The subject of this biography was born, of most respectable parents, in Dundalk, County Louth, Ireland, 31st March, 1819. When but six years of age he lost his father, and when only twelve, was deprived of his mother also. On the removal of this last loving prop, who had cared assiduously for his education, the family were scattered among relatives, and he went to reside with a kind aunt and uncle who were in business in Coote hill, in the County Cavan, and who, not long after his arrival, induced him to emigrate with them to Canada.

Once on this side of the Atlantic, he soon found himself located with his good friends on a farm three miles from the then small village of Peterborough, but now one of the most flourishing towns in Ontario. Here it did not take him long to discover that he was never intended for a farmer. Therefore, with the consent of his relatives—long deceased, and of whom he still speaks with the utmost affection—young as he was, and without a single cent in the world, he sought and obtained a very humble situation in the employment of the late John

DISREPUTABLE TACTICS, INDEED.

The Leader and Mail having been encompassing sea and land to secure the Catholic vote for the Conservative party in the late election, and to this end have been unscrupulous in their efforts. Both the Leader and Mail put them on the track one day and try to coerce the next, but the Leader never omits an opportunity to abuse them and to spread their ultramontanism, their fanaticism and religious bigotry and went almost the length of advising a resort to bludgeons and stones to prevent their pilgrimages in Toronto. The Conservatives, however, wanted the Catholic vote of Toronto to elect John Beverley Robinson, and fearing Mr. Turner would get it, the Leader treats the public to the following miserable appeal to influence protestants if it could not get Catholics to support the dregs of the old family compacts :

"We regret to learn that the delay which has taken place in burying the remains of Guibord is due to political wire-pulling. Through the Rouge influence in the Institute Canadien, that body so far yielded to the representations of emissaries of the Ottawa Government as to consent to defer the carrying out of the Ottawa Government as to consent to defer the carrying out of the Decree of the Privy Council until after certain important elections had come off. The object of this manœuvre is manifest. A fresh outbreak of Ultramontane fanaticism would have an adverse influence upon the Government candidate in such constituencies as west Toronto. In Montreal, the Rouges are in antagonism to the priests in the matter of Guibord's burial, but in Toronto, the "Liberals" are hand and glove with the Irish Roman Catholics. In order, therefore, to hoodwink the electors in West Toronto, and withdraw from their view, until after they have recorded their votes, the aggressive character of that religious element which, if it has its own way would bind Canada to Rome as effectually as the Pope has been seeking to bind Spain, by insisting upon giving effect to the Concordat. It must not be forgotten, that Dr. Lynch, the leading representative of that religious body which is said to be about to vote en masse for the Grit candidate, has fully and publicly endorsed the position taken by the Roman Catholics in Montreal so that, whether French or Irish, the adherents of that denomination are united in their design of furthering the interests of the Church irrespective of civil liberty or political principle."

So long as the Conservative press continues to arouse the worst feeling of human nature, religious bigotry and hatred, for the purpose of securing a temporary triumph for the party, can we wonder that Toronto and Montreal are the scenes of riots, disregard of Law and open defiance to Her Majesty's decision ?

The desperation of Conservatism is faintly portrayed in the means they are using, and the fanaticism they are manifesting. They, (the Leader party,) have had the Catholic vote for about twenty years without almost a single exception. They were willing, yea are willing to use it still when they can get it, but no sooner do Catholics put forth a claim to Conservative consideration, or for fair dealing than th t same Leader cry s them down, and talks about the aggressive character of that religious element which, if it had its own way, would bind Canada to Rome as effectually as the Pope has been seeking to bind Spain by the concordat ; and then follows an appeal to Protestantism by referring to the Bishops and Clergy. If the Leader would be consistent it would reject a vote, that it sets forth as "united in its designs of furthering the interests of the Church, irrespective of Civil Liberty or political principle." Does it not see that if that vote should be cast for the Conservatives that from its own showing the object is the same ? Can the Leader be now honest in its appeals to protestantism against Catholic influence, when for years it supported designs of the hierarchy in Lower Canada, and did all in its power to grant their requests, yes, even their demands. It is true, the Leader is now in its dotage and in consequence reasonable allowance must be made for its silly appeals to bigotry and its advocacy of intolerance ; but can Protestants accept the dictation of a paper worn out in advocating the submission of Ontario to the ultramontanism of Quebec ? or will Catholics support a party that makes the most frantic appeals against them whenever it would seem to suit Conservative purposes ?

Even in Peterborough the same disreputable tactics were resorted to. In Enniskmore Dr. O'Sullivan and Timothy Cavanagh were appealing to Catholics against Mr. Cox because he was an Orangeman, on the very evening that John Carnegie was appealing to Protestants in South Monaghan to support Mr. Scott against Catholic Fraser. It may be true that those appeals as in South Monaghan by Mr. Carnegie are only made to men so full of whiskey that they cannot reason, and are, hence, more under the influence of bigotry and religious hatred, but this goes farther to show the foolishness of the attempt to lead men to the polls blinded by intolerance intensified by generous drafts of Canadian 'angle leg.' How long will the better class of politicians resort to such means to stir up the hidden evils of benotted human nature, to assist themselves into power ? And how long will men be considered respectable while hoarding on the opposing religious elements of our people to open hostility and almost to bloodshed ?

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting of this Society was held on Monday evening, in the Council Chamber. There was a fair attendance of the members present. In the absence of the President Mr. Moir, Mr. John Elder, 1st Vice President, took the chair.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

The Treasurer submitted a statement of accounts showing a balance on hand of $146.67. Messrs Chas. Henderson and H. Hall were named to audit the accounts which they did and reported correct.

The following officers were then chosen :

John Elder President ; D. D. Gallestly, 1st Vice-President ; H. Hall, 2nd Vice President ; Chas. Henderson, 3rd Vice-President ; Chas. Paisley, Secretary ; J. R. Ormond, Treasurer.

The following were named an executive committee : Messrs Cummings, A. Bertram, Bathgate, J. Armour, S. Cameron, J. Millar, R. Elder, J. Hope, J. Robinson, D. Cameron, Wm. Mercer, J. Mercer, J. Erskine and Dr. Taylor.

On Motion of Mr. Cummings the thanks of the Society were tendered to Mr. Moir, the retiring President, for the efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of the office.

Mr. J. Millar was appointed to solicit members subscription.

A grant of $20 was voted to the Protestant House.

It was agreed that St. Andrew's Day this year be celebrated by having an oyster supper.

The President and Vice President were instructed to wait on Rev. K. Macklennan and request him to preach the annual Sermon, and in the event of Mr. Macklennan not being able to do so, to make such arrangements as they see best.

The Society during the year received members fees, $92.00 ; balance from last year, $271.62 ; Interest from last year, $9.40 ; Total, $372.92 ; Board out during year, $226.25 ; Balance on hand, $146.67.

Twenty-two persons have been relieved during the year to the amount of $138.25. Twenty dollars were given to the House, and $88 of expenses were incurred.

As this is likely to be a year not most favourable to the general needy, we have been requested to remind generous hearted Scotchmen to come forward freely with their subscription, and enable the Socivty to meet any pressing necessity. The Society appears to be in a favorable position to do good, and as the good is intended for sons of auld Scotia in want, the Society should be provided with siller to that end.

CANADIAN INDEBTEDNESS

From figures furnished to the English capitalists, by Mr. Cartwright, we learn on authoritative statements that our debt is now £24,000,000 sterling, or $120,000,000.

In 1867, at time of Confederation, the debt was fixed at $65,000,000. It would therefore appear that under the government of John A. Macdonald our national debt increased $55,000,000, or nearly doubled in six years. When it is taken into consideration that no public work of importance was undertaken, nor canals, only the Intercolonial railway, is it not a matter for congratulation that that statesman was forced to resign before undertaking the Pacific Railway.

The Intercolonial Railway was estimated to cost $15,000,000, but will cost little less than twice that sum. In the same way Sir John's estimate of the Pacific Railway was $100,000,000, but on the same method of arriving at results would have been $200,000,000, and if he had retained power for six years longer our debt would have been not less than $3000,000,000, or about $80 per head of the population.

If it requires 35 per cent of protection now to enable the government to meet liabilities, what would it require when our debt becomes threefold what it now is ?

The Conservative press is now crying protection, but let all wait a few years till Sir John's schemes are completed and they will have protection without making a party question of it.

The most effectual means were adopted during the last twenty years to compel whatever government should control our affairs to put on protective duties on every article of importation.

THE LASH.

The Grand Jury at the York Assizes on their presentment recommended the use of the lash on those convicted of personal assaults and the passing of a law prohibiting the advertisements of abortionists. They also state that :—"As a large portion of the crimes which have been brought before us have been committed when the criminal was in a state of intoxication, we would strongly suggest that representations be made to the Dominion and Provincial Legislatures to try to mitigate so great an evil, and it seems to us that the restricting of Licenses for intoxicating liquors to such inns and hotels as are necessary for the convenience of travelers would have a most beneficial effect."

Grand Juries, Judges and other administrators of the law in this as well as every other civilized county have been bringing the evils of the liquor traffic before the Legislators and people for many years ; and yet it appears that they would prefer punishing crime to preventing it by removing the source of nine tenths of it. And it is to be feared that this state of things will continue so long as the guardians of morality connive at the use and abuse of this demoralizing traffic. Let any man take a walk along Hunter Street in this Town, and after counting the places licensed to sell intoxicating liquors, ask himself, how many of them are for the accommodation of travellers, and how many to sow the seeds of damnation. And yet not once in three months is a word heard against it, in the majority of our religious meetings.

GUELPH—A colored man named White was sentenced at Guelph to be hanged on the 23rd of December for the murder of his wife.

MILLAR, tried at Toronto, for the murder of a Mr. and Mrs. Nash through setting fire to his store, has been found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to 14 years in the Provincial Penitentiary.

"COUNTING NOSES."

The Mail and other Conservative papers have been congratulating themselves on the strength of parties in the House when it came in a month ago, and their attempts to show that Reform still is :

Ministerial	45
Opposition	35
Independent	2

with some vacant seats when they made their reckoning.

The better informed papers such as the Free Press, give the figures

Ministerial	32
Opposition	36

Majority for Government... 16

This will be found under the mark on all test questions, and is abundantly sufficient for all purposes. Messrs. Cameron, McDougall and Lauder will not be able to work together more than one session, and hence instead of being fearful for the future, we predict the Government majority increased.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

About the late election, the Mail has the following:—

"In the Catholic Churches in Campbellford, Warkworth, and Trenton, the priests, on Sunday last, publicly advised their parishioners to vote for the Grit candidate."

Suppose they did, the same thing was done in East Peterborough to vote for the conservative candidate. Surely the Mail won't complain in reference to East Northumberland of the same thing which was done in East Peterborough in the conservative interest. But what is right for the Roman Catholic clergy to do for conservatives, is wrong in conservative eyes when done in favor of reformers. It was right for P. M. Grover to go to mass to secure Catholic votes, and for John Carnegie to go to the residences of Roman Catholic clergymen to solicit the vote en masse; but what a howl they raise when a few honest minded Catholics vote for a reformer—and what abuse follows ! Catholics would do well to take notes of those things.

Thousands of people have been thus thrown out of employment Several persons were drowned and terrible scenes are reported from various parts of Yorkshire.

A novel case of Bankruptcy is reported that of Sir Simeon Stuart ; his entire assets amount to about £4.

The duties collected for intoxicating liquors, statistics for the year ending March 21st, were :England £29,338,937, Scotland, £5,220,32 ; Ireland, £5,098,342, or nearly £40,000,000, more it is said than the entire cost of bread in those places.

LEGISLATURE OF ONTARIO.—The House will meet it is said on the 24th inst.

TRUE WITNESS.—The Rev. Father Murphy, is Editor of the "True Witness," succeeding the late Mr. Clarke.

MONTREAL.—The petition against the return of Mr. Devlin, was dismissed and the Court of Review has confirmed the decision.

HURON & QUEBEC RAILWAY.—The County Council met here yesterday to pass the County By-law granting $150,000 to the above road, through its third reading.

THE Municipal Elections after January 1st, 1876, will be by ballot. Municipal Electors would do well to remember this and understand how to mark them without spoiling them.

NORTH WENTWORTH.—Dr. McMahon, a Reformer, turned a Conservative majority of 23 for Mr. Stock into 136 for himself. Where is the Conservative reform ?

BURGLARIES are becoming very common in every part of the country. Tramps from the land of liberty are taking liberties with Canadian Merchants which may end in placing some of them in safe keeping for a while.

A SWINDLING SCHEME.—In the Western portion of Ontario a set of swindlers go about wherever a stray horse or animal is advertised, and after claiming it sell it, saying it is too far to take it home ; after selling the scoundrels decamp.

MR. FOWLER has succeeded in obtaining the names of a majority of the Reeves and Deputy-Reeves of Victoria County to meet and pass through a second reading a By-law to grant $300,000 to the road. The by-law is a grouping one and includes only the Southern Townships of the County.

Cramahe do	...	113

Majority for Ferris, 125.

FREEMASONRY.—Mr. Thomas White attributes his defeat to his being a Freemason, and the feeling, created by the Roman Catholic Church against it prevented French Catholics voting for him. This is hardly correct. He has been the champion of the Catholic Church for some time up as to secure that influence to elect him. but the electors measured the motive and the man and preferred another. His slanders, not his Freemasonry, defeated him.

SUICIDE AT NAPANEE.—Mr. J. Marsh, agent of the Bank of British North America, Napanee, committed suicide, by shooting himself. About 9 o'clock in the morning his servant, on opening the door of his room, observed him in bed covered up, an unusual circumstance, but did not disturb him, thinking he was asleep or unwell and went away. His disappearance as usual caused some surprise, and Mr. Miller called on him about 10 o'clock and found him covered up in bed quite dead. The alarm was raised, and, on examination, it was found he had covered himself up in bed and then placed a revolver to his left side over his heart and fired it off. No person heard the report in the building adjoining. Death must have been instantaneous. An inquest will be held. Temporary insanity is supposed to have been the cause.

A MELANCHOLY CASE

On Saturday week, Mrs. David Thompson, of Otonabee, died through having taken a preparation of Tin, which she had swallowed while in a state of mental derangement, from which she had been suffering for about a week, and brought on, it is believed, by a severe pain in the head. The history of the sad event is about as follows :—

On the Friday morning before her death she felt very ill. Mr. Thompson was at a neighbors threshing that day but went to see how she was, at noon and found her in great mental trouble through racking pain. He again left her for a while but returned about four to five o'clock, and found her still complaining of the severe pain, and she then showed signs of mental disorder which he can now understand but did not think much of then. He merely thought she was disturbed because of the pain in her head On Saturday morning Mr. Thompson endeavored to get her to go to a doctor, but she was so troubled in getting ready that she did not go to town till eleven o'clock, and then on her way to town left butter with a person whom she supplied weekly, and to whom she complained that she was ill, very ill, and remarked that she was going to a doctor, but never expected to be better, she told her of this severe headache. After this she made some purchases of dry goods, and appeared then so much better that she returned home and said she was very much better. On Sabbath morning she again complained of the headache and thought she would not go to church, but when she heard the church bells she remarked it was a beautiful morning and to those who could enjoy it, it was very nice Mr. Thompson induced her to dress and go to church, which she did but went about looking for articles of dress so that she showed herself confused and her mind not what it had been. In church she was uneasy and her family could see she was suffering severely from some cause. After church she went to her daughter's in town and remained till evening, but was unsettled a good deal, although in conversation she appeared no way astray. Mr. Thompson went to church in the evening, she refused to go, afterwards she said she would go, and went out but did not go in to church, she was waiting at the place for Mr. Thompson when he came out, and then she left for home, but changed her mind so often that Mr. Thompson found it difficult to know what she wanted to do, finally she went home and appeared some better. On Monday Mr. Thompson wanted her again to go to a doctor, but she raised objections, saying that it was no use, that she would never get well any way. But he urged her and got her dressed for that end, but had first to get a daughter who lives near to induce her to prepare to go. After dressing she showed signs of mental derangement which they were slow to believe then, she did not go to the doctor however. During that evening and Tuesday she was some better and being in town bought some articles for herself and also a preparation of Tin for dyeing purposes, as she had Madder and other material already. She then appeared quite calm and remained in town with her daughter. On Wednesday she went and bought some things and on trying to get to her daughters where she had often been, she lost her way, and had to enquire several times. She also wandered a good while up and down on the streets as if not knowing where she was going. Mr. Thompson who thought she had gone to consult Dr. Holywell, went to see if she had done so, but found she had not been there. He went to his daughter's to see if she was there, but learned that she was standing near the old burying ground, cold and stupid, and in great mental trouble. He drove up to her and got her into the buggy to go to her daughter's again, a little grandson and a little girl who had gone for her he also got into the buggy and drove towards her daughter's, but when near that, he saw her look up as if looking at some object above her head, but her back being towards him, paid no attention ; she was driving as fast as he could to get her in, but as they neared the house her daughter saw her put a bottle to her mouth and called to her father about it. Hearing the noise and looking around he heard her throw a bottle on the street. This bottle was found to be the one in which she had got the preparation of tin and was labelled "poison," and it is believed that the label gave her a clue to the use she might put it to. He then realized some presentiment of what she had done. They attempted to get her to take something to prevent its effects, but she refused to take it. Drs. Holywell and Kincaid were brought to her, and they applied remedies which relieved her a good deal but they say she has to save her life. She after words got quite cold quite composed and told them what the boldness and regretted it, but said she must have lost her reason or she would not have done so. She continued quite composed till her last moments and gave her daughters directions as to her affairs. She became quite resigned to what appeared to be her end, and continued in that state of mind till she died dying in peace.

Just before death she divided about $100 in gold between her two daughters This she told them she had intended for them when she should die. She had had six children, four daughters and two sons. Two daughters and one son had died young—and she leaves two daughters very respectably married, and one son to mourn their bereavement, Deceased was a quiet and kind hearted woman, an excellent neighbor, very much attached to her family, and was of a very respectable family in Ireland. She was interred in the Little Lake Cemetery, on Sunday, Oct 31st. Rev. J. M. Roger officiating.

SERIOUS GUN ACCIDENT.

We regret to record a serious accident which occurred in the Township of Belmont on Friday morning last. A young man named Wm J. Mellville, of the township of Seymour, while on a visit to some of his relatives in Belmont, went out into the woods on the day named to hunt deer, and after being a short time out rested his gun against a fallen tree, the butt on the ground and the hammer towards the tree On again starting he seized the gun near the muzzle, and drew it towards him, when the hammer struck against some rough substance on the tree, causing the gun to explode, two of the slugs entering on the right side of his neck, where they both lodged, and both, strange to say, missing an either side of the large artery of the neck. As soon as discovered Melleville was taken to the residence of his cousin in Belmont, and Dr. Ford, of this village, immediately summoned, who, together with Dr. Begart of Campbellford, after consulting over the best means to be adopted in the case, skilfully operated on the wounded man, and did their best to alleviate his sufferings. At last accounts, although doing as well as can be expected under the circumstance, Mellville is not yet out of danger.—Herald.

PRESBYTERY OF PETERBORO

This Presbytery held its last quarterly meeting at Port Hope on 28th Sept. The following were the principal items of business transacted :—The committee on the systematic visitation of congregations of Presbyteries having been unable to meet, was reappointed. Mr. Patterson was appointed Moderator of the session of Bobcaygeon and Dunsford. Mr McLennan was empowered to moderate to a call in those congregations, when called upon by the session to do so. The like power in reference to Millbrook and Centreville was conferred on Mr Ewing Mr. A. F. Tully was, on the recommendation of the Presbytery's Home Mission Committee and in compliance with the earnest request of the people, appointed to labor during the next three months at Bobcaygeon. Mr Roger tendered his resignation of his pastoral charge at Peterborough, with the request that the Presbytery would take the steps usual in such cases. After lengthened deliberation it was unanimously resolved to appoint a committee to confer at an early day with the office bearers and members of the congregation at Peterborough with respect to their pastor's resignation in the hope that arrangements may be made for the efficient maintenance of ordinances, whereby the acceptance of Mr. Roger's resignation may be rendered unnecessary. On motion of Mr. Douglas a committee was appointed to watch over the interests of Sabbath Schools within the bounds. Mr. McLennan gave in a report of a visit paid to Warsaw, which had been a mission station in connection with the Canada Presbyterian Church, and to South Dummer which had belonged to the other branch of the Church. A report of a joint meeting of three two congregations, at which a resolution to unite had been unanimously carried, was submitted. Commissioners from the congregations were also heard, stating, among other things, that the united congregation would agree to pay a minister $500 per annum, with the use of a manse. The Presbytery agreed and expressed great satisfaction with the arrangement proposed to sanction the union of the congregations of Warsaw and South Dummer, and to erect them into a pastoral charge to put them on the list of vacancies, and to apply to the Home Mission Committee for a grant of $200 per annum conditional on settlement. Mr. Andrew Brown appeared as a commissioner from the missionary congregations at Minden, Brown's Station and Kinmount, asking in accordance with resolutions adopted by these congregations that they might be united and erected into a pastoral charge, promising to pay $400 per annum, by way of salary, applying for a grant of $200 from the Home Mission Fund. The prayer of the petition was cordially granted. It was agreed that the grants to the other mission stations within the bonds should continue the same as last year. The Presbytery agreed to apply to the Home Mission Committee for a grant of $200 per annum to Bobcaygeon and Dunsford, conditional upon settlement; also for a supplement of $100 for Cobourne and Brighton. Committees were appointed to visit the congregations last named, as also the congregation of Lakefield, to confer with them in reference to the support of ordinances, and to report at the next meeting of the Presbytery, which was appointed to be held in Peterboro', and within Mr. Roger's Church there, on the third Tuesday in January, 1876, at 11 o'clock a. m. Messrs. McLennan, McClelland, McMillen, Douglas and Douglas and McKay were appointed a committee of Presbytery in reference to the resignation of Mr. Patterson. and another in reference to the resignation of Mr. Mitchell.—W DONALD, Pres. Clerk.

MONTREAL WEST.

The Ottawa Free Press says :

"Mr. Thomas White, the hero of the steel rails slander, has got his deserts in Montreal. The electors would have none of him. Mr. White seems to have just one plank in his platform, and that was slander. Conscious of his inferiority in every respect to Mr. Thomas Workman, his successful opponent he seems to have come to the conclusion that unless he slandered himself into Parliament he had no chance of getting in at all. From the day he began his canvass until the hour of his defeat, calumny and falsehood were the weapons on which he depended for success. His "deliberate falsehood" about the steel rails transaction may have been his greatest one, but it was only one of a series of almost infinite length. Should Mr. White ever again seek a position of honor and trust from his countrymen, perhaps we may adopt some more respectable line of policy than that of slandering his opponents. Obtaining and circulating falsehoods about the Hon. Mr. Alexander Mackenzie is not after all the surest way to get a seat in parliament, as Mr. Thomas White now knows to his cost.

Mr. White has signified his intention not to be a candidate again for Parliamentary honors. He finds business pressing too hard on his time. Just so.

THE Hamilton Times has its eye upon the Hon. Wm. Macdougall, and makes the following recap of the progress of that gentleman in his crusade in favor of Conservative reaction. Mr. Wm. Macdougall went on a Missionary tour to North Ontario to plead the Conservative cause, and the Conservative candidate was thereupon defeated. Mr. Macdougall next appeared in North Wentworth to help Dr. Miller, and thereupon Dr. McMahon was elected by a large majority. Mr. Macdougall has since been in Halton helping Col. Clay, so that Col. Clay will, of course, our contemporary argues, lose the election. He was in East Northumberland, and the Conservatives lost there also.

THE RESULT IN MONTREAL.

Through trials and tribulations Tom White has labored, from Wentworth to Prescott, from Prescott to Montreal, and down the length and breadth of Canada, he has feasted and the conservative banner and discovered the reliable Tilsonia.

His speaking was first marked by heathen semi-irreligiousness, from which the mask at times fell, disclosing the tree-bloo Conservative. He was decked out with a few Reform ideas, just to catch floating votes. But the game was not a success. When they came to count the vote it was Tantalus immersed in the water up to his chin, with not a drop to drink. Having been jilted by the saucy jade fortune in Ontario to his heart's content, he removed to Montreal, but the Lower Province was not all fond fancy pictured her. The Reformers swept Quebec, and once more left Thomas alone in his glory.

A second defeat in the great commercial metropolis and the "ambitious" became desperate.

The last resort of the corruptionists was brought into the fight. Slander—slander of the Premier, slander of a man whose sterling integrity is, and ever has been, in marked contrast with that of the Conservative leaders ; slander of a man whose sterling integrity is, and ever has been, in marked contrast with that of the Conservative leaders ; slander of a man whose public career has not been sullied by blot or stain in his deepest shame, the rejected of Ontario played his last card and lost First came the emphatic denial, then the refutal, proof of the most positive character of the innocence of the Premier, and last the crushing defeat of Mr. White and Tory prospects in Montreal.

Our advice to Thomas is "try the Manitoba Province three times, then emigrate to Newfoundland, and when the great island of the gulf becomes a part of the Dominion of them perhaps you may become a representative in the Dominion Parliament.—Brockville Recorder.

GUIBORD'S FUNERAL.

It would seem as if the Catholic press of Montreal have no intention of following the good example recently set them by the leading press of Toronto in vindicating the majesty of the law and using their exertions to prevent a riot over the second attempt at the interment of Guibord's remains. This is what the Sun says, pretending to speak in behalf of order and society ;

"We in the name of peace and good order—in the interests of society, for the avoidance of crime—counsel Mr. Doutre, and the organization he advises, to abandon, and at once, this meanness and madness. Meanness —because it would be an ill-conditioned, as well as ungenerous, jubilation over a mere technical triumph, to parade that handful of coffined clay in the face of thousands whose feelings have already been but to flagrantly outraged by the matter. Madness ?—because the promoters and abetters of this intended insult must not only calculate upon, but anticipate, the probable consequences of their recklessness."

Such language is greatly to be regretted: it is a plain incentive to a recurrence of the rioting which took place at the first attempt to bury Guibord's remains. What would say the Sun, and the Catholic body, for which it professes to speak, if the Mail had used such words during the pilgrimage riots in this city? Our efforts at conciliation have often but a poor response from the other side.—Mail.

Rev Mr. CHINIQUY MOBBED.

The Quebec Budget says :—While one of our staff was taking the cars at Grenville on Friday night of last week, for Carrillon, a most disgraceful scene took place at the depot caused no doubt by the presence of Mr. Chiniquy there. As far as we can understand, this reverend divine took the steamer at L'Original and disembarked at Grenville, where he took the first class car en route for Montreal. At the depot there were congregated, no doubt to meet him, a low, disreputable set of blackguards, professing, we really do believe, no religion whatever, for the moment these blackguards discovered Mr. Chiniquy seated in the car, a howling noise mingled with yells and "to hell with Chiniquy," were uttered, till at length, when the threats to break the windows were heard in the car, the matter took quite a formidable shape. A very prominent Roman Catholic gentleman rose up from his seat and went outside to where the crowd was gathered, and in a few words soon brought them to their senses. He said he felt ashamed of them, declaring in unmistakable terms the fact that he was full sure that there were none of them of his faith in the crowd who would be so low as to follow the teachings of men who were urging on a disturbance of the nature in question. He counselled them in feeling terms, and wound up by assuring all present that they were only giving Mr. Chiniquy notoriety by acts of this kind. No withstanding the interference to quell the row, two shots were fired and other disturbances took place as the cars moved out of the station, but happily no one was hurt. The Rev. Mr. Borland of St. John's, P.Q., a gentleman of the Government, and a lady from Quebec were on the car at the time

FATHER O'KEEFE.

Father O'Keefe has written a letter to Mr. Disraeli, in which he says :

It is my duty to inform you, before I am forced to quit this world, that the power of life and death with which Cardinal Cullen exercises over me has been conferred upon him by the Irish Government. I owe His Eminence of right no submission or obedience whatever, and he is himself admitted on oath that he possessed no jurisdiction over me or the parish; which is my benefice, except what he derived from a Papal rescript, which the Court of Queen's Bench in Ireland pronounced to be an illegal and invalid document according to the laws of the realm. Yet the Irish Government has dismissed me from a workhouse chaplaincy, at Cardinal Cullen's dictation, and has allowed him to imprison me now for nearly four months without affording me necessary support or permitting me to find it by the discharge of the duties of my office. In the extremity of my poverty and affliction I have sent His eminence a letter, of which I enclose a copy, and in which I simply ask him to spare my life. My death which I see is at hand, will be owing as much to those who co-operate with Cardinal Cullen in depriving me of the means of living as it will to him, and my blood must cry for vengence on all who aid him in putting out of life a man who has never been convicted of crime. I warn the first Minister of the Queen that the British nation, as well as a just God, will hold him accountable for my life if he will allow people under his control to assist my murderer in taking it unjustly away.

The letter of Father O'Keefe to Cardinal Cullen is as follows :

May it please Your Eminence, two years ago, in deep distress, I sought my life from your nephew, Bishop Moran, and was refused it. The charity of the public has enabled me to continue in existence to the present time ; but all my resources are now exhausted, and I must die if you and he will continue to withold from me my means of living. Is there anything I can do to obtain food and raiment while god is pleased to leave me on earth, or must I depart for the want of the necessaries of life which have now entirely failed me ? I need not say I shall accept any terms with which I can comply if my life is spared Spare it, however, or spare it not, I shall never confess myself a criminal before men. I am a sinner before God, and I will ask his mercy ; before man I am unconscious of guilt, and I will die without seeking his pardon.

Your Eminence's most humble and obedient servant,

ROBERT O'KEEFE, Callan.

A FRIGHTFUL TRAGEDY

A FATHER KILLS HIS TWO SONS, WIRES AT HIS WIFE, AND COMMITS SUICIDE.

(Associated Press Telegrams.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—The Kokomo Tribune says David Robinson came to town yesterday, bought a new suit of clothes and a revolver, after which he went home, showed the purchases to his family, and ate his supper. Robinson was in good humour, and appeared perfectly sane. He remarked to his wife that it would have been well if "little Dan," his son, had died weeks ago, and said he had attempted to kill the child. He then drew his revolver and fired at his second son, who was lying in bed, and then turned and shot at his wife. Mrs. Robinson, ran out of the house, and the eldest boy, 8 years of age, started to follow, when his father shot him in the face, but the ball glanced off without hurting him badly. The father then struck him on the back of the head with a chair, but the son succeeded in getting out with his mother. Robinson then deliberately took a razor, approached the bed inw hich lay the only daughter, seized and cut her throat from ear to ear. He followed this murder by taking the life of a son whom he had first shot in bed, in the same manner, after which Robinson jumped on his horse and fled. His dead body was found this morning one mile north of Judson Station, on the Indianapolis, Peoria, and Chicago railway. It is supposed he committed suicide.

BRITISH MONEY MARKETS.

In its money article of last week, The Monetary Times, Toronto, says the loan just negociated in the British market : The negotiation of this loan has been the most interesting feature of the week. The terms on which it was issued were very satisfactory. The amount was two and a half millions sterling, three fifths of which sum were guaranteed by the Imperial Government, and the other two fifths were issued solely on the credit of this country. The interest on the entire issue was four per cent. and the bids for the loan were considerably in excess of the amount required. The allotments, therefore were made at a high figure. In due time the result of this negotiation will be felt in financial circles here.

Where Does it all Come From ?

Pints and quarts of filthy Catharrhal discharges. Where does it all come from The mucous membrane which lines the chambers of the nose, and its little glands are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This like liquid is needed to build up the system, but it is extracted, and the system is also weakened by the loss. To cure, gain flesh and strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrah Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The Great Conjuror and Ventriloquist Zera appears in the Music Hall, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and from the high reputation he bears, we bespeak full houses. The London "Free Press" of Oct., 23rd, speaks thus of Zera:—"A large audience greeted the Prince of Wizards at the Opera House last night. The extraordinary feats of legerdemain and ventriloquism startled the large assembly, and caused them to gaze with bewilderment at the astonishing and marvellous acts. Zera is, beyond all doubt, the most accomplished performer in his line of business that ever visited this city, and it is doubtful if his superior exists anywhere. Those who have seen the best, Bliss, Martino, Anderson and Hamilton, declare that Zera surpasses them all in every respect. His feats in Magic are entirely new, and most of them wonderfully beyond conception, while as a ventriloquist none of the above named will bear the slightest comparison to the talented gentleman who last night delighted his large audience. The walls of the Opera House never before echoed such hearty peals of laughter and applause as last evening greeted the comical dialogue between the Brown family of puppets and the jocular movements of Mrs. Jones and the 'talking head.' This latter ventrilo quial effect is simply astonishing.

Sewing Machines.—Mr. Wm. McCullagh is sole agent for the County of Peterborough, for the celebrated Elias Howe Sewing Machines, which took so many prizes when shown at the great exhibitions. He is also agent for the D. Machine, especially adapted to tailoring, the Boot and Shoe trade, and all kinds of leather work. It needs only to be seen for its great advantages to be recognized at once, combining as it does the merits of all other sewing machines in use, as well as special and great advantages secured under the Warming and Howe Patents. Parties wanting machines would do well to call and examine my stock before purchasing elsewhere. Sign of the Red Boot, George Street.—45-1in.

BERTRAM & CO'S TURNIP PRIZE.

CHAS. D. MOORE, OF SMITH, THE WINNER.

The following is the report of the gentlemen selected as Judges:—

To the Secretary of the Central Agricultural Exhibition of the County of Peterborough, &c.:—

Sir,—We, the undersigned, having been appointed to examine the turnips of the competitors for the $100 prize, offered by Messrs. Bertram & Co., for the best acre of Swede Turnips wherein super phosphates of lime had been used as a manure, beg to lay before you the following statement.

We, on consultation, came to the conclusion that in cases where the difference of the crops was not plainly perceptible to the eye (and in that case only) it would be expedient to weigh the produce of a small quantity of land, but we soon found that this method would not give satisfaction to the owners of inferior crops; we, therefore came to the conclusion to weigh one-quarter of a perch of each competitor be the crop good or otherwise, so we took the breadth of four drills and calculated the length required for that amount.

We found the land clear of weeds and well cultivated in all cases, and the turnips well singled and of the very best quality, but we were informed by some parties that the drought had impeded the growth of their turnips which had before appeared to be progressing very favorably and had induced them to become competitors. We feel somewhat disappointed that we are not able to give a more clear and full account of the effects of the super phosphates, as a large majority of the competitors had made use of it on the whole parcel sown, and consequently no comparison could be made between it and other fertilising substances. The only instances to the contrary we know of are the following: The first case was that of William Foster, who we are informed, had used the super-phosphate on one acre and no fertilizing substance on the remainder. We considered that the crop where the super-phosphate had been used to be of twice the value of the other part of the parcel sown. John Ludgate had manured his whole field with barn yard manure, and had also used salt and super-phosphate on all but about five or six drills; we considered said drills to be twenty-five per cent inferior to the remaining part of the field. Captain Wallis had also used barn yard manure on the whole, and then afterwards used bone dust on part and super-phosphate on the remainder. We considered where the super-phosphate was used the crop was superior; and on examining William McIntosh's parcel, we observed that the crop on a few drills on one side were inferior to that on the other The reason that they were so, he informed us, was that he had not a sufficient quantity of the super phosphate to finish the parcel, at the rate he had commenced with.

We are of the opinion that in case a similiar prise should be given in the future, the efficacy of the super phosphate should be tested, as in the cases above mentioned, and the Examiners to ascertain the difference; and also that the prize should be divided into three parts in such a manner as may be deemed expedient. If this was the case we believe it would cause more competition and a better test of the effects of the super phosphate.

We have examined the crops of the several competitors carefully, and selected the parts weighed as near an average of the whole as possible, to the best of our knowledge and judgment, the result of which will be found in the following table:

Name of Competitor.	Place of Residence.	Quality of Soil.	Crop, 1875	Crop, 1874	Weeds or Drills	Distance in Drill	Roots.	Quantity Roots per Acre	Amount of Superphosphate	Quality of Turnips	Color of Top	Shape of Root	Weight of 1/4 Perch	Quantity per Acre

We were informed that William Tully, of North Monaghan, had his turnips in his cellar, and on arriving at Mud Lake, we were informed that George Crout's turnips were in his cellar also. It will be seen by the above table that the acre ... ned by Charles D. Moore exceeds all others in quantity, and we believe are of as good a quality, we therefore award the prize to him.

STILL ALIVE,

AND A WORD TO THE EDITOR OF THE PETERBOROUGH "EXAMINER."

My friends inquire if I am really dead,
Or if the rumor was founded from my head?
I can allow the same can simply be,
The source of rumors, too small work to do.
Small work indeed, when Mackenzie's to go,
Small work, rather than Conservatives to sow.
I, in the spring, first blind or busy too
Found from my window Spring's fingerish screams
For a direct remedy; from my fellow men
Found Spring Medicine, and from the Druggists then
To pump the place, or near the fountain of youth
And cure my breast by honest blown puffs.
Where from like cast to, the nearly pass mine
With something human about from summer chins
To sneer at cocky, and gather in the cash
Spring days of hell leaves the cause a flight escape.
But to the sun shorter and weaker shines,
The length of days to gradually decrease,
The long cold evenings gets to me more blues
To pump my pen and scribble down my stories
Which from time to time may then will get printed
To curse the cause, and please it on record.
Summer is o'er, likewise its bulls and cows,
Hail, welcome home, joy those with you I'll share.
Ave on the Autumn fallen leaves I tread,
For is it any feature through my head,
My re steel brain brushed with Parliament oil
Takes feeble again unbothered by my toil.
Soon as the frost begins to bite my nose,
The fountain results till the means produces
Another inspiration there each circle of thought,
Down I must write to, ink in hand, not mad,
Dear Sir, forgive me if I do transgress,
Craving the service of your powerful press
To lay these lines—impromptu though they be.
No classic standard can, in judging me
To all my faults there pithy and excuse.
I am no poet, tho' I try the same,
If health permits, I will appear again,
If this hard weather does not lessen my brain.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

SPECIAL LESSION.

The County Council met in Special Session on Wednesday. Present the Warden and Messrs. Garbutt, Millar, Sanderson, Collins, Golborne, J. P. Brown, Burnham, Boulton, Costello, Moloney and Welts.

The Warden stated the object of the meeting, viz.,—For the purpose of reading a third time and passing a By-law to aid and assist the Huron and Quebec Railway Company to the amount of $150,000, and to issue debentures therefore and to authorize the levy of a special rate for the payment thereof and for the transaction of other business.

The Warden addressed the Council.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Golborne—Messrs. Millar, Garbutt, Collins, Brown, Burnham and Boulton were named a committee on the Warden's address.

The Council adjourned to four o'clock to allow the committee time to report on the address.

The committee reported. The report was adopted.

Mr. Boulton moved a resolution to memorialize the Government to take steps to make the owners of the dam at Lakefield maintain the water at an even height.

As the Warden's address is of considerable length, we have been compelled to lay it over till next issue.

WHITBY.

Ministerial Call.—At a meeting of Whitby Presbytery held at Oshawa, a unanimous call from the Oshawa congregation was sustained to Rev. John Hogg, of Lawrence Mass. It is understood that the reverend gentleman has signified his acceptance of the same, and that his induction will take place at an early day.

ORILLIA.

A Man named Beech arrived at Orillia about three weeks ago, in good health, except that he was under the influence of alcoholic poison. He continued his spree until Saturday, 23cd, when he brought a bottle of whiskey to a shanty occupied by his brother, near Edmonson's mill Oro. He drank the whiskey, and died within an hour.

PORT HOPE.

It is rumoured that the Odd Fellow's Lodge, of Port Hope have instituted pro ceedings against the Montreal Telegraph Company for damages in the sum of $5,000, in the case of J. Mimms, a member of the order, the conductor on the Midland Railway, who was killed a short time ago. It seems that the pole was nearer the track than the law allows.

NAPANEE.

A Napanee paper says:—Just before going to press we learn that while Mr. Caleb Boyce, of Sydenham, was on his way home from Napanee, last evening, he got out of his waggon near Yarker, to fix the harness, and the horses starting he was run over by his waggon and so badly injured that he died in about three hours after the accident. It is supposed that he was intoxicated at the time

MILLBROOK.

On Friday last, a boy, working for Mr. Wm. Hunter, at the Summit, cut one of the arteries of the upper part of the left foot, Dr. Hunter is attending to the boy who is doing well.

Runaway.—On Wednesday last as Mr David Armstrong, of the back part of Cavan, was driving into Millbrook, a pig ran under his horses throwing one them down, which made them start off, getting away from the carriage. Mr. Armstrong was thrown out, receiving a cut on the side of the head and a severe bruise on the shoulder. Dr. Hunter was speedily in attendance, and dressed the wounds. Mr. Armstrong is progressing favourably.

NORWOOD.

The Register says:—Mr. Wm. McCarthy has purchased a farm from Mr. T. M. Grover, immediately north of the village of Norwood.

A man named Rogers, who has been from his home, lately returned, and abusing his wife, she called in a constable. Rogers shot at the constable. He was taken, however, and is also in jail for trial.

This Village has had a gang of juvenile burglars; several small boys, instructed by one or two larger ones have, it appears, made raids on the Post Office and Presbyterian church, and took what they could get. They were brought before Messrs. Drain and Brooksbridge and being found guilty, some few were fined and four or five of them sent to jail; one or two of the leaders it is said have got clear.

It gives us much pleasure to state that the Rev. Mr. Fotheringham, M.A., the able and popular Presbyterian Minister of this village, on Monday last, was presented with a valuable horse by the appreciative members of his congregation here. Mr. Fotheringham, during the brief period he has resided amongst us, has won golden opinions from all classes of the community, by his ability, courtesy and energy, and no doubt highly appreciates the gift, and still more so the feeling which prompted the givers. We wish him a long life of usefulness in our midst.—Register.

The Whitby Gazette says:—It becomes our unpleasant duty this week to record the death of Mr Henery Balfour, of Brooklin, by his own hands while in a state of temporary insanity by drowning himself in Card's pond. Mr Balfour had been unwell for some days and had retired to bed early as usual. About half past eleven his wife missed him, and the alarm was at once raised, it being feared that he would do away with himself. A large number of the inhabitants turned out in search, and about six o'clock the next morning the body was discovered by his brother, Mr James Balfour in Card's pond in seven feet of water. On taking out the body a leather strap with a dog-iron attached was found round his knee.

THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL—WORTH TEN TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

Read This Twice.—Five to thirty drops of Thomas' Eclectric Oil, will cure common Sore Throat. It never fails in Croup. It will cure a cold or cough in twenty-four to forty-eight hours. One bottle has cured Bronchitis of eight years standing; recent cases are cured in three to six days. It has restored the voice where the person had not spoken above a whisper in five years. As an outward application in all cases of pain or lameness, nothing like it has ever been known. One bottle will cure any case of Lame Back or Crick in the Back. For diseases of the Spine and Contraction of the Muscles it is unequaled. In Rheumatic or any other pain the first application does you good. It stops Ear Ache and the pain of a Burn in three minutes, and is altogether the best and cheapest medicine ever offered to the people—the cheapest, because it takes so little to do you good. It is composed of six of the best oils known, and nothing but oils. It is worth its weight in gold. Why not buy it to-day?—A. B. Dea Rochers, assistant postmaster, Arthabaskaville, P.Q., writes;—"Thirteen years ago I was seized by a severe attack of rheumatism in the head, from which I have nearly constantly suffered. After having used Thomas' Eclectric Oil for nine days, bathing the forehead, I have been completely cured, and have only used half a bottle. This I can certify under oath if you wish."—Rev. J. Mallory, of Wyoming, N.Y., writes:—"Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil cured me of Bronchitis in one week. KISSING FOR THE CHILDREN.

Kisses in the morning,
Make the day seem bright.
Filling every corner
With a gleam of light.
And when nightfall he comes
When affection's sunshine comforting,
Imparts, and gives no kisses
To the children in the morning.

Many think it folly;
Many say it's bliss;
Every mouth depending
On whose lips you kiss?
But the truth I am confessing.
And I'd have you all take warning,
If you covet any blessing,
Kiss the children in the morning.

Kisses in the evening
When the light is low
And two hearts a dancing
With affection's glow.
And as angel's scarce is numbered
Round the pillow they are pressing
Who are wooed to peaceful slumbers
By a dear one's fond caressing.

Kisses in the morning
Are not out of place;
Kisses in the evening
Have a special grace;
And it's come to me that this is
For indulgence lawful reason;
Sweetest lollips—I mean kisses—
Ye are never out of season.

THE HEREAFTER.

With all the aids which the past can furnish in the shape of history, with all that experience in life can bring forward still we "know not what shall be on the morrow." Even revelation itself only professes to cast its strong light over some of the prominent characteristics of the feature—the broad outline is sketched out with a wonderful grandeur and brilliancy, while the details with which our every day sympathies connect themselves, and in which the curiosity of man would like to have its speculations satisfied—these are involved in as dark and uncertainty as ever. Present duty is brought out with the utmost clearness and distinctness, while the mode of our future existence is still unknown and unknowable. Nor is it desirable that the future should be more intelligibly revealed than many suffice to encourage our hopes, to animate our zeal, to stimulate our efforts, to strengthen our faith—or in a word, to aid us in the performance of present duty. One of the means made use of in Divine revelation, is the announcement of the future punishment of the ungodly, which is doubtless one of the means intended to deter mankind from such a course of life as can have an end so fearful. As to the duration of this punishment, if we are to believe Revelation at all, it is to be co-existent with the eternal life promised to the righteous, so that we are justified in concluding that if the punishment of the wicked can have an end, the reward of the righteous may be expected to come to an end also "The wicked shall go away into everlasting punishment, and the righteous into life eternal"—where the words everlasting and eternal are different rendering of the same Greek word in the original, so that we are led to believe the duration of the one will be equal to that of the other. We regard all the arguments against this interpretation derived from the justice God to be peculiarly fallacious. Has not the all-wise, the all-holy, the just God, permitted sin and evil in the world for now about six thousand years, and shall we presume to say what is connatible with the justice and goodness of Him, whose "way is in the sea, whose paths are in the mighty waters, and whose footsteps are not known?" And then supposing that orthodox Christians have made a mistake in this matter, and it should turn out at last that there is no eternal punishment for those who have died in their sins, is it possible that their efforts to obtain eternal life, will be found to have been too zealous, their renunciation of the vanities of earth too entire, and their anxieties to realize bles sedness too great when they shall have reached the blissful haven of rest above. Whereas we may ask, what will be the fearful terror, the unavailing regret, the fathomless despair of those who may find out hereafter that they have presumed too much on the mercy of God; and forgotten his unalterable justice, that they have despised as idle fears the salutary warnings of future wrath, while now they must lie down in endless sorrow?—Dominion Churchman.

THE GUIBORD SARCOPHAGUS.

(From the Montreal Star.)

Few men in business object to the presence of the public on their premises; on the contrary, they court, as far as possible, public, acquaintance, and rejoice when throngs gather to inspect their merchandise. Mr. Robert Reed, sculptor and marble worker, is just now an exception to the rule; he is overwhelmed with the attentions of the populace, and his peace of mind disturbed by the continuous interruption of the masses of the curious in his marble yard, at the head of Alexander street. The reason for this sudden and unaccustomed interest in grounds devoted to the not particularly cheerful handicraft, the fashoning of funeral monuments, is that to Mr. Reed has been entrusted the work of constructing the sarcophagus destined by the Institute to receive the remains of the late Joseph Guibord. Day after day, while the work goes on in the yard, crowds block up the entry, and the stone cutters are impeded in their operations by the pressure of the curious. The majority are of the unemployed classes, and of these mainly from among the ranks of those who took part in the reception accorded the attempted funeral of September 2nd: thought it may be said that numerous representatives of every class of society have paid their works the tribute of an inquisitive visit. There is not much to be seen after all. The sarcophagus (flesh eater, after the Greek) will be composed of two enormous blocks of limestone, each about 9 feet long and 4 and one-half wide and 2 and one half deep. In each a coffin shaped cavity has been hollowed out to receive the wooden coffin in which the remains are at present enclosed. The blocks are rough hewn, and the cutting of the cavities has been a work of no little labor. One has been finished, and the other will be completed to-day. There is nothing special to describe about the sarcophagus, though there remains food for conjecture as to how the blocks will be transported to the cemetery, and when there placed in position. They are of enormous weight, about four tons each, and it will certainly be a task of no little difficulty, we opine, to lower the upper piece upon the base and enclose the remains in their stony prison forever. Extensive mechanical arrangements will have to be made, and should any trouble arise—which it is sincerely to be hoped will not—those engaged in a necessarily lengthy operation may have a somewhat unpleasant time of it.

The means adopted by the Institute for the security of the much disputed remains are certainly effective enough in appearance. No organized power could drag except by violent measures skilfully carried out, the remains from the stone coffin which has been prepared, and if once the interment is carried out—and it remains to be seen whether the Fabrique will permit the employment of the sarcophagus or the erection of the appliances necessary to its adjustment in the grave—opposition to the inhumation in the Cote des Neiges Cemetery of the remains must, for all practical purposes of the enemies of the Institute who are in favor of high handed measures, cease, for the stone is like the boulder at the entry of the Cavern of Cyclops—impossible of removal by mortal force.

WONDERFUL ESCAPE.—The Detroit Free "Press" of the 26th says:—"Yesterday as Jesse Robins, one of the oldest engineers on the Grand Trunk Road, was running his train at the rate of thirty five miles an hour, he thought he smelled a hot journal under the forward truck, and taking the oil can he hurried along the walking board to the pilot. Having discovered the cause of the alarm, he was returning to his cab when a sudden jolt of the locomotive threw him off. The engine was then, by fortunate accident, crossing the bridge over the Clinton River, and Mr. Robins fell into the water and swam ashore. Had the accident occured at any other spot he would most likely have been instantly killed.

A SUICIDAL EPIDEMIC.

A recent number of Chamber's Journal gives an entertaining article on suicide, from which we copy:

"Sometimes," says the writer, "a person determined to destroy himself will wait for months and years for an opportunity of executing the deed in the particular manner he has marked out for himself, and this very inclination to suicide may be removed by withdrawing the particular objects that would awaken the idea. Thus a man who has tried to drown himself will be under no temptation to cut his throat. Example, it is well known, is a powerful cause of excitement to the suicidal act. We were once told by a physician that a hypochondriacal patient used to visit him invariably the day after reading the report of a suicide in the daily papers, possessed by a morbid feat of imitating the act of which he read. Sir Charles bell, surgeon of middlesex Hospital, was one day describing, to a barber who was shaving him, a patient's unsuccessful attempt to cut his own throat, and, on the barber's request, pointed out the anatomy of the neck, showing how easily the act might be accomplished. Before shaving operations were completed, the barber had let the shop and cut his own throat according to Sir Charles Bell's exact instructions. Sometimes there is an epidemic of suicides, as at Versailles, in 1793, when out of a small population 1, 306 persons destroyed themselves in one year; or as in the Hotel des Invalides in Paris, when six of the inmates hanged themselves on a certain cross-bar within a month. Very often the disease is hereditary, and at a certain age the members of one family will all in turn evince the suicidal tendency, while even children of very tender years have been known to end their short lives by their own act, from force of example. Curious, too, are the methods of self-destruction, but they are too painful to bear description. A Frenchman once attempted to ring his own death knell, by tying himself to the clapper of a church bell, which thereupon began to swing, and alarmed the villagers by its unwonted tones. All cases of determined suicides are characteristic of confirmed insanity; whereas, in a case of impulsive insanity, the perpetrator will often repent the act before it is completed and endeavor to save his life, as did Sir Samuel Romilly, thus demonstrating that the very attempt may effect the cure of the disordered brain. The months of March, June, and July are the favorite with men, September November, and January for women, in which they voluntary end their lives. In youth men hang themselves, in the prime of life use firearms, and, when old, revert to hanging Women usually prefer Ophelia's 'muddy death.' poisoning is a method adopted by the very young of both sexes. We have the consoling reflection that, prevalent as brain disorder is in our country, at least eighty per cent of cases of insanity are curable if treated at an early stage; while it is to be noted that it is not pleasurable, productive brain work that does the mischief, but rather the mental strain which results from the high pressure of our own artificial life."

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

The first definite news of the progress of Arctic expedition was furnished by the arrival, on the 29th of August, at Plymouth, of the "Valorous," the tender which accompanied the two ships, the "Alert" and the "Discovery," as far as Disco. The three vessels reached Disco on the 4th to the 6th of July, remaining together until the 15th, at which date the two bound for the north left Godhavn.

It is expected that suitable winter quarters will be found on the north shore of Lady Franklin Strait, and that the 'Alert' will proceed onward alone to the north, establishing depots and building cairns, with records, at intervals of about sixty miles. It is hoped that the "Alert" may be able to winter as far north as 84°, and begin sledge traveling, so as to ascertain something of the country, and then push boldly northward in the summer of 1876, and that this will be done by a system of auxiliary depots, enabling the foremost to be absent 112 days, and to advance upward of 500 miles from the ship.

The "Discovery will do what she can in the way of investigation, proceeding, however, slowly, so as to serve as a relief ship should anything happen to the "Alert." The Danish authorities in Greenland had received instructions from their government to render every assistance possible to the expedition, which was cheerfully done.

In a series of temperature soundings taken by the "Valorous" on her return, the lowest was found to be 33° and a small fraction.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

The recent report published by the Suez Canal Company, bringing up the statistics of the canal to the beginning of April of the current year, is, in more respects than one, an instructive document. It shows that the prediction of those who favored the enterprise from its inception—namely, that its opening would in a few years revolutionize the trade of Europe and the East—has been practically realized in the five years that the canal has been thrown open to traffic. It gives, furthermore, the gratifying intelligence that the success of the canal as a commercial venture is no longer a matter of doubt and uncertainty, but an established fact, while to Americans the document will afford a substantial argument in behalf of the long deferred interoceanic canal across the American isthmus.

The canal was opened to navigation in December, 1869, since which time to April 1, 1875, 5236 vessels made the transit. Of these 4398 were steam vessels, and but 238 sailing vessels, the small proportion of the latter being ascribed to the danger and difficulty of navagating the Red Sea; 2863 vessels passed through from the Mediterranean, and 2373 from the Red Sea.

The statistics by years are herewith given, the figures denoting a steady increase of business. 1870, 489; 1871, 763; 1872, 1062; 1873, 1173; 1874, 1267 Up to the end of the first quarter of 1875, 455 vessels had made the transit, which gives an average of 1820 for the year. If the totals above given are divided according to the nationality of the vessels represented, it will appear that Great Britain was represented by 3602 vessels; France, 416; Austria, 303; Italy, 254; Turkey, 131; Holland, 123; Egypt, 100; Germany, 95; Spain, 53; Russia, 36; Portugal, 22; Denmark, 17; Sweden, 15; the United States, 10; Belgium, 9; Greece, 7; Japan, 4; Burmah, 3; and Peru, Tunis and Bambar each 1.

In 1870 the net tonnage amounted to 436,609 tons, producing for the company a revenue of 5,048,944 francs; in 1874 the tonnage reached 1,631,640 tons, producing a revenue of 24,748,900 francs.

An old scotch woman once said to her pastor: 'Dear me, ministers mak' muckle adoo about their hard wark; but what's the hin o' sermons i' the week to mak' up: I could do't myself.' 'Weel, Janet,' said the minister, good humouredly, 'let's hear he try.' 'Come awa' wi' a text, then,' quoth she. He repeated with emphasis: 'It is better to dwell in the corner of a housetop than with a brawling woman and in a wide house.' Janet fired up instantly, 'What's that ye say,' sir? Dae ye intend onything personal?' 'Stop, stop,' broke in her pastor. 'Ye wad never dae for a minister.' 'And what for no?' said she. 'Because, Janet, ye come over mune to the application.'

VINEGAR BITTERS

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE

PURELY VEGETABLE

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

VINEGAR BITTERS

WE RECOMMEND PROPRIETOR WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "EMPIRE." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in Market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me. Select Poetry.

GOING OUT WITH THE TIDE.

Raise me up in my bed, wife,
There, a the sound of the sea in my ear,
And it sings to my soul as a promise
That earth is not doomed to bear.
Open the little window, wife,
Then come and sit by my side:
We'll wait God's sweet footfall near her
To take me out with the tide.

I see the harbor-bar, wife,
And my dear little boat in the bay;
But who shall be able to guide her
When her master hath passed away?
I know that her helm, as trusty,
Will answer no other hand
As it answered mine when I knew, wife,
You were waiting for me on the strand.

Our boys are all home to us, wife,
Wee Jack in beneath the wave,
And blue-eyed Freddie sleeps, wife,
In yonder yew-hovered grave,
Where the early daisies clamber
Around his baby bed,
And the thrush shall chanting softer,
In you tree that shades the dead.

There's a chill runs through our hearts, wife,
Where the harbor-bar doth moan,
But a darker grief will be yours, wife,
When you are left in the cot alone;
But a few more flows of the sea, wife,
And a few more ebbs of the tide,
Then God's sweet flood will bring you
Again to your old man's side.

The red sun is low in the west, wife,
And the tide sinks down with the sun;
We will rest with each other in love, wife;
For awaits our love have run.
Give me your hand, down love,
As you gave in the days of yore;
We will clasp them, ne'er to be sundered,
When we meet in the far-off shore.

The Old Catholic Conference at Bonn.

A large number of intelligent divines under the leadership of Dr. Dollinger have left the Roman Catholic Church and formed themselves into what is called the Old Catholic Church. They recently assembled in conference in the historical and educational city of Bonn, upon the Rhine, along with delegates from Anglican Church on the one hand, and from the Greek Church upon the other, with a view to consider whether it might not be possible to unite these three branches of the Church, all claiming to be Catholic, but all declining to acknowledge the headship of the Roman See. Many not familiar with Church history will be surprised to to learn on how fine a point the Greek and Latin churches have been so long separated. It was by the introduction on the part of a Pope, without any authority from a Council, of the word Filoque into the Nicene creed, by which it is held by all Western Christians that the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, whereas the Oriental Christians maintain that the Holy Ghost proceeds only from the Father, their objection being not only to the irregular manner in which the word was introduced, but to the doctrine which it implies. We do not know that the presence or absence of this word, or the acceptance or rejection of its meaning, could even indirectly affect the salvation of anyone. Certainly it would be a singularly narrow view to hold that a man who trusted in Christ for salvation would be rejected because he did not know whether the Latin or the Greek faith on the above point was correct, or because he held to the wrong side of the controversy. Outward and ecclesiastical unity was of course what was sought by those who attempted to establish by creeds what the whole Church ought to believe, and outward unity was what was lost by this difference of expression. To-day less importance is attached to outward things and more to spiritual truths, so that men will not value so highly the restoration of outward and apparent unity as they would have done five hundred years ago, but it is nevertheless interesting to see the representatives of different forms of religion gathering together in unity to discuss the removal of their differences. This as far as the members of the late convention is concerned has been, we believe, satisfactorily accomplished. The German Old Catholics were represented at the Conference by about thirty persons, among whom were Dr. Von Dollinger, Bishop Reeinkins and Pro. Reuse: and among the fifty representatives of the Anglican Church were the Bishop of Gibralter, the Dean of Chester, Canon Liddon, the Rev. Messrs. Meyrick, M. MacCall and Denton. There were twenty Orientals present, two archimandrites representing the Patriarchate of Constantinople, besides Archbishops attending in person.

Bejamin Franklin as a Humorist.

Bejamin Franklin was the first American caricaturist. That propensity of his to use pictures whenever he desired to affect strongly the public mind was an inheritance from the period when only a very small portion of the people could read any other than pictorial language. Among the relics of his race preserved in Boston there is an illustrated handbill issued by his English uncle Benjamin, after whom he was named, which must have been a familiar object to him from the eighth year of his age. Uncle Benjamin, a London dyer when James II. fled from England, wishing to strengthen the impression made by his printed offer to "dye into colors" cloth, silk, and Indian calico, placed at the head of his bill a rude wood-cut of an East Indian queen taking a walk, attended by two servants, one bearing her train, and the other holding over her an umbrella. At the door of his shop, too, in Princes street, near Leicester Fields, a figure of an Indian queen appealed to the passer by.

Such was the custom of the time. The diffusion of knowledge lessened the importance of the pictorial representation; but the mere date of Franklin's birth, 1706, explains in some degree his habitual resort to it. Nearly all the ancient books were illustrated in some way, and nearly every ancient building appears to have had its "sign." When Franklin was a boy in Boston a gilt Bible would have directed him where to buy his books, if he had any money to buy them with. A gilt sheaf probably notified him where to get those three historic rolls with which he made his entry into Philadelphia. The figure of a mermaid invited the thirsty wayfarer to beer, and an anchor informed sailors where sea stores were to be had. The royal lion and unicorn, carved in wood or stone, marked public edifices. Over the door of his father's shop, and where soap and candles were sold, he saw a blue ball, which still exists, bearing the legible date 1698 Why a blue ball? He was just the boy to ask the question. A lad who could not accept grace before meat without wishing to know why it were not better to say grace once for all over the barrel of pork, would be likely to inquire what a blue ball had in common with soap and candles. His excellent, but not gifted sire probably informed him that the blue ball was a relic of the time when he had carried on the business of a dyer, and that he had continued to use it for his new vocation because he "had it in the house." Benjamin, the gifted, was the boy to be dissatisfied with this explanation, and to suggest divers more in harmony with the industry carried on within, so that the very incongruity of his father's sign may have quickened his sense of pictorial effect.

Franklin, lived long, figured in a great variety of scenes, accomplished many notable things, and exhibited versatility of talent: man of business, inventor, statesman, diplomatist, philosopher; and in each of these characters he was a leader among leaders; but the ruling habit of his mind, his forte, the talent that he most loved to exercise and most relished in others was humor. He began as a humorist and he ended as a humorist. The first piece he ever wrote were both satrical: the first the reckless satire of a saucy apprentice against the magnates of his town; the last, the good tempered satire of a richly gifted, benevolent soul, cognizant of human weakness, but not despising it, and intent only upon opening the public mind to unwelcome truth—as a mother makes a child laugh before inserting the medicine spoon. So dominant was this propensity in his youthful days that if he had lived in a place where it had been possible to subsist by its exercise, there had been danger of his becoming a professional humorist, usurping all the powers of his incomparable intellect in that one gift.—JAMES PARTON, in Harper's Magazine for December

State Apartments in Windsor Castle.

The Queen's Audience Chamber, with its ceiling by Verrio, its festoons of flowers by Grinling Gibbons, and its tapestries by hands unknown, indeed, but which must have spent a life-time in the work; the Queen's Presence Chamber; the Guard Chamber; St. George's Hall (200 feet long), with its throne, the twenty-four shields with the armorial bearings of all the English kings from Edward III, and with the full-length portraits of eleven sovereigns by Vandyck, Kelý, Kneller and Lawrence; the Ball Room, with its Louis XIV, furniture and appropriate tapestries of Jason and the Golden Fleece; the Throne Room; the famous Waterloo Chamber, with its thirty six heroes on canvass, almost all by Lawrence; the Vestibule; the King's Drawing Room, illustrated by Rubens only; the King's Council Chamber; the King's Closet; the Queen's Closet; the Queen's Drawing Room—all adorned by the finest painters of the purest times; and the Vandyck Room, itself a treasury of art—all these are included in the State Apartments, and may be seen by any visitor at Windsor between certain hours. But the Sovereign's Private Apartments, which occupy the whole east wing of the castle, are reserved for those whom she or some member of her family "delights to honor," or, at all events, is so good as to do so. Never before have I been impressed by the mere sight of splendid furniture; but here the fine taste goes so harmoniously with the costliness that one can not choose but admire; the splendor is by no means the most striking feature, and when I was told that a little cabinet whose quiet beauty had attracted me had cost ten thousand guineas, I felt extreme surprise. The private drawing rooms, to the number of which there appear no limit, are generally termed blue, red, etc., according to the prevailing color of their fittings: and from every window of the "house" (as its royal tenants call their dwelling, and which is only one of the few things by which in their unaffected talk you can discern their proprietorship of this superb abode) there is a view of garden and forest such as might well take a poet's heart by storm. The Shah, I was told, who is, of course, a stranger to fine foliage, was more impressed by the view than by the furniture; but a simple citizen like myself may be excused for dwelling upon the latter. The tapestry of the chairs alone was in some cases so exquisite that I would no more have dared sit on them than would poor Christopher Sly in the play, to whom, indeed, I involuntarily compared myself more than once amidst those unaccustomed splendor.

The finest of all the internal decorations are thought to be those of the Queen's Corridor, a golden gallery, as it seemed to me, which runs half round the castle, though never approaching any public room. Perhaps the most interesting chamber is the suit of rooms on the North Terrace that form the Library, into which, as a humble follower of the profession of letters, I was introduced and allowed to roam at will. The contents of this place are simply priceless; the original MSS of the most valued poets and prose writers, the original editions of the most ancient printed books, the most splendid illuminated MSS of Asia and Africa (still being collected, for some were brought from the Abyssinian campaign), the most gorgeous missals, and all arranged so that the eye can at once behold their contents, though the brain to master them is indeed but rarely brought with it. Most curious of all is the private collection of miniatures of the royal family, including many who were lost before the public grew familiar with them, and also many who were a little less than kin and more than kind—for example, the famous "Perdita" and other mistresses of George IV. Indeed the secret history of this princely race may be read here in brief—the richest store that ever was laid bare to eye of gossip.—Harper's Magazine for December.

"Bloody Mary."

Mary had reigned a little more than five years, and in the last three of them she fell to a depth to which few have reached. She won for herself a name of infamy which will stand forever in men's speech. She will ever be styled "The Bloody Mary." Pity it is that the epithet can not be transferred from her in person to the principle of which she made herself in her day the exponent—the principle of persecution in the name of religion, be that religion true or false.

The Marian persecution was one of ineffable cruelty and atrocity—a cruelty and atrocity not to be measured by the number of its victims, but by the reason for which they were sacrificed. It was of all other persecutions, a persecution solely and entirely for conscience' sake. Not one of its victims could by any stretch of ingenuity be considered as dangerous to the state. The victims of Alva in the Netherlands belonged to a sect avowedly inimical to Spanish rule; they might be in a sort regarded as rebels against the government. The French Huguenots who perished in the dragonnades of Louis XIV. had been, as a sect, in arms against the king and his predecessors. The English Protestants who suffered under Mary only sought to worship God in the way they thought acceptable to Him. Protestants there were in the kingdom who might be dangerous to the government; but not one of these suffered at the stake, not one was even called in question by the ecclesiastical courts of Pole and Gardiner and Bonner. No earl, baron, or knight was interrogated by the inquisitorial commission. Almost nine-tenths of those who suffered belonged to those distinctively classed as "the common people," and two-thirds of these to the more humble of that class, and a third of the whole number were women and children. There are four or five lists, nearly agreeing, of those who suffered at the stake; the lowest contains 270 names, the highest 290. Of these, 5 were or had been bishops, 21 clergymen, 8 gentlemen, 84 tradesmen, about 100 husbandmen, laborers, and servants, 55 women and 4 children: one of these was born while the mother was actually at the stake, and was tossed into the flames. Besides these, there were about a hundred others who were "lamentably destroyed" by imprisonment, famine, and torment.—A. H. GUERNSEY, in Harper's Magazine for December.

REFORM PRINCIPLES.

(Correspondent of the Montreal Witness.)

SIR—Your correspondent of yesterday, "A Voter," desires that I "should state, without Shakesperian or other poetic embellishment, what 'Reform' means, when addressed to the electors of Montreal." I believe political Reform means, go on and improve, whilst its opposite, Conservatism, means to me stand still and decay. Reform is the uplifter, the improver; Conservatism the oppressor and depresser.

Reform means principles, not men; Conservatism men or institutions, despite principles. Reform works actively and hopefully for "the good time coming;" Bonservatism feeds upon regrets and mopes inanely in lethargic satisfaction with the statu quo. Reform battles fearlessly for the removal of abuses in legislation and government; Conservatism entrenches itself in the outworks which surround the hoary strongholds of venerable wrong, and there fights a death-fight to sustain unholy privilege.

I shall endeavor to please "A Voter's" somewhat peculiar taste, by trying to illustrate, "without Shakesperian or other poetic embellishment." I do hope "A Voter's" wants of liking of "Shakesperian or other poetic embellishment" relates rather to the manner of application, than the matter applied.

If it be true that history continues to repeat itself under various phases—practically teaching us by example—then, beyond doubt, we are justified in invoking its guidance. The bold barons of Runnymede, who forced the tyrant John to acknowledge the highest maxim of British constitutionalism Rex sub lege were real Reformers. The Parliamentarians, who re-asserted the manful political doctrine of the barons, were true, if stern Reformers. The revolutionists of 1688, who finally consolidated, and engrafted the vital principle of Runnymede in the "Bill of Rights" were genuine Reformers. Patrick Henry, who in clarion tones voiced his country's liberties; John Adams, and Thos Jefferson, and Ben Franklin, who coolly thought and wrought them out; and mightiest among their mighty, he who fought for and fully earned the imperishable title of Father of his Country, George Washington, were all moved by the same spirit of Reform that spurred on the sturdy barons. Gratton and Flood and the famous Irish volunteers of '82, who revivified Irish nationality, were sincere worshipers at the shrine of Reform. Wilberforce, who led the van, and Lincoln and Seward and Chase, whose efforts rid the English speaking world of the horrible curse of negro slavery, were all good and faithful champions of Reform. Papineau and those of his colleagues who stood true to the constitutional principles they contended for in '37, properly take rank as leading Reformers. However, there is a Scotch saying "Where McGregor sits that is the head of the table." There are few men of any country, and certainly none of my countrymen, who have any doubts what ever as to the identity of the McGregor of Reform. Where Shakespear stands in literatnee, unapproached and unapproachable, there stands O'Connell, outshining all the other flashing meteors in the firmament of politics—Daniel O'Connell, the great "Irish Radical," "The man of the people," who reigned over the willing hearts of millions by "the right divine of the fittest"—Dan O'Connell who put a new soul into the embruited body of the political past, and who exorsised therefrom the ghostlike spirit of blood thirstiness—Dan O'Connell, the lofty enunciator of the sublime the truly Christian principles of moral force, who can deny to him the foremost place among chieftains of Reform.

And who are the Reform leaders at the political centre of the Empire? The not so very long ago scoffed at and denounced Radical, John Bright whose firmly spoken words of reproof awed the most powerful and petulant aristocracy on earth, into at least seeming consideration for the sorely stricken feelings of their widowed monarch.

Wm Ewart Gladstone, of whom "the Lion of the fold of Judad" said; "He has written his name with a pencil of light, on the grateful hearts of all true Irishmen." The man whose incomparable financial genius has been successfully devoted to relieving the poor of numberless burdens, without in any way increasing those of the rich.

In our own Dominion we have Ed[illegible]

Alexander Mackenzie, who proves the virtue of Reform as a means of fulfilling the Divine sentence; "The humble shall be exalted:" and who is worth millions of learned essays and brilliant speeches, as a living fact, the very personification of Reform—a workingman Premier.

As to citations from Shakespeare, although hardly relevant, I will give the opinion of one of the best and mightiest of modern minds, the late Cardinal Wiseman, who says: "Shakespeare has established his claim to the noblest position in English literature; as the great master of our language, as almost its regenerator, quite its refiner—as the author whose use of a word stamps it with the mark of purest English coinage—whose employment of a phrase makes it household and proverbial—whose sententious sayings, flowing without effort from his mind, seem almost sacred, and are quoted as axioms or maxims indisputable—as the

THE APPROACHING SESSION.

As announced, the Legislature will meet at Toronto on the 24th inst. We are not in a position to state what amount of business the Government have resolved to undertake, nor the special legislation in view; but there need be no fears that they will not introduce some useful and necessary reforms. There is a movement anticipated to tax all property, in future, in Ontario. Hitherto church property in actual use for churches, or not used for any other purposes, has been exempt from taxation, but there is an increasing demand for reform in this matter, and perhaps would be as well that this should be done at once. Toronto is petitioning for it. Should not the Town Council memoralize the government to the same effect and without delay. There is also an exemption of $1000 of a minister's salary, and $2000 of his real estate if he possesses so much; this is felt by many as a grievance, and to amend the assessment by removing this provision will meet with popular favor. There is now no church and state connection in Canada. Why continue a relic of it in our Municipal Acts?

THE BALLOT ACTS.

Both Parliamentary and Municipal acts require to be amended, so as to make them more simple and workable, and cheaply carried out. The parliamentary ballot act requires to be amended in reference to counting the ballots. As the act now is there are about twenty different returning officers in a riding, and at the counting of the ballots there are therefore, sixty to one hundred different voices as to the legality of the marking. If the Deputy Returning officers have sufficient intelligence and will, they can decide, it is true; but even then there would be twenty judges and from what we can gather in reference to the late contest in West Peterborough there has not been uniform in the decision as to the good and as to the rejected ballots. Why should there be so many persons involved in the work? Would it not be better to have the ballot boxes locked and sealed and in that state delivered to the Returning Officer who in the presence, of the candidates or of the candidates accredited agents, could open the boxes, and there decide, as far as they could agree, on the ballots. All ballots, not agreed on by them, could then be referred to a superior Court Judge without delay, and according to such amendment, at a nominal cost, compared with the present machinery. The Candidates should also be compelled to put in a statement to the Returning officer or the Sheriff, within a fixed number of days, of all objections, if any, to the election, and let them be also heard at the time of disposing of the ballots. It would not be well to mix up County Judges with the Parliamentary elections or contests in any way. They are not all like Cæsar's wife on political matters. Some simpler method than the present one must be devised for working the election law, or soon men will cease to act under its provisions owing to the immense cost entailed, and thus unprincipled demagogues will be enabled to gain control of the whole matter and return to their old ways of corruption and all its concomitant evils. There must be some moderately easy way of reaching violations of the law. The Municipal contests and disputes could be referred to the County Judges, and all the machinery should be as simple and inexpensive as possible to be quickly disposed of.

THERE IS AN EVIL

In the law at present arising out of the defects in human nature, that requires a little remedy, and that is the revision of the voters lists. At present some Assessors carry their political bitterness into their official duties and succeed in making votes for their party now and then. To remedy this, the costs of appeals should be born by the municipality and the Assessors, i.e. all cases of appeal established, but in which the presiding Judge considered the Assessors had done their duty fairly, let the municipality pay expenses. But where blame was attached to the Assessor let him pay costs. This would make municipalities careful in appointing Assessors, and also Assessors careful in the discharge of their duties. It is not fair that a matter which so intimately concerns the electors and the country, should be left to be done or let alone as suits the interests of political parties; and there can be no good reason why political parties should be called on to bear the expenses of a revision of the voters lists in the different municipalities. There are some other points in both the Assessment and Municipal Acts which require revision, and to which the attention of the Parliament should be called.

Municipal Councils would matter up, and have some of the needed revisions considered.

RELIGIOUS UNEASINESS.

In the various religious denominations there appears signs of uneasiness, and an absence of anchorage on the solid foundations that the propagators of the different systems believed they had laid deep and solid in the truths of Revelations. This unsettled state of religious minds is not confined merely to one country or to one denomination. It is almost general. The establishing of the infallibility dogmas being an indication of the unsettled faith of Roman Catholics. And the contests between old Catholics and Ultramontanism go to prove that instead of satisfying the enquiring mind, they are more and more in search of a system that will satisfy, and the letters and pastorals of the Bishops of Ontario and Quebec are attempts to quiet the troubled waters, and secure peace during their day at least.

The late meeting at Bohn is an instance of unsettled state of many in the Anglican and Greek Churches, as well as the Old Catholics. The efforts of the Hierarchy to gain the control of the people attached to them, and to secure the education of the youth of the Church, and consequently to control the direction of thought in the future, is an indication of what they feel in reference to the uncertainty of the religious bond which at present holds, so slightly, their adherents, and which causes them to fear for an institution threatened on all sides by opposing, and, to it, dangerous influences.

The Anglican Church has been in trouble for years; not so much among the adherents, as in the ministerial portion of that establishment. They (the Ministers) are divided over shadows and symbols in too many cases of their foolishness, and because of a desire for glitter and show, instead of for the doctrines which the founders of the Anglican church established in their 39 articles. The love which was so evident in the bosom of their Divine pattern is not easily discernible in the bosoms of Ritualists and Evangelicals, who forget that unity is of more importance, than trappings and that feet directed heavenward are better pleasing to God than face Eastward or Westward in unmeaning cermonies. The Union of Religious people is believed to be a source of strength, but unless that union be founded on the love which is a sure bond of affection, and has for a connecting link union in principles and sentiments, it may prove a source of weakness as the desire to maintain an outward show of amity may compromise principles of greater importance than mere apparent good will. The spirit of uneasiness so manifest in the Catholic and Anglican Churches has manifested itself in the Presbyterian Church in Toronto, in the person of the Rev. D. J. McDonnell. His errors are not original, it is true; but, they are now to the Presbyterian Church in Canada, at least in their preachings and teachings. And the trembling manner in which the Presbytery deals with the erring brother, and the significant hints, that in even the minds of professors, doubts do arise, and that even they do meet passages difficult of interpretation, all this indicates either trimming to popular fancies, or fearing to stir the burning embers that might lead to conflagration.

These three great associations are more disturbed in Canada than perhaps in other countries, Canada may be first to show restiveness under the claims of what may be felt by a few as more than they wish to bear. A few, who, in their vain imaginations, seek to make themselves stars in a religious fermament, when, they should be but the faint glimmerings of a taper, perhaps.

There is also in this loosening from the moorings of the teachers of religion a strange contrast with the people, as the latter manifest an increasing attachment to the old ways, and refuse to follow the new. This attachment to old ways, we are ready to believe is not founded on ignorance, but rather with a view to secure for future generations the blessing of an open bible in the hands of the people. In the uncertainty of teachers in Israel, those who hold that the people should not be their own instructors have found a powerful argument in favour of their theories, and for this very reason the more thoughtful cannot but regret the ease with which the Presbytery passed over the errors in teaching of one of their brethern. During eight months of uncertainty what is to become of the flock whom the pastor was sent to feed? Shall they continue to be fed with food not calculated to build them up in the faith believed to have been once delivered to the saints? Or, shall they be allowed to stray into strange pastures or into the wilderness and be lost? Who is to feed the flock of Christ while the shepherd is in doubts and uncertainty, and unable to tell them what the scriptures do teach? Is the Doctrine one essential to their salvation? And of so, how many may pass away in eight months, not knowing what to believe, or whether this is essential or not? Why do the fathers in Israel utter uncertain sounds? What are the people to believe? They are told to search the Scripture. Then if they must fall back on themselves: what is the use of preachers? So that it may reasonably be asked, where will this state of uncertainty lead to.

The Christian Guardian claims credit to the Methodist Church for letting questions of doubt and difficulty of explanation alone. But is this not failing to declare to the people "the whole counsel of God?" and is it not in reality admitting the difficulty Mr. McDonell encountered, but not manifesting his courage to grapple with and overcome it, or perish in the attempt. Some try to get around all these things by saying, "Matters of faith should be taught and protected, but matters of opinion not insisted on." To this the enquirer, after truth may say, are future rewards and future punishments matters of faith or of opinion? If not matters of faith, why trouble Mr. McDonnell? But if among the essentials in the faith of a christian, then how can the preacher excuse himself from an explicit declaration on the matter? So it would appear from a perusal of what has already been written on this Toronto Heresy that the same spirit of uncertainty pervades other denominations, and remains unsettled. It may be replied, that this matter concerns the Presbyterian Church only, and the Toronto Presbytery in particular; and Methodist, Baptists, and other denominations have no right to intermeddle with it. This is a specious kind of argument, but a fallacious one. All the people are interested in finding an answer to Pilate's question, "What is Truth?" And they cannot be blamed if unlike him, they are not satisfied with the quesmatter of infinite whole people are to truth. And to the another or disciple of Jesus Christ, there is no distinction of sect, among his hearers while he addresses them on what he holds to be essential. And, although a body of Christians may affect to believe that their own peculiar alliance concern themselves only, to believe so would confine their labours to those only who are one with them in all matters. Missionary efforts would thus cease, and the extension of what they hold as truth would be slow.

To subdue a rebellious people and subject them to their Master, all true Christians must not merely be on the defensive against evil, but must try to extend the influence and rule of their great Master. But all attempt to this end must cease, so soon as accepted that what one denomination believes or their conduct should be of no concern to others. Ourselves therefore need not be blamed for [illegible] to Presbyterianism to defend itself [illegible] the inroads of universalism, and [illegible] would not be slow to give a deliverance those doctrines.

Mr. McDonnell's teachings has already found defenders as well as opponents, and it is said that thousands believe as he does, but are not bold enough to declare themselves. This may be true, but who are they who so believe, but fear to avow their views? Are they the pious in the denominations? Or are they the careless and indifferent, who require to bolster themselves up on some such sandy foundation to afford them one ray of hope or consolation? The latter, it is to be feared. The desire that has ever been manifested to claim the clergy to be the only expounders of theology as lawyers are of law, is fast becoming exploded. The people will take part in the discussion of all questions concerning themselves, and if professed theologians neglect to establish their own principles, should they feel disturbed if the people ask them to give place to others.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Our municipal elections will very soon be upon us, and, as in all probability, there will be contests as warm and as earnest as for Local or Dominion Legislatures, it may not be out of place to remind electors, that the Municipal Elections, this year be by ballot as in the Parliamentary elections the machinery being the same, the ballots are almost in the same form, except that there will be, in most cases, a greater number of candidates on them That is where elections are not held by wards.

The clerk of each Municipality has to provide the ballot boxes, and when necessary, to deliver them to the Returning Officers, at least two days before the polling day. The Returning Officer has to return them to the Clerk within a week from the polling.

Where a poll is required, the clerk provides ballots sufficient for the election.

The polling places shall contain compartments screened for marking ballots in.

The clerk also provides a list of voters for each Returning officer, in a form provided by law. See sections 8 and 9 of the act.

The Returning Officers should read the whole act, but especially those portions which relate to his own especial duties from sections 10 to 20, inclusive

Clerk's requiring the Act can obtain it at a very cheap rate at this office, as we have printed it especially for this object, the law being a late one and of considerable importance to those who have to carry out its provisions as fairly and honestly as possible, in the interest of the whole electors.

The great misapprehension appears, generally, to be in the marking of the ballots. The clause of the act providing for marking the ballots is as follows:

"Upon receiving from the returning officer the ballot paper so prepared as aforesaid, the person receiving the same shall forthwith proceed into the compartment provided for the purpose, and shall then and therein mark his ballot paper in the manner mentioned in the directions contained in schedule B to this Act, by placing a cross on the right hand side, opposite the name of any candidate for whom he desires to vote, thus X; and he shall then fold the ballot paper across, so as to conceal the names of the candidates, and the marks upon the face of such paper, and so as to expose the initials of the returning officer's and leaving the compartment, shall, without delay, and without showing the front to any one or so displaying the ballot paper as to make known to any person the names of the candidates for or against whom he has marked his vote, deliver such ballot paper so folded to the returning officer, who shall, without unfolding the same, or in any way disclosing the names of the candidates, or the marks made by such electors, verify his own initials, and at once deposit the same in the ballot box in the presence of all persons entitled to be present and then present in the polling place; and the voter shall forthwith leave the polling place."

Subjoined is a ballot paper for a Township providing for election of Reeve, Deputy Reeve and four councillors.

REEVE.

1	MILLAR. James Millar, farmer.	×
2	CAMPBELL. James Campbell, tailor.

DEPUTY REEVE.

1	BLEZARD. Thomas Blezard, farmer.	×
2	CAMERON. Donald Cameron, farmer

COUNCILLORS.

1	LAING. John Laing, farmer.	×
2	TORPY. James Torpy, merhant.
3	HANLON. James Hanlon, farmer.	×
4	DAWSON. Peter Dawson, physician
5	McINTYRE David McIntyre, tailor	×

From the above it will be seen that there were two Candidates for Reeve and that James Miller, was voted for: Two candidates for Deputy Reeve and the vote is cast for Thomas Blezard; and there are five candidates for Councillors and the vote is cast for John Laing, James Hanlon, and D. McIntyre, re pectively.

A CROSS TO BE MADE.

It will be seen that the mark made is a cross, thus X. This is held to be the only legal mark, and hence electors should be careful to make a cross and no other mark whatever. No letter or letters, name or names, or part of a name should be made or attempted to be made, as some foolishly did in the Parliamentary Elections, thereby making the ballot a bad one, and loosing the vote.

WHERE TO MAKE THE CROSS.

It is held by some that the cross should be made in the space to the right of the name. It is better to make it IN THE SPACE, and about the middle of it, as putting it on the name or on a line, or near a ruling may cause it to be rejected as bad. If the voter should spoil his ballot while marking it, before he return it to the Returning Officer he can state that he has spoiled it, and ask for a new ballot which the Returning Officer will supply at once.

The framers of the act have made the same mistake in this act that is made in the act for the Parliamentary Elections, viz: In reference to the Counting of the ballots at the close of the poll. The ballot boxes should be returned Locked and sealed as when the ballots were put in to the clerk of the Municipality: on a certain day after the polling, the clerk and the candidates or their agents should meet and open the boxes and count the ballots. Then there would be but one set of judges as to good ballots, and as to rejected ballots, instead of five sets of judges, as there must be in case of five polling divisions in a municipality. Then in case of dispute as to legal or rejected votes, there might be an appeal to the County or some other Courtjudge without delay, and at a trifling cost, and have the whole matter disposed of in a short time, perhaps before the day for organizing the new Council.

TORY TACTICS.

Our readers will still remember the "fly sheet" used by the Conservatives in the East Riding, written by a Conservative, printed by a Conservative, and scattered broadcast by Conservatives.

There is no doubt that this 'King William" fly sheet was the work of a Conservative, and that they were printed by the hundred in the Review office. In North Wentworth another fly sheet was got out by Conservatives but in this case to injure Dr. McMahon who is a catholic. It purported to be an address of the Roman Catholic Clergy calling on good catholics to support Dr. McMahon. They hoped in this way to keep protestants from voting for the Reform Candidate—but the forgery was detected and failed. In West Toronto the "green dodger" was again resorted to, and to make it "take", put the Irish Canadian imprint at the bottom. in this Toronto case it succeeded The Liberal Torys are ready to use any trick to deceive the electors into supporting their candidate, which would not be done if men were left unbiased and free. Their respect for Catholics is about on a par with John Carnegie's, who, in Douro had his holy ire aroused because protestants were solicited to vote for a protestant. Yet this same Mr. Carnegie in South Monaghan appealed to the protestants there to vote for Mr. Scott and against CATHOLIC Frazer. Such appeals of unscrupulous demagogues to arouse the religious bigotry of drunken partizans ought to be condemned by every honest man, and we will be much disappointed if the people of Wentworth, Toronto and East Peterborough do not yet treat the moral cowards who use such unhallowed appeals to the worst passions, as they deserve. When Mr. Carnegie next appears in Douro and Asphodel, we trust he will use the same words he did at Gentreville, viz., PROTESTANTS OF SOUTH MONAGHAN, MAY I NOT APPEAL TO YOU TO VOTE FOR MR. SCOTT AGAINST CATHOLIC FRAZER. For which appeal Mr. Stratton administered a fitting rebuke. The result of all those frenzied appeals to save from annihilation a party that has disgraced and humiliated our Country may serve a purpose now, but will, here after bear bitter fruit for those who inaugurated it.

MAIL LOGIC

AVENT CATHOLIC VOTES AND CLERICAL INFLUENCE.

There is a penalty says the Mail against the latter (bribing,) and we trust that the election law will soon be amended so as to destroy the improper influence of the former, (The Clergy.)

This very same Mail which would prevent the Catholic Clergy interfering in elections, when they favor reform candidates, is silent when that influence is used to favor Conservatives, as in the East Riding of Peterborough Why does the Mail not include East Peterborough when enumerating places where clerical influences were used.

But did not John Carnegie court and solicit and woo that influence in 1872 and again in December 1874, and if so, why do the Conservatives find fault if that influence is not always used for them.

The Mail again says: Mr. Justice Keogh held "that their acts were corrupt, undue and improper;" and Mr. Justice Lawson held them as "improper, most unseemly, and undue:" and yet it was not improper, unseemly, or undue when courted by Mr. Carnegie and Mr. P. M. Grover.

The shoe now and then gets on the other foot, and then it is a poor fit. And when we couple with all this wooing Mr. Carnegie's speech at Centreville, when, rising to the highest pitch of his accustomed eloquence, he said; "Protestants of South Monaghan, may I not appeal to you to vote for Mr. Scott and against CATHOLIC Frazer."

All sober minded, honest men will say that such appeals to the passions, are "most unseemly and improper," and would not be resorted to by honest men, and dare not be used only with men too drunk to have a keen sense of honor and fair dealing.

Indeed, if we mistake not, the editor of the Mail waited on Archbishop Lynch at the approach of the 1874 75 elections to solicit his favor. Then why find fault when that favor is manifested perhaps for another.

We hope to hear Mr. Carnegie's eloquent voice in Douro at another election, and then no doubt he will be honest enough to repeat his Centreville speech.

A MILDMAY man named Kenny disappeared lately leaving his wife and child, and has gone to some more congenial spot in company with a girl named Arnold with whom he had been making love for some time.

HALTON ELECTION TRIAL.

The Petition against Mr. McCraney, Member for Halton, was dismissed on Saturday. The Conservatives have to pay all costs. Dr. Ogden and a man named I. H. Campbell, both of Wellington Square, are to be reported for corrupt practices, both are Conservatives. J. H Campbell offered to control one hundred Orangemen for $100, and Dr. Ogden tried to bring this about. This is the way they manage things when they can.

The Judge characterized the above transaction as a gross outrage. The evidence of Parke, Finellinz, Robbins and Mr. Dougall he said were unworthy of belief, as well as that of several others summoned to do duty for Conservative liberality. It now appears that some of three witnesses to whom Mr. Barber never spoke, swore to being canvassed for Mr. McCraney by Mr. Barber, and Robbins gave evidence of having taken $10 to vote for the Conservative candidate. These are the kind of witnesses used to unseat Mr. McCraney—but we need not refer to Halton, we have West Peterborough before us.

GUIBORD'S BURIAL.

Guibord's remains have at last been interred in the Catholic Cemetery, after a contest of six years to prevent it. There was no trouble, the Volunteers and Police were in force, but their presence served to prevent any display on the part of those opposed to the burial. M. Doutre must have more than ordinary perseverance, and has secured for himself a monument more lasting that brass. As history will record his acts when a monument might be overwhelmed by an earthquake. The immense sarcophagus intended to be used, was set aside by request of the Mayor of Montreal, but the coffin is surrounded by cement and scraps of iron and tin, which form a composition as hard as any stone. It now is of little consequence what may be done with his dust. The immortal part is beyond the blessings or curses of puny man.

WRECKED.—The ship Calcutta, from Quebec to Liverpool, was wrecked on Gross Ilse on Sunday last, 23 persons lost. A large number of wrecks are reported from various quarters.

MUTINY.—The crew of the British ship Lennie, Captain Hatfield, from Antwerp, for New York, mutinied on the 31st of October and killed the master, mate and boatswain.

TORONTO—Mr. Angus Morrison will oppose Mayor Metcalf in the approaching election for civic honors. Mr. Metcalf lent himself to the Conservatives, and they are about to repay him by deserting him.

THE John A. McDonnell who acted as Clerk of the Court during the Election Trials in East and West Peterborough is said to be the author of those green placards got up in Toronto They will cost Mr. Robinson his seat yet.

RETALIATION—On Saturday night after the rejoicing over John B. Robinson's election, as a Drum and Fife Band was proceeding home, they were the recipients of a volley of stones from a crowd on the street. Were Orangemen in their proper place with fife and drum rejoicing over the defeat of one protestant by another.

READ. MARK. LEARN.—Within a few months we have given our readers various opinions of leading preachers in the different churches, viz, a sermon of Father Burke, an address of Archbishop Lynch, a sermon of Rev. Mr. Fish, and one by the Rev. D. J. Macdonell; we intended giving a pastoral letter of the Bishops of Lower Canada, etc., but it has got mislaid. In this issue we give several letters and articles bearing on matters in the Anglican Church. As church matter are at present attracting a good deal of attention, we intend giving from time to time any thing of importance that we can, irrespective of denominationalism and without endorsing or condemning. Let the people be the judges.

TURKEY.—This national relict of semi barbarianism is again in trouble. Several of the provinces are in insurrection. The central power is not strong enough to command respect. She seeks aid but this is promised on conditions of reforming abuses. Austria has been invited by the other powers to draw a scheme of the reforms demanded. With her troubles comes also repudiation. This it is thought will relieve English Capitalists of very large amounts. The sick man is not improving much it would appear, and little improvement need be expected until reformation of abuses in the state be effected.

CONSERVATIVES AND THEIR FRIENDS.—In the trial of Mr. McCraney in Halton, the Robbins family were again in Court and swore almost verbatim the same oath as in the Barber trial. It is generally belived in that county that the Robbins were not over exact in their depositions, and it now turns out that the old man admits having a bad memory, and that his evidence refers to what took place in the Barber trial. He also says he took money in this election to vote for Mr. Clay the Conservative candidate. The contest in this Halton case like the West Riding of Peterborough case seems to be based on the most doubtful kind of evidence, and the witnesses selected from a class pliable in the hands of Liberal Conservatives.

THE SCHOOL LAW.

The Journal of education for November reminds Trustees of their duties in carrying out the School Law, especially in reference to "Free Schools and compulsary education." Many clauses of the law are neglected or ignored, but if carried out would furnish statistics invaluable in arriving at an understanding of results, where the law is duly attended to, and where it is not. As the season for taking the School census is approaching it may not be amiss to give those portions of the act relating to the duties of Trustees.

RIGHT OF CHILDREN TO ATTEND SCHOOL.

156. Every child from the age of seven to twelve years inclusive, shall have the right to attend some school, or be otherwise educated, for four months in every year; and any parent or guardian who does not provide that every child between ages aforesaid under his care shall attend some school, or be otherwise educated, as thus of right declared, shall be subject to the penalties hereinafter provided by this Act;

(a) Nothing herein shall be held to require any Roman Catholic to attend a Public School, or require a Protestant to attend a Roman Catholic School.

CENSUS OF CHILDREN SHALL BE TAKEN.

157. It shall be the duty of the trustees of every Public School,

(1) To ascertain before the 31st day of December in every year, through the assessors, collector, or some other person to be appointed for that purpose, and paid by them, the names, ages, and residences of all the children of school age in their school section, division, or municipality, as the case may be—distinguishing those children between the age of seven and twelve years inclusive—who have not attended any school.

NOTIFICATION TO PARENTS—CONSEQUENCES OF NEGLECT.

158. It shall further be the duty of the trustees of every Public School:—

(1) In case, after having been so notified, the parents or guardians, of such children continue to neglect or violate the provisions of the said one hundred and fifty-sixth section of this Act;

(2) It shall be the further duty of the trustees to impose a rate-bill on such parents or guardians not exceeding one dollar per month for each of their children not attending school; or,

(3) To make complaint of such neglect or violation to a magistrate having jurisdiction in such cases, provided by the one hundred and fifty-ninth section of this Act, and to deliver to said magistrate a statement of the names and residences of the parents or guardians of such children.

DUTY OF POLICE AND OTHER MAGISTRATES IN THE MATTER.

169. It shall be competent for the police magistrate of any city or town, and for any magistrate in any village, township or town where there is no police magistrate, to investigate and decide upon any complaint made by the trustees, or any person authorized by them, against any parent or guardian for the violation of the next preceding sections of this Act, and to impose a fine not exceeding five dollars for the first wilful offence, and double that penalty for every subsequent offence: which fine and penalty shall be enforced as provided in the one hundred and seventy-seventh section of this Act;

(a) The police magistrate or justice shall not be bound so, but may, in his discretion, forego to issue the warrant for the imprisonment of the offender as in said section is provided.

160. It shall be the duty of the police magistrate, or any magistrate, where there is no police magistrate, to ascertain as far as may be, the circumstances of any party complained of for not sending his child or children to some school, or otherwise educating him or them, and whether the alleged violation has been wilful, or has been caused by extreme poverty, or ill health, or too great a distance from any school; and in any of the latter cases the magistrate shall not award punishment, but shall report the circumstances to the trustees of the rural school section or division in which the offence has occurred.

The Journal adds:—

It will thus be seen that the duty of the Trustees of every Public School in regard to the 'Compulsory' provisions of the School Act, is imperative in itself, ann that is of a three-fold character:—

First.—They are required to employ a suitable person to take a school census of the section, division or municipality, once a year.

Second—The person who takes the census must distinguish in the census all the names of the children who have not been sent to school or who have not been otherwise educated during those four months, and answer for such neglect; or the must

Third.—The Trustees must either:

(1) Summon before a magistrate the parent or guardian of the children who have not been sent to school or who have not been otherwise educated during those four months, to answer for such neglect, or they must,

(2.) Impose and collect a rate-bill of not more than one dollar per child for every month of neglect.

We have thus pointed out the duty which the law imposes upon every public school corporation in giving effect to the compulsory provisions of the newly consolidated School Act. We trust that they will not fail to perform this duty faithfully and effectively. Should they refuse or neglect to do so, they will render themselves personably liable at the suit of any ratepayer, for the amount of money lost to the school section or division, either from the non attendance at the school of the absent children, or from the failure of the Trustees to impose and collect the prescribed rate bill for such non attendance.

We may mention that Messrs. Copp, Clark & Co., of this city, have provided, at a small cost, blank forms of the required census returns.

Rev. D. J. Macdonnell's Case.

The Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, of Toronto, having been cited to appear before his fathers and brethern in the Church to explain the views embodied in a recent sermon which favoured the Universalists' doctrine on the question of salvation and his statements made at the opening of Knox College regarding the Westminister Confession of Faith, considerable interest will be manifested in the result, which will not be confined to Presbyterian circles. No doubt Mr. Macdonnell will be subjected to a rigorous examination, and if he cannot satisfy those of his brethern who will not permit of a hair's breadth deviation from the critical literal interpretation of the Confession it is quite possible that he may, of necessity, be obliged to change his relationship to the Church. Mr. Macdonnell is perhaps the ablest of the younger ministers of the Church to which he belongs and therefore his present position excites considerable attention. The entertainment by him of views antagonistic to those taught by the Church, and the propogation of them from the pulpit, is something which the Synod of Toronto cannot afford to regard with impunity. His citation to answer for his views is only what might have been expected. Whatever may be the attainments of a minister, or however popular he may be as a preacher or pastor, a Church cannot permit him to openly teach doctrines at a variance with its theological tenets, a belief in which is required from those appointed to exercise the functions of the ministry. A clearly defined statement of belief is an absolute necessity in connection with the existence of any ecclesiastical organization, otherwise doctrinal cohesion would be something unknown in the Churches. It cannot be expected, therefore, that when a minister undertakes to sap the foundation of a particular article of belief, regarded as fundamental by his church, his action will be allowed to pass without official cognizance being taken of it. Compared with his general statement at Knox College in regard to the Westminister Confession, the sermon preached by Mr Macdonnell favouring the theory of ultimate universal salvation is of infinitely greater importance, and is not improbable that the views contained in that sermon will form the gravamen of the charges preferred against him when he is called upon to make his explanations. No Church is more unequivocal in stating the doctrine of an eternal hereafter—of happiness in the one case and misery in the other—than the Presbyterian; and it is therefore only natural that when a minister of that Church favors a theory diametrically opposed to the doctrine taught by the Church, regarded as of great importance—and by arguments present his views to his congregation, that he should be called to account by those who have it in their power to deal with his case. Of course we do not presume to enter into the merits of the question, leaving that to theological disputants: but viewing the matter from an outside standpoint we are certainly of the opinion, for the reasons stated, that the Church is quite justified in dissenting from Mr. Macdonnel a clearly defined statement of his views.—Kingston News.

A New Feature in Electioneering.

We take the subjoined from the Montreal Witness, and who will say, after reading it, that there is not urgent necessity of an act to abolish canvassing, or restrit it to the candidate and his one agent. In spite of this ingenious plan Mr. White was again defeated:

SIR,—I thought that the genus politician had hitherto exhausted all his ingenuity in the exercise of his craft, but I was mistaken It remained for the magnificent intellect of Mr. White to strike a new note on the gamut of electioneering tactics. A certain Roman emperor once said that his little son ruled the State. When asked to explain, he remarked that he (the emperor) was governed by his wife, but the boy governed his mother, and was therefore greater than himself. Our classical "Tom" must have been thinking of this lately, and determined to profit by the lesson. So he engaged a young man of smiling countenance, and complacent bearing, to visit private families at anhour when the lords are absent on business, and enquire for the lady of the house. He accosts her in his blandest manner, begs to be permitted to present the dear little boy at her side with some sweetmeats, and then, toying with his perfumed pocket-handkerchief, asks her, with his head coaxingly set in a lateral poise, if she cannot prevail on her husband to vote for Mr. White. This is the little game worthy of Mr. White and in due accord with his antecedents. My house was honored yesterday afternoon in this fashion, and the facts, as related by my wife, afforded no little amusement. Now, if permitted to make a suggestion, I would respectfully intimate that Mr. White might improve on this brilliant idea. At present it seems to me somewhat lopsided. Let him balance it up, and give it perfect symmetry, by engaging the handsomest young ladies in the city to canvass the electors. I venture to surmise that this policy would be more direct and effective than Mr. White's original plan. Let him try it, and he may possibly gain the vote of,

Yours very truly,
A REFORMER.

ANOTHER SYSTEM OF FRAUD:—The following item is told by the Hamilton Times:—A wire clothes-line agent called on a well to-do farmer in Beverly and tried to sell him a wire clothes line. The farmer declined, and the stranger made an offer to give him a line if he (the farmer) would give his name as a reference to the use in the vicinity. He gave his name on a slip of paper presented by the stranger, and which was apparently carelessly folded and in two weeks from that time received an invoice for wire amounting to $100 as per order. The carelessly folded paper proved to be an order made to a third party, and the best he could do in settlement was to pay $30 to be released from the order or take the wire and pay the bill.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—During the past season the Government of Mr. Mowat has made considerable grants of money to improve the roads in the country north of this village, and on the whole the money has been well and wisely expended. Last Wednesday Mr. Elsworth, the Government Inspector, made his last trip to the north country for the season, and expressed himself quite satisfied with the expenditure made by Mr. Robinson on the Monk Road. It is not generally known that the Government have this summer finished the construction of the Buckhorn Road, and a buggy can now be driven due north of Peterborough to Haliburton over the new line The Government deserves every credit for the liberal view it has taken of the requirements of that vast territory to the north, of which Bobcaygeon is the natural outlet.

A very pleasant evening was brought to a close by singing the anthem entitled "How lovely is Zion."—COM.

WHITE'S BOOT AND SHOE FACTORY, PETERBORO'.—While in Peterboro' last week we were conducted over Mr. Samuel White's Boot and Shoe Factory, which we found very much more extensive than we anticipated. On the lower flat is located the store, which contains an immense variety of every class of goods, all of which are made on the premises, with the exception of the cheapest lines, and as these can be bought cheaper in the Toronto and Montreal markets than they can be produced in Peterboro', Mr. White wisely buys them. These goods, however he does not recommend, as instead of being cheap they are in reality dear in the end. In the rear of the store are a number of mysterious looking machines that one unfamiliar with, the business cannot understand how they can be brought into use in the production of a simple a looking article as a neatly made boot, but we presume they are made by skilful hands to perform an important part in the work, or they would not look so well polished and worn. Up stairs, a great many more machines, are constantly in motion, several sewing machines, doing beautiful work, being embraced in the number. Here also are separate cupboards for the different styles and sizes of work, and we were very much surprised at the many specimens of really excellent work shown us All the latest styles from the most delicate slippers for ladies to the finest "double deckers" for gentlemen, with soles that one would think would wear forever, are all made in this room, and while the latter appear heavy and clumsy, they are really as light as the ordinary double soled boot. Mr. White's work is fully equal if not superior to the best we have ever seen, and we are glad to learn that the extensive patronage extended to him has become so wide—many of his customers residing in Toronto and all along the front to Montreal—that he contemplates extending his premises and putting in additional machinery at an early day. Mr. White's enterprise is very commendable, an we trust his most sanguine expectations may be realized. He certainly deserves well as the hands of the people of Peterboro and vicinity, for through his close application to business, and the superior quality of his goods, he has been enabled to employ a very much greater number of hands than are usually found in much more pretentious establishments in our largest cities.—Port Hope Times.

"KNOW THE OPPORTUNITY."

The grim monster, Death, was stealthily approaching. I could almost feel his hot fiery breath upon my forehead. My faithless goddess, Hygeia, had utterly deserted me. Only now and then would Morpheus befriend me; but on this auspicious day, he had designed to moisten my eyelids with heavenly ambrosia; and I slept. As I slept, behold! I had a dream! I thought I was roaming upon foreign soil whither my physician had sent me to recover my health. I was in a great metropolis—one of the grand marts of the world. In one of my strolls I chanced to meet a man who had in his hand a handsomely-bound volume, entitled "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," and who said that he was an agent for the sale of the book. The title was such a novel one that I was impeled to give the work a causal notice. As I hastily glanced over its pages, I observed that it contained treaties not commonly found in medical works. But I had too many times been hoaxed by appearances, and I determined that I would have nothing to do with it. A voice within me, like a faithful mentor, whispered, "Know thy opportunity; in that book is thy salvation!" I began reasoning with myself. Although doubtful and distrustful, yet I put forth my hand to take the book, and, lo! the agent was gone! I was miserable. In my agony I awoke. Great drops of perspiration were upon my brow. By my bedside was a friend who had called during my slumber to see me. Said my friend, "I have brought with me a book, just published, which I though would interest you." One glance at the work, and I was assured it was "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Surely, this was the veritable book which I had seen in my dreams. My friend loaned me the work, and every day, as my strength per mitted, I perused its pages. Although it contained very interesting treaties on Biology, Cerebral Physiology, Human Temperaments, Nursing of the Sick etc., yet being an invalid, I was most interested in the subjects of diseases and Remedies. I believed that I had a liver affection, and yet more than one medical attendant had pronounced my disease Consumption, and that I would fall with the autumn leaves. In that book I found my symptoms perfectly portrayed. I was then confident that I had not deceived myself. I reasoned thus: "Any man who can so truthfully depict my feelings, and apparently understands my constitutional tendencies, must know just what my physical system demands. I will trust my case with Dr. Pierce. I will take his Golden Medical Discovery as recommended for my disease." The result is, that after having perseveringly followed his prescribed treatment, I once again enjoy the blessings of health. Therefore, I would say to the afflicted, "Know thy opportunity," and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.—QUE

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

[Correspondence to the Ottawa Times.]

DEAR SIR,—I have read the spalling statements contained in the communication from Luther II., entitled, 'Converts to Rome and Bishop Lewis.' These facts certainly afford matter for serious reflections on the part of Protestants but it may prove comforting to Luther II, and other like-mind with himself, to know that all the ministers of the Church of England are not going to Rome Now and then there is a brand plucked from the burning, but the following extract goes to show very plainly what the educating power is in the Church of England that leads so many of her clergy and laity to join the Roman Church; her Prayerbook is that power

The Guardian, of the 20th; Oct. ultimo, a Church of England journal, published in London, says:—"The Rev. George Chute, M. A., vicar of Mark at Drayton, in a sermon addressed to his parishioners on Sunday week, gave his reasons for his secession from the Church of England. He said: "I have always endeavoured to preach the true faith from the pulpit, the truth that is able to restore all things, to put a stop to idolatry, falsehood, fraud and treachery, and to put a stop to Popery, Sacramental, Ritualism and other wicked systems, invented by Satan. We know what Ritualism means. It means the defilement of your daughters, the seduction of your wives, and all the other evils which abound in the Continent. It is certain that that pulpit will hereafter be filled by one who will set forth doctrines the opposite of those I have set before you. If I preach the truth, the other's preaching must be error. One is God's truth the other is the devil's lie. Things have now come to that state in the Church of England that she has become apostate, and is in that state in reference to which the Lord says:—"Come ye out, and be separate from her, and be not partakers of her idolatry—her baptismal regeneration, her doctrine of the Real Presence, her prayers to the Virgin Mary, her intercession with the Pope. She is the very image of the beast, the very resemblance of Popery. The first thing that troubled my conscience in regard to my connection with the Church of England was the judgment in the case of Mr. Bennett. He wrote and published a book, setting forth the Transubstantiation—the changing of the bread and wine used in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper into the very flesh that grew upon the bones of Christ, and the very blood that flowed through His veins. This is idolatry to be abhorred by all Christian men. But now the doctrine is held by the great majority of the members of the Church of England. This is one of my reasons for deciding to sever myself from the Church of England; and I will never again occupy her pulpits or use her prayer-book after this night. THAT PRAYER BOOK IS FULL OF PAGES ON WHICH POPERY HANGS. What brought me finally to a decision to leave the Church was that utter constant care and watchfulness, I felt that I would rather cut off my hand than be present again at the rite of Confirmation in this Church. I could not bring children from 13 to 15 years of age for the Bishop to ask them, "Dost thou renounce the devil and all his works?" and hear the poor little children answer, "I will," or "I do." Oh, my friends! I could no longer be present at this awful lying falsehood patronized by an old Bishop and clergy, who have come to years of discretion. Oh, it is an awful apostasy to say they receive the Holy Ghost at the rite of Confirmation. What is the tendency of it? To bring every child in England up as a Ritualist; and therefore it is that I am compelled to relinquish my position in Church of England. I shall relinquish it in the Court of Chancery, and then I shall be free to preach where I like—in the streets of Market Drayton, or anywhere; and no Bishop can issue an injunction to stop me. I can preach all over the world if I like. I will well have no more tomb-stones with 'Jesus Mercy' brought on them."

The reverend gentleman concluded by appealing to his hearers to beware of Popish priests, and to hate them as persons who had slow poison in their pockets.

PROTESTANT.

Ottawa, Nov. 8, 1875.

CONVERTS TO ROME AND BISHOP LEWIS.

[Correspondence to the Ottawa Times.]

DEAR SIR,—In February, '74, Bishop Lewis delivered an address in this city on the "Schismatics" (as he was pleased to call us) of the the Reformed Episcopal Church, and wound up his address in the following words:—"It is just possible that they may be disappointed in the results of this schismatical attempt, and that thought perhaps by and by they may wish to retrace their steps, pride and a desire to maintain a character for consistency will stand like a flaming sword between them and their return, and so they may suffer dangerous downfall into Romanism—of infidelity." I should be very sorry indeed to say one unkind or disrespectful word of Bishop Lewis, but when sound Protestantism is at stake, and when a Bishop of the Church of England, who says he is not a Protestant, makes such an attack upon a body who desire to worship their Maker according to their conscience, and as their fathers did, he must excuse me if I should be a little severe in my remarks. His Lordship has turned out a "false prophet." Emmanuel Church, with its large and increasing congregation, does not betoken 'disappointment,' and I am quite sure none have a desire 'to retrace their steps,' and we have yet to see 'the flaming sword' and the 'down fall into Romanism.' But people who live in glass houses should not 'throw stones,' and that allusion to 'Mammasm' has not and will not be forgotten. It was far fetched, indeed, coming from such a source

Now how does this 'Protestant' stand at the present moment in the church of which his Lordship is a prelate? Let the following speak for itself from a late English paper;—

RECENT SECESSIONS TO ROME.

The Morning Post says:—"We fear that the boast which a Roman Catholic divine recently made with regard to secession to Rome is not altogether without solid foundation. A well-informed correspondent, professing to supply us with facts and figures, provides the following list of recent seceders. It certainly deserves consideration by our rulers, both in Church and State:—The Rev W M Hunnybun, M.B., and the Rev Vernay Cave-Brown-Cave, M.A., both of All Saints,' Margaret street; the Rev J R Madan, M.A., President of the Missionary College, Warminster; the Rev C R Berrow, B.A., of Liverpool; the Rev Alfred Newdigate, M.A., vicar of Kirk Hallam, Derby; the Rev Willis Nevens, of Southampton; Rev H J Pye, rector of Clinton Campville; the Rev George B Yard, M.A., (brother of Canon Yard, just elected Proctor in Convocation); the Rev John Higgins, B.A., curate to Prebendary Clarke, of Taunton; the Rev Septimus Anderson, M.A., student of christ Church and vicar of Market Harborough; Rev C A Moore, M.A., student of Christ Church; W M Adams, B.A.; Fellow of New College; Rev W C Robinson, M.A., also Fellow of New College, Oxford; Rev F Down and F M Wyndham, of St George's East; the Rev George Akers, of Malling Kent; the Rev Gordon Thompson, of Christ Church, Albany street; C Moncrieff Smith, of Cheltenham; the Rev Reginald Take, of St Mary's, Soho; the Rev M Tylee, of Oriel College; the Nerv Rev Dr Fortescue, (brother-in-law of Archbishop Tait); the Rev W Humdhrey, of Dundee; the Rev H T H Grantham, of Sliford; the Rev Lord Francis G G Osborne, of Elm; and the Rev R S Hawker, of Morwenstow."

Only a half of twenty-five clergymen of the Church' gone over in a body to the Church of Rome, and among them no less a personage than Tee Very Revd. Dr Fortescue, Brother-in law of the Archbishop of Canterbury! Cutting pretty close to the head of the Church, I fancy this will balance His Lordship's prophecy as regards the Schismatics,' which have never been fulfilled and is not likely to be

Again the public prints of to-day announce that at the opening of a new convent in Montreal, next week, no less than 'seven young Protestant girls' are to take the veil. Would Bishop Lewis inform us from what teaching this arises? Surely not from that of any of the noncomformist churches, and certainly not from the 'Schismatics,' and some might say, not from the teaching or preaching of 'The Church.' Surely it will not be argued that the twenty-five clergymen above named have been preaching Protestant doctrine all along from their pulpits, teaching it to the children in the Sunday School, and all of a sudden saw the error of their ways and went over to the Church of Rome; 'Tis preposterous to dream of such a thing, and the Church of Rome will in the future gather the fruit from the seed those worthies have sown in the shape of lay converts to that church. And are not clergymen of the same stamp, among us in Canada, in this very diocese. One has already gone over, others would follow if they possessed the moral courage to do so, and its a pity they do not possess it, for the church would be well rid of them. But what are parents about, who have children attending Sunday School? We be hear loud complaints of Protestant children being sent to convents for their education, but I boldly state that there is not the same danger there of their being converted as there is from the preaching of some of the clergy of the Church of England and the books and teaching of many of their Sunday Schools.

I observe by a late Church of England family newspaper, published in London, England, that His Lordship Bishop Lewis preached at the 'Stoke-upon-Trent Church Congress,' in the early part of October. The paper named says:—"The Ritualists were not so well represented as on some past occasions. Yet if clerical opinions be judged by the style of dress, especially the shape of the hat, there were evidently many gentleman of the advanced school. Nothing, perhaps, has changed so much within the last few years as the garb and head gear of the clergy, which it has been attempted to approximate to the fashion of the foreign priests of the Church of Rome. The length of the garment, and the broadshrimmed, low crowned hat, generally suggest an affection of the sacerdotal cave The countenances of some of these men indicate with remarkable accuracy the air of mystery which they throw over their sacred calling. The object of the Congress was union, and Bishop Selwyn, in his address charged the religious press with the responsibility for the disunited and disjointed condition of the Church. One of the papers replies: 'We beg to assure Bishop Selwyn that the press represents—it does not create—public opinion in this respect. The neglect of solemn duty by the statesmen who have ruled the country, and the prelates who have governed the Church during the last fifty years, has brought division into every parish, and strife into every household: and it is not possible now to 'prohesy smooth things,' or to cry 'peace, peace,' for verily there is no peace. Romanizers are bent on Romanizing, and thank God Protestants are bent on protesting, and their can be no Union unless there be concord—no cooperation between men who are loyal to Christ, and men whose supreme idea of loyalty is submission to the Church.' And so say we of the Rev formed Episcopal Church.

A LITTLE TALK WITH JESUS.

A little talk with Jesus, how it smoothes the rugged road;
How it seems to help me onward! when I faint to death my head
When my heart is crushed with sorrow, and my eyes with tears are dim,
There's comfort and yield me comfort like a little talk with Him.

I tell Him of my weary, and I take my sin to be my friend;
That I am daily, hourly longing for home up in the heaven;
And he knows me as one sorrow, in terms of tenderest love,
"I am coming soon to take thee to my happy home above."

Ah! then is what I am wanting, His lovely face to see;
And (I'm not afraid to say it) I know He's wanting me
He gave His life a ransom to make me all His own,
And He can't forget His promise, to me His purchased one.

I know the way is dreary to yonder far-off clime,
But a little talk with Jesus will drive away the time;
And yet the more I know Him, and all His grace explore,
Dearly will the longing to know him more and more.

I rose it, if it without him, nor would I if I could;
He is my daily portion, my medicine, and my food.
He's altogether lovely, none can with him compare.
The chief among ten thousand, the fairest of the fair.

So I'll wait a little longer, till His appointed time;
And glory in the knowledge that such a hope is mine;
Then in my Father's dwelling where "many mansions be,"
I'll sweetly talk with Jesus, and he shall talk with me.

THE CONDEMNED CONVICTS.

We clip the following from Monday's Mail:

On Friday last Mr. Frazer, of the firm of Warmoll & Frazer, visited Arthur Paul Davis and Olive Davis, the condemned convicts in the gaol, for the purpose of conferring with them on the subject of the petitions that are to be presented to the Executive in their behalf. A very largely signed petition has arrived from Rochester on behalf of Mrs Davis, and one recommending it to the favorable notice of the Government is to be circulated in the city for the purpose of receiving signatures. A petition in favour of Davis himself is talked of but whether it receives the support of the citizens remain to be seen. Mr. Frazer found Davis in a neatly furnished cell on the ground floor of one of the wings of the gaol. He was sitting without his coat reading the Bible intently. Mrs. Davis was seated at her evening meal in her cell on the third story of the gaol when she was visited. She appeared perfectly resigned to her fate and with little hopes of a reprieve. In fact they were both advised not to expect it, but rather to give their minds entirely to thoughts as to their future. They both refuse to recive visitors, with the exception of the clergymen and the City Missionary.

THE PEEL MURDER.

(From the Guelph Mercury.

We stated on Tuesday that white, who lies in Guelph Gaol under sentence of death for the murder of his wife, had confessed his guilt to Mr. Taylor, the turnkey of the gaol. To-day we waited on the condemned criminal, in order to give him an opportunity, if he chose, of making his confession public. He at once expressed his desire to do so, and in the presence of the Rev Mr. Ball, and Mr. Taylor, made the following statement, which is taken from his own lips.

White was born in the states. When he came to Canada he first lived in St. Catharines, and some twenty-five years ago moved into Peel Township. He afterwards removed to Owen Sound, but last Fall returned to Peel. He has been married about fourteen years, and has five children. He, to some extent, blames his sister-in-law for first seeking to induce his late wife, the murdered woman, to leave him. Their married life had been fairly pleasant, sometimes little 'spats,' as he called them, but no serious quarrel. Some time ago she talked to him about going to the States, when he would ask her reasons for so doing, and said that surely she would not leave him and their family. He had no thought that she was unfaithful to him, but he noticed that she began to have a liking for Peter Wilson. When she spoke several times of going away, he would say that she would surely never go to live with Wilson, that this would be adultery.

Last spring, during the season of planting potatoes, they had talk of this kind, though she had first spoke of leaving in Winter. He went to Wilson's one day when they were planting potatoes, and Wilson said he would sell prisoner all he had for $390, as he wanted to go to the States. White said he would not give that figure, and after Wilson left he began to think what he had said, and spoke to his wife about it. She kind of laughed it off, and no more was said at that time. He still kept the matter revolving in his mind, however, and more than once would refer it, and ask his wife if she wanted to get rid of him. She would take his (Wilson's) part, and make excuses for him when he (White) told her he was going after another woman, and said she did not believe it. She threatened to tell Wilson what he had said about him, and that he had called Wilson a whoremaster. I said to her that if she did so it would not be good for him. White kept brooding over these things, and the feeling gained on his mind that his wife did not care for him. One time she got mad and said if she had $10 she would leave him. No more was said about the matter at that time which was shortly before the tragedy took place.

At the time of flax pulling White and she worked at Mr. White's, a Scotchman, on the 4th con. Peel. The second day she did not go, and told a brother that the reason I pulled White's flax was because it was close to Wilson's to prevent them meeting. He had been told that she said so, and that he was jealous of Wilson.

A flax bee was held shortly after at the time he was working for Farr. He asked Farr to get away about 5 o'clock, on the day in question, stating that he wanted to go to the church, but in reality to go to the bee. Went down to the bee. On the way met his wife, who had been at Wilson's whitewashing his house. He asked her if she was going to get some meat, and she said no, and she went home. After a while she and her brother, Smith, came over to the bee. Wilson was also there. He noticed that Wilson tried always to get near her, and ahead of him, and that they talked and whispered together. They did this more than once. He thought a good deal about this, and that they did not require to be so much together then, as they had a good change to get up a plot, if they were inclined, while she was whitewashing at his house. They went to get supper at Johnsen's house about 10 p.m. Wilson wanted to be about her all the time. He (White) had not then any murderous feeling towards her. They started after supper to go home, when the brother-in-law and Wilson. Prisoner and his wife walked ahead, and on the way he asked her how she got along that day at wilson's, and whether Armstrong was helping her. She said no, she did all herself. White said, she must have done mighty good. Asked if Wilson paid her, and she said no. Asked if he was going to pay her, and she said, 'Never mind that.' The two walked along, when Smith came up. She was then a little ahead of us. When Smith left we walked hard to get home. I was vexed at the way she treated her, and said to myself 'you won't do it any more.' After bidding Smith good night, I made up my mind to kill her. We came along to the corner, and I said I was glad we had got so far as I was tired. She kept on a little way ahead of me on the way to the house. When we got to the fence, near the house, she got over first, and I followed. I took a stick of black ash that I had laid at the fence on the morning before going to the bee, and followed her. I left the stick there for the purpose of striking her if I made up my mind to do it, Am not sure if I said anything to her before I struck her. Came up to her and struck her with the stick on the left side. She fell and said, 'Oh! Henry, you have killed me.' I asked her then, 'Will you go and abuse me as you have done?' She said, 'No, Henry. I won't.' I said, 'Oh, yes, you will.' I then struck her two or three times. She muttered something while I was striking her, but I could not tell what she said. I struck her about the head Did not stay long after I had done so, but picked her up and said to myself 'if she is not dead she will soon be.' Did not see any blood on her then. She said nothing, but was breathing. No motion of her arms or body. Carried her to the well, and threw her into it—head foremost. The body might have struck the rails about the well, but can't tell. After I threw her in I went to the house, got in at the window, and asked the boy Henry if there was any water in the house. He said there was. Got the pail, threw the water out of it, went to the well and threw the pail into it, to make believe she had gone there for water, and had fallen in. Then called out to Farr, whose house was near, for God sake to come over, as she had fallen into the well. He did not hear, and then I ran over and brought him, and we lifted the body out of the well. I brought the stick that I struck her with to the house and threw it down in the yard. Next day when the woman came to wash the body, and wanted a fire, I took the stick and split it, and put it in the stove, but the weather being hot, the fire was put out, and I started a fire outside, and cut up the other half of the stick to make that fire. (This stick that was found in the stove was the piece that had the blood on it.) The rag found with blood on it was the one used to wipe her mouth after being brought into the house. Felt very weak and excited when coming with Farr to the well, and remorse began to seize me. Would have given all the world then if I could have brought her back to life. Would suffer anything to restore her.

The above is the condemned man's story, put in consecutive form. He seems to be honest in his repentance, but his story in some respects lacks coherance, whether through ignorance and want of intellect, or through design we cannot tell. We are inclined, however to think that the statement as given above is in the main true.

The prisoner spends nearly all his time in reading the Scriptures, and freely expressed his remorse and repentance for the great crime he has committed. The Rev. Mr Ball is unceasing in his attention to the condemned man. Mr. Taylor, the turnkey, also does all for him that the law will allow.

It will be seen from the above statement that jealousy was at the bottom of the crime, and this feeling rankling in White's mind, prompted him to commit a crime, the nature of which—with all its terrible consequences—he did not seem to understand.

Laughing Children.

Give me the boy or girl who smiles as soon as the first of the morning sun glance in through the window, gay, happy, and kind. Such a boy will be fit to "make up" into a man—at least, when contrasted with the sullen, morose crabbed fellow, who snaps and snarls like a surly cur, or growls and grunts like a a hyena from the moment he opens his angry eyes till he is "confronted" by his breakfast. Such a girl, other things being favorable, will be good material to aid in gladdening some comfortable home, or to refine, civilize, tame, and humanize a rude brother, making him gentle, affectionate and loveable. It is a feast to even look at such a joy-inspiring girl, and see the smiles flowing, so to speak, from the parted lips, displaying a set of clean, well-brushed teeth, looking almost the personification of beauty and goodness, singing, and as merry as the birds that commenced their morning long before the lazy boys dreamed that the sun was approaching and about to pour a whole flood of light and warmth upon the earth.

A ROYAL SCANDAL.

A terrible story comes from Spain, which, if true, destroys all hope of a decent government under King Alfonso, and proves that he is following in the footsteps of his infamous mother. The facts are told by a Madrid correspondent of the Boston Journal as follows:—

The King and the Duke of Sexto have been corrupting the wife and daughter of an officer in the army, whose home is third or fourth door from Mr. Cushing's. He was in the north, fighting, but hearing of the King's frequent visits at his house, he came suddenly to the city, and entering his home late at night, he found the king and the duke in the house, he shot at the king but missed him, and was at once shot dead by the duke of Sexto, who was behind him. The police heard the pistol shots and came running to the house, but were sent off about their business. The body was given to a night watchman, who carried it, nobody knows where, and is now receiving $400 a month. The maid servant, who was an eye-witness of the murder, disappeared the next day—some say she was assassinated, but she had time to tell her lover. When he found she was disposed of, he hid himself for some days, but ventured out at last, and was found dead in the street, stabbed one morning. The judge before whom the case of the first murder would have come, being a firm and incorruptable man, was murdered and the report given out that he had committed suicide. None of the papers dare to comment upon the facts, and the courts are silent and inactive, although the story has gone privately from Lisbon to Barcelona, Canovas del Castillo, the prime minister, has resigned, and a new ministry has been formed in a liberal direction, with the hope of warding off a revolution. The young king is said to be surrounded by those who strive to govern him by pandering to his passions, as they did to those of young Amadeus, who was thus ruined, and the peace of his family destroyed. The whole government, from head to foot, is pervaded with licentiousness and corruption.

VINEGAR BITTERS

OBJECTS PROMISED PROGRESS VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and battery grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Sieves supplied a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the scientional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the history of medicine has anything been so generally and unreservedly relied upon for the cure of so many different forms and varieties of pulmonary disease as has the CHERRY PECTORAL. Having been for a series of years, and in almost every section of the country, tested by the severest trials, and by the most critical observers, it has earned a character and reputation for the cure of the above class of complaints which establishes it, as the most reliable protector against the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs that can be given for incipient [illegible] the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs that can be given for incipient [illegible] prevision against sudden attacks [illegible] should be kept at hand in every family, and physicians are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, and should be provided with the antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption [illegible] is incurable, still great numbers of cases which [illegible] as confirmed consumption, and even [illegible] settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health, by the CHERRY PECTORAL. No compound in the [illegible] over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, has the most obstinate of these yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the CHERRY PECTORAL they subside and disappear.

Sleepers and Public Speakers find protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by it.

Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses, is generally found sufficient to relieve the most ordinary Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and Influenza. We do not publish the certificates of these, because the public have a right to demand more than assurance that the article they are asked to purchase is what it is represented to be. The CHERRY PECTORAL is known to be what we represent it, and we do not deem it necessary to advertise what is universally admitted.

Ayer's Ague Cure

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, miasmatic, marsh, and other poisons.

As the name implies, it does [illegible] fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, nor any other mineral substance whatever, it is in no way injurious to the most delicate constitution, but acts in harmony with the laws of life, and with such unerring certainty that no one need suffer from the ague after a single dose has been taken. Those who have been poisoned by quinine, or reduced to the verge of the grave by the use of calomel, will find in this remedy a pleasant and speedy antidote for the disease, and a perfect restorative of health. Travelling through miasmatic districts is rendered safe by the occasional use of this Cure. Every one should have it by them, as it is the best protector against sickness ever tested by the people of the Mississippi Valley, where the Ague prevails as a scourge.

For Liver Complaint, and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Pulsation of the Heart, Pains in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is unrivalled as a preventive where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills make him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

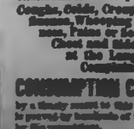
Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.



Perhaps no one medicine is more generally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pills. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always; that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and are need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Pulsation of the Heart, Pains in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change these complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is unrivalled as a preventive where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well often finds that a dose of these Pills make him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 25, 1875.

CLEMENCY.

The case of Dr. and Mrs. Davis, sentenced to be hanged on the 23rd of December, for the murder of Jane Vaughan Gilmour, is attracting some considerable attention. Large memorials have been sent to the proper authorities to get her reprieved, but not a word of pity is manifested for Davis. It is useless to try abortionists if when found guilty, punishment adequate to the crime be not meted out to the guilty party. The only grave question is, what should be considered adequate punishment? A professed abortionist is a murderer of the most hard hearted type. The drunkard who way lays and pounces upon his victim, does so under the influence of strong drink and temporary excitement, amounting to insanity, for the time being, at least. The highway robber, who takes the life of an unsuspecting victim, rarely does so, unless to protect himself from being detected, or perhaps in self defence. It is the man's money, not his life, in the first instance, that is sought, and few persons undertake such acts until completely cast off from society, or induced by want brought on by dissipation. Davis, however, had no necessity to kill for a living, his profession, hon orably followed would have afforded him a comfortable living. He, it appears, was in the habit of taking intoxicating liquors, and to this, in some degree, may be attributed the sad end to which he is approaching. It is difficult to imagine a man in his sober senses so degraded as to become a professed abortionist. The only ameliorating circumstance connected with this horrid crime, is, that the victim was a consenting party to a large extent. Under her circumstances, this is not to be wondered at, but his superior knowledge and his position to afford wise advice gave him the means of preventing her from submitting to an ordeal that must end in murder, perhaps of herself, if not, at least of the offspring. He therefore willingly and for reward, performed an act that ended in a double murder, and perhaps this was not the second or third or tenth unfortunate victim. If royal clemency is to be extended, it should only be to an extent that may fully meet the ends of justice, and tend to prevent others following in Dr. Davis's tracks. It is said that Mrs. Davis may escape capital punishment, but punished she will be, and that commensurate with the part she took in the horrible affair. Perhaps before the final result of the trial, they will make known the name of the procurer. He cannot be considered free from blame in the matter, and to make his name known might be a deterrent to others too ready to act the same part, if by doing so they could escape the responsibility of their errors.

THE BALLOT ACTS.

In the daily press, the incompleteness of the new Acts, both Parliamentary and Municipal, is being discussed. That the great and radical change from the old way of voting to that of the Ballot could be effected without some little errors, or irregularities creeping in, would be too much to expect. The working of any new Act brings to light errors in detail, if any, and points out where changes are still required to secure the proper carrying out of the leading intention of the Act. In voting in towns and cities some change in the Act is necessary in order to prevent votes being cast twice by persons whose zeal is stronger than their sense of right. The law provides that for Parliamentary purposes certain young men who wish to be taxed for $400 income, by applying to the Assessor can have his name put on the Roll, but the Municipal Ballot Act does not provide for putting his name on the Municipal Voters' List, and hence does not provide for his voting at Municipal Elections. Nor does the law provide that a non-resident tenant can vote in Municipal matters although paying fifty to one hundred or even two hundred dollars of taxes on rented property. This is certainly a grievance, as well as the other cases referred to, which should be amended, when the act comes up for revision. In the revision of the Assessment Act which is also being petitioned for, statute labor should be done away with, according to the present manner, and calculated according to property, the amount thereof to be annually determined by the Township Councils as all other expenses are determined according to the necessities of the Township or the state of the roads therein. The Municipal Councils should be better judges of the amount of statute labor required than the Legislature.

DISQUALIFICATION.

The Globe of the 17th inst., contains a leading article in part recommending special Legislation in the case of those who have been disqualified by the Judges for corrupt practices. All will feel that the law has fallen with undue severity on some of the gentlemen interested in such Legislation, and it may be said that, taking all the circumstances into consideration, the offences were not of a nature to call for such severe penalties. The law however should be permitted to take its course. It would be unwise to Legislate one session to punish corruption and bribery, and then next session pass special acts to relieve those found guilty of malfeasance in the elections. The character of the witnesses on whose testimony the parties have been disqualified, it is argued, lead to the belief that it is too bad to cause men to suffer through perjury, or extreme pressing of the evidence, with men who could not resist the temptation of putting in a word in favor of one side, or the other, according to political proclivities. The correct way would be to punish those who could be proved false witnesses, and in this way deter a repetition. But to repeal the penal clauses or to pass an act to rob them of their power and influence, appears to be a piece of very doubtful policy, to say the best of it. To err on the side of mercy, may be considered safe, but it never can prevent the hardened criminal engaging in more crime. If the law is too severe, let it be amended but retrospective Legislation will prove a delusion and a snare.

LONDON, England, has suffered to the extent of $5,000,000 through an unusual high tide.

GOOD TIME.—The Post Office Clock, Toronto varied only four seconds in ten days or at the rate of about 144 seconds in a year.

ON Tuesday a petition was fyled in the Court of Error and Appeal, against the return of James McMahon for the Riding of North Wentworth, in the Local House.

TEMPERANCE.—Mrs Youmans is doing yeoman's duty in the temperance movement in Northumberland and Durham. The people in those counties are determined to pass the Dunkin Act.

TORONTO has the anomaly of a regular medical practitioner keeping and protecting a "quack" who pretends to cure by animate magnetism, and yet no one prosecutes. Is the medical close corporation at last divided against itself?

KINGSTON.—Dr. Stewart has applied to have the day appointed to try the Kingston Protest. It appears that his solicitor made arrangements in reference to the trial, without Mr. Stewarts consent or knowledge. The matter was heard on Monday, at Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

A FOUL CONSPIRACY.—A Mrs. Smith, of doubtful reputation, living in Hamilton, lately set a trap for her landlord, Dr. Devlin. She induced a young girl who was stopping with her to feign being unwell, sent for the doctor, and afterwards the girl preferred a charge against him for indecent assault. The foolish girl repented what she had done and told the matter, and Mrs. Smith is in turn being prosecuted for conspiracy.

HURON AND QUEBEC R. R.—Mr. John Fowler has been holding meetings in the county of Lanark, and met with great success. He finds the people largely in favor of the scheme and ready to aid it liberally. Victoria, too, is likely to pass the By-law about to be submitted in a few days, and thus the movement is progressing favorably both eastward and westward from here.

GUIBORD'S body still in trouble. The Cure of the Parish in which is the Roman Catholic Cemetery, where Guibord's remains have been interred has given notice that as the coffin has been placed on the top of the coffin in which Madam Guibord was buried, it cannot be more than two feet and a few inches under ground, and hence has not been placed deep enough to satisfy the provisions of the law. This may, therefore, lead to another law suit over the clay of the now immortal Guibord.

FOREVER.—The Mail has had an article on the forever of punishment. It does not settle the point, however, and in all probability will not be able to get rid of the forever. The eight months trial or probation which have been granted to Mr. McDonnell, will afford time for full discussion of the matter, but what a pity that Mr. McDonnell had not discussed it fully before making his venture. The meeting of the Toronto Presbytery will be awated with impatience. The advocates of both sides of the question are interested in the action of the Presbytery.

DISHONEST.—A few conservative papers are giving currency to a false impression, to the effect that the Dominion Government caused the election for Montreal West to be held on a Saturday, to prevent the Jews of that city casting their votes for Mr. White. This is very dishonest, and nothing but desperation would drive them to this course. The Writ was issued instructing the election to take place on a Thursday, if possible, but the Returning Officer thought the time was too short to make all necessary arrangements, and he extended the time to Saturday. As soon as Mr. Blake heard of the matter he gave instructions to prevent the recurrence of such a thing; and yet conservatives keep up the howl about disfranchising the Jews.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER, 10, 1875.

The County Council met in special session this day, in pursuance to notice.

Present: R. E. Birdsall, Esq., Warden, and Messrs. Maloney, Boulton, Costello, Brown, Miller, Sanderson, Garbut, Collins, Colborne, and Burgess.

The Council having been called to order the Warden read the following address:—

THE WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

GENTLEMEN,—The By-law submitted by you to the ratepayers of this County, granting a bonus of $150,000 to the Huron and Quebec Railway Company, has been carried by a large majority of the votes given thereon.

The law laid down in the Huron and Quebec Railway Act, provides that within four weeks after a by-law has been carried the Municipal Council submitting the same shall read a third time and finally pass a said By-law.

The [illegible] session has been called to enable you to comply with the statue in this case.

Since our last meeting the replanking of Mud Lake Bridge has been completed and paid for. By having the new floor diagonally across the old oak one, and in crossing the size of the oak pins the Bridge has been very materially strengthened, and the job is reported to give universal satisfaction. The total cost was $1746.

The hand railing on each side of this Bridge is unprotected from any waggon wheel that might chance to slip against it in tempestuous weather. To make a complete finish on the whole affair a scantling should be pinned along each side of the flooring to prevent this, and to render travel safe in the most stormy seasons. As the lake will probably be frozen solid in a short time this work might be delayed till Spring.

Part of the western approach to Young's Bridge was destroyed by fire on the occasion of the burning of Chalmers' mill. The Caretaker immediately notified me to have it repaired forthwith. As you had declined to assume the bridge as a county one at a former session this year, I took no action in the matter, believing it to be the duty of the adjoining townships of Smith and Douro to set in the premises, till it was decided whether the bridge was a County one or not.

The Bridge over the little Bob at Bobcaygeon, has been completed in a substantial and satisfactory manner, under the efficient superintendence, on your behalf, of Michael Sanderson, Esq., who acted in conjunction with a Committee of the County of Victoria. The cost of the work and the incidental expenses connected therewith have been paid—half by this county and half by the county of Victoria, viz., $464 each.

Mossom Boyd, Esq., of Bobcaygeon, notified me and all the other members of the Committee that he required us to construct a new Swing Bridge in place of the old one built by him in the above mentioned structure. On consulting with our worthy Clerk he turned up the history of the present swing bridge there. From this it appears that Mr. Boyd had asked permission from the County Council to put in the swing as it now stands at his own expense. This was granted, and the swing built by Mr. Boyd, which now stands as he left it, for the Committee did not interfere with him in building the new bridge. It is for you to say whether you will do anything for Mr. Boyd under the circumstances.

The new Iron Bridge between this Town and Ashburnham was completed a month after the stipulated time, much inconvenience being caused by the delay, especially during the holding of the Central Exhibition.

The Joint Committee of the Town and County met to examine and pass the bridge and although they were much pleased with the appearance and apparent solidity of the structure when completed, they were yet desirous of putting its strength to the test by placing on it a greater load than in all human probability it would be ever required to carry.

It was found that five teams drawing loaded waggons in line as close to each other as they could be driven would extend across one span on one side, and ten teams would thereof fill the span. Ten teams were procured, none drawing waggons heavily laden with lumber, and one with flour, each team with its load being estimated to weigh four tons. These walked side by side across the bridge from east to west, completely filling one span and then the other. They then ascended the hill on the west for the purpose of obtaining velocity in the descent, and all in a body recrossed the bridge at full gallop with their loads.

The bridge stood very firm under this trial, the amount of deflection in the middle of one of the spans being as near as I could judge, less than ¼ of an inch. As the bridge is built in two spans, each resting on a pier in the centre, the placing of a load of forty tons first on one span and then on the other, amounts to about the same thing as placing a load of 80 tons on the whole bridge at once. Our bridge has therefore done a duty nearly equal to having 80 tons weight carried across it at full gallop in loaded teams, as close as they could be driven to each other.

The contractors, by a month's delay, rendered themselves liable to a penalty of ten dollars for each day's default. In full amount of this penalty, a large majority of the joint committee were in favor of making some abatement, especially as Mr. Belcher, the Town Engineer, reported that when he made exact measurements of the material used in different parts of the bridge he almost invariably found the iron larger and heavier than the contract called for. As the agents of the Company were not present when the joint committee passed the bridge, no particular account of abatement was agreed upon, but a sub committee of three was appointed to decide the question when the agent of the Company came, viz: the Mayor of Peterborough, the Chairman of the Joint Committee, and myself. We three met on the Monday following, and a majority of us agreed that a small abatement should be made in the penalty. The Agents of the Company were waiting for their money, and I, with your Treasurer, who was present, promised, as soon as the Bank opened, to pay half the sum remaining, after deducting the penalty we had agreed upon. Next morning I was surprised to learn that the Town Council had after the decision above referred, passed a resolution demanding the whole of the penalty from the Bridge Co'y. By this ecomical proceeding the town saved $35.

As I had passed your word the day before for the payment of a certain sum, I did not feel justified in breaking it on the day following, even though $35 might be gained by the operation.

(Signed) R. E. BIRDSALL,
Warden.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Colborne, the Warden's Address was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. Miller, Garbutt, Brown, Collins, Boulton and Burnham.

The Council then adjourned for one hour to allow the above committee to report.

When the Council resumed, Mr Miller, presented the following report of the committee on the Warden's Address.

The Committee on the Warden's Address beg leave to report:—That inasmuch as the By-law granting a bonus to the Huron & Quebec Railway from this County has been assented to by the rate-payers of the County, your committee would recommend that the Council do at once pass the same.

Your committee are pleased to learn that the replanking of the Mud Lake Bridge has been so satisfactorily completed and are of opinion that it will give entire satisfaction. With regard to the placing of a scantling along each side of the flooring, to render the bridge more safe for travel, your committee would recommend that as it is now too late to have such a scantling placed on it this year, the matter be left over to be dealt with by the incoming Council, guided by the experience of the present season.

Your committee would recommend that the Advisory Committee be instructed to have the western approach to Young's Point Bridge repaired, provided the cost of the same does not exceed two hundred dollars.

Your committee are pleased to learn that the repairs to the Bobcaygeon (Little Bob) Bridge have been completed, but cannot recommend the Council to entertain Mr. Boyd's application for the erection of a new swing in the above bridge, under the circumstances.

Your committee would cordially endorse the Warden's approval of the manner in which the new Iron Bridge has been completed, and fully approves of the course pursued by him with regard to the deduction made from the contract price, on account of its non-completion at the time specified. Your committee would recommend that the usual notices be placed upon it, forbiding fast driving over the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAMES MILLER, Chairman.

Committee Room, Nov. 10, 1875.

On motion of Mr. Collins the report was adopted.

Moved by Mr. Boulton, seconded by Mr. Maloney—That a memorial be transmitted to the Lieut. Governor in Council, requesting that steps may be taken to maintain the waters of the Otonabee at the proper height between Lakefield and Young's Point, as the owner of the dam at Lakefield is in the habit of drawing the water off at his pleasure, destroying navigation and making the valuable locks at Young's Point of no effect, to the detriment of public travel, and that Messrs Burnham, Maloney and the mover be a committee to draft such memorial.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned till to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

THURSDAY, Nov 11, 1875.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present, the Warden and all the members except Messrs. Hewett and Choate. The minutes of the previous session were read and confirmed.

The Warden read a letter from Mr. Spry of Kinmount, asking payment for a horse belonging to him killed on the Bobcaygeon road, from the two counties.

Whereupon it was moved by Mr. Wells, seconded by Mr. Burnham,—That whereas Mr. Samuel Spry, of Kinmount, lost a valuable horse by its being killed by a defective bridge on the Bobcaygeon road, the Warden of this County be authorized, in conjunction with the Warden of the County of Victoria, to make such compensation to Mr. Spry, as they may deem the circumstances to warrant.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Burnham,—That the By law granting a Bonus to the Huron and Quebec Railway Company be now read a third time and passed, and the corporate seal be attached thereto.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Boulton, a memorial to the Lieut Governor in Council with regard to the dam at Lakefield was put through its several stages and passed.

On motion of Mr. Golborne, a Memorial to the Lieut Governor in Council relating to the Bobcaygeon road was put through its several stages and passed.

Moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—That the Clerk be instructed not to levy any rate for the payment of the interest and Sinking Fund under the Huron and Quebec Railway by law until authorized by this Council so to do,—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Collins the Warden left the chair and Mr. Burnham took the same.

Moved by Mr. Golborne, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—That a vote of thanks of this Council be tendered to the Warden for the able and courteous conduct in the fair during the past year.—Carried.

The Council adjourned.

ORILLIA.

PRESENTATION.—Last Friday even'g. Mr. W. A. Rutlidge, Reeve of Medonte, was presented with a very handsome meerchaum pipe by the genial proprietor of the Russell House. Quite a number of the respectable citizens of the town were in attendance at the presentation. During the evening Mr. Robt Stein, foreman for John Thomson & Co, of Longford Mills, treated all his old Peterboro friends and a number of Orillians to an Oyster spread and Champagne Supper, which was prepared in mine host Bob Russell's usual excellent style. The Chair was taken by Mr. W. N. Rutlidge, of Clay field, supported on his right by Mr. D. G Henthorne and on his left by Mr. J. Adams, all of Peterboro. The Vice Chair was filled by the Host of the Evening's entertainment, Mr. R. Stein, on his right was Mr. George Cox of Lakefield, and on his left Mr. George Caswell, jr, of Coldwater. Speeches, suitable to the festive occasion were made by Messrs. Ramsay, Cox, Adams, Dr. Lawrence, Robt Stein, B. Kimbal the very energetic superintendent of the Midland R.R. from Orillia to Waubaushene. Impromptu complimentary addresses were also delivered by Messrs W. Rutledge, J. Colclough, McMullen and D. Henthorn, the latter gentleman was particularly happy and eloquent in his remarks, and paid a well merited compliment to the generous and hospitable landlady and landlord of the Russell, he stated that it afforded him great pleasure to be present at a social gathering of his old friends from Peterboro and vicinity, and trusted it would not be the last re-union of the kind at which they all would meet again. Mr. Jas. Miller sang some Scotch songs which were much admired by all present. Over thirty partook of the repast.—COM.

SPLENDID SPORT.—Mr. Ed. Adair, a resident of Digby, during a four week's hunt, all alone, shot 32 fine deer and a quantity of other game which is numerous in the vicinity of Head Lake.

GOOD SHOOTING.—Mr. J. White, Commercial Traveller for a large and well known Montreal firm, while out shooting in the neighborhood of Orillia managed to capture an old she Bear and two Cubs besides a lot of ducks, rabbits, and partridges, a deer and fox, also we understand fell victims to his unerring shot. The Montreal sportsman has not been beaten this season in this vicinity.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY—The celebration of this important and time honored event will take place on the evening of the 30th inst., at the Russell House, Messrs. J. Frost, W. Stoddart and Jas. Jackson are the members who have the affair in hand. Hurrah for the "haggis" that national dish Robbie Russell will cater.—COM.

MINDEN.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Richard Roberts, teacher, near Peterson, went out from his home for a short time, and not returning as soon as expected his wife went after him, and to her horror found him lying dead within a few feet of the house. The cause of death is unknown, but deceased had not been in good health for some time.

MILLBROOK.

NO NEWS will soon be the order of the day from Millbrook. The Messenger has chronicled about the last possible brick or board that can be placed in or on a building this season, and all the necessary out-buildings too. The place is fast approaching that state of things when there can be no new things under the sun.

LAKEFIELD.

PERSONAL.—The Lakefield News is glad to announce that Mr Thomas McBurney, who has been quite ill for about ten days, is recovering.

The Lakefield News says:—Report states that the saw mill with all the waterpower at that village passed into the hands of R. C. Strickland & Co. We have no authority for the correctness of the Report.

TAKEN.—The Lakefield people are taken with a disease lately manifesting itself in Toronto and other towns; and affection of the organs of the brain, which relates to marital relations. Some people get married too much and some few can't get any young lady to look at 'em, and hence so much nonsence in the newspapers.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday the 12th inst., as Mrs Smithson was going from the house to the woodshed she fell and broke her leg a little above the ankle. Under the medical care of Dr. King, she is doing as well as can be expected for a person of her advanced years, being upwards of seventy years of age.

COLD SPRINGS.

Whilst Mrs D. McIntosh, and Mrs. Richards and her son were returning from a visit to friends, the horse took fright and ran away, overturning the buggy in the flight both ladies were badly hurt, and the young man received severe injuries. His jaw was broken and some other bones were fractured.

MURDER AT CALEDONIA.

A FARMER FOUND DEAD IN A WAGGON.

One of the foulest murders that ever disgraced the annals of Canada was perpetrated within half a mile of Caledonia on Saturday evening. The excitement here and in the country is intense, and the crime is the sole topic of conversation. Even in Hamilton great indignation is expressed at the foul murder of one who was so well and favourably known to the citizens. The particulars of the murder as far as can be gleaned are as follows:—The deceased, Ab l McDonald, aged between 50 and 60 years, was returning on Saturday night from Hamilton, where he had been with a load of grain, for which he received the sum of $35. On the way he was set upon by some person or persons unknown, and was robbed and beaten in such a manner that he died a few hours afterwards. Deceased, who was a well-to-do farmer, lived in 12th concession, township of Walpole, and always bore the reputation of a thrifty, sober, industrious man. He leaves a wife and four children—three sons and one daughter, the eldest only sixteen years—to mourn his untimely end. Acting on instructions from Caledonia the Chief of Police of Hamilton was on the alert, and last evening on suspicion arrested to well-known characters named John Young and James William Young, the former a resident of Hamilton, and the latter said to live within five miles of the city. The prisoners are related, and, according to the police of Hamilton, are worthless vagabonds, and have no visible means of support. The fact that they were both in this village on Saturday night and in company with the murdered man, tends strongly to show that, if not the actual culprits, they are in some way or other connected with this terrible tragedy. One of them at least, has figured in Hamilton police circles, having been arrested some time ago for a murderous assault upon a citizen. The connection of deceased with the supposed guilty parties now under arrest are briefly as follows:—On Saturday night McDonald and the two Youngs had supper together about seven in Mr. Murphy's Hotel, of this place, and engaged in conversation at the table. One of the accused asked deceased how far he had to travel, to which the farmer replied that he lived in the township of Walpole, and had fourteen miles to go. A general conversation then ensued, the deceased asking one of the Young's if he lived in the village. He replied that he lived in Hamilton, and said that he and his friend intended to return to that city that evening. He then left the hotel, returning again about eight o'clock, and telling the hostler they would stay all night, asking at the same time at what hour the house closed. The hostler said half-past ten o'clock, after which he saw nothing of the parties.

An inquest was opened this forenoon at Jarvis on the body of deceased before Dr. Howells, coroner. A number of unimportant witnesses were examined to show the finding of deceased after the assault.

J. Smith, farmer, of McKenzie's Creek township of Oneida, and two miles from this place, stated that about 8.30 p.m. on saturday his son hearing a noise outside the house went to see what was the matter. The son found the team, and a man lying in it apparently dead. Mr. Smith, wondering at the protracted absence of his son, also went out, and seeing the situation summoned assistance. R. W. Mutchmore and Sullivan were soon on the spot, after which Dr. Hillyear was sent for, and arrived at 10.30. It might be stated a short heavy looking club was found in the waggon of deceased, but on examination it did not appear to have been used.

Dr. Hillycar testified to the examination of the body of deceased. There were no marks of violence, except that on the head, on examinating the skull he found comminuted fracture of the bones, which were sufficient to cause death.

The jury retired, and after a brief deliberation returned a verdict that deceased came to his death by a blow or blows inflicted by some person or persons unknown, with intent to commit a robbery and murder.

The prisoners were brought from Hamilton by the 4.15 p.m. train, by Constable Wm. Doyle, of this place.

Both in that city and on their arrival at Caledonia large and indignant crowds of people had assembled to have a glance at them. Neither of them are prepossessing in appearance; on the contrary, they are from all outward appearance belonging to the rowdy element. They assumed a bravado air in the cars and seemed to look upon the affair as a huge joke. They are now safely in prison here, and will be brought up for examination before the magistrate to-morrow.

LATER.—A young man named White a notorious character, has just been arrested by Constable Doyle on suspicion of being implicated in the murder. Prisoner, who is said to have taken an active part in the affair, is the son of a tavern-keeper of the same name in Hamilton. The police expect to make more arrests before long.

THE bottom did not fall out of the world—there was not even an earth quake—no trembling of the elements whatever, such as ought to have occurred last week in wake of the fulfilment of the terrible threat fulminated through the editor of the West Durham News. After all his braggadocio about ability to annihilate the Reform party, he has told the terrible secret of his wrath—in fact he says he has touched bottom—and it ain't the first time for him either. And what does it all amount to? Why, the notorious Joshua SAYS that Senator Sénécal Simpson bribed three members of Parliament at the time of the crisis—the overthrow of the charter sellers. Not one title of proof is given in support of the charge. Mr. Simpson says he never spent a dollar in his life to purchase or secure a vote of a member or elector in behalf of himself or any other party. It is not to be expected that Mr. Simpson will allow himself to be drawn into a newspaper controversy or take much trouble to answer or repel the wild and malicious slanders which grace the columns of the Durham Blot. As the monkey of old used the cat's paw to pull the nuts from the fire, so the nominal editor of that sheet is now being used by a few spleenish individuals, to do work which they have not the courage to do themselves—to make damaging charges solely for the sake of gratifying personal spite, with the hope of casting Mr. Simpson from the Ontario Bank. This is the secret of the malignant attack which has been followed up so persistently by the wire-pullers who control Joshua. If there is any ground for charging Senator Simpson with having bribed members of parliament, let the charge be properly formulated and brought before the House, and a full investigation will ensue. But the idea of paying much attention to the blatherings of the irresponsible Joshua, is looked upon as quite absurd, his assertions where his utterance are valued at what they are known to be worth.—Statesman.

A SUICIDE.—The Stratford Beacon says: for the past few days, a German, representing himself as from Boston, and out of funds, has been selling several unsuspecting parties along the Northern railway by means of the Odd-fellows' signs, of which order he is contemptuously a member. He represents himself as hard up, and has sold several brass watches, worth about $20 a dozen, for $20 a piece. The brethren here-about ought to be on the look out for him. Such swindlers are the most unprincipled men in creation, and if caught, ought to be dealt with as severely as the law will permit.

PISCICULTURE.

"Wilmot's Creek forms a natural inlet of the sheltered head of the lake between Bond Head and Darlington. The stream flows over a gravelly bed through the major portion of the distance from the fountain head, ten miles away, and from this fact, and the purity and rapidity of its waters, it is admirably adapted for the formation of spawning beds. In early times it was famous for salmon, as indeed were many of the neighbouring streams. They were so plentiful forty years ago that men killed the fish with clubs and pitchforks, women seized them with flannel petticoats, and settlers bought and paid for lands from their sale. Later they were taken by nets and spears, as many as one thousand being taken in a single night. Only a few stragglers remained when, in 1866, Mr. Wilmot entered upon his self appointed task of replenishing the stream by artificial methods of breeding. His efforts have been crowned with success. Salmon may now be seen by hundreds in the creek. Perhaps the best evidence of the large number which ascend the stream during the spawning season, which is just closing, is the circumstance that no less than one hundred and ten spawning beds may be easily seen within a distance of half a mile. Each of these beds represents the work of from four to six salmon; therefore, at the lowest computation, five hundred of these splendid fish have deposited their ova naturally within that short stretch of water. Estimating one half of these to have been females, the eggs would number almost one million. These, however, on account of natural causes, will nearly all be destroyed—a fact much to be regretted, but which will be avoided in future years by erecting a small building for receiving the fish at a point lower down on the stream. Such salmon as pass up the stream to the breeding houses enter the reception house on account of the main stream being blocked. They are there disturbed into compartments according to sex, and remain until they become mature, when they are removed to the breeding room. Half a dozen fish are placed in a box through which a constant stream of fresh water passes. The operator then takes a female, and by gently pressing the abdomen the eggs flow from the vent into a receptable. This fish is immediately liberated through a small aperture in the corner of the building, and passed down into a pond below. A male fish is next operated on in a similar manner, the melt being deposited in the same receptable, which is taken, and impregnation is the result. The eggs are then measured out, so as to place four thousand on each tray, which is a small wooden frame-work covered on the bottom side with fine wire cloth or perforated zinc. These trays are laid in troughs through which there is a constant flow of water, through filtering screens, fed from a water-tight tank. Here the eggs lie unmolested until April, when they will hatch. Seven hundred thousand eggs are now undergoing the process of incubation in this establishment."

NO PERSONAL blame can be cast on the Attorney General for Ontario, the Minister of Public Justice, or any other Minister of the Crown whose official salary is manifestly inadequate, for continuing to make up an income by the practice of his profession. But there is a growing feeling that the existing state of things in this respect is hardly consistent either with official dignity or with the interests of justice. When the Minister of the Crown who appoints and promotes the Judges is at the same time pleading as a barrister before them, there is a confusion of relations which, let the men be as honourable as they will, can hardly fail to be embarassing and at all events will breed suspicion. Apart from any sense of obligation on the part of one who has received an appointment to the bench, or any expectation of promotion, a judge can hardly control his official superior as he would an ordinary counsel. In the case of the present Minister of Justice the case is complicated by the presence on the Bench of his brother. When Lord Ellenbrough's son, Mr. Law, was called to the Bar, and appeared in his newly donned wig and gown in the court over which his father presided, his father from the Bench told him that it had given him great pleasure to see him there and that he hoped never to see him there again. We should ourselves regard without the slightest suspicion the decision of Vice-Chancellor Blake in favor of a cause advocated by his brother; but we do not feel sure that the unsuccessful suitor would feel equally satisfied. The other day in the heat of a faction fight, Mr. Blake was charged with having as a Minister of Justice, used his power of appointing judges with the view of breaking up a rival firm. There is not a shadow of ground for such a charge. The Bench never received a worthier accupant than Mr. R. A. Harrison, and not to appoint him would have been the grossest injustice both to him and to the public. The appointment of Mr. Moss, while equally good in a judicial point of view, was, in a political point of view, the greatest sacrifice that Mr. Blake could possibly have been called upon to make. But Honi soit qui mal y pense is not the motto of all the world, especially at election time; and the imputation of private motives for the Minister's exercise of his judical patronage ought not only to be unfounded but impossible.—Nation.

IMPORTANT TO LUMBERMEN.

THE RIGHTS OF SAW-LOG DRIVERS ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

(From the Ottawa Times.)

PERTH, Nov. 8th.—At the assizes yesterday an important case, bearing on the right of lumbermen generally, to drive logs and timber down the Mississippi river was tried, the case lasting all day and late into the evening. Thir was a criminal charge, instituted at the instance of Mr. Peter McLaren, lumberman, against four men employed by Buck & Stewart, of Bellville, for cutting away McLaren's dam at High Falls, Township of Palmerston, under order from their employers, to allow Buck & Stewart's logs to pass down the stream. The difficulty at this place was that Buck & Stewart contended that McLaren had no right to charge toll for logs passing through the dam, as the Mississippi is public stream and its channel free to any one, the dam being built in the channel. McLaren insisted that his deed gave him a right to control the stream by building the dam and charging toll for drives going down. Buck & Stewart summarily settled the matter by ordering their men to cut open the dam, which they did, and he, ov the action. The case was keenly contested, and excited great interest. In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Patterson spoke strongly in favor of acquitting the prisoners, on the ground that they were simply removing an obstruction in a public stream, free to every one, and that McLaren having refused to allow the drive to pass through without charges the cutting of the dam was thereby justifiable. The jury, after a very short consultation, returned a verdict of acquittal. Mr. Jas. Bethune very ably defended the prisoners. The case virtually decides the free passage of the Mississippi.

Pimples, Eruptions, Rough Skin.

The system being put under the influence of Mr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a few weeks, the skin becomes smooth, clear, soft and velvety, and being illuminated with the glow of perfect health from within, true beauty stands forth in all its glory. The effects of all medicines which operate upon the system through the medium of the blood are necessarily somewhat slow, no matter how good the remedy employed. While one to three bottles clear the skin of pimples, blotches, eruptions, yellow spots, comedones, or "grubs," a dozen may possibly be required to cure some cases where the system is rotten with scrofulous or virulent blood poisons. The cure of all these diseases, however, from the common pimple to the worst scrofula is, with the use of this most potent agent, only a matter of time. Sold by dealers in medicines. Covered with eruptions. Cured. Claverack, Columbia Co., N. Y. Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in the worst form for a great many years, until, accidently, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I then bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on my face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude.

THERE are 30,000 acres containing 3 millions of grape vines in California.

THERE are 29,500 Blue Jackets in the British Navy, and 13,500 mariners.

Eureka! We have at long last discovered a gentleman who has seen the "reaction"—the editor of the Toronto Tribune. He puts his experience briefly on record, in yesterday's paper, thus:

Having heard, during Saturday afternoon, a great deal about the Conservative "reaction," we were anxious to see it. Well we did see it, on Saturday night at about 11 o'clock. It consisted of Sir John A. Macdonald, J. B. Robinson, and a few others, in a carriage, preceded by an Orange Band playing the "Protestant Boys," and accompanied by a motley rabble of about one thousand roughs, who were shouting for John A. and J. B., and crying "no Dogan votes."

Mr. James Sheridan, piano tuner for Messrs. A. & S. Nordheimer, between Toronto and Kingston, will visit Peterboro regularly until further notice. All orders left at Mathias and Reid's Book Store will be attended to promptly.

NEW CLOCK.—The new clock lately purchased by the Town Council to be placed in the tower of the New Town Hall, has been put in its place, and will be in running order in a few days. The Bell from the old Tour is to be used for striking the hours.

MORE LIGHT.—The Gas pipes have been laid across the bridge with a view to lighting it, and a portion of Ashburnham. Some are said to love darkness rather than light. It is hoped that all such persons will keep away from the thoroughfare to the village.

A NEGLECT.—We neglected to publish the whole Minutes of the late Special Meeting of the County Council, owing to a press of other matter. As our readers are interested in all the doings of our County Legislature, we have concluded to give the remainder even at this late date.

THE PHANTASMAGORIA and Minstrel Combination gave an entertainment in the Music Hall on Monday evening to a very fair house. The Company, for their first appearance, performed their parts very well. The Chromatrope was very good, and their Ventriloquist fully equaled Zera.

OPENING.—The Dedication of the New Orange Hall, in Peterborough, will take place at the Hall on Water street, on Tuesday evening, 7th December, at 8 o'clock p.m. All Orangemen and Britons are invited to attend with Regalia, none will be admitted after 8 o'clock, or with out regalia.

ERROR—In the Treasurer's statement of the St. Andrew's Society, which was published in this paper, the expenses during the last year were put down at $88. We are requested to state that the total actual expenses for the past year was only $8, showing that this Society is run in a very economical style.

WEST PETERBOROUGH.—The election in this riding is protested, the papers being made out and sent away in due time It is our intention to give information as it may unfold itself, but in other respects to crave a little rest from local politics. Suffice to say that the present member elect cannot retain the seat long.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Robert Donnelly, second son of Mr. A. Donnelly, took place here on Saturday last. The young man had gone to California, and was engaged in the lumbering business, and while thus engaged received injuries by the rolling of a log which resulted in his death. His remains were brought home for interment.

OLD STREETS.—Hunter St. is just now while frozen in, in a very passable state, but when the spring sun returns the Street Inspector will require an acre of ground on which to cart the clay that was put on it this fall, while fixing the crossing of Water Streets. But, perhaps it is just as cheap to let it lie on Hunter street during the winter, and thus secure the advantages to be derived from the fertilising agencies of teams passing and repassing for six months.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.—At the meeting of this Society on Monday last, Mr. Fairley was elected Secretary in the place of Mr. Alex. Bertram, but on his refusing to act, Mr. Wm Meanen was unanimously appointed in his place. It was also thought advisable by the Committee to celebrate St. Andrews night by an Oyster Supper to be held at mine host Mr. Eody's, the Stuart House, at 8 p.m., to which all the members of the Society are expected to be present.

BUTTER TUBS.—Although very little fault can be found with the way in which the Chief Constable has kept town time during the year now drawing to a close; the fact that our city fathers have imported a new time keeper, at a cost of nearly $700, may lead us to hope for perfect time in the future. It is not a wooden one, or we are much deceived in the quality of the material. It ought to be a good one. All the watchmakers in Town were on the Committee that selected it, as will be seen by a resolution of the Council.

PROTESTANT HOME.—The Committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for the summer months:—From Mr. Erskine, a parcel of remnants, hats for the children; from Mr. Green, buns; from Mrs. Taylor, fresh eggs; from a friend, fresh butter; from Boating Club Assembly, per Mrs. Shaw, a basket of cakes; a friend, fresh butter; from Mr. Scanes, vegetables; from Presbyterian S. S picnic, a quantity of cakes; from a friend, yarn for stockings and $1; Mrs. W., piece of pork; Mrs. Hyman, winter caps for boys; C. P. Church, Thanksgiving collection, $29.

CHURCH OPENING.—We understand that the New Methodist Church, George street, will be opened on Christmas Day. The Rev. Dr. Myerson, President of the Conference, is expected to preach in the morning at 11 o'clock. After this service there will be a public dinner, and probably after tea, addresses. On Sabbath 26th, Dr. Wood, President of the General Conference, will preach at 10:30 A.M.; Rev. Mr. Fish, at 2:30 P.M.; and Dr. Douglass, of the Theological College, Montreal, at 6:30 P.M. There will also be services on the following Sabbath, being the first Sabbath of the new year. The above are understood to be the arrangements for the opening services, but some departure from it may take place, and, if so, we will try and give full information in due time.

WHAT ARE THEY FOR?—There are about twenty-five saloons and low groceries in Town. What useful purpose do they serve? Are they not traps for young men? It is shocking to contemplate how many resort to them in the blaze of day. How many during the darkness—few can tell. If there were twenty places in town for the purpose of concealing and disfiguring fancy terriers, how long would the Council be permitted to grant them licenses? But in the present cases it is only men's sons who are made drunkards of. If there were twenty-five Doctor Davises in town taking the lives of unfortunate creatures brought to them, the town would be in arms to lynch them. But there are about 8000 drunkards carried to a drunkards grave every year in Canada, and there is not a word against licenses for drunkard makers. Doctor Davis and his wife are to be hanged for taking one life, that of Jane Vanghan Gilmour; they were tried for no other—only one life—and how public opinion is aroused. But what about the 8000 drunkards who die annually in Canada, and what about the schools for drunkards fast hastening to the grave? Can nothing be done to limit the evil to necessary hotels, and do away with the drinking holes where drunkards are made by the gross.

TRUTH.

In last issue we referred at some length to the religious uneasiness that prevails every where, and to the attempts to satisfy the increasing demand for information followed by investigation to a certain extent.

This uncertainty has arisen largely out of the teachings of those claiming to be teachers of others. In the unsettled state of men's minds, fears are entertained that the itching ears may turn away to new ideas. But strange to say, not the investigation of truth is the consequence, so as to establish those in doubts, but instead, there is a stronger effort to bind under man power by appealing to church or in other words clerical power.

Below is a claim set forth by the episcopalians, as found in the last Dominion Churchman, which we give as a proof of the attempts made to retain clerical influence, and immediately after will be found the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church to the same end; of the soundness of the arguments, our readers may be the judges. They largely show the foundations upon which men build structures capacious enough to satisfy their minds.

THE TRUE CHURCH.

That is to say, the Church; for the church must be the true one. "And which is the Church?" we are repeatedly asked. Amid so many claims that are put forth, how are we to know which is the right? Now in order to come to a correct understanding about this subject, it is necessary that one should be put upon a proper track; and we cannot imagine that any preliminary principle can be laid down that is more likely to lead to a correct result, than a consideration of the fact that in the days of our Lord and His apostles there could be no possible doubt as to which was the Christian church and of whom or what it consisted. It is true and the fact has been much laid hold of and disorted, that on one occasion, (St. Mark ix. 38—40,) John addressed his master stating that he had seen one casting out devils in Christ's name, and that he had forbidden him because he did not consort with them. Whereupon our Saviour directed that the man in question should not be forbidden; for said He, "There is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can likely speak evil of me. For he that is not against us is on our part. The miracle was proof sufficient that the man was not only using Christ's name to his honor, but was also acting in some measure under his direction. But it is important to observe that the Lord did not bid his disciples leave himself and follow this man who was casting out devils in his name, albeit in a somewhat irregular manner. He simply commanded "Forbid him not." It would appear probable that the man was already on the way to the Saviour, and if not directly so yet from the fact that we never afterwards hear of any schismatical body having him for its head, it would appear that his proceedings were such as would prepare the way for furnishing accessions to the church of the Lord. And further, after the more complete organization of the church in the days of the Apostles, although schisms, heresies, and dissension arose, yet, inasmuch as the main body of the church continued "steadfastly in the Apostles doctrine and fellowship," there could hardly be any move doubt during their lives about the true church than there was in the time of the Saviour, and so from that age to the present. The Christian system may have spread its branches in innumerable directions, and may have extended its operations over a large part of the earth's surface, yet to prove its claim to have a direct authority from the Great Head of the Christian religion, it must be able to present the usual proofs of an historic connection with that organization which was established by Christ and his apostles. This is evidently the position which is taken upon the subject by our own branch of the church. Indeed she is very express upon this point, and lays down her regulations and her principles upon this matter very distinctly and very authoritatively. And if we are true and faithful sons of the church to which we profess to belong, and not traitors to her cause, we shall listen to her teaching upon this point as gladly as upon others that may possibly be more palatable. In the preface to the "Form and manner of making, ordaining and consecrating Bishops, Priests and Deacons, according to the order of the Church of England," we are authoritatively informed that "It is evident unto all men diligently reading the Holy Scriptures and Ancient Authors, that from the Apostles' time, there have been these orders of ministers in Christ's Church—Bishops, Priests and Deacons—which offices were evermore had in such reverend estimation, that no man might presume to execute any of them, except he were first called, tried, examined and known to have such qualities as are requisite for the same, and also by public prayer with imposition of hands, were approved and admitted thereto by lawful authority. And therefore, to the intent that these orders may be continued, and reverently used and esteemed in the Church of England, no man shall be accounted or taken to be a lawful bishop, priest or deacon in the Church of England or suffered to execute any of the said functions, except he be called, tried examined and admitted thereunto, according to the form hereafter following, or hath had formerly Episcopal consecration or ordination." We have quoted this part of the preface in extenso, in order to show that here there is no mincing of the matter, no hobbling, no uncertainty as to what the church teaches and requires her loyal sons to believe. On many subjects her meaning is not so definitely expressed but that some room may be found for differences: but here there is none. And judged by this principle of an historic and unbroken connection, our own organized Christain body claims to be not the true church, but a branch of it; and such a branch of it as most fully embodies the early definition, "by continuing steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread and in prayers." The Old Catholics, the church of Utrecht, and the church of the United States, are other branches. The Church of Rome also is, or at least was till lately another undoubted branch, although becoming more and more corrupted; still a branch. In consequence of every appointment of a bishop among them in late years being simply an investiture by the pope, in opposition to the decrees of the ancient councils, it is however doubtful whether in the present day the Episcopal continuity can be properly made out, and therefore the other branches of the church possess a far stronger claim to be descended from the church of the Apostles than she can now have. The Greek and Coptic churches are other branches of the true church, not so corrupt as the church of Rome, and the Syrian is another important branch, less corrupt still. None of these however have a stronger claim on historical grounds than the church of England; and none others have so good a claim with regard to Scriptural purity of teaching and primitive excellence of ritual.

R. C. BISHOPS' PASTORAL.

The following pastoral of the Catholic Archbishop and Bishops of Ontario, as adopted by them at the Provincial Council held in Toronto in October, was read in all churches and chapels in the Province at Mass yesterday:—

We, by the Grace of God, and the Appointment of the Holy Apostolic See, Archbishop and Bishops of the Ecclesiastical Province of Toronto.

To our Venerable Clergy, Religious Communities, and to all the Faithful of our Province, health and benediction in our Lord.

On the occasion of our first assembly in Provincial Council, we desire to address to you a few words of encouragement and paternal advice. We give thanks to our Lord Jesus Christ for your perseverance, and that of your children, in the faith—many amongst you having been in very disadvantageous circumstances far from church and pastoral care. We have ordained that means are to be taken to multiply Priest and churches—though very many have been lately built—and to subsidize the poorer missions.

POOR MISSIONS.

We call upon you, beloved Children in Christ, as you love to co-operate with Him in saving souls redeemed by His precious blood, to encourage your children to follow the divine vocation to the sacred ministry, and to help by a yearly subscription the poor missions. If a cup of cold water given for the love of Christ will not be unrewarded, what reward must not those expect who will break the bread of life, or cause it to be broken, to those who hunger and thirst after justice, that they may be saved from eternal death? The salvation of the people is our sovereign law: salus populi suprema lex." We are joyously labouring, in season and out of season, for your salvation; but our efforts must be seconded by yours. The salvation of the young should be your, as it is our, most special care. Children are sadly exposed to danger and temptations against faith and morality, particularly in cities and large towns.

EDUCATION.

We have provided Catholic schools in these places; but alas! owing to poverty, negligence of parents, and other causes, children are not sent regularly to school. They are removed from it too young, and before they are well grounded to their religion, strong enough to resist temptation, or sufficiently educated to rise above the lowest level. We earnestly exhort parents not to ruin the prospects of their offspring for time and eternity, by cutting them off from influences that will go far to make them good children, useful citizens, and saints for heaven. Christians who neglect their children are declared by St. Paul to be worse than infidels; "But if any one have not care of his own, especially of those of his house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." (1 Tim. v 8). Parents who feel themselves obliged, through want of Catholic schools to send their children to common schools, must use all their authority, both by example and precept, to counteract the evil influences to which their little ones are thus exposed. Pastors also must make a special effort to teach those children their religion; and when it is impossible for them to discharge this duty personally as much as desirable, they should provide, in various parts of their respective missions, prudent and pious persons who will, at least on Sundays and Festivals, supply their places by teaching Catechism

TRAINING SCHOOLS.

We exhort you, beloved children in Christ, to favor the desires of those who wish to become Teachers of schools: and to facilitate the accomplishment of this purpose, we wish very much to see in many places training schools established, where young men and women may prepare themselves to enter on the honourable career of instructing others into justice. "They that instruct many to justice shall shine as stars for all eternity," (Dan. xii. 3)

INTEMPERANCE.

As the vice of intemperance is the source or incentive of nearly all the evils which deluge modern society, in destroying the peace of families, producing the ruin of children, and the eternal death of innumeral souls, we exhort you, dearly beloved pastors, to use all your best efforts to stop the evil. We strongly encourage the establishment of temperance societies, the giving of lectures, sermons, and above all, the frequentation of the sacraments, as remedies against this vice. Great evils are not cured but by great exertions. If the good pastor give his life for his flock, he will not hesitate to sacrifice comfort and ease to save the people confined to his care, and for whom he must give an account to God.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

We are not especially called upon to warn you against societies which work in the dark, and, like the evil principle, hate the light. You are sufficiently interested to avoid all such unholy combinations. Continue, therefore, to walk as children of light:—"For the fruit of the light is in goodness, and justice, and truth." (Ephes. v. 9) You are entitled to belong to the Church of God, with its High Priest, Christ Jesus, with His Ministers and His Sacraments, and to this general brotherhood of the faithful, as well as to those societies blessed by God and His Church, and having for their object mutual support and edification. These societies need no oath of secrecy. Honest societies have on their lips charity and benevolence, with a promise of all good things; were there nothing in the back ground, there would be no necessity to bind those wishing to become its members by an oath of secrecy. Crime alone seeks to protect itself by the iron rivet of non-revelation. The obligation of secrecy in the priest, the physician, and the lawyer is for the public and private good, to direct the truthful effect or save the penitent criminal. We have, however, to warn you against trade combinations, which would work to the evil of society in general or injustice to individuals. Let every man be free to sell his labour as best seems to him. It is thus that the general and particular good is fostered, and charity and good will preserved.

UNJUST TASKMASTERS.

We exhort the men of capital not to act unjustly by taking advantage of the poverty or the helplessness of their fellow-beings, by exacting from them labour without adequate remuneration. St. James strongly condemns such conduct He says, "Behold the hire of the reapers who have reaped down your fields, which by fraud has been kept back by you, crieth, and the cry of them hath entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabbaoth" (St. James, v. 4)

INDIFFERENTISM.

We also put you on your guard against the seductive and oft repeated sophism that it is indifferent to what Church a person may belong, provided he act rightly who discards the teachings of Jesus Christ, and refuses to accept the means of salvation provided by Him? "Without me," says Christ, "you can do nothing."(St. John, xv, 5). Again, can the Church of Jesus Christ be put on an equality with so-called churches founded by fallible men, with the most saving ordinance of our Redeemer omitted from their creeds and worship? Every day we find men, fall of themselves and their own conceits, form creeds and found churches on their own responsibility, and give to those churches their own names

TOO MUCH LIBERALITY A DECEPTION.

A Catholic indeed is called illiberal and a bigot if he refuses to consider those churches equal to the Curch of Christ, and alike conducive to salvation. Did Christ authorise every man to form a religion and a creed according to his own fancy, with as much or as little of the teaching of Christ in it as he please? Those false teachers pretend to offer salvation to their dupes on easier terms than those offered by our Lord Jesus Christ and His Apostles. With those deluded men heresy and schism are not crimes, though ranked as deadly sins by St. Paul (Gal. xix. 20; St. Peter 2 Ep iv. 1.) St. John says, "If any man come to you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into the house nor say to him God-speed.")2 Ep. 4). Again, St. Paul writes to Titus, "A man that is a heretic avoid after the first and second admonition," (Tit iii. 10.) St. Austin says, "No one can doubt but that we are to give an account of our faith as well as of our practice; and that a wilful corruption of it, which has not the plea of invincible ignorance, must be a crime." Catholics give heed rather to the teaching of the divinely inspired Apostles and their legitimate successors than to foolish men, though this may be called illiberal. Truth does not change by lapse of time. We know that persons may be saved through the mercy of God on the plea of their invincible ignorance as to the true Church, if they observe the law of God, so far as known to them, and are prepared to enter the true Church when discovered.

We warn you also of another false charge or illiberality against Catholics, who say that heaven is superior to earth; that worldly business and concerns should not interfere with a man's earnest struggle to obtain eternal life. The words of Christ are: "What will it profit a man to gain the whole world, and lose his own soul, or what will a man give in exchange for his own soul?" (Mat. xvii 26.) For a Catholic, the eternal welfare of his soul first, worldly concerns after; his religion, his consolence—in a word, GOD first, the world and its comforts afterwards. With St. Paul we say, 'Furthermore, I count all things to be but loss, for the excellent knowledge of Jesus Christ my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and count them as dung that I may gain Christ." (Phil iii 8) There are men of different minds from the Apostles but thank God, they are not of us. They may be reputed amongst us.

CIVIL POWER.

There are unwise men who presume to assert that the civil power is supreme, even in spiritual affairs—that to it the spiritual power should be subordinate. Were the Apostles to have believed this, the Gospel could not have been preached in the world, or handed down to us pure and unsullied. The civil is from God for the wellsbeing of society, and in its own proper sphere is supreme. It carries not the sword in vain (Rom xii 4) to punish the evil doers. But yet it has its own limits, bounded by the same law of the same God from whom it derives its authority. It has no right to interfere with the preaching of the true Gospel, and the establishment of the religion of Christ, when the means taken are peaceful and persevering.

SUPPORTING THE CHURCH.

We would also address a word to you, beloved brethern, on your obligation of contributing according to your means to the dignity of the divine worship, and to the honourable maintenance of the clergy. Your generosity in the past is to us a source of honest pride, and thankfulness to God, From Him you have received all. It is but just you should make some return; yet there are a few who unjustly hold back what is due to God and to his Church. These people are not without sin, to be answered for both in this life and the life to come. They are not worthy of sacraments who show such ingratitude to God and injustice to men. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great matter if we reap temporal things?" (Cor. ix 10); and so also the Lord ordained that those who preach the gospel should live by the gospel (Idem, 14).

PROPAGATION OF FAITH.

We earnestly recommend to your zeal the excellent society of the Propagation of the Faith. We exhort the pastors to establish it wherever it does not exist, and to renew it where it exists already, and the faithful we exhort to consider that by being members, and fulfilling the trifling obligations of it, they are contributing to the most excellent of all work—the establishment of Christ's Kingdom in the most abandoned part of the earth.

MIXED MARRIAGES.

We have individually shown to you the evils of mixed marriages. We now unitedly warn young men and women, before forming friendships with persons of a different creed to pause and reflect, lest they take a step, the consequences of which they may deplore both in time and eternity. Peace and harmony are seldom found in families where parents disagree on the most essential of all points—their own religion and that of their children.

EXHORTATION TO PROTESTANTS.

We cannot forget or ignore our people outside of the true fold. Christ has said:—"And other sheep I have that are not of this fold, and them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd." (John x 16,) Our dear Lord is constantly bringing into His fold these sheep. The many conversions in England, Ireland, Germany, and the United States are proof of this. But alas, pride, human respect, fear of temporal loss in business transactions, or of the world's friendship, deter many from following the inspiration or grace. These cannot plead invincible ignorance as an excuse for their sin, for a good God has already enlightened them as to their duty. It is true, very powerful graces are required to overcome these obstacles, but to earnest prayer and generosity of spirit great graces are always given. How many also I am kept out of the True Church by misrepresentation of her doctrines, and by endless calumnies repeated in books, journals, tracts in the pulpits, and at Sunday School meetings. Children are taught too often to look upon the priests and religious as wicked and impious; hence undertaken and unnatural hatred of persons and things consecrated to God. Misrepresentations have been the weapons which the enemy of all good has employed against Christ and His Church from the very commencement. And this is another snare of the True Church.—"If the world hate you, know that it hath hated me before you. If you had been of the world, the world would love its own: but because you are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you."—(John xv. 18, 19.) We exhort all who desire to love Christ and follow His true doctrine, to read our books—not those in which our doctrines are misrepresented—and to pray earnestly to God for light and strength to follow His divine will. Very many wise and good persons have recently made great sacrifices of earthly things, to gain for eternity heavenly things."

PATERNITY OF ST. PETER

"The kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent bear it away.," (Mat. xi 12) We take this solemn occasion to protest against the usurpation of the Patrimony of St. Peter, and sympathise with his Holiness in his continual martyrdrom. We admire the courage and magnanimity which animate the Vicar of Christ and strengthen him to patiently endure the fierce trials which his enemies have subjected him in the decline of his exceptional and venerable old age.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, beloved brethren in Christ, we exhort you, as children of God and members of the True Church under our especial care, to hold fast to the true faith, without which you cannot please God. Perform also those good works which we have pointed out to you, for faith without good works is dead. Never lose sight of the end and object of your existence upon this earth, which are to serve and love God, who will reward you eternally hereafter. Frequent the Sacraments instituted by Christ as a means of grace and salvation, cultivate a particular devotion to the ever Immaculate Mother of God, who holds our salvation in esteem., for she knows well the love her Divine Son bears us, and the extent of the sufferings he endured on our behalf. Our hearts and souls dilate towards you in the charity of Christ, and we beg God to keep and sactify you.

The Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, the charity of God, and the communication of the Holy Spirit be with you all.

This our present pastoral letter will be read in all the churches and in all the chapels of religious communities the first Sunday after its reception.

Given in Council at the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, the 3rd day of October, the year of our Lord, 1875.

USEFUL HINTS.

A bit of glue dissolved in skim-milk and water will restore old crape.

Half a cranberry bound on a corn will soon kill it.

An inkstand was turned over on a white table-cloth; the servant threw over it a mixture of salt and pepper plentifully, and all traces of it disappeared.

Picture frames and glasses are preserved from flies by painting them with a brush dipped in a mixture made by boiling three or four onions in a pint of water.

Bed-bugs are kept away by washing the crevices with strong salt water, put on with a brush.

Soft soap should be kept in a dry place in the cellar, and not used until three months old.

I had rather never receive a kindness than never bestow one. Not to return a benefit is the greater sin, but not to confer it is the earlier.

It is a terrible thought that nothing is ever forgotten and that an oath is never uttered that does not continue to vibrate through all time, in the widespreading current of sound; and not a prayer it lisped that its record is not to be found stamped on the laws of nature by the indelible seal of the Almighty's will.

REMEDIES FOR FITS.

For a fit of passion—Walk out in the open air; you may speak your mind to the winds without hurting any one, or proclaiming yourself a simpleton.

For a fit of illness—Count the ticking of a clock; do this for an hour, and you will be glad to pull off your coat the next, and work like a negroe.

For a fit of extravagance and folly—Go to the workhouse and speak with the inmates of a gaol and you will be convinced.

Who makes his bed of briar and thorn,
Must be content to lie forlorn.

For a fit of ambition—Go into a church yard and read the grave stones: they will tell you the end of ambition. The grave will be your bedchamber, the earth your pillow, corruption your father, and the worm your mother and sister.

For a fit of despondency—Look on the other good things which God has given you in this world, and to those which he has promised his followers to the next. He who goes into his garden to look for cob webs and spiders no doubt will find them, while he who looks for flowers may return into his house with one blooming in his bosom.

For a fit of repining—Look about for the halt and the blind, and visit the bedridden and afflicted, and deranged, and they will make you ashamed of complaining of your afflictions.

A friend in Des Moines, Iowa, sends to the Drawer an account which was recently brought up in court in that city, which may be serviceable as a guide to young accountants elsewhere:

Mr. James Davidson — To John Benton, Dr.

For 3 bbls. wheelbarrows at $15 00	$45 00
For 1 wooden do	15 00
	$60 00

Mr. Davison returned the bill as incorrect. Mr. Benton sued. When called in court, Mr. Davidson said it wasn't right; first, because he never bought a wooden wheelbarrow, and second, if he had, the bill would have been $60 instead of $30. Mr. Benton, when called upon to explain his account, said, "I made three iron wheelbarrows for Mr. Davison for $45, but for one that 'wooden (wouldn't) do' I deducted $15, and I reckon that's right."

That was what the Court thought, and so adjuged.

A lady put her watch under her pillow the other night, but couldn't keep it there because it disturbed her sleep. And there all the time, was her bed ticking right underneath her, and she never thought of that at all.

A wag entered a smoking-car on the Grand Trunk a few days ago while the train was in motion, and in an earnest and sympathetic tone said:—"There is a lady in the next coach fainted away. Has any gentleman here any liquor for her?" Twenty eight men in that car immediately rose to their feet, each with a flask in his hand. A more eloquent expression of sympathy could not be conceived.

The following lines are supposed to have been written by an editor who was insane, for certainly no sane man could dream anything so improbable:

I had a dream the other night,
When everything was still;
I dreamed that each subscriber
Came up and paid his bill.
Each wore a look of honesty,
And smiles were round each eye,
As they handed over the stamps
They yelled 'How's that for high?'

Too Mean.—Here is a warning for men too mean to advertise; one of this description wanted to sell some land, and so he bet a written notice in one of the hotels the other day. A man who was inquiring for a small farm was referred to the written notice, when he replied: "I can't buy land at a fair price of any man who plans his advertising in this way. He'd sand the brass, the pump handle, and the barn doors before he'd give up possession."

GLASS PRINTING TYPES.

It is stated by Pliny that during the reign of Tiberius, some inventive genius discovered a method by which glass could be rendered flexible. The authorities of the day seem to have taken alarm at this discovery, upon the singular notion that the precious metals would thereby be depreciated in value, and the reward allotted to the hapless inventor was that his machinery was destroyed and he himself was put to death for his ill-judged attempt to alter the properties of matter. From that day to this glass has remained the beautiful but brittle and breakable material which all of us know it as—ductile and amendable to the most delicate manipulation when sufficiently heated but refractory and resisting all attempts to change its form when cold. The fragility and consequent inability to bear the ill-usage of ordinary life which have been the standing approbrium of glass, have at last been done away with by the "toughening process" invented by M. de la Bastie. The invention, in itself, is an extremely simple one, and consists in heating the glass to a temperature little short of melting, and then plunging it into a bath curiously compounded of oleaginous and resinous matters. Simple as the process is in appearance, its success depends upon observance of numerous conditions of real delicacy; and it cost the inventor many years of patient labor before his discovery was perfected and assumed a practicle shape. Glass which has undergone M. de la Bastie's process, though precisely the same in appearance and color as before, and just as capable of being cut or polished as ordinary glass, has acquired such an amount of toughness and elasticity that it will successfully resist all ordinary forms of violence. It may be thrown about a room, or dropped on the floor, or submitted to the impact of heavy bodies, without breaking or showing any symptoms of injury. It need hardly be pointed out that the sphere of glass in the arts and social life is, by this discovery, almost indefinitely extended, and it is hardly possible to place any limits to the possible applications in science and manufactures to which it may not be found to be fitted. No better proof of this could be desired than the fact that since its discovery this new glass has been employed successfully, in place of type metal, in the manufacture of printing types.—Edinburgh Courant.

LORD DUFFERIN.

The Earl of Dufferin is a man formed for popularity. He has qualities which endear him to all manner of widely differing people. If he is not as preeminent as some, he is in most things very considerably above other men. He resigned party politics too early to have made any great name by their pursuit, but he was looked to as one of the most promising of the rising speakers and politicians in the House of Lords during his stay there. His counsels were generally sound and were not the less convincing because they were always good humored and very often amusingly offered. In the field of literature again he has done good work, though he has done but little; and that little in a somewhat careless and rollicking way. He is full of a rich and racy and buoyant humor, which seems to be less of the intellect than the heart. It is the humor not of satire or caricature, but of bon homie, a quality which seems in its perfection to be developed only in the Irish gentleman. He can give you an exhaustive, a statesmanlike, and an accurate account of the manifold causes which led to the religious disturbances of Syria, and can exhibit in his administration of affairs their great statesmanly qualities, can at once be firm and conciliatory—he can write for you, under other circumstances, a narration of a not over sober Icelandic dinner, which for downright fun and jollity would pass muster with honors by the side of Lever's most brilliant page—he is the author of one of the most powerfully terrible of ballads, and one of the most farcically funny of all dog Latin speeches. The cynical French philosopher defined the necessaries of happiness as a hard heart and a good digestion. The general opinion has, it is to be hoped, tended somewhat against the first half of that definition. In Lord Dufferin's case, a good heart and a sound and robust constitution have gone far, and the happiness which has fallen to his own share he reflects upon others. He is publicly and specially a favorite, and is everywhere a welcome guest.—Cassels National Portraits

An old lady in Detroit, hearing that American Girl was dead, remarked. "I've allus said that this tight lacing would lay 'em out some day."

"Their name is Legion," may be applied to those who die annually of Consuption, altho science has of late years sensibly diminished their number. It is gratifying to know that the general use of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of wild Cherry is largely instrumental in attaing this end.

The Human Hair.—How many persons abuse this delicate and beautiful ornament by burning it with alcoholic washes and plastering it with grease, which has no affinity for the skin and is not absorbed. Burnett's Cocoaine, a compound of Cocoa-nut Oil, etc., is unrivalled as a dressing for the hair—is readily absorbed, and is peculiarly adapted to its various conditions, preventing its falling off and promoting its healthy growth.

Virtue.—Virtue rarely passes unrecognized by the world. A few distorted optics may fail to recognise her features, but it would be as easy to conceal the face of the noon-day sun under a mask as to hide her resplendent features. And so it is with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," everyone who uses it speaks in the highest terms of its virtues and pain removing qualities. For rheumatism, neuralgia, colds, colic, cramps and summer complaints, it has no equal. For sale by druggists and country dealers. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya is called a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic because Phosphates enter into the formation of every solid and fluid of the body, and are essential to the development of the tissues and the generation of nerve power. They promote a good appetite, aid digestion, create pure blood, and supply the waste going on in the system as the result of mental and physical exertion. Being combined with Calisaya Bark, the chief reliance in all febrile, prostrate conditions, it forms a combination of the highest intrinsic merit and will restore to health more cases of general debility than all other medicines in existance. It is incapable of injurious results under any circumstances.

Don't Know Him.—We have heard of a man who owned a horse which had been for a long time afflicted with a chronic cough and was otherwise in poor condition, he at length resolved to sell him and did so for a trifling sum. Some five or six weeks afterwards he met the person to whom he had sold him driving a beautiful horse, full of life and concluded he had stolen exchanged him for this or purchased another, but, judge his surprise on learning that the horse was the same that he had previously owned and considered of so little value. On enquiry as to what had effected so great a change, he was told that Hurley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy had done it. This preparation has effected some remarkable cures. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northop & Lyman, Toronto Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

M. Fouchet, in his great work "The Universe" says that Anatomically and physically speaking, the human mechanism is very rude and coarse compared to the exquisite delicacy revealed in the organism of certain animals. But in us, the intellect, the real sceptre of the universe predominates over the apparent imperfection of matter. Through it man alone approaches the chosen creatures who shine near the throne of the Eternal, and form a band of union between heaven and earth. It is his structure he belongs to on sphere he seems already to elevate himself towards the Supreme Essence by the splendor of his genius A grand and philosophic truth, and yet how comparatively small the number and rare the genius displayed in proportion to the number of the earth's inhabitants. Were man to conform more to the laws of health and of nature and be less addicted to the gratification of his passions, it would not be necessary to advertise Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites as a restorative for the powers of the brain and nervous system, while the world's progress in enlightenment would indeed be marvelous.

How the Old and Infirm are supported by Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites—During the vigor of youth the appetites of the power of the mind (which is the real seat of man's strength) is balanced by activity of the nutritive functions, without the aid of stimulants. But time, the everlasting disrupter of reason as of events, puts a limit to his power and it is at this epoch that science may render to man the destroyed sustenance and restore the drain upon his wasted energies. Each effort of the mind, every act of the body, will extract a volume of nervous element, in proportion to the magnitude of the [illegible] action and since this Hypophosphite [illegible] action really will [illegible] the vi[illegible] it must support the human [illegible] economically after the vigor of you[illegible]

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE TRUE TONIC

D. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

CURATIVE PROPERTIES PECULIAR TO VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANEY & SON'S

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP ON DOWNIE STREET PETERBORO',

(Next to Mr. Wm. Hamilton's Foundry.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me. (Signed) JOSHUA SMITHSON,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvelous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous taint, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public is scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or [illegible]

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be insidiously deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, in the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Boils or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Piles, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous system.

Syphilitic, Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are relieved by it, though a long time is required for suffering the system solution by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Tetterches or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effects. Minute directions for [illegible] are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by constitutional derangement, are [illegible] in the blood, and quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. [illegible] AYER'S PILLS is a great remedy for [illegible] and [illegible] of the system. Dysentery and Diarrhœa. Dropsical [illegible] and [illegible] troubled with Nervous Apprehensions, Fears, or any of the affections of the Heart, will find immediate [illegible] evidence of its restorative [illegible]

But such as remain can be restored to usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. THE CHILDREN'S RED-TIME.

Ah, tender hour that sends a drift
Of children's kisses through the house,
And endless notes of sweet "Good-night,"
That thoughts of heaven and home arouse
And a soft stir to nerve and heart,
And when the box and blossoms part;
And little feet shod pater shower,
Like the last droppings of the shower.

And in the children's room aloft
What blossoms elapse do gaily slip
Their dainty shoulders, and troop run
From clasping hand and kissing lip
A naked evanescence to the eye—
Blossom and babe and butterfly
In wishing one, no clear a sight!
An ecstasy of life and light.

Then fly-dust in angel-white
To mother's knee they tripping come,
The soft palms fold into kindly shells,
And they and we go clasping home—
Their bright heads bowed and worshipping,
Ourselves with grave glory of the spring.
Some darkest time shades the day,
Round fold his golden palms and pray.

Ah, deep pathetic mystery!
The world's great Om unconscious hung,
A rain-drop on a blossom's lip!
White innocence that wots not our wrong,
And love divine that looks again,
Unconscious of the cross and pain,
From sweet child-eyes, and in that child
And earth and heaven reconciled

Then kissed on beds, we lay them down,
As fragrant-white as clovered sod,
And all the longer flowers grow hushed
With children's sleep and dews of God,
And as our stars their lesson do bide,
The stars of twilight, opening wide,
Take up the heavenly tale at even,
And light us on to god in heaven.

THE GALLOWS.

The Well-Merited Fate of John Clark of Rochester.

HORRIBLE STORY OF AN OUTLAW.

(Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald)

ROCHESTER, Nov 19.

In May 1839, John Clark was borne in Rochester; to day he ended his life upon the scaffold in the city of his birth His father is in the grave; his aged father and mother still resides here. Clark's life has been a remarkable one—that of an outlaw for ten years.

A MURDERER'S CAREER.

As a boy he was distinguished by the same traits that marked him as a man. Those who sat beside him in the school and who worked with him in the shop speak of his coolness in times of personal danger, his utter carelessness of consequences, his daring and his refusal to place confidence in any one. All the education he received was in the public school here; travel from one place to another and contact with men of all characters filled the rest. His father, Wm Clark, was foreman in a tobacco factory, and John, when a lad, was put to work there. He was a very wild boy, and the cause of much trouble. One day a farmer drove by the factory with a load of melons, and Johnny led out a youthful gang that robbed the rustic. The police came, arrested the boy and carried him into a room high up in the building. They thought they had him, but he opened the door and leaped to the ground below, fully forty feet. Climbing a fence he slid down the river bank, and was next seen swimming the Genesee. The incident illustrates the character of the boy.

Time passed on, William Clark died, and the character of his son grew rapidly worse. Surrounded by evil associates, his ways became wicked, and more than one petty crime was charged to him. He was a shrewd worker, however, doing his jobs alone and keeping his own secrets, and so he managed for a long time to escape detection. He became

A GAMBLER AND A BURGLAR.

His way of working was peculiar. He went out to the surrounding cities and villages, rarely committing any crime in Rochester. These excursions were made at frequent intervals, and Clark would return with his ill-gotten gain. From one of these excursions he came back after an absence of nearly six years, five of which were passed in Auburn State Prison. One night the captain of a steamer lying in Buffalo saw a man emerge from his cabin with his watch and wallet. Chase was given and Clark was cornered in an alley without an outlet. He fire l upon the police, who returned the fire, and it was only when his bullets were all gone that they captured him. Five years imprisonment was the result of this indulgence in his idiosyncrasy. Returning to Rochester in 1862 or 1863, he resumed the old work. For a short time he had an interest in a faro bank here. His associates were gamblers, thieves and women of evil character. He went out upon his excursions and returned as usual. He was during a portion of the war, and many stories are told of the daring he exhibited in that work. He squandered his money as fast as he acquired it, and was always willing to do desperate work to replete his treasury. In May, 1864, he was passing along main street with a woman named Frances Clayton. They had been drinking and were acting in a disorderly manner when a policeman interfered.

A BOUNTY JUMPER

"Why don't you shoot the—I" said she.

Clark drew his revolver and fired. The officer, Richard Freehouse, fell badly wounded. The criminal fled to New York. An indictment having been found, officers arrested him on Broadway and took him to the Prince street station house. On his way to the Tombs the next morning Clark attempted to escape, but was shot in the leg. Some friends, who had known Clark when they resided in Rochester appeared in his behalf, procured a writ of habeas corpus, and he was brought before Judge Dowling, who discharged him. He resided a short time in New York and then suddenly disappeared. He was next heard of in Mexico. Why he left New York so mysteriously is not known, but it was probable that he was afraid of being brought back to Rochester or that he had committed some new crime. He says he landed at Vera Cruz and went from there to the City of Mexico, where he remained for some time. He then went to Matamoras, on the Rio Grande, where he fell in with James Monaghan, another desperado from Rochester, who had left this city on account of crime and who afterward escaped from the jail at Titusville, Penn., and fled to Brownsville, Texas, opposite Matamoras. If the reports in circulation about the exploits of these two worthies while there were true, they were then fit

SUBJECTS FOR THE HANGMAN.

They travelled in Mexico and it is said they were arrested at Monterey or Saltillo for some desperate crime and sentenced to death. Clark escaped, but Monaghan is believed to have died there. Clark denies this, and says he was merely a gambler when in Mexico and that he was not arrested there. He went to New Orleans, then to Chicago, where he became attached to a notorious woman and went with her to New York. She soon left him however. Clark continued his evil practices an now became a daring and desperate burglar. On one of his plundering expeditions he visited Scranton, Pa. where Goodhan Clark, a prominent tobacco manufacturer and uncle of John resided. He lured his cousin, a young girl, from her father's house, married her and went to New York. This was in 1871. Since then he resided in Brooklyn, but passed most most of his time in New York. He visited Rochester occasionally, but always escaped the police. He is believed to have committed several daring burglaries here.

THE MURDERER.

On the night of June 29 the residence of Austin H. Cole was entered, his bedroom visited and his watch, wallet and store keys removed. An umbrella was taken from the hall below by the thief, who went to the large store of Moore and Cole, entered by means of false keys and sheltered himself with the umbrella while he opened and robbed the safe. The next morning a mail carrier in going his rounds found the keys in a letter box with a request to return them to Moore & Cole's store. The next day two boys in chasing a rabbit through a lumber yard found a small satchel and a bag. The police were informed. In the satchel was found some of the jewellery stolen at Cole's; the bag contained burglars' tools. The police supposed that the burglar had secreted them and would return. They determined to replace them, and while officers Kavanagh and McCormick were doing so that evening (July 2) a man appeared, saw them, turned and walked towards the street. They followed him, when they reached the sidewalk there were two men in sight. Not knowing which had left the yard each officer followed a man. Kavanagh met his man on Atkinson street, and, after walking beside him and asking questions till they reached a bridge, turned, caught him with both hands and said,

"I'M AN OFFICER, I ARREST YOU."

The man lifted his hand, which held a revolver, and fired, Kavanagh fell back, exclaiming, "My God! I'm shot. He recovered in a moment, and, joined by McCormick, followed the fugitive. They fired at him and cried "Stop murderer." Running along the bank of the canal, Clarke, for it was him, turned into Waverly place. In that thorough fare resided John Trevor, a private bank watchman, aged thirty-five, with his wife and four children. Clark had thrown the revolver with which he shot Kavanagh beneath a cart, where it was found next day, and was now running with a half cocked pistol in his hand. Trevor, was standing at his gate chatting with a friend, and his wife stood beside him. He heard the cry, and recognized McCormick's voice. Seeing the man he crossed the street to intercept him. Clark slackened his pace; Trevor had reached the side walk and placed one foot upon it with his arms out, when Clark fired. It was John Trevor's death signal, but he was not the man to shrink from duty under any circumstances. He grasped his murderer with a strong arm and pinned him to the fence until the officers arrived. Then he fell into the arms of his neighbours, who carried him accross the road over the threshold of his door, and laid him upon the bed, which he only left three days after to be placed in a coffin. A crowd gathered, Kavanagh believed himself to be mortally wounded and wanted to kill Clark. The mob also wanted to lynch him. McCormick, however, with drawn revolver hurried him away to the police office. Kavanagh went into a house, removed his clothes and the bullet dropped to the floor. It had hit him full upon the breast bone and flattened itself. It was a very narrow escape for him. At the police office Clark was searched and a wig, a cloth mask, a dirk, a skull cap, false whiskers and other things were found. Inside the fence where Trevor stopped him was found a small box containing a set of burglar's small tools The next day Clark was sent to jail. The public and the press claimed for

HIS IMMEDIATE TRIAL.

Governor Tilden was appealed to, and he issued a proclamation for the holding of a special and extraordinary Court of Oyer and Terminer, appointing Judge James C. Smith, of Canandaigua, to preside. The Court opened September 6th, on the next morning an indictment was found, and the trial began that afternoon. William F. Howe defended the prisoner; District Attorney George Raines prosecuting. Clark was cool and collected during the whole trial and did not seem to care much about it, and thought himself safe. On the 15th the jury after a short absence, brought in a VERDICT OF GUILTY.

and the Court passed the sentence of death. As the slow, solemn tones fell from the lips of the Judge, amid the silence of the Court room, his wife was borne fainting from the hall. Clark did not seem to care. He acted as if he were of iron, incapable of emotion. The only remark of regret that he has been heard to utter was the day after his sentence, when looking through the bar of the condemned cell he said:—

"Poor little wife, this will kill her."

When he heard them nailing the scaffold together, he said, with a smile: "That sounds like business."

AFTER THE SENTENCE

Since his sentence Clarke has occupied the condemned cell, a large airy room in the upper story of the jail. He is the sixth man that has left that cell to swing on the scaffold below. He has passed the time quietly, full of hope of reprieve to the last. Absurd religion he cared nothing, although he permitted a clergyman to visit him daily. His actions have been the same all the time Long used to danger, he has not given much thought to the end of his life. He has slept soundly and eaten heartily, talked with his guards pleasantly, and passed the time as though he were to go out into the world to-day instead of going to the grave. Last night he felt 'first rate,' as he expressed it, and awoke this morning after a sound sleep.

THE LAST MOMENTS.

The prisoner ate a hearty meal this morning and was then shaved. During the process he said:—

"This is amusing to me."

The military were then gathering about the jail and he saw them from the window. Most intense excitement prevailed, and immense crowd being present about the jail. There was no sympathy manifested for the condemned. His wife and mother were with him a short time and the farewell parting was very affecting, his wife being finally led away, but he remained cold and indifferent. A clergyman was with him a short time.

THE PROCESSION.

formed at eleven o'clock a.m. and Clark took his place, smoking a cigar. He walked with a firm step and showed no fear.

AT THE SCAFFOLD

he shook hands with his friends, smiling and smoking. His bearing was not defiant, but he seemed utterly different to the eager gaze of the large crowd about him. The death warrant was read and he was asked if he had anything to say. He replied quietly that he had not had a fair trial, but had nothing to say. Then his clergyman prayed with him, Clark kneeling. Just before he knelt he threw away his cigar, which was eagerly caught by a curiosity hunter. He then stood up straight and firm, without a tremble. The rope was put about his neck, a moment after the Sheriff pulled the cord and John Clark was LAUNCHED INTO ETERNITY.

The knot slipped around to the back of his neck, which was dislocated. He died game to the last, such an exhibition of nerve having been rarely witnessed on the scaffold. He maintained his reserve to the last and said nothing about the past. The remains were taken to Greenwood Cemetery for interment beside his only child, a boy, who died in Brooklyn in 1870.

AN ATTEMPTED RESSCIUTATION.

After the body of John Clark was taken to his mother's residence, several physicians attempted to resuscitate him, but failed. The affair has created much excitement.

EXECUTION OF HENRY NICHOLSEN FOR THE MURDER OF A PEDLER.

Coushatta, La, Nov. 19.

The majesty of the law was vindicated at this place to-day in the execution of Henry Nicholsen, convicted of a crime which in all ages and among all people, from the most barbarous to the most enlightened, has been regarded as among the greatest which can be perpetrated—namely, the murder of his guest. He was condemned to die conjointly with his brother and partner in the dreadful crime, but for reasons hereinafter mentioned, he ascended the fatal tree alone. The tragedy for which these brothers were doomed to death, and for which one of them suffered today, occurred on the 25th of June last, upon the plantation of Col. Rubis, a locality already rendered famous in political annals as having been the scene of a formidable negro insurrection and subsequent massacre.

THE MURDER.

Upon the day referred to a peddlar named Marcus Young, described as being a weak and inoffensive man, arrived with his pack and mule upon the Rubis plantation for the purpose of trading with the people there employed. One of the first to meet him and offer the hospitality of the house was Henry Nicholsen, one of two brothers long noted throughout that section of country as being very desperate characters. The unsuspicious victim accepted the invitation and repaired to his house. Before nightfall he was persuaded by some pretence to call upon his brother, George Nicholsen, who resided about a mile distant. From this short journey the peddlar never returned. Suspicion was aroused, and the belief generally gained credence among the neigubours that Young had been inveigled to some retired spot by the Nicholsens and there despatched in order to obtain possession of his mule and scanty stock of goods.

THE DISCOVERY.

No active steps were taken in the matter till after July 4. Upon that day the Nicholsen brothers, who appeared to be unusually flush of money, gave a Fourth of July celebration, at Coushatta at their own expense, and as it substantially appeared, out of the proceeds derived from the sale of the murdered peddler's effects. The celebration was attended by all the influential people in the vicinity, among others by Col Rubis and Dr. Richardson, both of whom made patriotic speeches on the occasion. After dinner Col. Rubis' suspicions, already aroused, were confirmed by seeing the Nicholsen brothers appear on the ground attired in some of the very articles known to have constituted a portion of the peddlar's wares. He accordingly laid the matter before the Coushatta authorities immediately, but owing, it is said, to the timidy or carelessness of the sheriff, who was dilatory in acting, the accused parties got wind of the charge and fled to the swamps. Numerous arrests were made, however; among others a man named Hinton,

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 2, 1875.

PARLIAMENTARY.

The Ontario Legislature met on Wednesday last, as previously announced. On that evening the House elected Mr. Wells of South Bruce Speaker without opposition. The debate on the address was rather common-place. The Opposition showed no uncommon spitness for discussing the matter, and in connexion therewith proposed no changes. In fact they seem to have no confid nce in themselves, and are without a policy to bind them together.

Mr. McDougall so far is acting as leader. Mr Scott has given notice of motion as to the intention or acts of the Government in granting land to the branch of the Pacific Railway. This was one of his hobbies during the campaign; but what he expects to make out of it, cannot yet be learned.

The speech from the throne foreshadows some of the Legislation that may be looked for. A law to provide for paying witnesses in criminal cases, may be expected. The Election Law will be amended. The Ballot system in Municipal and other elections re-con sidered. Extended aid to Railways will come before the House. A change in the management of Educational matters is foreshadowed. Mr. Crooks will in all probability become Minister of Education, and Dr. Ryerson will retire on a pension. The proposal to secure a complete system of vital statistics is also to be brought forward. Already the accounts have been submitted and the estimates, and the Financial statement will be given on Friday, by Mr. Crook's. A due regard to economy is manifest in the estimates.

Mr McDougall has spoken several times on the Boundary question of Ontario This seems to be a favorite topic with him. It is not known whether he intends to include Washington in Ontario; but may look that way

Mr. Scott is on the track of the F. R. B. of the P. Railway, and wants correspondence. The correspondence will be laid before the House in due time.

During the discussion on the address it was learned that the Conservatives resorted to the Green Porter Business, wherever they had the faintest hope of arousing sectarian feeling. East Peterborough, Toronto and North Wentworth, were all in turn flooded with fly sheets, calculated to arouse the worst passions and yet they whine about Mr. Fraser raising the religious cry.

The estimates for 1876 are now before the public, and show a saving from 1875.

The following summary will give the fairest resume of them.

This shows a saving in the estimates of $52,412.00 in favor of 1876.

No very great difference from year to year may be expected as the same work has to be provided for yearly, and with increased public buildings, Asylums, Central Prison Buildings, Accomodation &c., increased expenditure may be looked for. The Government appears to be strong enough to command the respect of the House and will in all probability grow stronger as the session advances.

St. Andrew's Celebration.

The Anniversary of St. Andrew, the patron Saint of "Auld Scotia" was duly celebrated, on Tuesday evening About fifty Scotchmen and guests sat down to an excellent supper, prepared by mine host Roddy, of the Stewart House, in his best style.

JOHN ELDER, ESQ,

President of the Society, very ably presided on his right was the Mayor, and Mr. Toker, V. P. of the St. George's Society; on his left, Mr. Muir, ex President, Dr. Kincaid and D. G. Hatton, Esq. Mr. D. D. Gallettly, filled the first Vice Chair.

Ample justice being done to the feast of fat things, Mr. Elder gave the word to prepare for the more intellectual part of the proceedings. He then gave "Her Majesty the Queen." He said the first toast given at all gatherings of this kind was the Queen, She requires no praise from her subjects. Her life speaks for it-self, she has occupied the throne of the Empire nearly forty years. Her life has been a reign of almost uninterrupted peace and future generations will regard this long period of exemption from war, as remarkable and creditable to Her as a sovereign. Never in the same number of years did Great Britain rise to such a height of prosperity This program vade under this noble Queen will be engraven in letters of gold on the pages of history for all time. He would then merely add "may God Bless Our Queen."

Mr. Gallethy then led in the National Anthem.

Mr Elder then gave the "Prince and Princess of Wales, and all the Royal Family." All were aware that the Prince was at present on a visit to India, one of the most important colonies of the Empire. His enthusiastic reception is only another evidence of the loyalty of the people to the British Crown, and he (Mr. Elder) could say that the great desire of all was that the Family might be long spared to be a comfort to their mother in her declining years, and as shining stars to the nation. This toast was enthusiastically received.

The next toast was "His Excellency the Governor General of the Dominion." He remarked that all had good reason to be proud of Canadian Governors; but of none more than the present Governor General, as he has done more good, probably, than any of his predecessors. He has manifested a lively interest in the Country and in all our Institutions, and while in England had done as much good, as in speeches he had brought Canada prominently before the world in the most flattering terms, which an Irishman knows well how to do. He had only to give the toast of His Excellency to be heartily responded to. The toast was heartily received.

The "Army, Navy and Volunteers of Canada." was given also by the President In doing so he expressed himself pleased to see one of the noble volunteers present in the person of Dr. Kincaid, an officer who is always ready to do his duty when his country calls for it; and although at great personal sacrifices. The people of Great Britain are beginning to acknowledge, that in this Canada of Ours there is a people possessed of the grand old British spirit that drove back the power of depotism at the Nile and Trafalgar, and caused liberty to triumph or the fields of Waterloo. He therefore gave the toast, coupling with it the name of Dr. Kincaid.

responded in eloquent terms. He considered it a pleasure and an honor to respond to the "Army. Navy and Volunteers." He was only sorry that it had not fallen to the lot of of some one more able and eloquent to do it justice. He returned them his sincere thanks for the enthusiasm with which it had been received. He knew all Canadians were loyal, and no one would be more ready to serve his Queen and country than himself but he hoped the day was far away in the distant future, when Britain would require his services, or when she would be called upon to pour her metal into an enemy. But if ever it did occur, he knew the same men that determined the fate of the Nile, Trafalgar and Waterloo, were ready and equal in skill and courage to repeat the glorious victories of the past He referred to the policy of the different governments of Canada as to Volunteer matters. Found fault with the useless expenditure of money, and advocated training a standing army of ten thousand men. from time to time, till every Canadian would be a soldier.

"The day and a wha honor it."

The President then said:

I have much pleasure in proposing to you the next toast; yet it is one of no ordinary importance. and for that reason I suppose it usually falls on the lot of the President to dispose of. Unfortunately. for me, I have not the ability of my predecessors to inspire your hearts or bring you as it were to feel that you are really spending a night in Scotland., "The Day and a' wha Honor it" is a toast, I am sure, will be well received by the company. This being St. Andrew's night, we can all join in the happy thought that in every City, Town and Village from one end of the Dominion to the other Scotchmen and their friends will be gathered together as if summoned by an irresistable bugle call, to give vent to their feeling, and bringing back to their remembrance many happy thoughts and kind recollections of the good old land which they have left. There always seems a tenderness and cordiality in such gatherings, and particularly on such an occasion as this, which can be easily explained by the fact that Scotchmen have an extreme veneration for their Common Country and its belongings. Although an angry ocean divides the land we left from the land we live in, yet we do not lose any of our love for our country. But on the contrary, it seems to me as if the two countries are united, bridged and rebridged far above the roaring billows of an angry Atlantic by hearts that beat as one. But there must be something more than common to keep up this happy union True, Scotland has made some contributions to the greatness and glory of the Empire, and also added to the general progressive condition of the world. But she has done much for herself and her race in every department of life and thought, in science, in history in poetry and in song. But these, gentlemen, are not Her glory. Her school system and the moral and religious training of her people have been felt wherever the Banner of the gospel has been carried and unfurled. All over the world her teachings have been "Wealth in Poverty, liberty in bondage.

Health in Sickness, Society in Solitude."

We feel proud in the memories of a Wallace and a Bruce, and many others as the former champions of freedom. The power of auld Scotia is also manifestly felt and acknowledged in the House of Parliament, on the tented field, in every sea, and in every land; in the pulpit, at the Bar, and on the Bench; and permit me to say that in my opinion the highest position that is possible for any man to attain to, is to be Chief Justice of England, and he who has the good fortune to be so now is a Scotchman. Wherever the son of Fatherland may wander, or in what ever clime his lot may be cast, or however long he may be absent from the cradle of his infancy, yet will he fondly remember old Scotia with her towering mountain, her beautiful valleys. her rugged shores and her lakes and river.

"Full o'er these scenes his memory wakes
And fondly broods with miser care;
Time, has the impression stronger makes.
As streams their channels deeper wear."

Gentlemen, I could go on dilating on the beauties and glories of old Scotia, but as there is a number of others to follow I will content myself by proposing to you the toast. "The Day, and a' who Honor it," coupling the name of Mr. Carnegie to respond.

Mr. Gallethy then gave "the poets and poetry of Scotland." In proposing it he thought it better to allow the other toasts of the evening to be without formality, so that the whole might be as pleasant as possible. After moving the toast, he sang, "He's your brither."

Mr. Telford then read his annual address.

After the address D. G. Hatton, Esq., proposed the "House of Commons of Canada.

Mr. Haggart responded on behalf of the Commons.

Mr. Moir then gave, "Our Sister Society and Guests."

He advocated the claims of the Society on account of the benefits conferred on those in need, not because it afforded an opportunity for self glorification as hinted. Although he approved of recalling the ancestral deeds of his forefathers, as a means of creating a noble, generous and benevolent spirit; and remarked that he would be glad to see a St. Patrick Society

D. Kincaid, Mr. Hatton, Mr. Toker, Mr Moloney, Mr. Stratton, Mr. Huffman and Mr. Tanner responded.

Mr. Carnegie then proposed, "Canada our Home."

Mr. George Tully, of North Monaghan, responded, and also Jas Whyte, on behalf of the manufacturers.

Mr. Moir gave the press, to which Mr Elliott responded.

Mr. Carnegie then said that he had great pleasure in proposing a toast, and one that would receive a right cordial reception. They all knew that money was the principle thing in any Society and the man who raised the needful means was worthy of the best thanks of the Society. He had therefore great pleasure in proposing the health of Mr Jas. Millar, through whose energy a large subscription list had been secured, without which the Society would be helpless to do good.

The toast was received with the warmest enthusiasm.

Mr. Millar then returned thanks for the manner in which his name had been mentioned, He feared when he undertook the task it would fail, but he was glad to be able to report success. When he spoke to Scotchmen of the hard times and probable necessity for liberality, they put their hands away down in their pockets and brought their dollars out. And he was glad to be able to report over 100 members this year, the largest ever obtained before at any period in the history of the Society. He thanked the Society for the manner in which his name had been received and toasted.

"The Ladies" were given and responded to by Mr. Elliott and Mr. Toker.

Mr. Toker, Vice-President of the St. George's Society, then proposed the health of the President, John Elder, Esq. In doing so he said that the success of a Society largely depended on the President, and judging from the success of the celebration and the healthy state of the Society he could say that to Mr. Elder's energy and ability, this was largely due. The able manner too, in which he had discharged the duties of the chair deserved the thanks of all; especially, of the guests, He had therefore great pleasure in proposing the health of the President, Mr. Elder.

Mr. Elder responded in a very happy manner.

He said he he took great pleasure in promoting the Society, and was ready to do all he could that it might prosper. He paid a fitting tribute to Mr Millar's energy as a collector, and thought that he deserved a large share of the praise. The Society at one time consisted of one member, now it was one hundred, and was in a prosperous condition. He thanked them for the warm expression of good will toward him.

This was one of the pleasantest and most cordial celebrations of the St An drew's Society. Everything went off well; the speeches were appropriate and eloquently delivered. Several songs enlivened the proceedings, and when the parting came it was admitted by all that the affairs of the members deserved the highest ecommuns for the success of the celebration at the present time.

THE LOCAL LEGISLATURE.

OPENING ON WEDNESDAY.

EXTRACT FROM THE GLOBE.

The first session of the third Parliament of Ontario opened on Wednesday afternoon Formerly speaking the House was not opened for some until Thursday afternoon, for although Mr. Honor the Lieut.-Governor proceeded in state to the Assembly on Wednesday and summoned the members to his presence the Provincial secretary was "commanded by His Honor to state that he does not see fit to declare the causes of his summoning the present Parliament of this Province until the Speaker of the house shall have been choosen according to law, but to-morrow, at three o'clock in the afternoon, His Honor will declare the causes of his calling this Parliament"

His Honor then withdrew, and the House proceeded to elect a speaker.

On motion of the Hon. Attorney-General Mowat, seconded by Hon. Peter Gow, Mr. Rupert Mearse Wells, member for South Bruce was unanimously elected, and on being conducted to the chair he expressed his acknowledgements.

On Thursday afternoon His Honor delivered the following

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

The melancholly event which occured since the dissolution of the late House cannot but be in the memory of all on the present occasion and I but give utterance to the common sentiment when I express profound regret that a more long-honed career of usefulness had not fallen to my esteemed predecessor, In consequence of his lamented death the duty of disbarging the high and responsible functions of Lieutenant-Governor of my native Province has unexpectedly been imposed upon me. I hope so to discharge them as becomes a British constitutional governor under the British system which we have the happiness of possessing, and as may best promote the true interest of the country.

The reforms that have from time to time been made in the election laws of the Province have resulted in that order and decorum at the late general and other elections which were anticipated. In view of the experience gained of the operation of these laws, it may be proper to consider whether some of them may not be so improved that without foregoing or diminishing the advantages which they secure, you may free constituencies and candidates from some undue hardships to which occasionally they are now exposed. Bills with this object and for the further improvement of the law as to voters' lists will probably be submitted to you.

The system of voting by ballot being now in force with respect to all parliamentary and municipal elections, a Bill will be laid before you for the extension of the system to by-laws requiring the assent of the ratepayers

It is a matter for congratulation that while so many countries are suffering from a depressed state of trades and other industries our Province has been blessed with an abundant harvest, and has, thereby, been relieved to a considerable exten from an equally suffering condition, the Province having be n completely free from the effects of over speculation. I has every confidence that the period will not be long before the Province will enter upon a fresh career of activity and prosperity.

You will probably think it right to consider with economics and caution how far it may be wise and of general benefit for the Province out of its accumulated funds to afford aid to projected railways which have not hitherto been assisted, or to supplement the aid already granted to any of the railways which are in progress Your special attention will probably be invited to the question of the best mode and time of affording encouragement to railway enterprises which have for their object the opening up, settling and improving the more remote areas of the Province.

It is satisfactory to know that the expenditure of the Province for the promotion of immigration continues to bear good fruit A large number of emigrants belonging to the classes most needed have settled in our Province during the past year, notwithstanding the inducements and temptations held out by other countries. I am glad also to have it in my power to state that the system which was adopted last year by the Dominion and Provincial Governments has enabled the work to be carried on with increased efficiency as well as greater economy.

There will be submitted to you a considerable portion of the work performed by the commissioners to whom was assigned the task of classifying and consolidating the statute laws of Ontario. The commissioners have during the past year been continuing their revision labors, and in the course of their work they have had their attention called to desirable amendments in various statutes One or more bills embodying their recommendations will probably be submitted to you for consideration.

The Chief superintendent who has ably managed the Educational Department for more than 30 year, being desirous of retiring from office, you will probably be called upon to consider whether the time has not arrived when the efficiency of the system would be promoted by placing the work of the Department in the hands of a responsible Minister of the Crown.

I have taken the opportunity during the summer of visiting most of the public institutions of the Province which are under Government management, and I have been much gratified by what I saw of their condition. One class of these, the asylums for lunatics and idiots, has become insufficient for the accomodation of the unhappy persons for whom they are designed, and the number of whom is increasing as the population of the Province advances. I am sure that you will not hesitate to make such further provisions for their keeping and treatment as may be necessary.

A measure will be submitted to you, having for its object the securing of a complete system of vital statistics.

I invite your attention to the desirability of some legislation to making fuller provisions that heretofore for the payment of witnesses in criminal prosecutions

The question of the eastern boundary of Ontario, so far as relates to Provincial action, has been finally determined, agreeably to the Act passed at the last session of the legislature I regret that the other matters in difference between Ontario and Quebec remain unsettled There has been correspondence on the subject, and the Quebec Government has intimated its intention of uniting with us in taking up the matter vigorously after the prorogation of the Legislature now in session Meanwhile we continue in the employment of most of the assets assigned to this Province by the arbitrators, as well as of Quebec's share of the money realized since Confederation from the sales of school lands

Since the dissolution of the last House the question of the northerly and westerly boundaries of the Province has continued to receive the attention of the Government. Informal negotiations have taken place with respect to both a compromise line and the arbitration which the Legislature authorized, but no final result has been arrived at Meanwhile steps have been taken for obtaining some additional evidence expected to be of value.

The account of the Province will be submitted to you without delay, and I have the satisfaction of assuring you that notwithstanding drafts made on account of appropriations which preceding Legislatures authorized to be made out of our surplus in encouraging railways and other public works, and after distributing three millions of dollars amongst the municipalities there will remained on the 30th of September last a large aggregate amount of Provincial resources available in cash. The estimates for the coming year have been prepared and will be laid before you. The endeavor has been to frame them with a due regard to economy, and at the same time to consider and secure the efficiency of the public service.

In leaving you now to your deliberations my prayer is that the Great Ruler of the universe may so influence them that they may redound to your credit, and may promote the welfare of the community.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS REPORT.

Mr Cahill, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee, read the following report, which, on motion was received and adopted,

To the Mayor and Town Council of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN.—The Committee on Fire, Water and Gas beg leave to report, that they have had under consideration the application of E. C. Hill and others, asking for a gas lamp on Reid street, but owing to the lateness of the season can not recommend the same. Your Committee recommend that the communication of L. Dobbin, Secretary of the Fire Brigade be referred back with the request to submit their names to the Council as provided in the 8th section of the By-law for regulating the Fire Brigade: all of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. CAHILL
Chairman.

Council Chamber, Nov 25, 1875.

Mr Beal, chairman of the Finance Committee read over the following Report, which on motion was read over and adopted:

REPORT.

Your Committee recommend as follows; That the petition of Messrs Brodie, Paisley & Co., be referred to the Court of Revision: with regard to the Town Clerks complaint concerning the non return of coupons which have been redeemed on the Municipal Loan Fund would recommend the Town Clerk to lay the matter before W. H. Scott, M. P. P., asking him to make inquiries respecting the matter in Toronto; also recommend payment of the following accounts:

Robt White's Acon't	$16 00
W. D Hopkins	25 75
A. Mowry	87 27
C. Barnes	10 00

W. BEAL,
Chairman.

Mr. Beal said that there was another matter which the committee could not agree on, and that was the account of Dr. Kincaid for $250 for salary and attending small pox patients, and he would like to hear the opinions of some of the other councillors on the matter, he therefore moved that Dr Kincaid be paid $200 for services rendered during the year, that would include the Doctor's fixed salary of $150 and $50 for extra attendance with small pox patients.

Mr. Hamilton compared $200 paid to Dr Kincaid for one small pox patient with $800 paid to Dr O'Sullivan for attending 15 patients, and thought that there was no fair proportion. Mr. Beal replied asking if Mr Hamilton was willing to pay Dr. Kincaid the same rate per visit paid to Dr. O'Sullivan.

Mr. Rutherford protested against paying the account as it could not be paid under the report or the resolution referred to.

Mr Hopkins said the account should be paid as the doctor's promptness of action had prevented the spread of the disease, and was better to pay for prevention than cure.

Mr Cahill agreed with Mr Hopkins, and after hearing the discussion was of opinion the account should be paid.

Mr Patterson said that he would not vote for the payment of the doctor's bill under the resolution of the Council, but that he would give $50 not to have it on Hunter street again.

Mr Rutherford still protested against the payment of the account and said that Mr Beal was trying to push through the account, and demanded the yeas and nays on it, which was taken and the motion to pay Dr. Kincaid $200 was carried.

YEAS:—Cahill, Helm, Beal, Hopkins, Dixon and Thornton.

NAYS:—Rutherford, Elliott, Hamilton and McDonald.

Mr. Patterson was prepared to vote for the motion only he thought that they could not pay it under the resolution of the Council.

From the Trustees of the George St. Methodist Church, asking for a gas lamp in front of the New Church door, and asking for the removal of the lamp from the corner to the middle of the old cemetery on George street.—Referred to the Gas Commitee with power to act.

Moved by Mr. Thornton, seconded by Mr. Elliott, that Messrs McDonald, Rutherford, Patterson and the mover be a special Committee with instructions to consider the advisability of building a bridge across the Otonabee River on the line of Smith Street, and report to this Council at its next meeting.—Carried.

The Mayor said that Mr. Shuttleworth called on him and was prepared to pay half of the expense of cutting from Simcoe to 500 feet in front of Mr. Hogle's residence, Little Lake, if the council would bear half of the expense, which would be $1 50. per day.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm, that the town Engineer be requested to make an examination of the road way at the Little Lake and report to the Council at its next meeting what steps should be taken to render the same safe for public travel; also, the probable cost and any suggestions that he may deem proper to make in connection therewith

Moved by Mr. Hopkins, seconded by Mr. Patterson, that there be a gas lamp placed in front of the Catholic Church as soon as convenient.

Mr. Rutherford objected to it; but, on motion it was carried.

From John Cole, asking the Council for $24.25 for extra that he had given the late F H Knapp, as his brother had sent it to Mr. Beck for the purpose and Mr. Beck had handed it over to the Town.

The Mayor said that the Clock Company would present a draft in a few days for the Clock and that they had not given any bonds for the guarantee of the clock for ten years yet, but if they would, should he sign the draft for the same at 90 days. which is $650.

The Council gave consent to the same

Moved by Mr. Helm, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the taxes on Widow Quinn's property assessed to Job Lavillett, be remitted.—Referred to Special Committee on taxes.

A memorial was here presented to the Legislature for permission to borrow money to erect schools and build bridges across the Otonabee, which on motion of Mr. Rutherford was read a first time. The Council then went into a Committee of the whole on the memorial; Mr. Hamilton in the chair. and after going through its second reading was carried.

Moved by Mr. Helm, seconded by Mr. Hamilton, that the memorial to the Legislative Assembly be permitted to issue debentures to aid in the construction of Schools, and Brid

ARREST OF A SUSPECTED MURDERER.

A LONG AND EXCITING CHASE—AN AMERICAN DETECTIVE IN TOWN—MURDER IN NEBRASKA.

The Thursday Post says:

Considerable excitement was caused in town this week by the appearance of an American detective and the subsequent arrest of a young man named Birchard on a charge of murder committed in Fremont, Colfax Co., Nebraska, on the 14th of March, 1874. From the particulars we have learned it appears that on the day named two Germans were beaten as if with a club, and one of them, John P Pelmas, was killed. The object of the murder was to get money. The Germans had been left $35,000 and it is supposed that they had the money in the house. For some time no clue to the murderers was obtained although the authorities were very active and anxious to ascertain who were the perpetrators. The Birchard family were neighbours of these Germans. Suspicion was first thrown on Samuel C. Birchard, a young man at that time only about 18 years old, by the finding of a portion of a horse pistol in the room where they were murdered, which was identified as one that he borrowed from a neighbour some two months before and never returned. This suspicion was strengthened by Birchard telling the man he borrowed it from not to say anything about it. He pleaded very hard for the men to keep silent. No action, however, was taken and Birchard moved with his parents to Kellogg, Iowa. After their removal there could be gathered up and suspicion rested on Mark Sears, Frank Lent and Birchard. Sears made a confession and stated that on the night when the murder was committed, he proceeded with Birchard and Frank Lent, to the residence of the brothers Pelmas. One of the robbers remained outside while the other two, one of whom was the prisoner Birchard, entered the house and found the Pelmas eating their supper. Some altercation ensued about delivering up their money, when the prisoner, Birchard, struck John Pelmas a fearful blow on the head with the butt of a large horse-pistol, the force of the blow being so great as to smash the hammer of the pistol. The other brother was attacked by Lent, and both the Pelmas were left for dead. The robbers then ransacked the house, but only succeeded in obtaining about $30, the large sum of $15,000 having fortunately not been received by the Pelmas at the time of the entrance. The man whom the prisoner Birchard attacked appears to have been killed on the spot, but his brother recovered from the injuries he received. Birchard consequently was arrested in Kellog by a Deputy Sheriff, but succeeded in escaping to Canada, and arrived in Toronto, as we learn, on Saturday, 31st Oct., from whence he proceeded to Cambray and stopped with his uncle, a farmer of that place. In the meantime a detective named Lawrence started in pursuit and ascertaining Birchard had gone to Canada, came to Toronto exactly two weeks after. After a delay of a few days he ascertained where the accused had stopped when in the city but failed to find out where he had gone. He, however, learned that Birchard wrote a letter to his brother in Kellogg, and immediately telegraphed to have the letter forwarded to him by the postmaster. This was done but no information was elicited from the letter. The detective then proceeded to the county of Grey where some of Birchard's relations resided and by the use of strategy ascertained that the prisoner had two uncles near Lindsay. The detective then came on to Lindsay on Thursday week at noon and hastened to the post office where he ascertained there was a letter for the accused's uncle from Iowa. This he tried to secure but the letter was taken out before he could get the necessary papers to obtain it. This letter was received by the uncle and handed over to the accused. It informed him that there was a detective in Canada looking for him and advised him to keep clear of railways and telegraph stations. Upon the receipt of this Birchard left town (for he had arrived here that morning) and proceeded through Mariposa to Port Perry. The detective was quite confident of his being at Cambray and drove there on Friday morning, but found that he had left on Thursday for Lindsay. Lawrence returned to town, and receiving information of the route the accused took and started in pursuit, being driven by Mr. Albert Jewitt, and succeeded in catching his prisoner at the Nonquon about 11 o'clock on Saturday. He was sitting in the bar-room of the tavern, and when arrested did not attempt to make his escape. He seemed not at all sorry that he was taken in charge, for he said he was nearly worn out and did not know where to go. The detective treated him very kindly consoled him with a gleam of hope that he might not be the person. They drove down to Wick station on the Pigeoning Railway, when they took the train for Toronto, and there the necessary examination took place. The prisoner is tall, and slightly built, of dark complexion, and has anything but a hardened appearance. He was born in Meripo-a, and removed with his parents to Nebraska when a year and a half old. The detective was a curiosity. He was riddled with bullets, and had been a "scout" in the American frontier service. One of his cheeks had been shot away, but he was still equal to any insurance agent or book canvasser. Another theory in that one Pelmas killed the other, to obtain the whole of the money, and that three men were accomplices. This suspicion is receiving the attention of a batch of detectives who believe they can trace the act to Pelmas.

Being Brithers a, sons o an ancient stock
Wha e'er would yield, to bear the tyrants yoke
Sons o auld Scotia, wha for freedom fought
To be remembered, did nae licht for nought,
Wha e'er had rest, until that they did gain
Freedom o conscience, which they still retain
The ruling powers, then grieved fathers great
The micht their sufferings, we will not relate
For what they suffered, did you hear it told,
Your hair might stand, and a' your blood run cold.

Compared wi them, in size it is ba' oma,
Likewise her sons, wi ither kingdoms too,
Their numbers are comparatively few.
But tho foes numbered often two to one,
Seldom or never were Scotts known to run,
But warlike stood upon the battle field
Till freedom's foes before them had to yield.

For which so many suffered at the stake.

Than their Church League and Covenant deny,
The powers Infernal could na contrivemair
Engines for torture than at that time were.
Nothing too bad for the dark fiend's to use,
Twas the most holy they loved to abuse.
In spite o suffering and in spite o death.
Our fathers held the Covenanted faith
Claimed from their worship every Pagan mode
Chose for their guidance the pure Word of God.
We neednae dwell on what our fathers did,
The knowledge o such is to nane o us hid
But looking back on what they then passed through,
It lets us see how different things are now.
We now can talk on subjects as we may,
Ther couldnae do that in our fathers day.
Until Reformers ruled the country o'er,
Banished corruption from the seat o power,
Twas then our fathers the foundation laid
O the great change Reformers since hae made
An to them since the nation has to look
For an example, the stand they took
Their cause being good, did give them courage strong.

ALEX GRAHAM.

A MORBIBLE TRAGEDY was enacted in Granville Co., last week. Three men named Richard and Geo. Belts and one Craig, went to a dance, and during the night got into row about a girl. Craig drew a knife and stabbed both of the Belts. Richard has since died and Geo. is not expected to recover. Craig was arrested.

ACCIDENTALLY POISONED.—We learn from the Colborne Express that during the past week a young married woman stepdaughter of Mr. Israel Platt, Cramahe drank by mistake a coloring liquid which resulted in her death the same day. proximity to one from which she took medicine at regular intervals. There was no inquest.

It seems the Conservative of North Wentworth have entered a protest against the return of Dr. Macmahon. they are pretty certain to be saddled with a nice bill of costs for their pains.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT AT TEVIOTDALE.—The Tribune says that on Saturday last, while a little child aged 4 years, son of Frank Dyce of Teviotdale, was playing around the house with a knife in his hand, he fell, the blade striking him on the right side of the throat, making a fearful gash, from which blood flowed in large quantities. Dr. Henry at once used means to stop the bleeding, and sewed up the wound, but the child is in a very low condition, and serious doubts are entertained of his recovery.

It is rumored that the Ontario Government purpose to introduce a bill requiring fire insurance companies to adopt an uniform set of conditions. We hope the rumor may prove to be correct The "conditions" of some insurance companies are simply a fraud and a snare.

The Hamilton Times has the following:—During the course of a recent trial for slander, a Mr. T. Thompson was placed in the witness box. In the contest in East Middlesex between Mr. David Glass and Mr. Cromwell Wilson (Pacific scandal Tory), it seems that this Mr. Thompson was an arden tworker on Mr. Wilson's side In his evidence in this slander case he contessed that he spent nine hundred dollars for election purposes in support of Mr. Willson, and that his contribution was only one among many of a similar kind. He refused to answer the question whether he had spent any part of that sum in bribery, and he would not swear that he did not bribe any one to vote for Mr. Wilson. Mr. Glass was present in that contest by only 44 votes It he had many $900 men like Mr. Thompson against him, we can understand how the "enthusiasm of patriotic endeavor" was so worked up as to secure his defeat.

The Halifax Recorder, in referring to Dr. Tupper's speech lately delivered in that city, says: "During three hours we took down thirty statements made boldly and deliberately by Dr. Tupper, which were not only palpably, intamously false, but every one of which he must have known and did know to be such." It then gives them seriatim and effectually disproves them. Thirty lies in three hours is good work. Tupper in the east with his lies, and John A. in the west with his little jokes and conundrums are a pretty good team and are well matched to hunt in couple. The Recorder has effectually demolished the eastern man, and John A.'s spread eagle speeches have gone off like a shower of rockets without doing damage to any one.

CUDDLE DOON.

The bairnies cuddle doon at nicht,
Wi' mirth that's dear to me;
But ere the blythe nicht's dark an' mirk
Wi' storms deein their glee,
Yet some what will to bliss arise,
May He who stills the roaring skies,
Who whisper, though their powers be bauld,
"O, bairnies, cuddle doon."

Wee Jamie wi' the curly head,
He ever sleeps next the wa',
Bangs up an' cries, "I want a piece."
The rascal starts them a'.
I rin an' fetch them pieces' drinks,
They sing neven Lee noom',
Then draw the blankets up an' cry,
"Noo, weanies, cuddle doon."

But ere five minutes gang wee Bab
Cries oot frae 'mang the claes,
"Mither mak' Tam gie over at once
His kittlin' wi' his taes."
The mischief's in that Tam for tricks,
He'd broken half the laws
But aye I hap them up an' cry
"O, bairnies, cuddle doon."

At length they hear their father's fit,
An', as he steeks the door,
They turn their faces to the wa',
While Tam pretends to snore.
"Hae a' the weanes been gude?" he asks,
As he pits aff his shoon.
"The bairnies, John, are in their beds,
An' lang since cuddled doon."

An' just afore we be'd oorsel's
We look at oor wee lambs:
Tam has his airms roun' wee Bab's neck,
An' Bab his arms roun' Tam's.
I lift wee Jamie up the bed,
An' as I straik each croun,
I, whisper, till my heart fills up,
"O, bairnies, cuddle doon."

The bairnies cuddle doon at nicht,
Wi' mirth that's dear to me;
But ere the blythe nicht's dark an' mirk
Wi' storms deein their glee,
Yet some what will to bliss arise,
May He who stils aboon,
Who whisper, though their powers be bauld,
"O, bairnies, cuddle doon."

Too Much Married.

In the trial of William Mackay, at the Toronto assizes, for bigamy, last week Mr. Kenneth Kenzie, Q.C., addressed the jury in an exceedingly humorous manner. He said that the prisoner was on his trial for marrying two wives, one in the United States and another in Canada. The prisoner came originally from Belfast; he had a number of friends here, but somehow or other he found his way down to New Jersey, where he became acquainted with a fine buxom lady named Kate McQueen. (There she is, pointing to his former wife.) He got over head and heels in love with this Kate McQueen. No man ever got so much in love as he did with Kate McQueen. But Kate McQueen was not only a buxom lady, but she had a good lot of "bawbees," and whether it was the greenbacks or true Platonic love that influenced the prisoner he could not say. But there was one thing sure, never was a man so fond of woman as he was of Kate McQueen. Kate McQueen was a Roman Catholic, and the prisoner was a Protestant; but he said to her, "Kate, my darling, I'll do anything I can to please you, I'll join your church." He did so, and became her wedded husband, and Kate McQueen became Kate Mackay, and Kate Mackay thought there never was a man so good and brave as her husband. He continued with her for some years, but somehow or other his passion began to get cold,, and by-and-bye he left her and went to one of the Western States, near Iowa. He then wandered from place to place living on her money, and last came to Toronto. He afterwards went to Newmarket, and whilst there met with one Margaret Tanner, a young blooming lass of twenty-one. He then forgot everything that took place down in New Jersey, and fell in love with Miss Tanner. He forgot every pledge that he made in New Jersey, and turned Protestant again—not High Church, but Evangelical. Nothing would do for him but marriage so he proposed to Miss Tanner, she agreed, and they got a license, and were married by the Rev. A. Sanson on the 21st of October. On the 26th of the same month he wrote to his lawful wife telling her that he was in the utmost distress, having no money, and asked her to send him some, as he wanted to pay his board and go down to New Jersey again. He applied to her humanity and to her religious feelings, and told her that he had got into the hands of the Philistines, and if she did not want him to be killed by those Protestants, she had better send him some money. She sent him money, and for a long time could not understand why he did not return, but she finally made her way to Toronto and found her husband the husband of another woman. These were the facts of the case. The jury found the bigamy proved and the too-much-married man was thrown into prison for a few months.

BUSINESS.

Monday night, when a young man drove out of Vicksburg several miles to pass the evening with the girl of his choice, he was met at the gate by her father, who at once proceeded to business by saying:

'Come to spark Louise, eh?'

The young man let silence answer the question.

'Expect it'll make a match?' continued the father.

Silence again, while the young man tied the horse. As he was ready to go into the house, the father blocked the way, braced up and continued:

'See here, young man, let's have an understanding. If you mean to hitch 'tween now and January all right, but if you don't, I want ye to understand that candles are mighty high this fall, and crops in this neighborhood do not turn out so well after all.'

As the young man got through the gate it is probable that he gave the father a direct and agreeable answer.—Vicksburg Herald.

"As I was goin over the bridge the other day,' said a native of Erin, "I met Pat Hewins. 'Hewins,' says I, how are you?' 'Pretty well, thank you, Donnelly,' says he. 'Donnelly!' says I, that's not my name.' 'Faith, then, no more is mine Hewins.' So with that we looked at each other again, an' sure an enough it was nayther of us."

"There may be such a thing as love at first sight," remarked a girl, as she twisted a "friz" around the curling-iron, "but I don't believe in it. There's Fred, I saw him a hundred times before I loved him. In fact, I shouldn't have fallen in love when I did if his father had't given him that boss and lot."

WHY FRANKLIN USED SIMPLE LANGUAGE.—Tradition has it that years ago, when Benjamin Franklin was a lad, he began to study philosophy, and soon became fond of applying technical names to common objects. One evening when he mentioned to his father that he had swallowed some cephalous mollusks, the old man was much alarmed, and suddenly seizing him called for help. Mrs Franklin came with warm water, and the hired man rushed in with garden pump. They forced half a gallon down Benjamin's throat, then held him by the heels over the edge of the porch and shook him, while the old man said: "If we don't get them things out of Benny he will be pizened, sure."

When they were out, and Benjamin explained that the articles alluded to were oysters, his father foodled him for an hour with a trunk strap for scaring the family. Tradition adds that ever afterward Franklin's language was marvellously simple and explicit.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Remedy for Worms in Horses.

Two correspondents of the Maine Farmer furnish that paper with two valuable remedies for worms in horses.

I have found linseed meal the best thing I have ever used. Give from a pint to a quart for a few days, then a less quantity will do. I usually give this in shorts, meals or oats, mixed with boiling water, and a little salt put in every day. In some cases a few doses of sour apples without anything else, will remove worms. I like remedies that are easily given. The meal is a good feed for horses in small quantities, it they are not troubled with worms.

ANOTHER REMEDY.—Give the horse in snorts or corn and cob meal, wet up, a tablespoonful of air-slaked lime, about three times a week; and grease the anus or orifice of the rectum morning and night. Continue this course for three weeks and your colt will have no more pin worms.—Rural New Yorker.

HOW TO FEED A HORSE.

As a general rule, too much food is given, and too much of this is hay. Ten pounds of hay and twelve pound of oats constitute a good day's fodder for a working horse, whether the work be fast or slow. Herbret's advice in regard to feeding horses, is to give a lock of hay and half a pail of water the first thing in the morning. After grooming give the other half-pail of water, and, if he is not going out, four quarts of oats, after eating which he may have four or five pounds of hay. If going out early feed six quarts of oats and no hay. If to be put to work in the afternoon, they should be again watered and have four quarts of oats and theremainder of their hay. Half a bushel of washed carrots a week, given at a time, will improve the coat and be beneficial to the stomach This feeding is ample to keep horses in good working order.—Vt. Chronicle.

MILKING STOOLS.

Let me tell you how to make what I call a convenient stool. Take a piece of board about 8 inches wide and 2 feet long; nail short pieces across the ends to increase its strength and to bore holes through; put two legs eight or ten inches long in one end, and one a trifle shorter in the forward end. Place the stoole where you intend to sit, the one-legged end where you usually set the pail. Place the pail on that end of the stool and sit on the other. If you do this you will have your pail out of the dirt, and the cow cannot easily put her foot in it, as often happens when the pail is on the ground. Some cows are so low that you are obliged to set the pail on the ground. In such case turn your stool around.—Farmer's Daughter, in Western Rural.

THE BEST FARMER.—The best farmer is he who raises the best and largest crops on the smallest surface of land at the least expense, and at the same time annually improves soil, who understands his business and attends to it; whose manure heap is very large, and always increasing; whose corn crib and smoke house are at home; who is surrounded with all the necessary comforts of life; who studies his profession, and strives to reach perfection in it; who keeps a strict account of his outgoes as well as his incomes, and who knows just how he stands at the end of each season. Such a farmer, in nine times out of ten will succeed, and not only make farming a pleasant but a profitable occupation. Try it, and see how it is yourself, reader.

FATTENING HOGS.—The following experiment is vouched for by the Kansas Farmer, as coming from a good and reliable farmer. As showing the relative value of corn and wheat for fattening hogs, it is very valuable. He took one hundred hogs and put them in pens and fed them with wheat, with the following result: The fifty with corn made eleven pounds per bushel; the fifty with wheat made seventeen pounds of good solid pork per bushel of wheat. The wheat was ground like meal, boiling water pour over it, and then let stand 36 hours.

The Maine Farmer suggests that farmers, by building on adjoining corners of their farms, might organize little "farmers' villages" which would give them the advantage of society and make their children much more contented with farm life.

HORSE COLLARS.—See that the collars fit the horses tight and that no dirt is sticking to the inside of them. Some men are so lazy that they leave the harness on the horses in the middle of the day. The harness should be taken off and the collars cleaned and dried. The horses' necks ought to be often washed with soap and water, or alum and water. Have no broken skin on your horse's shoulders. Nothing grieved me more than to see a horse of mine with a sore shoulder.

A NEW SYSTEM OF PLASTERING.—Builders, owners and tenants of city houses will doubtless view with interest a new system of plastering, which is claimed to prevent the sudden and disastrous downfall of ceilings, so frequently occasioned by defects in the water pipes and consequent leakage and overflow. The invention consists of replacing the scratch coat and brown coat used in ordinary work by the combination of fibro-lights as sheets with a cement composed of lime, sand and plaster. The sheets are of a fabric resembling coarse bagging which is secured to the lathing, and the cement is supplied in the ordinary way. A hard finish coating completes the work.

Mix potash with powder meal and throw into the rat holes of a cellar, and the rats will depart. If a rat or a mouse gets into your pantry, stuff in his hole a rag saturated with a solution of Cayenne pepper, and no rat or mouse will touch the rag for the purpose of opening communication with a depot of supplies.

A GENOLEMAN lately boasting of the neatness and regularity of his wife, said: If I get up in the night, pitch dark, I can find my clothes, down to my very gloves, all in their proper places. I was up this morning before daylight, he continued, putting his hand into his pocket for his handkerchief, and—here he pulled out, not his handkerchief, but his wife's night cap.

RUB fresh lard over every part of a tin dish, and then put it in a hot oven and heat it thoroughly. Thus treated, it is said that tinware may be used in water constantly, and remain bright, and free from rust an indefinite length of time.

AN AGRICULTURAL JOKE.—a very genteel appearing young man, wearing kid gloves, and carrying a lithe and flexible walking stick, thought he would have a joke with a rusty and venerable farmer on the fair grounds.

"Halloo," said the dandy, "are you one of the judges on hogs?"

"Waal, yaas, walk right up and let me look at you," said the old farmer.

That youth was seen last amid the crowd, and no other judges on swine saw him.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS proclaim in regard to their wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANEY & SON'S

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP ON DOWNIE STREET PETERBORO',

(Next to Mr. Wm. Hamilton's Foundry.)

This is to certify that I have used Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "EMPIRE." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mall, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mode now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, as in case favorable occasion requires, it will develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the wheat. In the latter, unbeknown may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its pre-cursor by eruptions on the skin, or final sleeplessness on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Acne or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other scrofulous or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Tic, Painful Neuralgia, and the various Nervous affections of the bowels and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by this Sarsaparilla, though a long time is required for eradicating the constitutional poisons by any medicine, but no case of this nature will cure the complaint. Tetters, Sore or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and vivifying effect. Minute Directions, Caution, &c., accompany each bottle, supplied gratis. Dyspepsia and Gout, when caused by Scrofulous taints or extraneous matters in the blood, will quickly be cured by this SARSAPARILLA in a great remedy for Liver Complaint, Debility, Congestion of Lungs, Scrofula, Consumption, Spinal Affections, and Neuralgia, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. SARSAPARILLA is a great renovator of the strength and vigor of the system. Leucorrhœa and Uterine Diseases, and Irregularities and Suppressions and Grave, when caused by Scrofulous taints, or any of the above diseases. Weaknesses will find immediate relief and ultimate evidence of the restorative

They were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its pre-cursor by eruptions on the skin, or final sleeplessness on some part of the body. Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the glossy and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but cot harm it. It is applied merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

THE MAIDEN'S LAMENT.

(Translated from the German.)

BY MAUD MANNING.

The forest roars in all its calm,
The clouds are laboring;
Along the shore, with strong, strong strokes,
The tides swing in.
A maiden sits alone.
And weary moans
She maketh to the night:
Weeping's transforming touches,
Tracing her face's blushes,
In her sweet eyes alone, and leaving
Cheeks and lips a deadly white.

"My heart is dead!"
The maiden said:
"The world is void:
Her more can satisfy
Desire: O, Help! all!
Thy chills back to the sky.
Earth's perishable good
I have possessed it all:
I have lived, I have loved—
Let me die.

"Vain, O, ye tears! your flow
And lamentation, vain!
Vain:—ye wake not the dead,
Then tell me now some sweet charm,
Is there no healing balm
After the vanished sweetness of love?
O, Thou Eternal! refuse me not," she said:
"Speak from above.

"Let tears not [illegible] the cold!
By caution [illegible]
Stop, [illegible]
Ah! yet,' the sweet maid said,
"Sorrow's sole bliss
Is distant in this,
While hearts shall pale's mysteries prove:
Waiting and weeping
For the loved and sleeping
The lost, blessedness of love?"

A ROMANCE OF THE RAIL.

(From the Salt Lal e Herald.)

They came into the car at a wayside station together. She was in the lead, a position she is not likely to surrender as long as they travel together.

A tall brunette, with a sharp face, piercing black eyes, hair black as a raven's wing, a long acquiline nose, with a mole on the side of it, a mouth the cut of which betokened determination and force. She had passed the shady side of the teens and had climbed to the apex of a quarter of a century. He was a gulless youth over whose tow colored head some eighteen summers had passed, an innocent hobbledehoy, just released from his mothers' apron strings. On him she cast loving glances and his face, suffused in blushes, was turned with a timid, appealing look to her.

The car was crowded, and eligible seats not easily obtainable About the middle of the car a sedate traveller occupied a seat to himself. Thither the irrepressible lady pressed her way. The sedate traveller rose, and with much courtesy invited her to take a seat next the window, and when he was seated calmly ensconced himself upon the vacant half of the seat. By this time the young man whom she was escorting had come up. He placed his hand on the back of the seat, looked appealingly on the face of his protectress, and timidly around the car. He was evidently embarrassed, and did not know what to do with himself. The sharp-nosed brunette eyed the sedate traveller by her side with a sharpness that almost amounted to malignity.

But the traveller seemed all unconscious of the scrutiny to which he was subjected, and looked away over the fields through an opposite window.

The brunette could no longer endure to see her fellow beau standing forlorn, and thus she addressed the sedate traveller, whose eyes were wandering far away, and whose thoughts were with the dear ones at home:

'I say, stranger——'

'Well, say on,' responded the sedate traveller.

"I say, look here, stranger,'

'Well, what have you got to show me?' said that sedate man.

'Stranger, I want you to know that this young gentleman stan ling up there is my feller.'

'Oh! I'm glad to hear it. How long have you had him? Take care of him, I suppose?

'Now you just look here stranger; this young man is my teller, and I'm bound to see that nobody shall impose on him. You hear me? Now if you had any manners you'd just get right up and let him sit down here beside me,'

'Oh, I am very happy in your Society. You cannot imagine how much pleasure it has given me to furnish you a seat where you can see through the window. Besides, I always took a special delight in being near charming ladies like yourself,' replied the sedate traveller.

'But, sir, he is my feller, sir, my beau—do you understand?

'Is that so? Who would have thought it? And does his mother place him under your protection when he goes abroad?

'Now, you look here, stranger, me and that young man expects to be engaged, and we've been keeping company together, and me and him wants to have a talk together, and you are real mean if you don't give him a seat by me, so that we can talk; that's what I think.'

The imperturable traveller straightened up, then leaned over in the direction of the sharp-faced brunette, smiled most benignly and lovingly on her, and thus spoke:

'Charming lady, I would be most happy to accommodate you, but you see I'm a pilgrim and a stranger, way-worn and weary, and a long way from home. Besides, my heart is just now beating a tatoo of ecstatic satisfaction because of your charming presence. Being a bachelor, and so near one so lovely and engaging, how can I forego the pleasure I now enjoy? I have had dreams in my time—bright dreams—as I have wandered through this great big world, of some time meeting one to whom I could reveal all this and heart of mine would fain no longer to conceal. You are the impersonation of my dreams, and now would you drive me from your lovely side? Say, has no bird sung in your heart? I saw you come as a star rises above the horizon, and the light of your eyes has illumed my soul. Say, beautiful stranger, will you drive me hence?

The sedate traveller then ceased to speak.

Too fire had gone down in the brunette's eyes, the severe expression had vanished from her face, her stern lips had relaxed their rigidity and parted just enough to reveal the ivory structure within, and in a tone that was soft and low she asked:

'Did you say you was a bachelor?

'Aye, beautiful stranger, that's my fortunate station.'

Then the brunette turned her eyes softly upon her 'feller,' who stood twitching his fingers and gazing around in an abashed, timid sort of way, and thus she addressed him:

'Tom, I guess you'd better git another seat while I speak with this gentleman.'

HER HUSBAND.

He did not look like a joker. One to sit and study his face would have said that his soul was lost in melancholy—that he did not care two cents whether the sun went down at noon or stayed up until seven o'clock. He entered the ladies' sitting room at the depot, walked up to a woman whose husband had just left the room about ten minutes previously, and calmly inquired:

'Madam, your husband went out to see the river, didn't he?

'Yes—why?' she asked, turning pale in an instant.

'He was a tall man, wasn't he?

'He was,' she replied rising up, and turning still paler.

'Had red hair?

'He had—O what has happened to him?

'Weighed about 180 pounds?

'Yes, yes—where is he—where is my husband?

'Couldn't swim, could he?

'He is drowned—my husband is drowned!'

'Had a silver watch and chain?

'Where is my husband—where is the body?' she gasped.

'Do not get excited, madam. Did your husband have on a gray suit?

'Yes. Oh, my Thomas, my Thomas.'

'And stoga boots?

'Let me see him—let me see him!'

'Come this way, madam, but do not get excited. There, is that your husband across at that peanut stand?

'Why, yes, that's him; that's my husband,' she exclaimed joyfully. 'I thought that you said he was drowned?

'No, madam, I did not. I saw him buying peanuts, and I believed it my duty to say to you that peanuts are not healthy at this season of the year.'

He slid softly out, and she stood there and chewed her parasol, and stared after him as if he was a menagerie on wheels.

COULDN'T STOP.

This is the way a great many boys get into difficulty—they get a-going and they can't stop. The boy who tells lies began at first to stretch the truth a little—to tell a large story—till he came out as a full-grown liar.

Two boys began bantering each other, till they got a-going and couldn't stop.—They separated with black eyes bloody noses

Did you hear about the young man stealing from his master's drawer! He came from the country a promising boy.—But the rest of the clerks went to the theatre and smoked, and he thought he would do so too. He began thinking he would try it once or twice. He got a-going and couldn't stop. He couldn't resist the temptation when there was money in the drawer. He got a-going—he will stop in prison.

Some young men were, some years ago, in the habit of meeting together in a room at the public house, to 'enjoy themselves'—to drink and smoke One of them, as he was going there one evening, began to think that there was danger in the way. He stopped and considered a moment, and then said to himself, 'Right about face.' He dropped his cigar, went back to his room, and was never seen in the public house again. Six of the young men followed his example. The rest got a-going, and couldn't stop till they landed most of them in a drunkard's grave. Beware, boys, of the first cigar or chew of tobacco. Be sure, before you start, that you are in the right way, for when you are going down hill, it is hard to stop!

A HIGH SENSE OF HONOR.

The Duke of Wellington had a high sense of honor in all money dealings, and would allow none of his agents to do a mean thing in his name. His steward once bought some land adjoining his country estate, and was boasting of having made a very fine bargain, from the seller being in straightened circumstances.

'What did you pay for it?' asked the Duke.

'Eight hundred pounds,' was the answer.

'And how much was it worth?

'Eleven hundred pounds,' said the steward, rubbing his hands in glee at the thought of the good bargain.

'Then take three hundred pounds, and carry them to the seller, with my compliments, and don't ever venture to talk to me of cheap land again.'

The stewart was confounded, and could scarcely credit his own ears. The idea that any one could refuse to profit by a sharp bargain, and throw money away in paying more than was agreed on, was hard for him to comprehend.

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 2, 1875.

PRINTING THE CONVICTIONS

Mr. Macdougall raised quite a storm in the House on Wednesday about the printing of the List of Convictions by County Councils.

In almost every county in the Province in the past it has been the practice of the Conservative Governments to instruct the Clerks of the Peace, Sheriffs and other government officials, to give the public printing to the Conservative newspapers and Wm. Macdougall; when in power did the same thing In 1866 Mr. McDougall joined in the Coalition Government to carry confederation. This government consisted of about an equal number of Reformers and Conservatives. Up to this time the public printing of this County had been given to the Review office and no one found fault. As soon of the Coalition was formed, orders came to divide the printing between both offices, which was done for a while, but not until we had to write to the present Mr, Macdougall, complaining that his instructions were not being carried out; so faithfully did the Conservative officials stick to their first instructions.

But when the Coalition had secured the Confederation Act and Reformers expected an appeal to the County on their old principles; Mr. Macdougall sold his party, accepted office under John A. Macdonald, and he became a Conservative. The EXAMINER refused to follow Mr. Macdougall, and took sides against the then "no party men," Grover, Reid, Perry and Carnegie, who were most confirmed Conservatives, but who ashamed of the name, or afraid to appeal to the people under that tattered old flag, hoisted the "no party" buntin.

The very week after the EXAMINER declared itself still with Reformers and against political dodgers—this very same Mr. Macdougall wrote directing that the Review get all the government "pap," and the EXAMINER was left out in the cold: and thus at the command of Wm. Macdougall, "to the victors then belonged the spoil."

It is true that after considerable discussion and lobbying in the County Council, all the County printing was let by tender, and that each paper got what fell to its lot by tender, but this was not through Mr. Macdougall or his Conservative friends, but because of the incessant appeals to the County Council. In Victoria, Durham, Northumberland, Addington and all contiguous counties, Conservative Clerks of the Peace gave the printing to Conservatives as can be shown by letters at present in the EXAMINER office, which was written to us then on this question,

Yet honest (!) Mr. Macdougall, we mean politically honest, who forbade County officials in 1867 to give us any printing, is the champion of an opposite course now, although still allied with conservatives. That he has any political principle, no one believes. All his pretended zeal for economy is nothing more than an appeal to the people through their pockets, as he would have them believe that Reform papers charge more than Conservative newspaper men would do. But an examination of the County accounts will not carry out his infamous insinuation against Reform Journals.

But why now object to the method of dispensing favors which he formerly carried out? It is just this: Nearly every official in the Province has been appointed by Conservative Governments, and being in office if they had the power in too many cases they would use it to help the Conservative papers, and thus they would continue to build up Conservative Journals Now it is well known that the journalist of means can do more for a party than one without means, and thus every cent placed in the pocket of a Conservative journalist is so much added to the Conservative strength of a County or Riding, and Mr. McDougall wishes to use the government printing to this end. It is not economy, not a bit of it, it is a desire to make friends by placing all he can at the disposal of Conservative officials who would use it as they know how. And who could blame conservative journalists for taking all they can get if Reformers are fools enough to give them what they should give their own friends! To this may be raised the question of quantity and quality; but, it is time enough to refer to this kind of argument when put in a tangible shape.

It is evident, however, that Mr. Macdougall must have forgotten his own letters, directing that "the Peterborough EXAMINER is not one of the papers that the Government wishes to get a share of the Government patronage," but we could show him one if he was in our office.

PARLIAMENTARY.

On Wednesday, 1st instant, the house met, but very little of importance to the people transpired.

Mr. Springer moved that the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery be directed to prepare a return from the record of the elections, showing the aggregate number of votes polled for each candidate in each electoral division in which there has been a contest, and the total number of votes polled for each candidate in each electoral division in which there has been a contest, and the total number polled in each such division, and the number of votes on the voters' list of the same respectively, and the population of each constituency as shown by the last census.—Granted.

A motion of Mr. Currie for a return of the receipts of each Sheriff in the Province has been carried: also a motion of Mr. Currie for the amounts paid grand jurors in 1874, and the cost of summoning them, has been carried.

On motion of Mr. Wigle for all correspondence of or with the government relative to publishing the List of Convictions in Local newspapers, induced a discussion that became very personal through the indiscreet remarks of Mr. Macdougall. Mr. Mowat stated that the practices of the government under John Sandfield Macdonald was to give government printing to friends of their government That in almost all the Counties the Clerks of the Peace and other officials had received their appointments from those Conservative Governments, and they still gave the printing to newspapers in the Conservative interest. The Act provided that the government might direct to whom the printing should be given, as had been done by the Conservatives. He explained, however, that where the printing was let by tender, the person putting in the lowest tender was always allowed to get the work, so that the County might not have to pay too much for their printing. He also stated that no one was allowed to charge higher rates than had been previously paid. Mr. Mowatt, therefore sought to have the work done at the lowest possible rates, and only exercised his just rights in ordering that the printing be given to friends of the government but where let by tender he did not and would not interfere.

Mr. Macdougall made a personal attack on the Premier and also on Mr. Frazer and Mr. Hardy, but received a Rowland for an Oliver; the parties showing up his inconsistencies and want of principle; Mr. Frazer especially quoting from the Leader to show what his Conservative friends think of him. Mr. Macdougall is not a Reformer, is not a Conservative, indeed, nothing long, was as the leader said, an old political "hack" whose allegiance was simply a question of money or money's worth. Mr. Hardy also reminded him of his attempt to obtain "Silver Islet," of his wandering in Europe and Manitoba and from County to County seeking a seat, till Mr. Cameron took pity on him and got him nominated for the out and out Conservative Constituency of South Simcoe.

These personal encounters are not calculated to raise the member for South Simcoe in the estimation of the people, and Mr. Macdougall's reference to the youth of Mr. Frazer and of Mr. Hardy is only in keeping with the general character of the many in whom not a member of the House has the least confidence.

THE MACDOUGALL LIBEL CASE.

Wm. Macdougall sued the Globe for $50,000 damages for publishing Willie's connection with a certain Silver Islet job in which the Globe charged him with endeavouring to cheat other parties out of their property. It appears that Silver Islet adjacent property on Lake Huron was sold to the Montreal Mining Company years ago. This Montreal Company sold their claim to New York Gentlemen who spent about $225,000 in building break waters, sinking shafts and otherwise improving the property, which was valueless until this large sum should be expended to render the mineral wealth of the Islands accessible; the greater portion of the property being under water.

During the last days of the John Sandfield Macdonald Government Mr. Macdougall applied for the property, in the name of his son in law, and his application embraced this Silver Islet, and the patent was about to be granted, but although Mr. Macdougall made all energy, the Sandfield Macdonald Government fell before he got the patent.

When Messrs Blake and Mackenzie attained to power they learned that there was something wrong in the affair, and in consequence forbade the clerks to issue the patents until the matter should be fully enquired into, The enquiry led to the discovery that Mr. Macdougall's application embraced this property rendered so valuable, and the patent never was issued, although Mr. Macdougall sought to get Mr. Mackenzie to complete what Sandfield Macdonald had promised.

When Mr. Macdougall became a candidate for North York the Globe in answer to his charges against the Government charged him with attempting to gain possession of this property by collusion with Mr. C. Cameron and others. This led to the Globe being sued for libel. The trial came off lately at Toronto, and the jury allowed Mr. Macdougall one shilling which will not carry costs It is very evident, therefore, that the twelve men who heard the case were about convinced that the Globe's strictures on wandering Willie's conduct were almost, if not altogether, true. As the damages, one shilling, in their opinion was sufficient to heal the wounds the Globe had made. The Judge in his charge also intimated as much as that Mr. Macdougall had not been much overharshly dealt with in the Globe's article.

THE CLEMENTS CASE.

As intimated last week, Ex-Alderman Clements of Toronto is in custody, charged with being the procurer of abortion in the Jeannie Gilmour case, for the murder of whom Dr. and Mrs. Davis have been convicted Clements was before the police magistrate on Saturday last. The only link made plainer than at the trial, is that it is now known where she stopped the two or three days previous to the fatal night on which her dead body was found. It is also proved that Clements knew where she was during those days, and had given her a card to a Mrs. Fisher who had advertised for a sewing girl. Neither Dr. nor Mrs Davis has been sworn yet. The Law officers of the Crown are maintaining the strictest secrecy as regards the public. The evidence of the girls' father throws a shadow of suspicion on Clements, whose moral sense feminine chastity is said not to be very elevated.

THOSE HANDS. — "Those hands are clean," has grown into a standing reproach to the gentleman who uttered the short sentence when taken in connection with that famous telegram "send me another ten thousand." Those hands, prepared the draft of the Supreme Court Bill, said Sir John at Toronto But it turns out that Mr Justice Strong did the work, and Sir John Acad-ed over $600 for the valuable services Sir John's hands are more at home in the money matters than in soap and water.

ESTIMATES.

Thursday Dolton made his Financial statement on Friday, occupying over an hour and half in delivery. The investments he declares to be $7,790,578,37; liabilities, $6,594,201,53; leaving a surplus of assets of $5,096,376,84. The surplus, as estimated by Mr. Crooks on the 30th September, 1874, was $5,756,352. But although on that occasion he referred to the two last charges in the lists of liabilities, he did not include them in his actual calculations. The result is that, after making allowance for the heavy draught on the Treasury for railways and surplus distribution, the surplus was nearly equal on the 30th September last to the sum at which it stood twelve months ago. He showed that, in the shape of assets, the Province had, since the first of July, 1867, expended in public works and buildings no less than $2,206,586, this being in excess of the property handed over at the time of Confederation.

The aggregate receipts and expenditure of the Province from all sources since Confederation have been $19,188,642,52, to be accounted for as follows:—

Invested as above stated	$4,076,153 70
Public Buildings and Works.....	2,448,179 04
Drainage Debentures..	108,187 78
Ditto Rent Charges...	174,813 13
Railway Aid Fund to 1st January, 1875...	799,428 00
Railway Subsidy Fund— Municipal Loan Fund Distribution..	52,010 90
	1,361,101 59
	9,019,874 14
Balance....	10,168,768 38
Total.....	$19,188,642 52

Showing an expenditure for ordinary purposes for seven years averaging less than one million and a half per annum

He set down the ordinary revenue at $2,500,000, and ordinary expenditure about $1,800,000, which would leave an annual surplus of at least $600,000 to $900,000, or with increased outlays for railway and other improvements of a public nature, a net surplus of income over expenditure of over half a million. Not much danger of direct taxation with from $500,000 to $900,000 surplus annually.

The following are the figures used to justify his last years estimate.

Receipts of 1874 from ordinary sources....	$2,646,872 00
Estimated ditto.....	2,394,857 00
Difference.....	$252,015 00
Estimated Expenditure	$2,684 176 00
Actual ditto	2,408,966 00
	$275,210 00

There were consequently in the Treasury about half a million of dollars more than, when making the financial statement, had been anticipated. The receipts for the nine months ending September 30, 1875, had amounted to $2,013,823 91, to which, it was calculated, $253,000 would be added as the revenue of the three months required to complete the financial year. The estimated revenue for 1875 had been $2,518,291 42. The deficit on these estimates, therefore, will probably amount to a little over $250,000, solely arising from the effect of the depression in the lumber trade and general financial stringency.

The estimates for 1876 are put down at $2,350,000, expenditure $2,135,245, leaving a surplus $214,755, or about a quarter of a million of dollars, as the estimates always exceed the outlay.

To meet the cry against the Government of extravagance, he gave a table showing that salaries for 1867 to 71 averaged 3.86 per cent of receipts. In 1873 they averaged 3.87 per cent. In 1867 to 71 salaries amounted to 5.63 per cent of expenditures. For 1872 and 1873 4.90 per cent only, and if the railway expenditure were included only 4 per cent of expenditure was spent on salaries.

From these figure it will be seen that the present Government is not only spending the money of the Province wisely, but that they are economical even compared with their predecessors.

THE BIG PUSH.

The west Durham News, a paper but lately started in Bowmanville has become somewhat notorious all at once. The Editor, a Mr. Wilkinson, was determined to out do even the Mail, and for that purpose published the most violent articles against the Hon. George Brown, and Senator Simpson. It gave what purported to be a letter from the former to the latter, asking for a subscription to an election Fund, and attracting notice only in Conservative papers, it next accused Mr. Simpson, of using the bank funds to buy votes, and also of paying $30,000 for three votes during the debate over the Pacific Scandal, and, for the defeat of the John A. Macdonald, Ministry. There was great Crowing over these assertions of the News, and Senator Simpson's silence for a time was construed into an admission of Guilt on his part and then followed a homily on grit purity, and Senator Simpson's hypocricy and bribery. Mr. Simpson however, was abiding his time, and when he found the News man had emptied the last vile of his wrath and honesty Indignation, Mr. Simpson commenced criminal proceedings against Mr. Wilkinson. Messrs Kenneth McKenzie and J.H. Cameron, filed a crimeal information against the publisher and a rule was granted in Q. B. ordering that the publisher show cause why an information should not be exhibited against him, for certain misdemeanors in printing and publishing certain scandalous libels against said Senator Simpson.

In filing the information several affidavits made by Mr. Simpson, and others were put in, which completely refute the libels published to injure Mr. Simpson.

The annexed affidavits by Mr. Simpson, and Mr. Fisher, bank manager, completely set at rest the charge of the News, and afford another proof of the means resorted to by the followers of Sir John A. Macdonald, to damage their opponents not as a party but to pursue them personally so as to injure private character, and destroy that business prospects of any one who will not accept their dicta.

AFFIDAVIT BY MR. FISHER.

I, David Fisher, of the city of Toronto, in the county of York, Bank Manager, make oath and say:—

2. That I was the Cashier of Ontario Bank from its establishment in 1857 until the month of May, 1875 and have been since, and I am now General Manager of said bank.

3. That I have read the article contained in the printed newspaper hereunto annexed, and say that from the starting of the Ontario Bank in 1857 up to the present time not one dollar of the money of the said bank had been expended or used for political or election purposes, and that the allegation of corrupt transactions having taken place between the Government and the bank is utterly untrue, and without any foundation in fact; but that, on the contrary, every transaction between the bank and the Government has been purely and entirely conducted on the ordinary commercial considerations and business principles between a bank and its customers.

DAVID FISHER.

Sworn before me at the city of Toronto, in the county of York, this second day of December, 1875.

JOHN G. ROBINSON,

A Commissioner in B. R. in and for the county of York

SECOND AFFIDAVIT BY MR. SIMPSON.

I, the Honourable John Simpson, of the town of Bowmanville, in the county of Durham, one of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, Senator of the Senate of Canada, make oath and say.

1. I am now, and have been for several years, a Senator of the Senate of Canada, and President of the Ontario Bank.

2. I have read an article which was printed and published in a certain newspaper called the West Durham News, on the twelfth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy five, at the town of Bowmanville aforesaid, which said article so printed and published as aforesaid, in the said newspaper, on the day and year and place aforesaid, is headed "Our Charges again," and part of which said article so read by me as aforesaid, and printed and published in the said newspaper as aforesaid, is in the following words:—

"The party referred to by us as the head of a public institution who purchased three votes at the time of the crisis is the Hon. John Simpson, President of the Ontario Bank Our evidence in the case was secured in this way. Mr. Simpson boasted to different parties, without even asking if they would accept of the confidence, of having bought these votes, and paid as high as $30,000 for them: We at first doubted the truthfulness of the boast, and looked upon it simply as a swagger. Finding, however, that the same story had been repeated by him, we were at last led to institute a search, knowing that if Mr. Simpson sought these votes as such prices more has been purchased; which was rewarded in the substantiation of the fact of the purchase by Mr. Simpson and the others named in our charge by other parties."

3. The printed newspaper hereunto annexed, and called and headed the West Durham News, contains the said article, and was printed and published by J. A. Wilkinson, on the twelfth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, at the town of Bowmanville aforesaid; and the said article herein referred to and set out, were so printed and published by him, the said J. A. Wilkinson, at the time and place aforesaid in the said newspaper hereunto annexed.

4. That I am the person referred to in the said article and part thereof herein set out as "the Hon, John Simpson, President of the Ontario bank," and as "Mr. Simpson."

5. I say that the said article so published as aforesaid, and the part thereof herein set out, and published as aforesaid in the said newspaper called the West Durham News, on the twelfth day of November, in the year aforesaid, at Bowmanville aforesaid, and the statements, charges and imputations therein contained against me, are false and malicious, and without any foundation whatever in fact, and were and are intended to prejudice and injure me.

6. I further say that the statement and charges contained in the said article and the parts thereof herein set out charging me with purchasing three votes at the time of the crisis, are utterly false; and I say further that I never bribed or purchased any member or members of Parliament or a voter, or voters, or electors during my life time, and that I have not paid $30,000, or any sum whatever, for three votes, or any votes whatever; and that the statements in regard to the same in the said article herein set out are false in every respect, and malicious and without foundation and maie and published, as I verily believe, to prejudice and injure me.

7 That I verily believe the said article and the said part thereof set out were printed and published in the said printed news paper called the West Durham News, hereunto annexed, by the said J. A Wilkinson, for the purpose and with the intent falsely and maliciously to represent to, and cause it to be believed by the readers thereof, that I was guilty of the said charges and imputations herein contained against me.

8. That the said J. A. Wilkinson was, on the said twelfth day of November, in the year aforesaid, the publisher of the said newspaper, called the West Durham News, containing the said article, and still is the publisher of the West Durham News.

8. I further say in regard to the charge stated in the said article of my having boasted that I had bought votes and paid as high as thirty thousand dollars for them that it is untrue; but I might have said, and no doubt have said, after my return from Ottawa, in the year of our Lord, 1873, that it was a common rumour at Ottawa that money had been freely offered for votes during the crisis; but I never said that I bought votes; and I positively swear I never bought or paid money for any votes then or any other time during my life, or offered to purchase or pay for any such votes.

J. SIMPSON.

Sworn before me, at the City of Toronto, this second day of December, A. D., 1875.

DAVIDSON BLACK,

A Commissioner, B. R., in and for the County of York.

THE Bishop of Toronto issued last week a pastoral, stating that St. Andrew's Day had been appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury as a day of intercession and prayer for the blessing of the Lord of the Harvest upon the work of missions That day was accordingly observed in Toronto and elsewhere, divine services being held morning and evening.

THE GRAND TRUNK R. R. CO.—This Company has petitioned the Quebec Legislature against the Northern Colonization Railroad, as a Government undertaking, and pleads that to build it, is breaking faith with people in England who gave their money to build the Grand Trunk, with the alleged understanding that there was to be no other East and West line This is truly generous.

EDUCATIONAL.—Just at the moment that Ontario is providing for a Minister of Education instead of a Chief Superintendent, Quebec is doing away with a Minister, and providing for a Chief Superintendent to do the Minister's work. The Quebeckers have tried a Minister of Education: but in matters of this kind they are not considered worthy example to imitate.

PRESIDENT GRANT has determined to remove Chief Justice Dunne of the Supreme Court of Arizona because of his having giving a voluntary lecture in the Hall of the representatives of Arizona, advocating giving a part of the School Fund to the exclusive use of the Catholic The chief justice stigmatized taking the money for protestant schools an outrage, that could not be perpetrated in a free country long. For these words he is to be removed. The school question is assuming prominence in American politics at present. What a pity that citizens of the same community cannot sit side by side in the same school building.

THE third story of the Clock Factory in Whitby was burnt on Thursday evening last.

MR. WILLIAM B. ASTOR of New York died after a very short illness on Thursday last. It is supposed that he leaves an estate worth $100,000,000.

THE Good Templars of Ontario met at Guelph, Ont., on the 3rd ult. The number of lodges in the Province is 745, with a membership approaching forty thousand.

THE Temperance people throughout the Province are very active at the present time. The Dunkin Act in Montreal and Ottawa has created a great deal of excitement among liquor dealers.

THE Midland Railway Company has lowered freight rates from Lindsay. The distance from Lindsay to Whitby is greater by about 2 miles than from Lindsay to Port Hope.

WHAT OTHERS THINK OF HIM.—Twelvemen's estimate of Mr Wm. Macdougal's character: worth 20 cents: 25 cents at most by one juror. Practical politicians don't rate high just now.

BOSS TWEED.—Has escaped from prison and is on his way to Europe or the East Money it is believed will slacken the watchfulness of keepers, and open the prison doors to its possessors. It secures favors in this life.

THE Toronto burglars, Smith and Chiquette, who were caught in the act of carrying off about $9,000 worth of silks, from the Messrs. Lockhart & Haldane's store, have been committed for trial. They will go to Kingston.

THE Rev. Dr Ormiston is to receive a call to the Bond street Congregational Church, Toronto, to fill the place of the Rev. F. H. Marling, who has accepted a call to a Presbyterian Church, Broadway New York.

A WORSE THAN GUIBORD.—Mr Desjardins has been ipso facto excommunicated for approving and recommending the election to Parliament of the Grand Master of the Freemasons, Bishop Bourget intends asserting his authority at the risk of making Mr. Desjardins a heretic, and perhaps an atheist.

AT a meeting of the St. Andrews church Montreal, held on Monday last, they decided not to enter the union by a vote of 5 to 1. The Rev. Gavin Lang introduced a resolution to that effect. Sir Hugh Allan, after a very hot discussion and the vote taken, declared the above result.

THE NEW BAPTIST CHURCH in Toronto has cost $97,000. It is said to be the handsomest building in the City. The Organ cost $7000, and is the best in Dominion. It is thought that the church will not be in debt; the members subscribed freely, and they hope that an appeal to the people will wipe out a remaing balance.

WHERE ARE THEY.—The member for West Peterborough has spoken, gave notice of a motion; but what about the member for the East. we have not even heard of the state of his health since his arrival at the capital. His opinion on the address and on Dr. Clark's great probition question will be looked for with anxiety.

THE motion of the Rev. Gavin Lang, of Montreal, and his associates, to restrain the Presbyterian Church from using the Temporalities' Fund of the late Church of Scotland has been quashed, and the reverend gentleman involved in the costs of the suit. It is said he intends to appeal the case to the Superior Court.

DON'T EXPOSE THEM.—The daily papers have been reporting sermons preached in the Toronto pulpits, and the opinions or teachings of men, who in matters of faith support to teach ex Cathedra. The press is doing those great lights a grievous wrong, as the publications of their sermons and dicta, and only expose the weakness, mentally of those who assume to be Masters in Israel. And it may fairly be questioned whether the Globe and Mail have a right to allow their columns to be the means of scattering bradcast the ill digested crudities and absurdities of men who evidently do not understand that whereof they affirm. But perhaps it is as well to let the world know what little things great men can say.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

The following statistics concerning the spoliations of the manastic establishments are very remarkable. Since 1825, 154,000,000 francs worth of church property has been confiscated in Piedmont alone in the province of Genevr, 316 houses have been closed since 1858, and property to the amount of 5,250,000 francs sold. In Lombardy since 1859 1,900 houses were closed, and 2,275,000,000 francs worth of property sold. In Venetia, 715 houses closed, and 930,000,000 francs worth of property sold. In the Marches 699 houses, and 28,090,000 francs. In the Abruzzi, 2,508 houses, and 19,000,000 francs. In the Rouglia, 1,246 houses, and 28,000,000 francs. In Calabria, 547 houses, and 95,000,000 francs. In Sardinia, 158 houses, and 4 000,000 francs. In Tuscany, 252 houses, 142,000,000 francs. Rome, 472 houses, and 64,000,000 francs worth of property sold. In all 18,453 ecclesiastical houses been suppressed, and 270 million dollars worth of property confiscated.

A LADY SPEEDILY CURED.

by Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, after being under medical treatment for two years, which left her in an emaciated and very feeble condition, with terrible suffering from pain, and all hope of recovery gone, writes: Rome, N. Y. June 15, 1874 Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y I feel it my duty to express my gratitude to you and the Divine Power that assisted you in the study and acquirement of means to relieve suffering When I commenced the use of your medicines I was in a rapid decline. I had been under medical treatment for nearly two years—had been obliged to wear an internal supporter most of the time for four or five years, and for six or seven months previous to commencing the use of your medicines I suffered intense pain almost constantly, nothing giving me even monetary relief (much of the time) except opium or morphine, the action of my stomach and liver being almost destroyed by their use. I was rapidly growing weaker, loosing in flesh, and could take no nourishment, save a little beef-tea or gruel, could sit up but a few minutes at a time, could not walk across the room, and had formed the opinion that nothing could help me, but that I must soon leave my little children and family. In the midst of my despondency, one of your circulars was brought into my room. I paid little attention to it, thinking little of patent medicines, and supposing yours were such but, after throwing it aside, I was impressed to look at it again and, becoming more interested, I wrote you, thinking it useless to purchase any of the medicines before seeing my case to you fully. Your reply gave me so much encouragement that I commenced the use of your Favorite Prescription, Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets, according to the printed directions accompanying them. Their effect upon me, and the struggle to rid my system of those poisonous drugs, was indeed wonderful. Some of the time my body has been completely covered with a rash. I can eat and sleep well; walked to church yesterday morning, besides a short walk in the afternoon, without any supporter, I consider myself almost entirely well. With untold gratitude.

MRS. T. A. SEYMOUR.

A MELANCHOLLY AFFAIR.

Three persons burned to death in a hotel a few miles from Montreal, two of them were Roman Catholic Priests, one of them Father Murphy, the Editor of the True Witness.

It appears that on Saturday; Father Murphy, and a Young Priest, named Lynch lately from Ireland, had taken a drive to Black river, and put up at a hotel, they intended returning to the city, but before doing so, went up stairs while their conveyance was being got ready. The tavern keeper preparing the horses and was coming to tell them, when the cry of fire was given. It originated on the same flat as the room where the two Priests were, and completely prevented their escape, a Mr. G. Champaigne was also burned.

The fire it is thought originated from a gasolfe used to light the building. Father Murphy was well and favorably known in Canada as a good speaker clever writer and an honest defender of the doctrines of his Church. He became editor of the True Witness, at the decease of Mr. Clark

The Montreal Witness says:—

Seldom has news been received in Montreal with more universal regret than that of the death of the Reverened Father Murphy, whose ingenuous and good natured defence of Roman Catholic doctrines had drawn attention to him as a pleasant and earnest public teacher. His work in Montreal has been short; but while it lasted, he did probably more than any other Roman Catholic divine ever did to wake his people to thought on subjects of religion. Holding in practical contempt the embargo which had been put upon free thought and discussion, his lectures did more than anything else to convince Roman Catholics that such an attempt to muzzle the press was beneath them Father Murphy practically said, "Read the WITNESS, read all that thy opponents say, and then consider whether you cannot answer them" The fact that his answers were pure and transparent sophisms was no fault of his. Better were not to be had. A little more attention given to the same subject and his honest mind, if honest it had continued to be, could not have failed to find that in questions of reason his weakness was in the position into which he was forced and with him thousands who probably have discovered that infallability was to them the end of Romanism. Journalism in Montreal has met with an irreparable loss, as no other pronounced Roman Catholic controversialist has ever been able to rise above the scurrilous. The circumstances of his death are such as to require very careful and very public investigation. If some patent gas generator is the cause it should be known throughout the world. Every effort must be made to have the thing thoroughly sifted, as it is already said that efforts were being made in some quarters to push through the inquest in the quietest possible manner so as to keep the public from knowing the real facts.

The Suez Canal Purchase.

REMARKS OF THE 'TIMES' ON THE TRANSACTION.

London, Nov. 26—The "Times" in a leading article on the subject has the following: There is an audacity about it which we do not generally associate with acts of a British Ministry. We seem to trace in the business the hand of Mr. Disraeli. The nation wakes this morning to find it has acquired a heavy stake in the security and well-being of another distant land, and that it will be held by all the world to have entered on a new phase of Eastern policy. We have no desire for an extension of territory, we do not covet the land of the Nile since the Firman of 1873, which gave the Khedive the right of treating independently with foreign States. The Egyptian Government has little cause of complaint, and may fulfil her duties untrammelled by Stamboul. In this settlement we desire to make no change, but should insurrection or intrigue, aggression from without, or corruption within, bring a political as well as a financial collapse to the Turkish Empire, it might become necessary to take measures for the security of that part of the Dominions of the Sultan with which we are most nearly concerned. An acquisition of so commanding an interest in the Suez Canal, an interest which must inevitably tend to increase, will lead the Government and the people of the country to concern themselves habitually with Egypt."

The Paris "Moniteur" says that there is no longer any doubt that England has an eye on Egypt, and "Le Temps" declares that the purchase gives England the virtual suzerainty of that country

Daring Highway Robbery.

LONDON, Nov 24.—A daring highway robbery was perpetrated in the township of McGillivray, near the village of Ailsa Craig. A young man of apparently 25 years of age, won the confidence of a farmer named Wm. O'neil and received permission to ride with him in his waggon. At Drummondville bridge, the fellow presented a pistol at O'Neil's head and demanded his money, which not being at once forthcoming, he began to club O'Neil on the head with the but end of the weapon. O'Neil fearing that he was about to be slain, gave up his purse. The robber then again presented his pistol and commanded O'Neil to drive at full speed towards Parkhill, but instead, O'Neil drove in a round about course back to Ailsa Craig, but all being quiet he was afraid to raise an alarm. The robber indentifying the locality, then seized the reins himself and drove to within a few miles of Parkhill, when he jumped out and escaped. A warrant has been issued for the scoundrel's arrest.

Attempted Suicide.

A "fast" young man named Robert P. Allan, at present a resident of Hamilton, but who a few months ago drove the North American hotel omnibus in Fergus, recently made three determined attempts to to take his own life. Allan is in all respects what is known as a "fast" youth, and his residence in the city afforded him every opportunity to cultivate his leading propensity. He appears to have been running the mad career of dissipation and debauchery at lightning speed, until getting out of work and being without funds remorse of conscience anote him to such an extent that h determined to bring his misspent life to a sudden termination. Although he was known here as a hus-driver, he is a marble-cutter by trade, and we understand is very respectably connected. On Monday morning last he fired two shots from a revolver into his person at his boarding house, one of the bullets entering his side, and the other entering his chest and lodging in his lungs. At first he said the shooting occured by accident while he was cleaning his revolver, but during the afternoon he declared that he was tired of life in consequence of having expended all his money and led a fast life generally, and confessed that he had fired the shots with the intention of killing himself. He stated furthermore that about three weeks ago in Toronto he attempted to poison himself, and for this purpose took a large dose of morphine, but instead of it having the desired effect it caused vomiting and he recovered. At last accounts Allan was said to be very low, and his recovery not expected.

DORCAS SOCIETY OF P. HOME.—In view of the number of people out of employment and the amount of consequent distress, it has been proposed that a Dorcas Society be established, for which purpose an appeal is made to the kindly disposed Ladies of the different Protestant Churches, to meet at the P. The horse ran a short distance, When the lines catching on the fence stopped him.

Terms will be made known at the class.

FARMS FOR SALE.—The following valuable farms will be offered for sale by public auction at H. Morgan's Hotel, on the 21st instant, Tuesday next, at 2 o'clock, in Smith, the East half of Lot 5, con. 2, 100 acres, known as the Farm of A. T. Tully; in Ennismore, the Westerly 86½ half acres of the South half of lot No. 2, con. 4; in Douro, the East half of Lot No. 1, con. 10, 100 acres, known as the Orde Farm; the East half of Lot No. 3, con. 9, Douro, about 40 acres. For further information apply to D. W. Dumble, Solicitor, Peterborough.

MOON LIGHT.—In the last meeting of the Town Council Mr. Rutherford objected to voting for gas lamps unless petitioned for. This was during a discussion about placing one at the front of the R. C. Church. Mr. Rutherford did not object to placing a lamp there, but on the contrary remarked that they had as good a right to a lamp in front of that church as in front of any other Church in town, but thought if they wanted one they would have petitioned for it. Councillors Hopkins and Patterson explained that it had been asked for but neglected hitherto. Mr. Rutherford then concurred in the motion.

NEW STORE.—Mr. T. Rush will open out in a few days in the stand lately occupied by Mr. Lendrum, next door to Mr. McClelland's Jewellery Store. A firm class stock of gent's furnishings in the newest styles, and of quantities to suit the public. Mr Rushe's experience in this line of business is well known, he having been in the Dry Goods establishment of Messrs W, Fairweather, & Co., several years. Parties requiring anything in his line would do well to call on him early, as the holidays are approaching when something nice, new and stylish will be required and obtained from him at reasonable rates.

ORANGE HALL DEDICATION.—The new Orange Hall, Trennum's Block, was dedicated according to the ceremonies of the order on Tuesday evening, 7th inst. The ceremonies were performed by Bro. J. B. McWilliams, County Master, assisted by Bros Rev. A. Gordon, B. C. Minister, and Mr. M. Hall, District Master. There were a large number of the brethern in attendance and several Ladies were present. An excellent choir under the leadership of Mr. Joseph McClelland, sang appropriate pieces. Rev. Brother Gordon, and Bros W. Johnston, Stratton and Weir, delivered short addresses. The Hall is very neatly finished with a raised dias at each end. It is well lighted and the Banners and warrants of the Lodges add very much to its appearance. At the close a vote of thanks was tendered to the choir for their excellent and appropriate music, and to Mr. Trennum, for the use of a first-class organ, for the occasion. It is intended to have the Hall carpeted which will add very materially to the comfort and to the pleasure of the members.

SAD GUN ACCIDENT.—While a young man named George Laing, son of Mr. William Laing of North Monaghan, was carelessly playing with a gun on Friday evening, it accidently went off, the charge lodging in his arm between the elbow and shoulder. From what we learn, it would appear that the young man had gone to his grandmother's, Mrs. Savigny, of Otonabee, and while there took down the gun, and in sport, placed the stock against the neck of some one near him. This frightening the person he drew the gun quickly away, and while doing so the trigger caught on something and discharged the shot, which, fortunately, lodged in the upper part of his arm instead of his breast or head, Dr. Kincaid was immediately sent for, and dressed the wounds, but fears are entertained that amputation will be necessary. What a narrow escape, a change in the direction of two or three inches in the muzzle would doubtless have caused the loss of his life as the shot in that case would have lodged in his breast or head. He is a young man about 20 to 21 years of age, of a quiet inoffensive disposition. Dr. Holywell is now attending him and hopes to save his arm.

OUR LITERARY TABLE.

THE MERRY MASKER.—We have received the first copy of "The Merry Masker," published in New York, at $1. per annum. It is very neatly printed, in a 16 page form, and well illustrated. Stories and practical jokes make it very readable.

NEW PAPER.—The Woodbridge Free Press is the title of a new venture in the newspaper line published by Mr. James Mann. It professes to be independent of politics. The number before us is neatly printed, the selections are choice family reading, and the whole reflects credit on Mr Mann. We trust that he will receive sufficient encouragement to make his enterprise profitable to himself as well as to his patrons.

BRITISH AMERICAN PRESBYTERIAN.—We notice that the publisher of the British American Presbyterian offers a very handsome premium to all subscribers old and new, who remit $2.20 before the first of January next. The Premium is not only valuable, but very appropriate, being Inglis' beautiful photograph of the Union General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church held at Montreal in June last, containing nearly 700 portraits of Ministers and Elders. The price of the picture is $1.00. Our Presbyterian readers who subscribe now for their own church weekly secure this picture practically for nothing. The paper itself requires no words of commendation at our hands. It is one of the best family newspapers in Canada. Address, drawer 2484, Toronto.

POST OFFICE REPORT.

The annual report of the Canadian post office has just been issued. It shows that the post office system of the Dominion is admirable organized and efficiently worked. On the 1st of January, 1875, there were 2,943 offices in Ontario and Quebec. 638 in Nova Scotia, 36 in Manitoba, 47 in British Columbia, and 179 in Prince Edward Island, making a total of 4,706 post offices. During the year the total number of letters and postal cards sent through the offices was 39,368,500, with 29,000,000 newspapers. There had been a total revenue of $1,476,307 76, whilst the expenditure reached the sum of $1 695,480 34. In Ontario and Quebec the only two provinces in which they existed on the 30th of June, 1874 there were 266 post-offices saving banks. The numbst of depositors for the year was 24,068, and the sums received amounted to $2,340,284. The report has been most carefully prepared, and the information it imparts is of great interest and value.

CORRECTION.

We have been informed by members of the Town Council that we made a mistake in our report of the Town Council proceedings last week, and on fuller enquiry we found the impeachment correct. Dr. Kincaid billed the Council for $250 for attending to a small pox patient who was found in a French boarding house. If we mistake not. The account was referred to the Finance Committee but they could not agree on a report to allow the sum. In the discussion to allow the account the Doctor's salary ($150) was so often mentioned that when Councillor Beal moved to pay the Doctor $200 we imagined it consisted the $150; but we find ourselves mistaken. It is for attendance on the small pox patient only.

Mr. Beal moved that he be paid $200 which he intended to be over and above his salary of $150, thus giving him $350 as salary, and he claims $30 a year for medicine or $380 in all. Every candid mind will agree with Mr. Rutherford that the report does not warrant the payment of the claim in full, but it does provide for something over and above the usual salary of $150. There is another little weakness in the Report. The $150 was intended to include the medicine, but those words are not in the report and therefore the Doctor can claim the $30 for the medicine so much that it included the salary.

Councillors Rutherford and Hamilton and others opposed the amount as too large, and contrary to the Report of the Committe by which the Doctor was appointed Town Physician.

The Report reads thus:—"That Dr. Kincaid be re-appointed Town Physician at a salary of $150 per year, but in case of an epidemic of a serious kind his salary shall be increased, not to exceed four hundred dollars per annum."

Mr. Rutherford contended that one case of small pox was not an epidemic, and that it was a loosely worded report. The fatal mistake of last year, it appears, is not yet settled. The Council then gave $800 for 40 visits, i. e. $20 a visit. And Dr. Kincaid feels that he has a right to about the same sum. Why make fish of one and flesh of another? If our City Fathers had shown back bone enough in 1874 to resist the attempt to secure an outrageous demand the Council for 1875 would not be called upon to pay more than $180. But then the money is the people's. What's the difference.

Councillor Rutherford has entered a protest, but that means very little; when the money's voted the Treasurer will pay it.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

The Municipal Council of S. Monaghan met on Monday Nov. 29th, pursuant to a call from the Reeve. All the Members present. The Reeve in the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Several accounts were handed in by the Reeve and Clerk, which on motion were laid over for further considerations. On motion of R. Pue seconded by Wm Rutherford—Hugh Waddle was was allowed to perform 4 days of unperformed labor of 1875, in the spring of 1876. On motion of J. Wood, seconded by R. By law No. 196 was read a first second and third time wherein it appointed to hold the nomination and election in the Council chamber Centreville. On motion, the Clerk was instructed to request J. Rutherford to cut down a pine tree that is leaning over the road on lot 6 con. 3. Moved by R. Pue, seconded by Wm Rutherford—That the following be paid: J. Primmotte, culvert $2 50, J. BOBCAYGEON.

The village of Bobcaygeon has been incorporated, and Mr. Boyd is spoken of as the probable Reeve for the coming year.

HASTINGS.

Mr. F. M. Barrigen, of this village died suddenly on Friday last. His funeral was conducted after Masonic custom.

NORWOOD.

John Rogers, who got up a little family broil and shot the constable, goes to the Penitentiary for two years. Will it do him any good? It may give a breathing time to his wife.

Mr. M. Hannon has contracted to supply the Norwood High School Board with wood for 1876 at 90 cents a cord. Would that his woods were near Peterborough, it would readily bring $3 to $3.50 just now.

SELWYN.

The Selwyn Temple I.O.G.T. will have their usual annual Soiree on Christmas day. A pleasant time is expected.

HASTAU.

The Good Templars of Nassau Lodge intend giving a Soiree on New Year's day in their Hall. Tea from four to five o'clock.

LAKEFIELD.

The Trustees of the Lakefield School are advertising for a Female Teacher for the Junior Department. They have increased Miss Johnston's salary for 1876 $50. This is an indication that Miss Johnston is giving satisfaction and it is but just on the part of the Board to reward merit.

There is considerable talk here about the municipal election. Several new men are spoken of as councillors, including Geo R. Sandland, Edward Batty, John Richardson, K. Urquhart, Robt Graham John Dunwoodie, James Horner, George Cockrane, Jonathan Griffin—all of which are good men. It is understood that all the old council stand again.—Com.

The Young Canadian L.O.L. Lakefield elected the following officers for 1876:

Master—Bro John Quinn.
Deputy Master—Bro Robt Garbutt.
Treasurer—Bro Hugh Davidson.
Secretary—Bro Wm Graham.
Chaplain—Richard Warsam jr.
D of C—A. Johnston.
1st Committeman—John Preston.

The following were elected officers for L.O.L. No. 122, on the 6th inst.

Master—Bro W. C. Sanders.
Deputy Master—Bro Jas Horner,
Chaplain—Bro S. A. McKee.
Treasurer—Bro C, J. Burgis.
Secretary—Bro A. Bell M.D.
D of C—Bro N. Winters.
1st Committeeman—Bro Thos Hull.

LINDSAY.

The Rev. M. Murray was lately the recipient of a purse containing $100 from his congregation, accompanied with a flattering address. It is understood that he is about to remove to London to take the pastoral care of a church in that city.

The County Council of Victoria has submitted a By-law, grouping Mariposa Opps, Lindsay and Fenelon, to grant aid to the Whitby and Port Perry Railway to the extent of $100,000 towards extending this road to Lindsay.

But gie him something if its but a groat
For every little helps a Brither Scot.

As wark gits scarce, an wages rather sma',
Oft some puir Scott at a cauld fire maun blaw.
Show love of countra, love for Scotchmen too
Not in Societies, but in each of you.
When asked for aid don't fly off like a shot.
Gie what ye can to help a Brither Scott

Not Scotts alone, but widows of Scots bereft,
They claim your aid, alone are helpless left
Twa or three bairns to schule, to claith, an feed,
They scrimp an pinch to get them what they need.
Wi want they struggle, all their smiles are gane,
They fecht the battles of this life their lane.
If but a spark o'human love you're privy,
Then help the widows of yer Brither Scot.

When winter comes wi bitter frost an snaw,
An muckle wreaths piled up against the wa,
See that auld house a dim licht glimmers there,
Its inmates shiverin wi cauld want despair,
Enter that door, you will see it in a trice,
Flour barrel empty, stove as cauld as ice.
Nae sillar bread, nor firewood in that cot,
O gie relief, be is yer Brither Scot.

The cauld wund whistlin through the open cracks,
Flappin the tatters on the bairns backs.
The timber sabs, the weans never cease
In plain braid bcotch—o naither gies a piece.
The guid man sits haudin his baffits up,
In deep dispair wi'bout a bite or sup,
Nae wark can git, tho' daily he has sought,
Keep him frae starven, he's yer Brither Scot.

Some Scots are tight ower money, I admit,
Wi pinchers grasp they haud whate'er they git,
If needa Scots they meet upon their way,
They help them not to warsel up life's brae,
They tie their purse strings wi a double twist,
Deep in their pouch they clinch it in their fist
The Scots should starve, they winna slack the knot
To gie a bawbee to their Brither Scot.

When fortune frowns, an adverse clouds appear,
Or sicknes comes, without one hope to cheer
As ilka star gies its bit blinkin licht,
See ilka dollar maks his bapes mair bright.
While here this nicht, around this festive board.
Wi a the guid things which mine host affords,
Eat what you like, or sup the baggis hot,
But don't forget yer hungra Britha Scot.

There was a very large market on Saturday, owing to its being a very fine day and the waggoning good. Butter declined to 17½cts per lb. for tub. Pork and Beef also had a fall in price. The quantity and quality of Poultry was good and prices fair. The Grain buyers complain that there is very little grain coming in. Fall Wheat is 95cts to $1, Spring Wheat 90c to 95c, Peas 60c to 70c, Oats 28c to 30c. There has been a good supply of Hay in the market during the past week, which sold at from $10 to $12 according to quality. The Wood market has been full and sold at the following prices: good maple and beech $3.50 to $4 but was scarce, birch and elm were offered at from $2 to $2.50, and the lighter woods at different prices according to quality.

WEDNESDAY.—Yesterday the market was rather small owing to the disagreeable state of the weather. There was a quantity of Pork in the market. It sold at from $6.75 to $7 per cwt. Beef was not so plentiful and sold at from $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt. Other produce sold at the prices quoted below.

TEMPERANCE AND INTERFERANCE.

DON'T DRINK TO-NIGHT.

I left my mother at the door,
My father by her side
Their clasped hands and loving looks
Forbade their doubts to bide.
I left and met with comrades gay.
When the moon brought out her light,
And my loving mother whispered me.
"Don't drink, my boy to-night."

Long years have rolled away since then.
My locks are now grey;
But oh! those words are with me yet
And will not pass away.
I see my mother's loving face.
With goodness radiant bright,
And hear the words rise in my ears,
"Don't drink, my boy, to-night."

My mother now is resting sweet,
In the graveyard on the hill
But mother's words come back to me
And haunt my memory still.
I've often gazed the cup—
Oh! and then my heart is right,
Because I heard the warning words,
"Don't drink, my boy, to-night."

I've now passed down the road of life:
And soon my race is run,
A mother's warning listened to
An immortal crown has won.
Oh mothers, wish your fondest smile,
Look on your boy so bright,
And my alone as you can say,
"My boy, don't drink to-night."

These words will prove a warning when
In the thorny paths of life,
The boy is in the tempter's wiles,
And yielding in the strife.
These words will stop the morning cup,
And the revelry at night,
By whispering back a mother's voice,
"Don't drink, my boy, to-night."

FOLLIES.

To think that the more a man eats, the fatter and stronger he will become.

To believe that the more hours children study at school, the faster they learn.

To conclude that if exercise is good for the health, the more violent and exhaustive it is the more good is done.

To act on the principle that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in.

To argue that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better, is 'good for' the system, without regard to more ulterior effects. The 'soothing syrup' for example, does stop the cough of children, and does stop diarrhœa, only to cause a little alarming convulsions, or the more fatal inflammation of the brain, or water on the brain; at least it always protracts the disease.

To commit an act which is felt in itself to be prejudicial, hoping that somehow or other it may be done in your case with impunity.

To advise another to take a remedy which you have not tried yourself, or without making a special inquiry whether all the conditions are alike.

To eat without an appetite, or continue to eat after it has been satiated, merely to gratify the taste.

To eat a hearty supper, for the pleasure experienced during the brief time it is passing down the throat, at the expense of a whole night of disturbed sleep, and a weary waking in the morning.

To remove a portion of the clothing immediately after exercise, when the most stupid dryman in New York knows that if he does not put a cover on his horse the moment he ceases work in winter, he will loose him in a few days by pneumonia.

To contend that because the dirtiest children in the street or on the highway are healthy, that therefore it is healthy to be dirty, forgetting that continuous exposure to the out-door air, in joyous, unrestrained activities, is such a powerful agency for health, that those who live thus are well, in spite of rags and filth.

To 'remember the Sabbath day' by working harder and later on Saturday than on any other day in the week, with a view to sleeping late next morning, and staying at home all day to rest, conscience quieted by the plea of not feeling very well.'—Journal of Health.

PEARLS OF TRUTH.

Sins are not known till they are acted.

Life is half spent before we know what it is.

God gives his wrath by weight, his mercy without.

The love of money, and the love of learning, rarely meet.

Good news may be told at any time, but ill in the morning.

Speak not of your friends debts, unless you mean to pay them.

The first degree of folly is to hold one's self wise, the second is to profess it, the third to despise counsel.

A fool may throw a stone in the well which a hundred wise men cannot pull out.

What is the decease of a saint but a translation out of a valley of death, a Golgotha, a place of skulls, a region where death reigns, into the region of perfect and everlasting life? It is not to be called death simply or absolutely, but with diminution: it is only death in a certain respect, it is a birth rather, a dying out of one world, and a being born at the same time into another—a much more lightsome, a purer, and more glorious world. It is being made from an earthly, mean mortal thing, heavenly, spiritual, incorruptible, and immortal.—John Howe,

Autumn like the other season of the year, has its voices. Its clear, ringing voice is in our ear. The tones are soft, melodious and heart touching. The summer, with its bright sun, variegated flowers and luscious fruits is over and gone. We welcome the autumn days. A thousand forests put on their gorgeous habiliments. Soon the richly-laden boughs will be swept by the winds and the ground everywhere covered with the withered foliage. The voice of the season is admonitory; it tells us that. "We all do fade" Our life, frail, easily broken, like the frost-smitten leaves, must o'er long yield to the breath of destruction. Let us heed this voice of wisdom and betake ourselves, during each passing hour, to the fulfilment of our high vocation. Autumn has also an inspiring voice. Although bringing to us on every hand evidences of decay and death, despoiling nature of her wanted beauty, it is nevertheless a season of blessed activity. Man's physical organism, enervated by the intenser rays of the summer sun, rejoices in the invigorating autumn influences. In city and country, the life-pulses are healthful, and scenes of activity greet us everywhere. Let us make the most of that life which is destined e'er long to 'fade as a leaf.' Let every pulse be beating heavenward in perfect unison with the glory of God. Then let the fading hour come, as the Master appoints, and a brilliant immortality is ours.—Standard Journal.

The Devil divides the world between scepticism and superstition.

A new name for tight boots—a corn crib.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

OX KIDNEY FRIED.—Clean the kidney nicely, boil two large onions till soft, chop them up, add to them a large cupful of bread crumbs with salt and pepper. Fry the kidney in a little fat, turn it out, and keep it hot before the fire. Then fry the onions and bread crumbs in the same pan, put it over the kidney and serve.

APPLE CAKE—Grate some stale bread and slice about double the quantity of apples, butter a mould and line it with paste and strew in some crumbs mixed with a little sugar. Then lay in apples with a few bits of butter over them, and so continue till the dish is full. Cover it with crumbs or boiled rice and bake it well.

FARMERS AND RHEUMATISM.—Why are farmers so liable to rheumatism? Because they wear wet clothing, heat and suddenly chill the body, and because they do not keep the skin in a vigorous, clean and healthy condition. If farmers would avoid suddenly cooling the body after great exertion, if they would be careful not to go with wet clothing and wet feet, and if they would not over-eat when in an exhausted condition, and bathe daily, using much friction, they would have less rheumatism. The same rule applies to others than farmers. The Turkish bath is the best remedy for rheumatism.

PRESERVING MANURES.—The Boston Journal of Chemistry states that the sources of loss in the storeage are two: First, the escape of volatile ammonia and other gases, and secondly the loss of valuable salts by leaching. The first difficulty may be obviated by covering the excrement with eight or ten inches of good soil or loam, which will absorb all escaping gases. A bushel or so of plaster may be advantageously scattered over the heap before the soil is thrown on. The whole mass should be perfectly covered, leaving no chimney for the gas to escape. The danger of leaching may be avoided by covering the heap with straw or hay sufficiently thick to shed most of the rain. If kept in this way a sufficient time the manure will undergo spontaneous decomposition, the products of which will be ready for immediate assimilation by plants. The usual process is carting manures to the fields in the autumn, to waste, by both of the above processes, some of their most valuable constituents.

PLOWING IN OF GREEN CROPS.—In plowing in green crops it will be readily seen that all that is drawn from the air is clear gain to the soil, by supplying a portion of that in which the land is deficient. Now, take a piece of soil, such as referred to, and plow it; sow it with buckwheat, and then, just before it begins to head out, plow it under. In this case, all of this green crop which comes from the air is clear gain to the soil, while that which comes from the earth to help in the growth is returned right back to it again. It is quite evident, then, that this will repair land. On some soil a crop may be had on the following year after a green one has been turned under. On other soil it may take two or three. The last crop to be plowed under should be quite a thrifty one before taking any off. When the soil has been brought up, it should be kept on, either in this way or by other means.

SHELTER FOR WHEAT.—Although there is a division of opinion as to what constitutes the best protection for fruit farms—particularly for peaches—there is, however, no question of the value of shelter-belts of woodland or hedges for the protection of wheat. Mr. Carpenter, a prominent farmer of Oakland Co., many years ago planted a hedge of white willow along one side of his farm. He is now reaping an advantage from it not contemplated in setting it out. The hedge having grown up very tall and by judicious management well thickened, forms an abundant shelter for wheat. The snow, which otherwise would be blown off from the field, is retained, forming a mantle of protection Without the growth of similar shelter belts the production of winter wheat will become more precarious, and soon we shall have to follow in the footsteps of our neighbors further west and depend upon spring wheat for our bread. —N.Y. Independent.

KEGEREE.—A good breakfast dish, that is too little known, is called "Kegeree," and is made thus: Take some cold fish, and with two forks flake it off in small pieces, melt a bit of butter in a stew pan and toss the fish in it till thoroughly warm. Have ready a cupful of boiled rice and two soft-boiled eggs; add them to the fish, season to taste, give one turn over the fire and serve. This was a favorite dish among the Monks of old, and has lost none of the savor those cunning gastronomers detected in it.

OYSTER PATTIES.—Make a rich paste and roll it out half an inch thick, then turn a teacup down on the paste and with the point of a sharp penknife mark the paste lightly round the cup then remove the cup and cut entirely through the paste; then with the point of the knife make a circle half an inch from the edge, cut this circle half way through, place them on tins and bake in a quick oven, when done remove the centre and fill with oysters prepared as follows: Rinse the oysters, put them in a pan over the fire and when hot stir in the cream, butter and crackers, season to taste with salt and pepper. When they are scalding hot they are sufficiently cooked.

CHOCOLATE.—Put on half a pint of water, when it has boiled, put in a table-spoonful of chocolate scraped up. When half done, put in half a cupful of fresh milk and sweeten to your taste either when cooking or at the table. This is only sufficient for one cupful.

ORANGE MARMALADE.—Take one dozen sweet oranges and their weight in lump sugar: grate the outer rind of four of them: peel the remaining eight and cut the peel into very narrow strips with scissors. Separate the oranges into sections, removing the seeds. Soak the chipped peels in weak salt and water over night. Put the grated peel and skinned sections of pulp with the sugar. Next morning put the orange chips into pure boiling water and boil till tender; then break them up with a spoon and mash them fine, add the sugared pulp and boil for twenty-five minutes, put into jars and cover with paper dipped into the white of an egg. This marmalade makes an excellent addition to the breakfast table and is not amiss for lunch or tea.

CHOCOLATE CAKE.—Half a teacupful of butter, two teacupfuls of sugar, three teacupfuls of flour, one teacupful of milk, four eggs, one teaspoonful of baking powder Bake as jelly cake and put between the layers the following mixture: Into one pint of boiling milk stir one teacupful each of grated chocolate and sugar, and one tablespoonful of corn starch. Boil until it forms a smooth paste. In boiling milk, always set the pan with the milk in another vessel containing water, and thus remove all danger of burning.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

THOUSANDS PROCLAIM VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANE & SON'S

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING,

AT THEIR SHOP ON DOWNIE STREET PETERBORO'.

(Next to Mr. Wm. Hamilton's Foundry.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire" Fanning Mill, which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grain cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Fades supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

THE BACHELOR'S WISH.

The maiden that my heart could win,
Must not be stout, tall, short nor thin;
Her age must not nine miles even exceed—
I should prefer it less, indeed.

A YOUNG LADIE'S IDEA OF MAN.

And what is man, I'd like to know?
Man, simple man, a thing to show
One all the sights, the balls, the fetes;
A thing that on one ever waits;
—a thing to walks with, flirt with, kiss;
To laugh at, chaff at—think is bliss
To be with him; to marry, then
Then to pay your bills, and then to spend.
His little all! And this is man,
Define him better if you can.

MERRIMACHI.

THE MAIDEN'S WISH.

The man who would my heart engage,
Must not be thirty years of age;
His stature of the middle size,
His features pleasing to my eyes;
His brow must seldom show a frown;
In manners, neither fop nor clown;
His temper even—not like some,
Cheerful abroad, but not at home;
A man of sense and real merit,
Not quarrelsome, nor void of spirit;
Like death to audacity inclined,
But yet not of a selfish mind.
The man I'd choose from all the rest
Must banish envy from his breast.
Content's a blessing quite unknown
To those who want what's not their own;
To those endowments must be joined
A humble heart, a heavenly mind.
A love to God and all His laws;
A business to obtain his cause;
If e'er I meet with such a man,
I'll marry—blame me if you can.

MR. CROOKS' BUDGET SPEECH.

Mr. CROOKS said that in accordance with the usual custom in moving the House into Committee of Supply he would proceed to lay before hon. members a statement of the condition of the financial affairs of the Province. Such a statement had been made only on three occasions when the accounts for the complete financial year had been in the hands of members. It was made by Mr Wood in 1870, by Mr Mackenzie in 1872, and by himself in 1873, after the House had been in possession of the transactions of the Government for the previous year. Honorable members would be able readily to understand from the public accounts of 1874 and the nine months' statement of 1875 what was the financial position of the Province. There appeared to be some doubt as to whether his statement of last year would bear investigation or not. He had then brought his statement to the 30th September, 1874, and no proposed now to take the same data as to the termination of the transactions of 1875, in order that as far as possible hon. members might have a proper basis for their comparisons. The amount he took credit for as to the excess of our assets over our liabilities on the 30th September, 1874. was $5,756,352. The statement he now presented would show that the surplus on the 30th September, 1875, was $5,096,376. He would explain how the difference arose. Last year he had omitted to introduce some liabilities which had not then been ascertained, and which he had now included. He had also introduced the $100,000 which had been added to the Railway Subsidy Fund, which was increasing as years went on, while our liability was diminishing. He had only had three payments to charge against it last year, but this year he had four. The difference of $659,976 between our surplus last year and this was easily explained by a reference to the liabilities which last year he did not charge against the surplus, and which the House would have to take into consideration in relation to the surplus. Quebec's share of Common School Fund collections since July, 1867, amounted to $325,657. Aid to counties for gaols under Prison Inspection Act was estimated at $60,000. From those statements hon members would observe that the financial condition of the Province on 30th Sept., 1875, was substantially identical with the position at that date last year, notwithstanding the very large transaction that had taken place, and the large payments the Government had been called on to make in regard to the Railway Aid Fund, and the distribution of the surplus of $3,000,000 to the municipalities. He would not weary the House by entering into the details of of items which appeared as assets, and which formed part of the records of the various Departments If hon. members desired any specific item he would be glad to supply it.

Mr. MACDOUGALL asked the hon. Treasurer to enumerate the items.

Mr. CROOKS said he would, therefore, refer, first, to the assets of the Province on 30th September, 1875. Under the head of investments was Dominion 6 per cent. stock and bonds amounting to $850,000, and 5 per cent. debentures, which cost $1,897,805. making the total -2,747,805. Special deposits in banks at 5 per cent. interest amounted to $1,373,000; and balance to credit on current cash accounts $24,248. The Province has invested in drainage 5 per cent municipal debentures $161,971, of which $104,173 was purchased up to 1st January, 1875, and $57,797 up to 30th September last. Then they had also the municipal rent charge for the drains constructed under Mr. Carling's Act, amounting to $174,813, for which the municipalities were now making their assessment, and $65,858 in respect of works not yet completed under that Act additional. It was only on the completion of the works that the requisition could be made on the municipalities for the payment of the principal and interest, which amounted to $240,672. There was a balance still, represented by the municipal debentures which were yet unsold on the 30th September, amounting £35,100 sterling, which at the ordinary rate would represent $170,820, but a half of that had been realised since, so that a very small portion of the municipal debentures remained unsold. In addition to this there were two special or trust funds in the hands of the Dominion. He had last year endeavoured to show that these were equal to what would be represented by regular Dominion securities, that Mr. Wood, as treasurer had contended for that before the arbitration between Ontario and Quebec, and that the arbitrators concurred in his contention. He had also referred to the acknowledgment of the Auditor-General of the Dominion that their funds were held only in trust, and to the fact that we were receiving interest to the amount of $136,696 on them. The only reason why we had not these amounts in Dominion marketable securities at this time was the unsettled state of matters between ourselves and Quebec. The Dominion Government did not deny our title at all, but they preferred that the matter should remain in this condition to handing over to us the securities before the open questions with Quebec were settled. The Upper Canada Grammar School Fund was established by the 2 Vic., chap. 10, by which 250,000 acres of land were set apart for Grammar School purposes. The proceeds of the sales of that land up to the 1st July, 1867, were $312,769. To that our title was as clear as to the building in which they sat. Then there was the Upper Canada Building Fund, which was an equivalent for certain appropriations made to Lower Canada for the extinguishment of the Seignorral Fund and was clearly an item to which Upper Canada was entitled. In the 18th section of the Act of 1854 there was a specific appropriation of this amount in favour of Upper Canada. This, on the 1st July, 1867, amounted to $1,472,391. The Common School Fund was established by the Consolidated Statues of Canada, chap. 26, by which 1,000,000 acres were set apart for Common School purposes, and it was conceded before the arbitrators that Lower Canada was entitled to a portion of this fund according to population. By this Upper Canada was entitled to five-ninths and Lower Canada to four-ninths of this fund, which amounted on the 1st July, 1867, to $645,644, of which Upper Canada was entitled to $914,246. Thus these special funds amounted in the aggregate to $2,699,407. There was another item which the arbitrators found the Province was entitled to—the five ninths proportion of the value of the Parliamentary library of the old Province of Canada. That was taken over by the Dominion Government, and it would be liable for the amount of the award, $105,541. The value of the Dominion debentures over their cost, according to the London quotations. was $267,113, so that the total assets comprised in those items he had enumerated was $7,790,578. The liabilities to place against these assets were fortunately in a small compass. First, there was the Railway Aid Fund, and he was glad to observe that it was diminished year by year, and miles of railway had been added. Of the total amount of the grant, $1,900,000, there yet remained to be paid $941,258. The Railway Subsidy Fund represented a liability of $282,187, being amount of annual appropriations three and a half years to 30th June, 1875, $350,000, less amount paid to 30th Sept.. 1875, $67,812. In regard to the surplus distributions to municipalities, amounting to $3,115,733, $2,030,634 had been paid up to Sept. 30th last, leaving $1,085,098 still to be paid, Quebec's share of the Common School Fund, $325,657, and aid to counties for gaols, $60,000, brought the liabilities to $2,694,201. The assets exceeded the liabilities by $5,097,376. Hon members might be inclined to inquire in what shape the resources if the Province stand. and such an enquiry he had answered by explaining that of the capital invested no less than $4,000,000 were invested in Dominion Bonds. But he might further state that the Province had invested a large amount of capital in public buildings public works, and other permanent improvements. The public accounts showed that payments of that character amounted, at the end of 1875, to the large sum of $2,300,000.

Mr MACDOUGALL—Since when?

Mr. CROOKS—Since 1st July, 1867. Between that date and the 1st January 1875, the following amounts had been expended in public buildings and works of a premanent nature;—Toronto Insane Asylum, $207,499; London Idiot and Insane Asylum. $420,851; Hamilton Asylum, $55,000; Reformatory, Penetanguishene, $17,515; Central Prison. $428 875; Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Belleville, $126,832; Blind institute, Brantford, $125 291; School of Agricutture and farm at Mimico, $48,344; at Guelph $102,488; Normal and Model Schools, Toronto, and Education Office, $40,708; Normal and Model School, Ottawa, $62,189; School of Practical Science, $57,527; Osgoode Hall, $2,436; Government House $113,586; Parliament and Departmental Buildings, $98,396. The expenditure on other smaller buildings brought the aggregate amount expended on public buildings and works, adding $269,123 spent on locks, dams, and slides and other improvements in the island waters, to $2,206,586. He now proposed to make a statement which he had not hetherto made to hon, members, and to give a sort of resume of the financial operations of the province since July 1st, 1867. It would be found on reference to the public accounts of different years that the Government of Ontario had had to deal down to the end of 1874 with no less an amount than $19,188,642 of receipts and had to make an expenditure of no less than -14,214,157. He had a statement of the receipts and expenditures from 31st December, 1868, to 31st December, 1874, by reference to which it would be seen that there had been a considerable excess of receipts over expenditures. Whatever might have been the surplus accumulated up to the end of 1871, $1,715,000 had been added to it in the two years 1872 and 1873, so that hon, members would at least give some credit to this Govern ment for not having diminished the surplus (Hear, hear.) They had not only a visible tangible surplus existing, but its existance depended just as much on the operations of 1872 and 1873 as on the preceding years. receipts over expenditures, exclusive of 1874, amounted to $5,523,859, to which those two years contributed as largely as the preceding years. In 1874, however, the tide turned, because in that year they expended $425,144 in excess of their receipts, but it must be recollected that they paid $2,000,000 on account of the surplus distribution and more than half a million on account of the railway fund, while nearly -800,000 had been realized in 1874 by the sale of the Municipal Loan Fund debentures. He was now referring to the gross receipts and expenditures. He wanted to show what had become of the funds, to show hon. gentlemen that there was a tangible surplus in existance though he supposed the hon. member for East Grey would not believe in its existence unless he had an opportunity of touching and handling it. (Laughter.) The excess of receipts over expenditure over $5,525,859, and the excess of expenditure over receipts was $425,144, leaving a balance of $5,1006,715, Now, what had they done with that?

Mr MACDOUGALL—That is the question.

Mr. CROOKS said that was what he proposed to show. He desired to remove any doubt under which hon. gentleman might be labouring, and to give on this and any occasion when he had the duty to discharge the fullest opportunity to hon. gentleman to become thoroughly informed in refrence to our financal affairs. The statements which had been made during the campaign, that he in his position as Treasurer had endeavoured to stifle investigation, were entirely untrue. (Cheers) He stated now, as he had to his friends in South oxford, that all these allegations were unture, and had place only in the imagination of his hon. friends the member for East Grey. (Cheers.) He would present to the House a statement of the assets and liabilities in 1874. There were investe s in Dominion five and six per cent, securities, $2,747,805, and in special deposits in banks on 1st December that year, $1,328,348. Special payments amounted, to $833.577, being railway fund, 1872-$372,786; railway fund. 1873, $426,642; drainage debenturers, $53,949. These sums made a total of $4,929,530, which when deducted from the surplus receipts over expenditure of $5,100715, left $171,184 to be accounted for. But the bank account showed a balance on 1st January, 1875, of precisely that amount. The accounts for the years 1868 to 1874 inclusive showed gross receipts amounting to $19,188,642, and he proposed to examine them for the purpose of ascertaining whether there had been any year during which the affairs of the Province had extravagently administered, or if the expenditures had been for objects of public necessity, and for carrying out the wishes of the House as manifested by its enactments. They had then invested, as he had mentioned, $4,076,153; on public works and buildings $2,448,179; in drainage debentures, $108,187; in drainage rent charges, $174,813; in payments on the Railway Aid Fund up to January 1st, 1875, $799,428; on the Railway Subsidy Fund $52.010; and in the municipal distribution. $1,361,101, amounting altogether to $9,019,874, out of the nineteen millions, and leaving $10,168,178 to represent the expenditures for the different years on the various subjects the which the Government was responsible The details of these expenditures could be found in the Public Accounts. They had a very heavy burden in maintaining the administration of justice, criminal as well as civil, with the exception of the payment of the salaries of those judges who were appointed by the Dominion Government. They had also to provide for the proper maintenance of our educational system to maintain the public institutions, to erect public buildings whenever the exigencies of the public service required it, to open up the unsettled portions of the country by means of colonization roads, and to bear all the charges which the welfare of the Province demanded. Last year he had understood to estimate the probable amount of their revenue for any particular year, and the probably amount of their necessary expenditure. He then took the normal income to be about $2,500,000, expenses to be about $1,800,000 on current account without reference to what might be chargeable to capital account. Since he made that estatement they had run through nine months of the current year, and they had the operations of the whole of 1874 as their guide. In 1868 the receipts were $2,26 0,176 1869, $2,625,179; 1870, $2,500,695; 1871 $2, 333, 178; 1873, 2,962.315; 1874, $3,445, 347. The amount of expenditure on current account during the past seven years for civil government, administration of justice, and for expenditures necessary to keep the machinery of the province in motion averaged $1,452,681 annually. As hon. members would understand, while the expenditures on matters within the discretion of the House might be curtailed there were certain obligatory expenditures that could not be brought to a lower scale, and which would probably increase as the wahts of the country might require. As to the actual results of 1874, the estimated receipts, irrepective of municipal debentures and payments, exclusive of railway fund, draminage and surplus distribution, amounted to $2,394,857; the actual receipts were $2,646,872, excluding $277,000, in the banks, showing $252,-015 over his estimate. (Hear.) This would be easily explained by a reference to the items for that year. The expenditure for that year had also been diminished as compared with the estimate. That estimated expenditure, if reference were made to the supply Act, 1874, would be found to be $2,684,176, while the actual expenditure was $2,408, 966. If reference were made to the Public Accounts for 1874, statement 38, the total would be found to be $2,384,176, but $50,000 was added for unforeseen and unprovided expenses The charges for the second session of 1874 were included in that, thought they were in the estimates of 1875. The operations of the year 1874. seeing that there was an excess of receipts amounting to $250,100, and a diminution in the expenditure to the extent of $175,000, had been nearly half a million bettter than his estimate. (Here, hear.) Then he came to 1875. In this he had only nine months as a basis. As he had mentioned, there had been a falling off in the receipts from Crown lands and woods and forests. He had estimated the probable receipts for the year to be $2,518,291' and that gave him a margin over receipts of $292,690, the estimated expenditure being by the Act -2,229,598.. The actual receipts for the wine months of this year had been $2,013,833, showing a difference of nearly half a million. There were, however, stile three months of this year, in which he expected to realize $253,000, leaving him short $220,000, which would probably be the result of the year 1875 at its close. If hon. members inquired as to where the falling-off occurred, it would be seen that while the receipts of the Crown Lands Department were estimated at -752,000, they would probably fall short of that amount by $390,000, while the other sources of revenue had increased, that Department showed the reduction to the amount stated. The receipts from the Crown Lands were, in 1868, $381,782; 1869 $653,257; 1870, $752,887; [illegible] 36,193, giving an average for the four years of $566,000. In 1872 the revenue amounted to the large sum of $1,1778, which arose from the extensive sale of Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 16, 1875.

TARDY ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.—Mr. Tom Ferguson, of "spittoon" notoriety, when in the House of Assembly made an attack on Mr. Blake, and in doing so had the meanness to give currency to a falsehood against Mr. Blake's grandfather. He has lately withdrawn the statement and admitted that it was false, and there is very little doubt that he knew it was false at the time, but anything to wound the feelings of an opponent. Surely men have little respect for their own character when they are guilty of libelling the dead long buried, where they should be beyond the strife and falsehood of political schemers. It is not so, however, in Conservative tactics, with such men as Tom Ferguson the ashes of even the distant relative of an opponent cannot be allowed to rest in peace.

THE Rule of Faith is occupying the minds and pens of a great many divines who heretofore were silent and idle on the subject. Some are making a desperate effort to prove the Church as the only true Rule of Faith. But they will find very few to accept their theories. The Westminister Catechism defines the Rule of faith as fairly as man can. The Word of God, contained in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments is the only Rule to direct men how to glorify God and enjoy him forever.

WHO IS THE OPPOSITION LEADER?—Mr. M. C. Cameron has been the accredited Conservative leader since John Sandfield McDonald's death, the other day he got William Macdougall re-elected for South Simcoe, and now "Wandering Willie" disputes the honor. Mr. Cameron has reminded him of his position and now he, Mr. C got him elected, But Mr. Macdougall does not heed those things. He is not a tower of strength to them.

CLEMENTS is committed to take his trial for procuring the abortion of Jane Vaughan Gilmour in Toronto. Dr Davis gave testimony against him and left no alternative but to commit him. A man named Frazer who made the box to put the body in, and who also drove the waggon and Mrs. Davis, is also committed as an accessory after the crime.

CABINET CHANGES AT OTTAWA.—Mr. Cauchon has been gazetted President of the Council. We hope the choice may prove a good one. What the gain in strength will be we cannot at presen divine.

LIMA.—Four thousand skeletons have been found between the walls of an hospital in Peru, supposed to be the remains of persons who suffered during the inquisition in that country.

THE Government will not interfere in the death sentence of the man White for the murder of his wife in Peel.

THE Ocean Cable has parted near where the old accident occurred.

FRANCE—The Republicans have gained material strength in the late elections.

THE Legislature will adjourn for the holidays on Wednesday next.

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The Board met in Special Session on Tuesday evening.

Present:—The Chairman and Messrs Rutherford, Eamison, J. M. Smith, White, Robertson, McClelland, A. Smith and Edwards.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Secretary read a communication from Mr. McKee requesting an addition of $75 in the same way as was granted before.

On motion, Mr McKee's request was granted.

A communication was read from Mr. Finlay, asking an increase of salary. This was referred to the Committee on appointments.

The Chairman stated that he had been examining the Insurance policies on School property and thought the Board had not got enough on the buildings. On the large building there was a policy of $11,000, and nothing on furniture, maps and other articles. He recommended increasing this to $15,000 and insuring the furniture, etc for $2000. The New School House in Ward No. 1 was insured for $3,500. and on furniture $500, in all $4000. The Board concurred in the recommendation of the Chairman.

Mr. J. M. Smith asked for information as to the plans of the Union School building, and was informed by the Chairman that Mr. Rowe had attended a week ago to give them to the Board, but that he claimed them as his property. He, however would leave the matter with the Board.

Several accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. J. M. Smith, Chairman of Committee on appointments, reported recommending the appointment of Miss Baguley to the South Ward School at the same salary as was given to miss English who retires.

Mr. J. M. Smith, as chairman of the Finance Committe reported: recommending the payment of Mathias & Reid's account for Stationery, $125.06. and also recommending a bonus of $25 to Mr. Johnston, Janitor, having received severe injuries in the employment of the Board. The Report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr A. Smith, Mr. W. S. Johnston was appointed to take Mr. W. Wood's place in the Auburn School at a salary of $440 per annum, Mr. Wood having resigned.

Mr McClelland wished to have liberty to secure wood for the season, as the present supply would not do much beyond the present year.

On motion of Mr. Edmison, seconded by Mr. Edwards, the property committee were instructed to make the best arrangements the could to secure the wood required, by private contract.

Mr. Edwards enquired whether the schools were opened and closed with reading a portion of Scripture and prayer as provided for in the regulations of the Board of Education, and also if the ten commandments were taught weekly as prescribed in the said regulation. He expressed himself against those regulation, but still they were law.

Mr. J. M. Smith favored the reading of the Scriptures in School, and referred to the advantages to those who had been trained where they were daily read, and remarked that he would be willing to aid in securing this boon for Canadian Schools. The matter then dropped.

The matter of Teacher's certificates was referred to the chairman to enquire into.

Mr Robertson enquired if the Board intended to take any measures to employ a male teacher for the South Ward School.

Mr. White remarked that the parents interested were anxious to have a male teacher appointed with control of the whole School. The chairman said that changes would have to be made soon, as the board would be compelled to find increased accommodation for the children of school age, and then, perhaps. the wishes of the people in the South Ward could be granted.

The Board then adjourned.

To the Friends of the Methodist Church throughout the Peterborough District.

Dear Friends,—Probably you are already aware that the Church, lately erected by the Methodist Congregation on George street, Peterborough, will be formally opened for Divine Worship on Christmas Day at 11 a.m. The special services will be continued the two Sabbaths following. Several Ministers of marked ability have promised to take part in the various services. We ask you to join with us in praise to God for the success that has thus far attended the efforts of his servants, and in prayer that the Divine Spirit may be copio sly granted on all the services hereafter conducted in this house.

While the Dedication will be to all a season of rejoicing, yet there will be a feeling of responsibility pressing heavily on some, we cannot look at either the spiritual or financial position without some anxiety. May we not expect that the Holy Spirit will be very manifest in the temples indicating that God is well pleased with the offering of his servants, and also foreshadowing showers of blessings to come? Again our Financial obligations are heavy, much more so than was anticipated when the building was undertaken. Yet all can be successfully managed if there be a hearty co operation on your part. While we invite you to a free seat in the sanctuary on Christmas morning, and on the following Lords day, may we not hope that you will regard this as a fitting opportunity for exhibiting your gratitude to our Heavenly Father, for temporal and spiritual good received through our blessed Caristianity, and at the same time for rendering aid to the trustees of this church.

The pews will be let on Monday, December 27th inst. The mode of letting will be made known at the dedication service. We hope to be able to offer sittings at rates which will place them withi the reach of all who may desire them.

I am yours very sincerly,

N. R. WILLOUGHBY.

TORONTO CORRESPONDENCE.

[Special to the EXAMINER].

Since the opening of Parliament our streets have a more lively appearance than usual, owing to the influx of business men and others interested in Parliamentary matters. The Session of the Legislature has not as yet made much progress further than in speaking, and in this it must be admitted it has outstripped all previous ones. The debate on the address was on the whole carried on in good spirit, but the continual croacks of dissatisfaction that came from the Opposition were painful to listen to. Instead of organizing themselves into an opposition to oppose bad and injudicious measures, they indulge in indiscriminate fault finding, which is apparently the only thing they are capable of doing.

Of the speakers in the debate on the address, probably the most polished speaker was the Hon. Wm Macdougall, but even his large orations do not command the same attention as they did before he played the traitor.

Mr. Widderfield, the mover of the address, eulogised the Government and supported the various subjects referred to in the speech. He was followed by Mr. Ferris who is not a very polished orator on the whole. Then the older politicians crossed swords and the Attorney General had to withstand the united attacks of Mr. Cameron and Macdougall, both of whom wanted information before voting on the address, as if the subjects mentioned in the speech were for a character likely to raise suspicions of foul play or of treason Mr. Cameron tried to pump Mr. Mowatt on his policy of dealing with the questions of paying criminal witnesses, Mr. Mowatt pointed out that it was not customary to give the details in the debate on the address and taunted Mr. Cameron with feigning ignorance when he persistently urged the Government at the begining of every session to introduce the measure, thus acknowledging that he at least was prepared for the discussion. In reply to Mr. Cameron's observation that he did not profess ignorance but wanted information Mr. Mowatt made the clever repartee that he knew of no reason to give information except to remove ignorance. Mr. Macdougall accepted as his hobby the Boundary question, and like wise wanted information, but was correctly told by the Attorney General that he would get it at the proper time when the Bill on this subject of which Mr. Macdougall had given notice was introdnced. The remaining speeches were chiefly of new members who always like to make the Legislative Hall ring with their eloquence, very often to the great embarrassment of older and more experienced politicians. Mr. Frazer, is a fluent speaker; he makes many good points, but his manner and language is such as to incur the dislike of his opponents; while Mr. Mowatt cuts unmercifully, but at the same time retains the respect of those he cuts. It is to be hoped he will study the art of cutting skilfully and we commend to his attention Mr. Blake, who never stopped to insult. The address was passed without a division, and this is quite significant when viewed with the boast of the tory's during the summer as to the relative strength of the two parties. Mr Lauder admitted that the Government had a majority of fourteen votes in the House, and this is of itself as large a majority as Mr Mowatt could safely count upon in last Parliament The opposition, too, which was last session baddled together into a miserable little "quartette" has been greatly improved which is owing no doubt to the superior management of Mr. Macdougall who is virtually the leader, although not in name. The removal of Messrs Boultbee and Rykert, two members of the "quartette" has also given the opposition a chance to set up a claim for respectability which it could not last season.

Among the subjects which have come up for discussion since the debate on the address, are the Boundary questions, Government advertising, and Asylum accommodation. The first was raised by motion of Mr. Macdougall for a return of all correspondence relating to the Westerly and Northerly Boundaries of this Province; he characterized the Act passed last session which gave to the Dominion Parliament the power of approving of or rejecting the award of the arbitrators appointed in accordance there with as unconstitutional, and conceived the present Government for committing to the person to whom it did the interests of the Province. He contended that the question was one of la , and ought to have been submitted to the Privy Council in England. Mr Mowatt defended the Government and contended that the Act was constitutional. On the introduction of Mr Macdougall's Bill as previously referred to the discussion will take place in earnest so that we will reserve all further remarks till then. The debate on the Government p tronage was raised on a motion of Mr. Wigle for all correspondence between the Government and the Clerk of Peace and other officers of the County of Essex relating to the advertising of lists of convictions. The present Government in adopting the custom which has been in vogue for many years and with many Governments gave to those newspapers supporting it the advertising of the list of convictions, and consequently deprived the Tories of lots of office to which they apparently considered they had a divine right. Great was the indignation of the innocent Tory members who turned up their eyes in holy horror at the action of the Grits and told with childlike simplicity the grievances of their respective constituencies. The details showed clearly that the never interfered with any County Council which advertised for tenders. It was also charged that the Conservative issuers of licenses were discharged to make way for Reformers, but the speeches on this point unquestionably show the contrary to be the case that almost all the Conservatives had been reappointed.

A Bill has been introduced by Mr. Currie for the abolition of the Grand Jury system. Mr. Currie, a short time ago moved for a return of expenses incurred in respect to the Grand Jury system and in support of his motion contended that the Grand Jury was a useless source of expense and considered that if the money now expended in it were applied to the payment of criminal business the County would be better off, and justice done to a class of people who have heretofore been sadly neglected. The question of the expediency of abolishing the Grand Jury will be debated on the second reading of the Bill, so we will for the present pass it over Another matter was raised by Mr. Hay, of North Perth, on a motion for a return of sums of money expended in keeping the departmental buildings in repair He considered the present departmental Buildings addition to being too small, were unsafe to deposit valuable papers in on account of their susceptibility to catch fire The return asked for would in all probability show the House that the true economy would be to erect now departmental buildings.

On Friday the Treasurer made a very clear and lucid speech on the financial affairs of the Province. He gave an estimate of the assess of the Provinces on the 30th of September, which amounted to $7,790,578.37, and the liabilities amounted to $2,584,207.53 leaving the handsome surplus of $5,206,377.84. Mr. Crooks was followed by Mr. Macdougall, and that gentleman dealt more generously with the budget than he is wont to do. He slipped into a mistake inadvertently when criticising the lumber license policy of the Government which he designated as a fraud upon the poor lumber merchants, and in this went directly opposed to his leader and the whole opposition side of the House, who were wont to make the country ring with indignation because they taunted the opposition on their manifestation of a broken front, and it was amusing to hear Mr Cameron trying to reconcile Mr. Macdougall's statement as too jury in support of a bad case

In the Monck election case judgment was given by the Chancellor on the question raised whether a respondent who is charged with personal corruption or by agents with this knowledge and consent at an election which was declared void can be called upon to answer for such charges upon a petition against a subsequent election. The learned Chancellor following his decision in the Cornwall case decided he could, and the respondent is not excused on the ground upon which he refused to answer, and that he could not be excused except by stating upon oath before the County Judge and be examined as to the charges

Titiens, the celebrated singer is coming here soon, and will sing at Mrs. Morrison's Grand Opera House. As the celebrity of this singer will attract many from the Country I will advise when she is to be here. Miss Coombs is at Mrs. Morrison's and is giving great satisfaction.

On account of the Assembly of Parliament and of the near approach of Christmas, our merchants are making great displays, and particularly those of the the Art establishments conspicious among which is that of Messrs Hunter & Middlemiss who occupy the premises lately held by Ewing on King Street, West. This is nothing less than a first class Art Museum and will repay the visit of any one with an hour to spare. Paintings, chromos, and photographs of the higest style of Art of all the leading men of the country together with stereoscopals of all parts of the world can be seen by visiting this establishment. It is undersood that Messrs Hunter & Middlemiss are going to make large sized photographs, then especially and we wish them every success, for this branch has not had the attention paid to it in the Country which its importance deserves.

Save the Kingston Whig: The Leader of Saturday was still engaged after several day's occupation, in publishing continuations of Sir John's speech at Montreal. The old gal is not going to be behind any of her younger and brighter contemporaries in the Christmas story line, and this is her offering. As a work of fiction it can hardly be beaten.

EXCOMMUNICATION.

As many of our readers are intimately acquainted with J. W. Dunnet, Esq who resided amongst us for several years, and whose exemplary and Christian deportment, all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance were compelled to admire, on receipt of the correspondence in reference to an excommunication in Belleville we determined to give it instead of the usual editorial matter this week.

Readers of the EXAMINER, who know Mr. Dunnet, will read the correspondence with astonishment.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—Will you kindly open it me to publish in your columns the enclosed correspondence? It will explain itself.

Sincerely yours, JAS. W DUNNET.

Belleville, Nov. 30th, 1875.

SIR,—Having learned that you refuse, on account of your unreasonable variance with myself, to perform one of the first duties of Church membership, viz, to contribute to the support of the Church according to your means, I beg to inform you that the sufferance by which hitherto you have enjoyed in Christ Church the privileges of full membership, without the described qualification, cannot any longer be accorded you. Therefore, before you come again to the holy Communion I must ask you to comply with the rule of the Church in regard to intending communicants who have not been confirmed, by signifying to me that you "are ready and desirous to be confirmed" in accordance with the provisions of the rubric at the end of the office for confirmation.

I have also to say further that, in consequence of your unaltered feeling of opposition to me, which makes it impossible that we can work together harmoniously in the Sunday School, or that I can have any comfort or confidence in your presence and services therein, I regret that I feel obliged to request you to sever your connection with our School.

I am, sir, yours truly,

R. S. FORNERI.

James Dunnet, Esq., Belleville.

Belleville dec. 1st, 1875.

Sir,—I beg to acknowledge your communication of yesterday, and to express my surprise at its contents

Eleven years ago, I was premitted to become a member of the Church of England without being confirmed, and ever since have been a regular communicant—no one objecting. Even yourself, when I made known to you these circumstances, admitted that there were others in our Church in the same position, and gave me to understand that you too would make no objections And further, with these facts fully known to you, you gave me the necessary certificate as lay delegate to the Ontario synod—a position which I formerly held in the Toronto synod. Pardon me, therefore, if I hazard the opinion that a spirit—not of the Gospel, and an anxiety—not for Church rules, have prompted you in this matter And what is your ostensible reason for fulminating an excommunication against me? (for this, I believe, is the correct term) Because I did not contribute to the Church according to my means. In this you are wrong, unless you consider yourself the Church, for, although still supporting the Church according to my means, I must certainly decline to contribute to your support so long as you insist on maintaining the innovations in our worship and church furniture which you have introduced.

But has it come to this in the Church of England, that the privileges of the Gospel are to be bought and sold for gain like common merchandise? While I gave towards your salary you made me welcome to the Communion, but when you learn that I withdrew my subscription you turn me away. is this the Gospel of Jesus which you profess to teach? Are we now to understand that they who seek the "water of life" must come with money and with price? Do the Apostle in whose line of succession you boast yourself to be, instruct you to refuse a participation to the memorials of our Lord's dying love to those who did not pay for it?

But even were the anxiety to follow rubrical provisions your reason for excommunicating me, permit me to say that it came too late, for six weeks ago I arraigned with a friend to make the necessary application for my confirmation, and now only await a proper opportunity. As you admit, the rubric looks upon those who are "ready and desirous to be confirmed" as if already confirmed. It is well, however, that this test is not applied to all the members of the Church of England in Belleville—else, I fear, many of them would be "under the ban".

In my "unalterable feeling of opposition" to you I am not actuated by motives of a personal nature, of you m st be aware, but solely by the belief that it is my duty in God's sight to oppose those innovations which you have introduced into Christ Church parish, and which are all tending in the same direction. Nor can you call this "variance" with yourself "unreasonable," if you recall the kindly feeling with which these innovations were introduced. The little Roman cross was placed upon St. John's Church contrary to your distinct statement to myself before subscribing to the building fund, that there would be no cross upon it. Nor can I now reconcile your explanation, when consenting to the removal of this cross, that the contractors had placed it there without your instructions, with the fact that on your second plan (according to which the Church was finished) you placed an ornament which could be construed only as a Roman cross.

About the chancel furniture, I must confess that I asked you no questions, never for a moment supposing that you would introduce anything there that would seem to imply a doctrine so contrary to the Articles of our Church—furniture which you know the Ritualists were the first to introduce with this object in view But I ask you, was it straight-forward to solicit and accept from myself and other our subscriptions for our Church, concealing from us that you intended to use our money for this purpose? Why did you not honorably tell us that you intended to introduce such changes, and permit us to subscribe, or refuse with our eyes open? It will not excuse your action to plead that some of these innovations are to be found in a few Evangelical Churches, for although they may have been placed in these Churches at a time when Protestants were not alive to their significance in our Church, now that their import is so well known I cannot understand how any Evangelical clergyman would deliberately struggle to introduce them. If as you say, you intend no doctrinal significance by them, why insist in retaining what is a stumbling block to so many of your congregation?

So far as the Sunday School is concerned, I may say that for the last eleven years I have labored in the Sunday Schools of our Church, nearly half that time being honored with the responsible position of Superintendent. It is therefore to me a cause for thankfulness that your want of confidence arises only from my opposition to yourself on account of those innovations you have introduced.

I may add that I consider it necessary to publish your communication as well as my reply thereto, and shall feel myself at liberty to follow a similar course with any other correspondence that may pass between us on the same subject.

I am, Sir,

Yours truly, JAS. W. DUNNET.

Rev. R. S. Forneri.

(If requiring a man to conform to the rules of his Church in excommunication.—R.S.F.)

TO JAMES DUNNET, Esq

SIR,—In reply to yours of the 1st inst I beg to say, that the indulgence which your defective Churchmanship has received from myself and other Clergymen for so long a time as you mention, might have been indefinitely prolonged, had you not, by your own unreasonable conduct, forfeited all claim to toleration, and rendered it necessary now at length to require your compliance with the rubrical direction to which I referred in my previous note. This I still await; for as my private "arrangement" you may have "made with a friend," will not be accepted by the Bishop for the parish clergyman's certificate, so it will not answer instead of an express declaration in the words of the rubric, that you are "ready and desirous to be confirmed." If you make this declaration and I, your parish minister seed in writing with my hand subscribed thereunto, your name to the Bishop as a fit person within this parish to be confirmed, and the Bishop on his part approve of your name th n you may be considered as an accepted candidate and communicant. Until these steps have been regularly taken, I decline to give you the Sacrament.

With regard to he Sunday School, the reason which I gave in my note for requesting your retirement therefrom is by no means the "only one" which promoted the desire, but it is sufficient.

In exchange for a large portion of your letter, I will give you an extract from the pages to the Prayer-book, leaving you or the public to make the application:—

"Having endeavored to discharge our duty in this office as in the sight of God, and to approve our sincerity thereto so far as in us lay, to the conscience of all men, although we know it possible (in such a variety of apprehensions, humors and interests) to please all; nor can expect that men of factious, perverse and perverse spirits, should be satisfied with anything that can be done in this kind or any other than themselves; yet we have good hope that our actions will be accepted and approved by all sober, peaceable and truly conscientious sons of the Church of England."

In conclusion Let the public judge, if you like what moral consistency there can be in a man who spends up in a Vestry meeting in favor of a Resolution which states that the ministers thereof "have entire confidence in their Pastor, appreciation of his labors and a desire that he may long be spared to exercise his ministery among them, and then from that very hour refuses to give that same Pastor any cordiality or pecuniary support. While nevertheless he still uses the public services, and receives the sacrament at his hands

I am, sir, yours truly,

R. S. FORNERI,

Belleville, Dec 3rd, 1875.

DEAR SIR,—I enclose you a copy of a note posted by me to the Rev. Mr Forneri on the 4th inst. As soon as he replies thereto I shall ask your permission to publish my reply to his communication which appear d in your Saturday's issue.

With many thanks for the liberty you have already granted me, I am, sincerely yours

JAS W. DUNNET.

COPY

Belleville, Dec, 4th 1875.

SIR,—Your letter of yesterday to hand. I demand from you in writing the other reasons which you state prompted your refusing me with but from the Sunday School I have a right to know them and will ask immediate reply.

As soon as you favor me with it, I shall refer more fully to your communication.

Yours truly JAS W. DUNNET

Rev. R S. Forneri.

(If requiring a man to conform to the rules of his Church is Excommunication.)

TO JAMES W DUNNET, Esq

SIR,—To your query of yesterday, your pressing haste necessitates a brief reply, which the world of your own acknowledgment, August last, will furnish forth:—"It is painfully evident that we are not in accord in matters that vitally affect our Church."

Yours truly, R S FORNERI

P. S.—This closes my portion of the correspondence

Belleville, Dec. 7, 1875.

DEAR SIR,—Will you favor me by publishing the enclosed letter, which I trust will be my last on this painful subject?

Again thanking you for your courtesy, I am,

Sincerely yours,

JAS. W. DUNNETT.

TO THE REV. R S. FORNERI.

SIR,—From your note in last evening's Intelligencer it is evident that you had no reason for desiring my withdrawal from the Sunday School, except my opposition to your-self in matters that vitally affect our Church; and as you are aware that my sympathies are with the Evangelical party I regret that you so readily accept the other side.

You will excuse me if I call your attention to the erroneous impression you would convey a your parenthesis; "(It requiring a man to conform to the rules of his Church is Excommunication.)" You endeavour to cast a doubt upon your act being an excommunication, and attempt to shift the ground of your action In answer to the, I will but quote the late Archdeacon of this diocese when alluding to the notorious Hazledon case; "To excommunicate—that is to exclude from the Holy Communion." And you must bear in mind that you do not exclude me because I decline to conform to any one of my Church innovations take advantage of my being unconfirmed to excommunicate me, but, to your estimation, contributing to the support of the Church according to my means. Had I only continued to pay well for an "indulgence" my conduct would have remained reasonable, and you have been spared the exhibition of a sacerdotal that will not find much favor with the laity.

With reference to your mis-applied quotation from the preface to the Prayer-book, permit me to express no doubt of your sincerity in introducing the-e innovations into our parish. Your zealous advocacy to myself of the use of the material cross as the symbol of our faith, thoroughly convinced me of your earnestness, but you need not feel surprised if all "truly conscientic us sons of the Church of England" turn out rather "perverse" when they find some of the distinctive features of a Church against which their own protests surreptitiously introduced amongst them

And now as to the concluding paragraph of your letter. Had you given the public at the whole truth, instead of only a portion of it, they would have been better able to judge of my moral consistency Why did on not tell of our strenuous opposition in the vestry to your first resolution precluding my approving of these innovations, against which we endeavored to carry an amendment urging their their removal, yet shielding you from the imputation of Ritualism? And why did you not state that when your opponents carried a resolution against our amendment, we unanimously accepted a second resolution, which, in the hurry and confusion at the close of the meeting those who voted against the first resolution understood as simply an expression of kindly feeling towards the minister. Had we taken more time to consider and I might add, had we known some things that we have since learned in connection with the history of these innovations, we might have voted differently.

We withheld our pecuniary support as we felt it wrong to sustain those innovations but were prepared to increase our subscriptions, if necessary as soon as they were removed. And why not remove them since you say you mean to bring by them? You know that they are a cause of offence to many in your congregation, and must admit that those who voted with you do not desire them We offered in the Vestry to bear all the expense of their removal and of replacing them with the original furniture of our Church; and surely peace, harmony and good will are worth a small sacrifice of private feeling.

Yours truly,

J W DUNNET

COLD IN THE HEAD.

There was a frog who lived in a spring.
He caught such a cold that he could not sing.

Poor unfortunate Batrachian! In what a sad plight he must have been. And yet his misfortune was one that often befalls singers. Many a once tuneful voice among those who belong to the "genus homo" is utterly spoiled by "cold in the head," or on the lungs, or both combined. For the above-mentioned "croaker" we are not aware that any remedy was ever devised; but we rejoice to know that all human singers may keep there heads clear and there throats in tune by a timely use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext., or golden Medical Discovery, both of which are sold by druggists.

A correspondent in the Halifax Recorder who has been on a visit to Ottawa, thus speaks of the Pacific Railway Scandal and its fruits:—"No one can know the drift and tendency of British American affairs who did not visit Ottawa during the days of Sir John A. Macdonald, and Sir George Cartier, for at that time was put in motion the machinery for fraud and outrage on the rights of the Canadian people, which can not be changed or stopped by the honest administration of an able man like Mr. Mackenzie. The long career in power of Sir John A Macdonald is not so easily gotten over, though an honest man succeeded him."

THE DAVISES.—When the convicts, Archibald Pan Davis and Alice Davis, were taken to the Kingston Penitentiary they were in charge of Sheriff's officer Bright and two other constables Davis was taken from the goal handcuffed, but his wife was unshackled, and conveyed to the Dominion, where the Grand trunk railway train East drew up and took them on board Davis looked careworn, and Mrs. Davis was very pale. On the way they chatted with one another, occasionally joking and laughing Several parties in different parts got into conversation with them, but the Sheriff's officer did not permit, as he has received strict orders to allow no one to speak to them. When they got to the Penitentiary they parted with each other very affectionately Davis is to be put to stone breaking for about three months, after which he will work in the cabinet making shop.—Mail.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Read John Cameron's advertisement in this issue.

Great Inducements—Mr Doran has determined to commence a cash business and he is offering great inducements.

The Committee of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks a donation of $2 from Mary Shannon, a little girl, being part of a present given her.

Pianos and Organs—Mr. Pentland is selling Pianos and Organs during the holidays at very low rates.

Obit—Walter Sheridan, Esq., for many years County Clerk and Treasurer of this County, died on Friday at the advanced age of 81 years. The funeral took place on Sunday and was very largely attended.

Leading Sewing Machine Makers recommend CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice the ANCHOR on each Spool.

Confectionery—Mr A. Hall advertisses a select stock of the usual holiday cakes, confectionery, toys, dolls, etc Mr Hall superintends his own work, purchases for cash and offers to sell cheap for cash. Mr. Hall has been long known as most obliging to his customers, and his articles of best quality.

Not often heard of—Mr. John Byram, of Otonabee has a Ewe which had two lambs on the 10th of March, 1875, and the same Ewe had two more lambs on the 19th day of October, 1875 All four lambs did well. This is certainly a prolific animal.

You will save time and trouble with your Sewing Machine by using CLARK & CO.'S Best Six Cord Extra Quality Sewing Cotton. Notice ANCHOR on each Spool.

The Weather.—People are rejoicing in very fine sleiging now. If the price of grain would advance to about $1 or $1 10 farmers would soon move out their surplus grain, and in doing so, better or brisker trade might be expected, as it is the sleighing has induced the people to come to town freely.

Methodist Bazaar—The Ladies of the George Street Methodist Church will open a Bazaar on Tuesday 21st instant, Fair day, in the New Town Hall. It will be opened at 11 a.m. It will also be continued on Friday, 24th The proceeds will be in aid of furnishing the new church, which will be opened Christmas Day

The Cry of Hard Times is, so far as the country is concerned, without any foundation. Farmers never were more flush of money, but in too many cases it is on deposit at the banks. They have a very fine crop to market this year. Traders are cutting close to induce business, and consequently no better times could be for laying by a plentiful supply for the season.

Runaway.—On Tuesday a runaway on Hunter Street, almost caused a sensation Mr. Z Burnham's team ran away from the yard where he had been unloading hay. They rushed down Chambers Street, and narrowly escaped running in to the windows of Mr. Hazlitt's New Block, but turning quickly they crossed to Mr. Sullivan's Hotel, and on their way the rack caught the harness of Mr D'Ullyot's horse and broke the strap as he passed with two young ladies in the cutter. They managed the animal heroically, although a very spirited one, until he was relieved, when Mr D. Heathorn fixed up the harness, and the young ladies got in and drove home. No injury was done to anything except the strap of the harness. The young Ladies showed great nerve and presence of mind, and but for this there might have been serious consequences.

The Dorcas Society.—The meeting held at the Protestant Home on Monday last, for the purpose of organizing a Dorcas Society, was well attended notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, thus showing that the ladies are ready to give their time and means to this good work, which owing to the general depression in trade and manufactures, is more than ever needed this winter. Mrs. K Maclennan was asked to preside and Miss Roger acted as Secretary for the meeting It was then moved and seconded that Mrs. Dennistoun be President; Mrs. Gilmour and Mrs. Kennedy Vice Pres., and Miss Kirkpatrick Sec & Treas. of the Society, which appointments were unanimously carried. A fund was at once subscribed as a commencement for the work, and an earnest hope expressed that through the kind liberality of friends and the public generally, the Society might be enabled to extend its efforts and supply food and fuel as well as clothing to those who need. This, in connection with the good work carried on by the Protestant Home Committee for so many years, will, they hope alleviate much of the distress consequent upon lack of employment in many cases and reduced wages generally. The Dorcas Society will meet at the Home every Tuesday at 2 p.m., when a full attendance is requested of all willing to give a helping hand. Contributions in money, clothing, farm produce, groceries &c., &c., will be received at the Protestant Home and dispensed under the supervision of district visitors. We hope our friends in the country who have reaped an abundant harvest will not forget their less favored brethren in town and thus express their thankfulness for blessings received. We understand that the Committee of the Protestant Home are desirous of obtaining the co-operation of a Committee of Gentlemen, one or more of whom would visit the Home weekly, report cases that might come under their notice, and in many ways assist to carry out the work They feel sure there will be no difficulty in securing such co-operation when it is requested — Com.

OUR LITERARY TABLE.

The Weekly Globe comes to us now as a 16 page paper, neatly folded and stitched. In its new form it will have the advantage of a regular book; the pages will be as easily turned over and the reading matter is so arranged as to be readily turned up on any subject at once. As an advertising medium it has no equal in the Dominion, and as a newspaper is in advance of any weekly in America. Now is the time to subscribe, it is $2.00 a year, only.

An Important Subject for Ladies.—John Dougall & Son, the publishers of the Montreal 'Witness', have it appears, begun book publishing: at least we have a very brilliant colored little book before us from their presses, entitled "Dress and Health, or, How to be strong, a book for Ladies." As it title intimates, it is devoted to dress reform. Judging from the price and the motto on the cover, "Read and lend," the object of its publication would appear to be the accomplishing of this good end. The work urges that many are ignorant that the health of thousands of women is being undermined by errors in dress, and that many others who recognize the fact do not know how to make the necessary changes. This book shows by the testimony of numerous physicians the injury which is being done by the prevailing method of dress, then points out the changes which may be made without affecting the outward appearance. It is not a bloomeresque revolution that is proposed, there is in fact nothing in the reform garments to alarm the most fastidious. Although the book contains 187 pages, and is beautifully got up, and is illustrated, it is sent post free for 30 cents. It will make a very appropriate Christmas present. All orders left with us will be forwarded.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

Tea Social.

The annual Social of the Mount Pleasant Lodge of I O of G T., was held in their hall on Tuesday evening, the 7th instant, when quite a respectable audience assembled to partake of the rich dainties which were so willingly provided by the ladies of the Lodge. All good enterprises have found an echo in the feminine hearts of this place, and we had a very practical illustration of it on the evening above named. After the audience had satisfied the demands of nature, Mr. Thos. Best, jr., was elected Chairman. He then called on the Mount Pleasant Temperance Choir to sing the 'Opening Ode,' which they did in a very pleasing manner. The Chairman then gave a short address on behalf of the Temperance cause. Miss H Anderson and Mr. W. Workman sang a duet, 'Waiting for Thee;' Dr. J. B. Thompson read 'Shot by a Drunken Friend;' Miss E B McLean sang 'The Gushing Rill,' which was greatly admired by all. Mrs. S J. Paterson read 'A Drunkard's Return;' Miss Anderson sang 'Better abide a wee John Smith. Esq., of Kinnell, addressed the meeting on his travels abroad; Miss McLean sang 'The old Cottage Bell;' Miss May Shaw read 'The Scolding old Dame,' which was greatly applauded; Miss H. Anderson sang 'Departed Hours,' in a very pleasing and delightful manner. Dr. Thompson then addressed the meeting on 'Alcohol in the human system.' The Choir was then called on to sing the closing ode which brought the meeting to a close, all having spent a pleasant evening, and hoping ere long to meet again to pass another evening in the same manner.

LINES.

A few Lines upon a small bunch of Heather brought from Auld Scotia by John Cameron.

Yes, he be right it. I have got it,
Can you guess what it might be?
Its the Heather, John did gather
On Auld Scotia's hills for me.
First he pu'ed it, then he viewed it,
With its blossoms varied hue.
Paper folded, therein rolled it,
Saying, Bill, this is for you.
When I took it, how I looket
At the sprig I so well knew,
Silent blessed it, almost kissed it,
For the sake of where it grew.
When I showed it, yes, they knowed it,
Every Scotchman which I met,
Fast they held it and they smelled it,
O! its scent they wont forget.
We adore it, true Scots wore it,
In their highland caps of yore.
Their toes feared it as they neared it,
Highland blood the heather bore.
Time has tried it, blood has died it,
Yes the best in Scotland shed
They prayed on it and laid on it
Off the Martyrs dieing bed.
You may prize it or disprize it,
As your inclination be,
Don't annoy it, nor destroy it,
'Tis a precious gem to me.
Yes, I have it I will save it
While its twigs will hang thegither,
Time will move them, but I love them,
Both Auld Scotia and her heather, country with a staff hardly as large as the increase of the country required. The larger the business, the larger the cost of the staff required. He went on to point out the improvements which had been made as shown in the table at the end of the statement for 1874. There had been constructed and completed since the 1st of July, 1867, no less than 1,110 miles of railways, which were estimated by Mr. Mowat worth to cost $26,282,709. Notwithstanding the financial depression, and the great difficulties which had surrounded railway enterprises it appeared that during 1875 upwards of 186 miles of railroad had been completed at a cost of $3,806,163. The statements showed that since Confederation there had been an increase in the mileage of the Province of upwards of 1,200 miles, representing an expenditure of $30,000000. A large proportion of the prosperity of the Province since 1867 was to be attributed to the large amount of money brought here from abroad and put into circulation. The influence of that expenditure had been felt everywhere; it had been felt everywhere; it had been felt in the increased capital of the banks, in all departments of business. Since his election as member for South Oxford, he had been able to understand more thoroughly the progress that had been made during recent years in the production of the dairy. While depression has prevailed in the country during the past two years in the lumber trade, a good deal of the financial difficulty which had arisen had been overcome, and mainly overcome, by the increased product of the dairy, the large harvest, and the fair price which cereals had realized. The House might, indeed, coincide with the remark of his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, that although we have been suffering equally with the United States from a depressed state of trade and other industries, the Province had been blessed with an abundant harvest, and had thereby been relieved to a considerable extent from an equally suffering condition. A good deal of our present favorable condition might be attributed to the increase in our cereal and dairy products, and he was astonished to find the extent of the new progressive industry in dairy products. The exports of cheese alone through Montreal and New York amounted $4,000,000 annually. Large returns were also obtained from the production of butter, and upon these subjects he was now qualified to speak, for he now represented a county which was not excelled in dairy products. He was afraid he had somewhat wearied the House by the tenth of his financial statement, but it was necessary to offer the remarks he had done, and as he did not often exhaust its patience he hoped the House would pardon him on the present occasion. He had endeavored, as Treasurer of the Province, to present such a statement of its financial affairs as he hoped would enable all hon. members to fully understand it; and he hoped to member of the House, and no Elector who was called upon to give a verdict either for or against the present Administration, would do it in future under any apprehension that, so far as regarded the financial affairs of the Province, there had been impropriety with which the Government could be charged. If the Administration of the financial affairs by the present Government were understood according to the true facts, and according to the proper interpretation which should be given to their action, he was thoroughly convinced that they would desire not only to ratify the confidence they had reposed in the Government but to extend their influence in the different constituencies. He could not, as Treasurer of the Province, and responsible for the administration of its financial affairs during some years, permit the present opportunity to pass without making an effort to place before the House and the country the truth in regard to the correct position of the financial affairs. On no occasion had he yet heard that any measure proposed by the Government had not been for the promotion of the best interests of the country, or that the present Administration had been in any degree neglectful of the public interests. He thanked the House for the patience with which they had heard his statement in the financial of the Province. (Cheers.)

Mr. MACDOUGALL said he desired to express his satisfaction at the full and clear explanations of the hon. Treasurer of the financial condition of the country. He thought, however, that instead of having the Committee of Supply opened so early in the session, immediately following the Budget speech, the practice of the English House of Commons should be followed. He thought that the question of whether or not as whether their administration of affairs had been wise and economical; and it was not the place of the Treasurer to be so careful to show that there was a surplus, for his figures, if correctly given, would show that. He did not think that Government should claim credit because the resources of the country were producing large sums of money. The question was whether the normal expenditure of the country had been unduly increased. The Treasurer had left out of his calculation some of the expenditure on capital account and extraordinary expenses but these were nearly always the same in the Supplementary Estimates always coming; they had always to be accounted for. It was not fair to make out a small surplus from a supposed reduction of these expenses, when they were very likely to reach the amount of the income. He thought that from the statement of the hon. Treasurer it would not be long before the country would have to resort to direct taxation. He contended that the Parliamentary Buildings and other Government property, such as the Crown Lands, throughout the Province had just as good a right to be placed as assets as some of those which the treasurer had so reminded. He considered, too, that it was very unfair to reckon as an asset, or in making out a surplus of the Province, funds in the hands of the Dominion Government, for this was in reality money which Ontario had paid in and was getting paid back again. Nothing should be included as an asset except the natural property production of the country. Many things which had hitherto been large sources of revenue were now nearly, if not quite, unproductive, such, for example, as the Crown Lands. It was now costing more to open up roads to the unsettled lands of the Provinces and otherwise provide for the comfort and convenience of our settlers than could be realized from the sales of such lands in the rocky districts of the Province. The timber of the Province was also rapidly disappearing, and so the income from that source would soon come to an end. He next referred to the timber sale made by the Government, saying that as the sale had been made under false representations, that many of the purchasers intended (if they had not already done so) getting the Court of Chancery to quash the sale. He believed, and the Attorney General as an equity lawyer and an ex-equity judge knew, that these purchasers would have a good ground upon which to get the transaction undone. He differed entirely from the policy of the Government with regard to immigration. They were paying expensively for getting immigrants to come into the Province and no care was afterwards taken to ensure their actual settlement in it, or to keep them from going into the United States, where he believed many of our bonused immigrants were going. He did not think the arrangement between the Province and the Dominion, with regard to immigration, was favorable to the Province of Ontario, as it placed affairs too much in the hands of the agents of the Dominion. The Agent General in London for Canada, though he was a man for whom he has the highest respect, knew little, and cared less, about the interests of Ontario, and was altogether inferior, so far as fair, square work was concerned, to Mr. Dixon. The emigration building in London was very expensive, it was not in a good locality, and there was not a clerk in it to look after the special interests of Ontario. He did not believe in taking the money of hard working settlers to pay bonuses to immigrants who passed through the Province into the United States. The Treasurer's statement upon the whole was less unfavorable, considering the late financial depression, than they might reasonably have expected. (Cheers.

How seldom we see a splendid head of hair! From sickness, excessive labor or neglect thousands find their hair gradually washing away. Burnett's Cocoaine will repair this waste. The Cocoaine is a perfect Hair Dressing a promoter of the growth of the Hair—a preparation free from irritating matter. It has great affinity for the human skin—is rapidly absorbed and imparts lustre and strength.

EMINENT MEN OF SCIENCE have discovered that electricity and magnetism are developed in the system from the iron in the blood. This account for the debility, low spirits, and lack of energy a person feels when this vital element becomes reduced. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, supplies the blood with its iron element, and in theonly form in which it is possible for to enter the circulation.

Power of Speaking Restored.—Newash, Ontario, D. C., March 30, 1875. Mr. Fellow's—Sir: Some two months ago my son lost his voice. I became very anxious about him. None of the physicians could do him any good. Having heard of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, I obtained a bottle. Strange to say, my son's voice was restored about two hours after taking the second dose. You are at liberty to publish this for the benefit of other sufferers. JONAS FOTHERINGILL.

NATIONAL UNIFICATION.—as it is called the joining together of the various portions of a race into one compact whole—is one of the favorite political theories of the day, and millions of dollars have been sacrificed in different countries for the object; but whether the result will justify the expenditure, time alone can tell. But this we do know, that the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" is certainly the best medicine for curing colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, summer complaints, &c., can be had for 25 cents per bottle of all Druggists and country dealers.

Exhaustion and degeneration follow the excessive use of the senses, without due intervals of rest for repair. In order to maintain the wonted energy, the force expended, whether of body or mind, must be restored. When the expenditure of brain matter and other nervous elements is continued by overwork, the early extinction of life itself may be looked for as the result of such degeneration. The ingredients composing Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites; are such as constitute healthy blood, re establish sound nerves and senses and will consequently not only prevent this exhaustion, but in most cases restore such as is lost.

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates Calisaya promotes healthy development of delicate children, repairs the worn-out frame of the aged, imparts tone to the brain and nerves, restores constitutional vigor when exhausted by excesses and bad habits by furnishing material to build up the tissues, and augment the vitapowers, acting as a fuel to generate the the steam for operating the machinery of the body. It is reliable in every form of debility, and will sustain the wearied system under great trials of mental or mutual labor. It is the best nutritive tonic, and blood purifier ever invented, and incurables have been maintained in fair health for many years by its use.

A REALLY GOOD ARTICLE:—We would call the attention of all interested to an article of undoubted merit, and which we would advise all in want of to give a trial. We refer to "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy" now being extensively used by many of the largest horse dealers in the country; these men have discovered that it improves the condition of the horse by purifying the blood, and removes from the lungs and liver all that prevents their healthy action; its effect is soon apparent in the improved appearance of the animal, which is one great reason why horse dealers use it, as they are thus enabled to get better prices and at the same time give their customers sound and healthy horses. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package, Northrop & Lyman, Toronto Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

GENERAL THOUSANDS proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

J. A. DELANE & SON'S

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP ON DOWNIE STREET PETERBORO',

(Next to Mr. Wm. Hamilton's Foundry.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mill, of which I have any knowledge; and now in use. The Separating Valve supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me.

Future Punishment of the Wicked

A SERMON BY REV. J. G. ROBB, TORONTO.

"Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angles."—Matt. xxv, 41.

"But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerirs and idolators, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone; which is the second death."—Rev. xxi, 8.

In our former discourse on the subject of the future punishment of the wicked we found the teaching of Scripture to be summed up in two words, "everlasting punishment:" that the Scriptural meaning of the word "punishment" implied conscious suffering; and that this suffering, imposed as a penalty in the judgment of "the last day," i.e., after the resurrection both of the just and unjust, and characterized as "everlasting," was clearly represented in Scripture as "endless." We also showed the terms used in the Scripture to express the continued existence of God, His power, honor, glory and dominion, and the permanence in a state of blessedness of the redeemed, and that the strongest terms used in Scripture to designate these were also applied to the punishment of the impenitent after the final judgment; also that these terms were applied to the punishment of the wicked without any indicated limitation or modification of any kind; and, that therefore, if Scripture teaching is to be regarded as authoritative and supreme on the subject, the truth which we must hold is that in the future the wicked shall be punished with suffering at once conscious and endless. It was not to be expected that a doctrine such as this would escape objection and resistance. There is a natural consistence between wrong-doing and a desire to escape the consequences of transgression. He who in his heart says "There is no God" will readily persuade himself if he can that there is no hell. And though God's witness for himself in the human conscience should not allow to some the flagrant impiety of an avowed denial of the Divine existence and personality, or altogether exclude the fear of punishment deserved by conscious sin, yet it cannot be denied that the attempt of human nature, guilty and corrupt because fallen will be to minimize to itself the evils which threaten its future. And even when human judgment accepts a divine revelation and the conscience and understanding are enlightened by the Word of God, it is not to be expected that in every case and to a complete extent the tendencies of the natural man will be wholly overcome or altogether subject. Our faith is tried by the opposition, open and avowed, of those who refuse to acknowledge the Scriptures to be the Word of God, and more sorely tried when any who profess a sincere regard for Divine revelation and supreme reverence for its doctrinal statements decline wholly and heartily to accept in their scriptural sense all its utterances. Yet we must seek confirmation of our faith in holding the more steadfastly by what God himself has taught in the clear light of His own Word, and in the more determinedly resisting all that error which has its source in human imperfection, against which we should be forearmed, because of it in Scripture itself we have been abundantly forewarned. Sentimental views of the Divine benvolence, subordinating to themselves the claims of Divine justice and imperfect conceptions of the hideousness and heir oiusness of man's sin, will satisfactorily account for the modifications of the Scripture doctrine of future punishment which some who profess (and it may be sincerely profess) to be guided in faith by the Word of God have introduced and defended. But while it is satisfactory to know that these departures from the "faith once delivered to the saints" can be traced to influences other than the Spirit of God speaking His Word, yet it is our bounden duty, responsible to God for the right use of all the means He has given us to know His truth, to examine acurately and prayerfully that word upon which alone the true faith rests, and thus assure our souls that truth is ours, not merely because we believe what has been received as the true doctrine of the whole Church of Christ, but because it is the doctrine clearly and consistently taught in these Scriptures, which speak to us as the oracles of God. To those who accept Scripture as supreme and infallible, and yet refuse the doctrine of "everlasting punishment" as implying "endless suffering," two leading departures are possible. The first hold to the Scripture meaning of the word "everlasting," but deny the Scripture representation of punishment" as consisting in conscious suffering or pain. And the second hold by the "punishment" equivalent to pain or conscious suffering, but deny that this is' everlasting, or 'endless.' The former are 'annihilationists'—the latter are generally known as 'reservationists.' We stop not here to indicate the modifications, varations, and combinations, minute or more important, of these leadings views. on them we have little or no interest if the primacy departures from accepted opinions are unscriptural, But it is worthy of notice that these leading departures are mutually destructive. In combining what each holds of the received doctrine we find that truth is eclectic; and in opposing to the other what each denies of the received doctrine, we, as in many other cases, discover that error is self-destructive. Without dwelling upon this, let us examine the Scripture warrant alleged for the opinion professed, and first let us see what Scripture says as to the theory of annihilation. We have here to do not with the duration of the future punishment of the wicked—annihilationists admit that it is endless—but we have to consider the nature of the punishment: whether it consists of suffering active, conscious, and continued, or whether it is merily and simply a cessation of existence—an absolute ceasing to be. It is not, we conceive, necessary to enter here into any lengthened consideration of the question of man's natural immortality and all that is implied in the doctrine of the imparitality of the soul. God made man in His own image. He gave him a spiritual being. The continued existence of that spirit, after its separation from the body in what is called temporal death, not only implied throughout the Old Testament, but explicitly stated. For example, while man hath a life and a death in common with the beast of the field, yet his future is different. Ecclesiastes 111,21, 'Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward;' and at the xii. ch 7 v.;—'Thus shall the dust return to the dust as it was, and the spirit to God who gave it.' And in the New Testiment there is continous evidence for man's continuous spiritual being after separation from the body. While, therefore, all that is taught us in regard to the nature of the human soul prints we believe, clearly to its inherent immortality; yet we do not consider it necessary to discuss the question here, whether God could (not only in view of his omnipotence, but of all that He has revealed of Himself, and of His dealings with us) cause a soul to cease to exist. The question for us and at present, is not what God could do, but what has God said that He will do? Now, we have shown in our previous discourse that God has said that he will punish the wicked for ever; that that punishment is represented by images and designated by terms which, in their Scripture sense imply plain, conscious and continued. It may be that such phraseology as 'fire and brimstone,' 'lake of fire,' 'weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth,' 'unquenchable fire,' or 'fire that is not quenched,' 'tormented day and night, for ever and ever,' 'bottomless pit,' 'Gehenna of fire,' 'hell fire,' 'eternal fire,' it may be that these expressions do not literally imply the material elements we now and here understand by the very terms used. But it cannot be that they have no signification at all, and if they have signification it would be the abuse of all language to suppose that they conveyed anything less than pain or suffering intense in its character and endless in its duration. It may be that the altered condition of circumstances in the future world will not render suitable the application of literal fire in expiation of the divine vengeance upon the impenitent. But it cannot but be that so far as the altered condition of things in the future world will permit of it, the sufferings of the impenitent will be as severe and continuous as all these words and phrases imply. We do not insist upon a forced interpretation of an isolated passage, and say that this must be taken and the effect set aside or over ruled by it. But we do and must insist upon it that the repeated and reiterated testimony of Scripture in the plain meaning and import of its terms, so far as these are capable of application to the circumstances revealed in Scripture as the actual condition of the future, shall be applied to that future and understood as instructive to us concerning it. Have annihilationists proved that "punishment" does not imply conscious suffering, and that "everlasting punishment" is rightly expressive of the meaning to be for ever incapable of feeling pain? Have they shown the consistency between a state of non-existence and one of "torment day and night for ever and ever?" Can they imagine that on their mere assertion we can believe that annihilation is a fitting and adequate punishment for the guilt of a Judas or a Nero? A chief of the Inquisition revelling in the tortures of the faithful, or the Prince of Devils himself? In any proper sense can we understand that utter and endless oblivion is a state of soul represented by "weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth?" We stand up for the clear, consistent and continuous testimony of scripture when we refuse to believe that the future punishment of the wicked is not suffering, but a ceasing for ever to suffer," and only a separation from glory and joy. But we are informed, "we do not ask you to turn aside from Scripture teaching simply to accept a mere theory of ours, however benevolent it might seem to us. We profess to found our annihilation doctrine, say they, on the teaching of Scripture, and therefore do we claim for it acceptance from all who hold by scriptural truth. We found our doctrine, say some annihilationists, on the very word of Scripture." To meet them on this ground we cannot and shall not refuse. Let us see: You found, they tell us, the doctrine of endless suffering on certain words and phrases used in Scripture, which seem to indicate what you believe—an endless existence of conscious pain. We cannot deny, they are forced to admit, that the terms employed seem to teach the proper doctrine; but here, they say, are other terms which we maintain teach otherwise, and we hold you are bound to give due weight to these other passages. For example, the penalty in Scripture attached to sin is death. Now death is a ceasing to exist, they affirm; therefore the everlasting death of the wicked must be annihilation. Eternal life, they further say, is the express gift of God through the merits and by reason of the mediation of Jesus Christ. Eternal life is a continuance of existence through an endless future. But the impenitent shall not see life, therefore their sin entails upon them annihilation. Besides, it is added, such terms applied to the future of the impenitent in many passages of Scripture as "lost," "destroyed," "everlasting destruction," "utterly perished in their own corruption" or "second death" inevitably indicate a cessation or extinction of being, and therefore the doctrine of annihilation is Scriptural, and the only true Scriptural doctrine. Now is it so that the Scriptural use of these terms implies extinction or annihilation of being—we say Scriptural use, for we decidedly and persistently refuse to be overborne in this matter by what others have understood these terms to mean. Suppose it was true that Plato meant annihilation by the word death, it would not follow that Moses, or Paul, or Jesus, or when using the same term mean the same thing. This would make Plato the interpreter of Scripture. We must take the meaning of Scripture terms from the sacred writers themselves, recognizing only the Divine order—that the New Testament is the interpreter of the Old; that Jesus is the great preacher, and His Spirit in the New Testament is a spirit guiding the Apostles into all truth. Take the word "death." What does it mean in the Word of God? Paul tells us "The wages of sin is death." Death expresses all the penal consequences of sin. As sin affects injuriously man, the whole man in all his relations, present and future, death represents all the evil that flows from sin. This is its most comprehensive signification. Paul designates the state of the guilty and impenitent in this world, death. "You hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins." Death, then, does not mean annihilation, or extinction of being—"It is appointed to all men once to die, and after death the judgement." Here temporal death is referred to Yet this does not mean extinction of being or cessation of existence, for after death those who die are judged. "To be carnally minded is death;" but to be carnally minded is to live after the flesh, not to be annihilated. Our Lord Jesus Christ died, and remained under the power of death for a time. He was not annihilated; He did not cease to exist; He was accounted as a sinner for His people's sake: He bore the wraeh of God, the agony of Gethsemane, the hiding of His Father's face—His soul suffered as well as His body—the burden of His peoples sins crushed out His life. Yet His body existed and His soul ceased not to be, and His Divine nature was eternal. Annihilation finds no warrant in the substitutionary death of Christ; His saints, too, die. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labours, and their works do follow them.' The saints are not annihilated. Death throughout the whole of Scripture implies a state of existence. It describes the state of the wicked in this world, alienated in heart and mind from God, without his favour and subject to His wrath and suffering present misery. It marks the end of this state of brobation—the separation of soul and body—but implies the annihilation of neither, for there will be a resurrection both of the just and of the unjust. The Lord will judge both 'the quick and the dead,'—not the annihilated—and the 'second death' is a being in the lake of fire. The term second of itself imports no change in the nature of the death, it is merely significant of order: and whatever change there is the nature of that change must be learned from other sources. The use of the ordinal second cannot convey with it the force of annihilation. It rather implies an intensification of the qualities characteristic of the former death, if it can be held to mean anything more than mere consecution. The true nature of it we must learn from what we are told of it elsewhere; and that we learn to be "where the smoke of their burning ascendeth up for ever and ever." Life and death are continually contrasted in Scripture. What is that life? Not mere existence: for there are "things without life"—life in Scripture is associated with blessing—the blessing of God. In the Mosaic account of creation God for four days caused things to be; and these were good. But on the fifth day He made the living things, and He blessed them; and on the sixth day other living things, and man, and He blessed man with appropriate blessing; and when He sanctified the Sabbath man and beast were to enjoy the blessing of that day. Life in its true meaning, and as referring to the whole man, means existence with the favour of God; and death in its full scriptural signification is existence subject to the wrath of God, and all the misery which results from sin. Sometimes one part of the complex idea of death is more prominent, and sometimes another. But it is the union of all the various parts which constitute the whole, and that whole never means annihilation. And so of the terms translated "lost," "destroyed," destruction," "perish," and "corrupted," their Scripture use does not mean or imply annihilation. The "lost," both in the Old Testament and the New, is frequently spoken of as "found" again. It could not have been "annihilated." "The lost sheep," "the lost piece of money," "the lost son," all continued to exist. Judas, "the son of perdition," our Saviour says, "is lost," and he tells us elsewhere that means "he went to his own place." "The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost." Surely not the annihilated. No, but sinners. In regard to the term "destroy" Job says, "Though after my skin worms destroy this body yet in my flesh shall I see God." Job was not annihilated in either body or soul. And in another place Job says, "He hath destroyed me on every side; and my hope hath he removed like a tree." Yet Job could utter wailingly his sad complaints. Destruction to him brought no cessation of conscious pain. Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed and their inhabitants perished; yet in the day of judgment it shall be more tolerable for the men of Sodom than for many of the inhabitants of Capernaum, Chorazin, and Bethsaida. The destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah and the perishing of their guilty sons and daughters did not imply that they would never again be seen any where or by any one. Temporal death is spoken of in Thes. v, 5, as "sudden destruction;" and pet it does not annihilate. There remai nthereafter; both the resurrection and judgment: and succeeding to these "everlasting destruction;" that is, a continuance without end of that previous destruction which cut them off from all means of grace and hope of mercy. And this "everlasting destruction" is described as "from the presence of the Lord and the glory of his power," clearly indicating the utter hopelessness and endless misery of the finally impenitent "Behold," says Paul to the Jews in the synagogue at Antioch, "ye despisers, and wonder and perish;"—literally, "disappear" or "vanish;" but this does not imply annihilation, for it is the term used of the fasting hypocrites who "disfigure" their faces that they may appear unto men to fast; but God saw them, though men did not. Though they should disappear out of sight, they could exist in the outer darkness, the blackness of darkness for ever. They, with the wicked, go away, not out of the universe of existence, but from the light of God's countenance and from the presence of God, which is fulness of joy. And so also of the term "cut off." It cannot

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 23, 1875.

A "MERRY CHRISTMAS" TO ALL.

In the order of the revolutions of the wheel of time, another year is drawing to a close. Christmas, the festive season of the year will be upon us ere the old year gives place to his successor and youthful offspring.

This is not the season for useless regrets and unnecessary greetings over the weaknesses and foibles that have been too prevalent and visible since last this merry, festive season reminded us of the fleeting nature of time.

With this returning season we would merely remind our kind friends everywhere, that the pleasurableness of the usual holiday is intended to drive away dull care and induce a happy frame of mind, and by the annual gatherings of those who through the changes of life have ceased to be so familiarly united as they had been heretofore, to remind all that happiness and enjoyment depend largely on associations, and that it is necessary to retain these associations free from the canker of strife and ill will, in order to retain the good object for which they are celebrated in a large degree.

That Christmas day is devoted to the object for which the Church originally intended it, no one will now believe or assert, not even the most religiously inclined or superstitious. ~~In the~~ head of the superstition which has most unhappily been associated with it, the day and the occasion have been lost sight of, and hilarity and mirth have taken their place. Perhaps it is just as well, for the retention of superstitious associations without any true religious fervor cannot be an unmixed good but may be a great evil.

A day devoted to drunkenness instead of religious devotions or after them, can never tend to the moral well being of our race; and hence the sooner mankind forgot to celebrate the day, if they must do it as it is done at present, the better it will be for the advancement of pure and undefiled religion. Religion was never intended to be gloomy, nor did it provide that its votaries should be sullen and selfish. Men may enjoy the blessings of life and the pleasures of associations without a gloomy sullenness or undue hilarity induced by wine. Let us live to enjoy life, but not by abusing the blessings which are bestowed on us. Let not heaven born sociality be turned into bacchanalian revelry, nor yet the joyous season into one of sadness. And to this end our wish is that all may learn to spend time as it ought to be, and then the blessings of a merry Christmas will be fully realized everywhere. To this end we wish all our readers a "Merry Christmas."

A GROSS OUTRAGE

The Roman Catholics in the neighbourhood of Oka, near Montreal, lately pulled down the Indian Protestant Church in that vicinity, and wantonly destroyed the property because Indians are heretics. If such an act had been perpetrated in Ontario what a howl (and justly, too,) would reach from the Atlantic to the Pacific over the bigotry, intolerance, superstition and vandalism of Protestantism. But because this Oka outrage is perpetrated in the Province of Quebec and in the name of Religion, not a word of condemnation is heard from the champions of the rights of Roman Catholics to carry on their religious whims in Toronto and other places in Protestant Ontario.

True Protestantism demands and compels respect to the religious convictions, scruples and superstitions of every man, whether Jew, Turk, Pagan, Atheist or Roman Catholic. It stops not to consider the opinions but rather the honest religious scruples of the votary. While it respects those religious scruples, although the scruples of ignorance and fanaticism, it is in duty bound to compel fanatics to respect private property, at least, if they will not respect the conscentious convictions of those who hold opposite religious opinions.

The duty of every true citizen, and especially of every lover of liberty of conscience is to step forward at the present time and put a check to those outrages by aiding in having the perpetrators duly punished, and in order to attest their devotion to true liberty and the rights of citizens whether English, Irish, French, Indian or Negro, they should at once put their hands in their pockets and send their mite to replace the property and to assist the Methodist denomination in maintaining the work at Oka as the Indians at Oka some seven years ago joined the Methodist Church and left the Roman Catholic. Because Indians, and consequently to a large extent helpless without external aid, they must not and should not be crushed; and hence we hope to hear of immediate action to get up a fund to assist them in their distress; and, every Protestant and every citizen in the Dominion should raise his voice against this Oka outrage, and in unmistakable terms let the vandals know that they cannot repeat this with impunity. We are the advocates of equal rights to every man, no matter what his country or creed, but there must not be a class privileged to invade the religious or private domain of any one without amenability to law and penalty. One dollar from every Protestant family in Ontario who can spare one will replace the Church and put the Mission on a substantial basis, and will assist in establishing a monument in Lower Canada, on which will be written in letters of gold, that Ontario grants equal rights to all and will compel others to do likewise.

WHAT WILL COME OF THAT MINORITY?

During the election Mr. John Carnegie asserted again and again—"elect Mr. Scott and the days of the Mowat Government are numbered." "The defeat of Mr. Carnegie was the defeat of the John Sandfield Macdonald government, but the success of Mr. Scott will prove the defeat of the Mowat government." Just so; but has it come to pass? The only test vote yet induced resulted in the following figures:—

For the Government	44
" Opposition	33
Majority for Government	11
Mr. Grant, (govt.) absent	1
Mr. Speaker	1

Messrs. Chisolm, Millar, and Neelon, who would not take their seats because the petitions against them are not decided 3

Total majority for goverment 16

Now it is well known that this was more than they could rely on last parliament. With this majority to sustain them, Mr. Scott is not likely to cause much alarm. The friends of the government are more reliable than in the last house, while the opposition, although somewhat more respectable, is not an iota stronger, indeed, it is weaker in many ways. Mr. Cameron, the leader, is an acknowledged failure. Wm. McDougall has the confidence of no one in the house. Mr. Scott is not the material to make a leader out of, nor has he industry to attain to it, or to any very exalted position among Canadian statesmen. Lauder is a mock and a by word, even among his own friends. Then what has Mr. Mowat to fear? Nothing except a sense of too great security which might lead him to indifference, or permit himself to be led away by more selfish men. But where is the prophet? Did he curse the hosts of the enemy from the high mountain of his own haughtiness or hatred? But his curses, like certain domestic fowls, often come home to roost, and Mr. C's predictions and maledictions may recoil on his own party. Mr. Mowat is still at the head of the government. Mr Scott occupies the 4th place on the opposition benches, and Mr. Carnegie is a false prophet, or a deceiver, which ever he may choose to appropriate to himself, and may be both.

THE LICENSE QUESTION

The great Temperance question is making rapid strides in Ontario and will force itself on the rulers thereof ere long. The law is likely to undergo some change this Session, for the better we hope, with a view to prepare the way for Prohibition sooner or later. All our statesmen fear to grapple with this monster evil. Its influence in elections and behind the scenes in manipulating weak members, is too powerful to allow it to fall into disuse, and hence good men allow the evil in order to bring about a more doubtful good. It does appear that all parties are moral cowards on this matter, and the press, the great moral lever to elevate fallen humanity is so sunk in the cesspool of political partizanship that it is silent, or aids and abets the demoralizing traffic. The churches are largely silent, not a word is heard from any of the pulpits against it except when arroused by outside influences, so that the great heroes of morality, and civilization, and christianity are not a single step in advance of the most time serving demagognes. The ladies of Toronto have presented a monster petition to the Government praying for certain changes in the law regulating the traffic. If they only remain constant they will succeed, but we hope for very little when we find men stepping in to do the work, and more especially when these men are silent in their pulpits from year to year on the effects of the traffic and silent on the sin of permitting it to stain the fair virgin soil of our otherwise free country. Can the women of Peterboro do nothing in this work in our own town? If they take it in hand they can secure at least an amelioration of the evil by limiting the number of low places where it is now kept to ensnare the unwary and those easily led astray. Let it be confined to respectable houses, where other accommodations are also kept, and then it can be controled to some extent. Mr. Clark member for Wentworth a staunch Reformer deserves the sympathy and commendations of every true friend of his Country, for his undeviating course in the house on this question.

SOUTH ONTARIO.—In the case Court of Error and appeal the argument has been received, but judgment reserved. The same has also been the case in the Halton Election decision.

A DEMAND has been made on the Archbishop of Cologne to resign. Bismark is making affairs warm for all who oppose the temporal power. Ecclesiastical influence is no where in Prussia.

THE DUNKEN ACT in Northumberland and Durham has been rejected by the County Council at its last session. It was the wrong season of the year to present the petition, just prior to the annual elections. Office seekers are so fond of power that they will sacrifice any principle, even that of morality to attain to it.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT.—On the first page will be found a sermon by the Rev. J. G. Robb (Presbyterian) Toronto, on the "future punishment of the wicked." As we published the sermon of Mr. Macdonnell, which led to all this, we considered ourselves bound to publish one setting forth the other side of the question. Mr. Robb's sermon is a clever and logical exposition of the teachings of the Scriptures on this [subject and possesses the good quality of giving no uncertain sound on the matter; and in this respect differs from the one which called it forth.

THE ORANGE BILLS.—The friends of Orange Incorporation have introduced Bills to that end into the house again, and before this session is over we will have another test vote on this question. The ground has to be gone over once more, and we must wait and see the course that our representatives will pursue. This question will test the principles and promises of some of them. And we must see that there be no shirking the vote. It is already mooted that this is the wisest course for the member for East Peterborough. But he must spare himself of this piece of moral cowardice.

THE WAY TO DO IT.—The West Durham News, not satisfied with defaming the personal character of the Hon. Mr. Simpson, has taken a novel way of doing further injury, that is misquoting the rates of Ontario Bank Stock. This is simply fiendish, but is no worse than a sly attempt lately made by the editor of the Review to injure the business of Mr. Cox, simply because he was an opponent. But enough of those things; they will stop at nothing

HELP! HELP.—The West Durham News is appealingly to the liberal Conservatives for aid to defend the libel case. The faithful will, no doubt, put their hands deep into their pockets to assist him. This is the whole game, make the assertions, false and reckless though they be, get into court, Conservatives will pay the costs and make a martyr of the instrument. In court once, some of the dirt will stick. That's it; John A. Macdonald will be found at the root of all this. In the meantime Conservatives are supplying the money.

FOLLOWING BAD EXAMPLE,—Rev. Mr. Forneri, of Belleville, is an apt and worthy scholar, and likely to follow pretty closely in the footsteps of Bishop Bourget. Not satisfied with Ritualistic worship and drapery, and the permission to carry it out unmolested, he must needs excommunicate those who are imbued with better principles and compel them to aid him in a service their judgment condemns. He has made a mistake in selecting his church, except that he may be one of those who, it is said, are in that church preparing the way in it for a general going over to the true church.

PARLIAMENTARY.

Matters are moving along slowly but surely in the House. Mr. Mowat is hurrying government measures as fast as the interests of the country will permit. The opposition cannot be said to make much impression on the House, and have not changed the features of a single measure of the session so far. Their factiousness is evident enough, but it amounts to nothing Messrs Lauder, Cameron and Macdougall are often heard, but their objecting to everything proposed injures their usefulness; and they become like the boy who shouted wolf when there was none; their remarks and entreaties are unheeded, except by a few thick and thin followers. Mr. Scott has not yet sent for Mr. Carnegie to assist in forming a new government. Dr. O'Sullivan is already taking sides with Mr. Frazer, and no doubt is preparing himself for the Orange Bills after the holidays. Predictions are out of the question however, as we might become false prophets. Who knows not what a day may bring forth?

On a motion of Mr. Gibson for expenditure on capital account for Normal School a discussion arose on the subject of erecting an additional Normal School, say in London, and some of the speakers opposed the erection of any more Normal or Model Schools.

Mr. MOWAT said that, while holding it to be necessary to act cautiously in dealing with the question of Normal School accommodation, advancing with the progress of public sentiment, he felt no hesitation in declaring that the Province could not employ a further portion of its funds more advantageously than in establishing another Normal School. (Hear, hear.) It was desireable that such schems should not be entered upon unless public sentiment approved it, but he rejoiced to hope that it would soon be manifest that a measure of that character would receive public endorsation. With regard to the doubts expressed by the member for South Huron as to the propriety of erecting another Normal School he reminded that hon. gentleman that a year ago a deputation of educationists of the country of Huron waited upon him, and submitted that not only was an additional Normal School essential to the educational interests of the province, but that it should be located at Godrich. He agreed to the first part of that popusetion but he had yet to determine where the new Normal School should be placed. Experience showed that the establishment of another Normal School would lead to a larger accession in the number of persons who would take advantage of of the opportunity of having a Norma School education. The experience of the Ottawa institution proved that fact: thirty seven applications had been received for admission in January, and before the close of next year the school would be fully occupied, the number of those receiving a Normal School eduction being ten times in excess of the number of students who would have attended at Toronto. It was important that the House should consider the statistics of other countries, with a view to ascertain the position occupied by training establishments abroad From a return it appeared that in England and Scotland, there were 38 normal or training schools in the German Empire 100 public and 40 private training schools for teachers, Norway and Sweden, 15 Normal schools for teachers: Switzerald, 4, Portugal, 2; United States, 37 Normal Schools and 27 normal or training departments in the universities. In proportion to its population Canada was behind the United States and other countries in its Normal School Department, whereas it should be abreast or if not in advance of them. He hoped it would not be long before the Dominion could claim as much for its Normal Schools as it could now claim for its High Schools and universities. It was no doubt a fact that students attend the Normal School, and after receiving their education did not remain as teachers. But means were taken to secure the services of students as teachers, they being required to declare their intention of following the profession of teaching when they entered the school. The statistics of the Toronto and Ottawa institutions showed that fully one-half of the students already belonged to the teaching professions, and entered at the schools with a view to improve their qualifications. It was no doubt extremely desirable that as many students as possible should be retained as teachers. He was not aware that any additional measures could be adopted to more effectually secure that result. The purpose of the Normal Schools was not merly to afford instruction in the various subjects which teachers had to teach, but to give instruction in the art of teaching for that all educationists agreed that to possess a knowledge of the subjects to be taught was not sufficient of itself to constitute a good teacher. (Hear, hear.) He did not think it probable that the Government would during the present session ask the House for an appropriation for the erection of an additional Normal School, but nothing would give him any greater pleasure than to have the opportunity of submitting a measure to the House, with the assurance of it being carried, for increasing the Normal School accomodation of this Province. (Cheers.)

Mr. Ross (Huron) was gratified that the hon. Attorney-General had declared that probably he would not ask during this session an appropriation for an additional Normal School. He hoped the experiment would be tried of establishing several smaller institutions with small staffs of teachers. Whereby increased efficiency would be obtained. It was also desireable that such schools should be located outside of cities, the experience of the United States providing that training schools placed in cities were not so successful as those situated in the small towns.

The motion was carried.

The Benevolent Institutions of the Province are aided in proportion to the work they each do. By this arrangement the Roman Catholic Institutions receive about one fourth of the grant for this purpose. Mr. Lauder raised the question of the correctness of returns from Roman Catholic Institutions insinuating that they did not give true reports. In this he did not secure much sympathy, and induced Dr. O'Sullivan to defend those institutions and to praise the government method of destribution. This old vexed question is not yet fully settled, and many regret that John Sandfield did not also wipe out all religious charitable Institutions, as the contentions over them are not likely ever to be settled.

The House adjourned yesterday till the 8th of January and then the whole business will be wound up in a short time. There is not the slightest appearance of opposition gain; nor is there likely to be any for the next four years, perhaps ten years; but, we admit the absence of prophets as parents Mr. Scott, so far, has been very quiet, he has spoken once for a very short time. The Eastern member has spoken twice—seven lines each time; but, we admit the wisdom of silence under the circumstances. Mr. Macdougall is not so noisy as at the opening of the debate on the address, nor does he seem to make a favorable impression on either sides. The opposition use, but dread him, and the Government feel no anxiety concerning him.

THE LICENSE QUESTION IN TORONTO.

On Saturday afternoon a large and influential deputation of citizens waited on the Hon. Attorney-General Mowat for the purpose of making certain representations to him relating to the liquor traffic. Among the gentlemen present were the Rev. Dr. Topp, the Rev. John Potts, Rev. W. H. Poole, Rev. Prof. Gregg, Rev. Wm. Reid, Rev. Canon Baldwin, Hon. W. P. Howland, John Garvin, A. T. McCord, Senator Aikins, Hon. John McMurrich, Rev. J. M. Cameron, T. H. Wilkie. Rev. Mr. Smith, J. McBain. Rev. Robt. Mitchell, Dr. Clarke, M. P. P. Rev. T. W. Jeffry, Dr. W. W. Ogden, T. H. Manson, &c.

Dr. Topp, addressing Mr. Mowat, said that in this city, as he was aware, there had been for some time a strong and growing feeling that efforts should be put forth with a view of reducing the number of places that are licensed for the sale of intoxicating drink; and that about this time last year a large and influential deputation waited upon the Police Commissioners in connection with the matter. On that occasion the very extraordinary statement was made to them that no matter how many places were licensed to sell liquor there would be the same amount of intemperance in the city. They could not therefore hope for anything to be done by the Police Commissioners to reduce the number of licenses; in fact he believed they had been increased, until now, he was told, there were well on to five hundred places in the city in which liquor is sold under the authority of law. He believed that, with the exception of about seventy or eighty, all of these were nothing more than saloons. They had therefore resolved to come to the fountain head in reference to this matter, and to ask very respectfully, but at the same time very urgently, that measures be taken by the Government to check or to provide a remedy for the evil The members of the deputation had different views with regard to the matter, but they all agreed as to the great evil which results from the liquor traffic, and as to the necessity of a remedy being speedily provided for. He was confident that no legislation could be hailed with more satisfaction than such as would reduce the number of places for the sale of strong drink say to one tavern for each thousand of population; and provide machinery by which the Government could carry out the law with regard to licenses more stringently than at present.

Hon. JOHN MCMURRICH said that the deputation was appointed at a meeting held on Tuesday evening last in Shaftesbury Hall, and was entrusted with a number of propositions to lay uefore the Attorney-General. These were as follows:—

1. That there shall not be more than one tavern for one thousand inhabitants.
2. That there shall be no license saloons for the sale of intoxicating liquors.
3. That there shall no license given to any shop to sell liquor in the same building where other goods are sold.
4. That the parties holding the office of Police Commissioners should have nothing to do with judicial functions.
5. That officials amenable to the Government be appointed for carrying out the law.

THE GRAIN TRADE

The Monetary Times says:—There appears every reason to believe that a very active movement of grain will take place from this period outward through the Winter. The season of navigation was well occupied in the moveing of cargoes of barley to our neighbours on the other side, and there can be little doubt that the deliveries were larger than were ever before known. Not only to Oswego for Eastern markets but for various Western points. Shipments were in constant progress, and though we cannot tabulate the result of the whole, we may form a very fair idea of it from the figures of the following table:

Total receipts of Canadian Barley at Oswego and all othe United States ports for the following year:

	At Oswego.	Other Ports.	Total.
1869	3,167,000	1,946,000	5,113,000
1870	3,289,000	1,901,000	5,190,000
1871	3,219,000	1,641,000	4,860,000
1872	2,935,000	1,445,000	4,140,000
1873	2,289,000	1,217,000	3,506,000
1874	2,770,000	2,226,000	4,996,000
1875	3,000,000	(Not yet known, but very large.)

Looking at the large increase in the Oswego receipts for 1875 over those for 1874, we must remember that there was fully as large an increase in the shipments Westward. Taking this increase to be on the same proportion, we shall have a total shipment of barley to the States for 1875 of 6,7000,000 bushels. It is very probable indeed that the total has reached 7,000,000. This is one of the most encouraging features of the times, and there can be no doubt this large crop, in conjunction with a heavy production of other kinds of grain and dairy produce, has saved Canada from experiencing such a revulsion as swept over her in 1857. Of our two great branches of production, that which comes from the farm and that which comes from the forest, the latter is passing through a period of depression exactly equivalent to a succession of bad harvests. For Canada has generally received as much money for her forest products as for all that has grown on her cleared lands. Her timber and lumber have been as valuable products as her wheat, barley and cheese. But there has been an immense shrinkage in the value of the products of the forest, as many can painfully testify. The value has fallen off from twenty to thirty per cent., and the quantity is beginning to be heavily diminished also. The latter is indeed the most hopeful sign of the trade; but this, combined with low prices, will for one or two years at least result in an immense diminution of our exports. The volume of our total production will have been as much reduced as if the midge or the weavil had devastated our fields.

It is seldom, however, that every interest in a country is depressed at the same time. We are fortunately favored with great abundance in our farm products as a sett-off to the terrible falling off in the value of timber and lumber, and we fully expect to see a most active movement going on during the whole coming winter. Farmers in fact are taking advantage of early sleighing to bring out grain already.—And they are doing wisely. The contrary was the case last year, and incalculable mischief was wrought thereby. Much of the financial pressure of last spring was due to the holding of grain by farmers, and all such pressure reacts upon themselves eventually. This year, apparently, farmers are pursuing a different course. There is indeed every inducement for them to do so. So far as prices can be forecast, those who sell now will have a chance of doing better than those who sell later on. Apart from England, the harvest of the world has generally been a good one. There are immense supplies in the United States, and the surplus must all find its way to Europe. We in Canada have to compete with these supplies, and there is very little chance of prices rising materially during winter. A farmer who sells has in any case certain clear advanges over one who does not. He turns his crop into money, and after paying off his store debts has the remainder to put out to interest, either by depositing in bank, or paying off a mortgage, or lending on property. In any case he can count on so much clear addition to his means, actually made, and to be counted and reckoned up. He is receiving so much more interest all the while, or diminishing his outlay for interest, which comes to the same thing. He has no risk of fire or vermin. He need not distract himself by watching the course of markets. His crop is sold, his debts are paid, his money is earning interest and he can mind the work of his farm in peace. Thus the money he receives for his crop goes into active circulation and all the wheels of commercial life are set in motion thereby. The debts he pays enables others to discharge theirs. The blacksmith and harness maker can pay the accounts they owe for supplies. The storekeeper with whom both he and they trade can make his payments to the wholesale merchant The merchant can meet his payments in England without pressing unduly upon his banker for accomodation. In fact, it may be a matter of life and death and to the merchant whether he receives punctual remittances during the winter or not. The action farmers in the West is an all-important matter to him, though they never come in contact with one another during a whole lifetime.

We are glad, therefore, in the interests of the whole community, that deliveries of grain are likely to be active during the coming season. Let farmers clear out in the first place any old stocks that they have on hand. There are such old stocks, if report be true, and it is high time they were brought out. There are plenty merchants ready to buy, and to pay a reasonable price. Good spring wheat is worth about a dollar in Toronto. Fall wheat is poor in quality this year, having been injured by the rains of the harvest season. It is therefore not worth much more than spring. But the quality is very large. There is great abundance, and the very best thing for the country is an abundant crop at a moderate price—provided only that farmers have the wisdom to bring it out.

WHOLESALE ROBBERY.—A Toronto report says:—A system of wholesale robbery has just been discovered on the Grand Trunk Several brakesmen and one driver have already been connected with it. Last night Peter Curran, Thomas Smith and James O'Neill, brakesmen, were arrested on the charge of robbing the cars of large quantities of furs, kolsers, shirting, gloves and groceries, which were found in their houses, and were remanded this morning for a week. The robberies were committed while the cars were being shunted at the way stations, and at the freight terminis at Belleville, Kingston and stratford. Suspicion has been directed against several employees for some time, but the first discovery was made on Tuesday night by Police Constable Archibald, who stopped and searched a driver and a brakesman at the corner of Queen and Vanauley streets and found a large quantity of groceries in a sack which they had with them. The brakesman cleared and has left the country—and the driver, who is charged with having received the goods, was bound over.

DR R. V. PIERCE, of the world's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., whose Family Medicines have won golden opinions and achieved world-wide reputation, after patient study and much experimenting, succeeded in perfecting a Compound Extract of Small-Weed, or Water Pepper, that is destined to become as celebrated to become as celebrated as his other medicines. It owes its efficacy not entirely to the Smart-Weed, which, however, is a sovereign remedial agent, but largely to a happy combination of that herb with Jamaica Ginger and other vegetable agents. The combination is such as to make it a very pleasent remedy to take Taken internally, it cures Diarrhoea, Dysentery (or Bloody-Flux,) Summer complaint, Cholera, Cholera Morpus, Colic, Cramps and Pain in the Stomach breaks up Colds, Febrile and Inflammatory Attacks. It is sold by all druggists and dealers in medicines.

MR. SILAS WHYTE while chopping in e woods was thrown from a log and lling across another log had his thigh oken, but we are glad to learn is doing ll under the treatment of Dr. Clegg.

BURLEIGH ROAD.—We regret to learn at a son of Mr. John Horan about 8 ars old had his leg broken about a eek ago by the falling of a portion of e granary where the lad was. He is nder the care of Dr. Clegg and is doing ell.

ACCIDENT.—We regret to earn that r. Thomas Mather, Sr., of Otonabee, re- lved a severe hurt on Monday. He was rawing grain, and while getting on the ad the team started which caused him o fall back, and it being on the road he eceived a severe hurt in the back. We re glad to learn that he is not seriously jured.

THE WEATHER.—The weather has been ery whimsical of late. On Sunday the hermometer made a sudden descent to 0 below zero, on Monday it was ten bove, and on Tuesday there was a gen- al thaw and sloppy streets and side alks. This capriciousness in the tem erature is no small annoyance to those f a nervous temperament but there is o remedy to prevent it Don't believe he doctors can.

DANIEL MADDEN, a blind man, and a oman whom he calls his wife, were so runk in Ashburnham on Tuesday that e constable had to take care of them ntil they sobered off. They are hard ase, and except on account of his blind- ss, are not deserving of sympathy. e says he is 73 years of age The greater rt of this time must have been ent in scenes that are dark, as he s learned coarse language by rote.

A VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.—comfortable dwelling house and about o acres of land, situated at the head of orge street, and lately occupied by Mr. mes Chalmers, will be sold in chancery Wednesday, 29th inst. The house is ge and commodious, beautifully sit- ed on elevated ground, adjoining the idence of Mr. A. Smith. There a good barn, stable and wells on the perty, also a good orchard, and its ality makes it a desirable residence.

THE FAIR.—There was a large number People in Town on Tuesday, to see be seen, and if we may judge from at we saw, most of them were well ased with themselves, and some of m were well pleased with others; se faces beamed with radiance at the ght. There were others whose good re was not so evident, and in whom a different spirit; these often are visi- and are not wondered at. On the le the day was not so pleasant as if it been colder, and less sloppy on streets. The usual amount of busi- was done, both in dry goods and lity.

OUR KITCHEN.—The Ladies of Ash- ham have arranged a soup kitchen, to provide for some of the pressing ds of those who cannot provide for nselves. The Village council gener- spends considerable sums in charities, it is feared that a portion of their rosity assumes the shape of old rye rish whiskey. During the winter on whiskey is a poor substitute for d and beef; and the ladies think they prevent the use of the former, and ly the latter at a cheaper rate than key is sold at, and by this means the rving poor can be relieved also; as seldom solicit they can be found out hausted.

NEW METHOD OF ADVERTISING.—attended church on a certain Sab- lately, and were no little surprised p the minister take up a bundle of s to read notices of lectures, socials, ngs, etc., occupying several minutes een gave out a hymn, but a strange ng must have been passing through kind as he so suddenly shifted sides se the world to the church. To the a tiless stony ground hearers this not produce a very spiritual state head for the reception of what follow- it is really time that the Protestant of Ontario should cease to be exci- rtising every public meeting that ncipize through the week.

OUR LITERARY TABLE.

GUIBORD.—The Montreal "Witness" is publishing a history of the Guibord case. It will be published in a few days, and as this case is destined to have more than common influence on the history and future of Canada, every Canadian should make himself fully acquainted with the whole matter. There is every reason to believe that the acts of Lower Canadian statesmen and clergy will play a more than common part in the future of the Dominion and as a state is accumulation of individuals, those individuals should fit themselves for the discharge of their duty by investigating causes and their results.

NEW QUARTERLY.—The advance sheets of a Quarterly Periodical connected with the Hamilton Collegiate Institute have reached us. It bids fair to secure popular favor and must prove of immense advantage to young contributors connected with the Institute, who will thus have a medium of addressing the public, and an incentive to a careful clothing of expressing of ideas, and also a stimulus to cultivate clear methods of reasoning.

GRIP'S CARTOON.—"Grip" never made a better hit than when he represented the Mail manager in the shape of a monkey on a pole with a tar pot, and John A. Macdonald with a cord round the neck of his automaton to make him do his bidding. But "the tar won't stick." The game is played out and those Conservative mud throwers are sure to dirty themselves a great deal more than they will their enemies.

COBOURG.

FOUND DEAD.—On Sunday Morning the body of a widow woman named Mary Maher, who resided on the Rice Lake road on a part of Lot 20 in the 3rd con., was found near her residence. Life had evidently been extinct for a short time previous She had been in to town on Saturday, apparently in her usual health. E. E. Ewing, Esq., coroner, held an inquest on the body. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts.—"Cobourg Sentenal."

PORT HOPE.

The people of Port Hope are no little excited over a burglary and robbery. A Mr. Lockwood had his safe rifled and two or three evenings after was attacked on his way home, flour thrown in his eyes and robbed of $103, which he was taking with him for safe keeping. He informed the chief constable, who smiled, and did nothing more, but reported that he believed there was no burglary or robbery, which was equivalent to stating that Mr. Lockwood was telling an untruth. The matter has come up before the council for investigation.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Mr James Hewson Carpenter, of this town, while engaged, removing the scaffolding at the Grand Trunk railway bridge across Duffin's Creek, on Tuesday of last week, stepped on a board which gave way, precipitating him on to the ice below, a distance of fifty-seven feet, breaking his thigh and otherwise injuring him. Though medical assistance was promptly procured, it was found impossible to save his life, death putting an end to to his sufferings on Sunday last. His remains were brought here for interment on Wednesday. Deceased was of steady and industrious habits and much respected by all who knew him. He leaves a wife to mourn his sudden death.—"Port Hope Times."

FENELON FALLS.

ACCIDENT.—A sad accident happened on Tuesday, the 30th ult., to two little girls, daughters of Mr Alexander Landell, who lives near Chambers' school house in Fenelon, but we could not learn the particulars in time for last weeks issue indeed the first rumor of the accident reached us after the paper was nearly ready for press. It appears that Mr Landell had made preparations to go to Lindsay with a load of Barley, and that the three little girls had climbed upon the load to ride as far as their school, when, just as Mr. Landell picked up the lines, and before he had mounted the waggon, the horses suddenly started and ran away across a ploughed field. The waggon was not upset, but the roughness of the ground soon caused the children to fall off; and while the eldest escaped uninjured, the other two were terribly cut and bruised about their heads and faces, and one of them had her thigh broken. Dr. Allen of Fenelon Falls, was promptly sent for and under his care the little sufferers are, we learn, progressing favourably. As we go to press we learn that the most seriously injured of the children is dead.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

WHEAT.—Commercial authorities do not anticipate an early advance in the price of wheat. Very liberal supplies continue to pour into Britain. The imports into the United Kingdom from September 1st to 10th of November are unprecedented in volume, having been 17,446,000 cwt, against 10,757,000 cwt in 1874, 10,084,000 cwt. in 1873, 13,810,000 cwt in 1872 The re-export, too, has been lighter than usual. The quantity on the way to Britain is also greater than this time last year. The chances for next year are said to be better, mainly on account of the bad weather in England In the middle of November the land in England was in a state of complete saturation, and not one fourth of the wheat area of the country was yet sown. Coupled with the very deficient and defective crop of this year, these circumstances would have greatly enhanced the value of wheat at the present time but for unprecedented foreign importations.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—The weather is the coldest of the season. At many points in New Hampshire the mercury ranged twenty degrees below zero. On Mount Washington at five o'clock to-day it was thirty-eight degrees below, and the wind was blowing at the rate of ninety miles an hour.

THE WORLD'S WOOL SUPPLY.

While wool has been a principal article of wear in all ages, it is in comparatively modern times that any remarkable progress has been made in spinning and weaving this tissue. Woollen goods to-day are rivals in lightness and brilliancy with the most beautiful tissues of cotton and certain tissues of silk, and are used for ladies' as well as men's clothing, even in warm countries. The production of superfine descriptions of Wool in Central and Western Europe has become more and more opposed to economic conditions from increasing density of population, and denser and more subdivided land. The profitable and extensive cultivation of wool demands a dry climate where the earth has little value and supplies vast pasturage. Wool, pure or mixed, has replaced cotton in a multitude of articles. We estimate the value of the annual production of wool in the whole world at £120,000,000. While the production is apparently stationary in Europe, it has taken a gigantic development in America, South Africa and Australia, and in future dayf vast yields will doubtless be obtained from the prairies of the far West. Many of the flocks of sheep that in former times yielded superfine wool have disappeared from France; Saxony, the cradle of the race, has almost none. Silesia possesses a certain limited number of troupes, and these, with those of Naz, and others scattered in Bohemia, Moravia, Hungary, Prussia and Poland, furnish the whole available European stock of this class.

FINANCE.

Except in a single district, France has no supply of superfine wool. Her best wools are classed as laines hautes fines, a degree under the second class of the Electoral type. In the south, where the merino was introduced and spread for many centuries in consequence of Spanish flocks in the Pyrenees penetrating into France, we find the type Negretti, with wool less fine, but probably representing the primitive merinos, such as existed in Spain in the last century. The Rambouillet type unites in a high degree suustance, uniformity, and fineness of fleece. In the north and northwest, where a humid climate prevails wool of excellent quality is produced. France has no upward of 35,000,000 sheep, two thirds of which are merinos, pure or crossed, the rest are native to the country or crossed with English. They produce about 200,000,000 pounds of wool. In Germany, with a climate apparently so little favorable to Spanish merinos, the race has attained the highest perfection. In Saxony, Pomerania, Mecklenburg, and Eastern and Western Prussia they have been replaced by the Negretti, which for abundance and excellence of wool, occupies a leading position, Mecklenburg, a rich wool bearing country, was the first after France to abandon the Electoral tpe. Southern Germany is not remarkable for the amount and character o its wool, climate conditions being unfavorable. In Austria, the leading sheep farmers of Moravia, Bohemia, Silesia, and elsewhere, keep to the Saxony Electoral type; the woods are generally remarkable for their beauty, those of Silesia particularly for fineness, substance, softness and length. In Hungary, of all countries of Europe, fine wool is produced at the least cost. The fertility of the soil, the size of the domains of landed proprietors, the scarcity of the population in the eastern and central parts, all contribute to render wool raising more easy and economic than elsewhere. The number of Ecctorals is being gradually reduced, and the type of merinos diffused among the common races. The general qualities of the Hungarian wools are great softness and quality, often with the appearance and touch of cotton.

RUSSIA.

The climate conditions of Russia, which has some 75,000,000 head of sheep, of which 16,000,000 are merinos, are favorable to the production of fine descriptions of wool. The central and southern parts are particularly suited to the culture, with fertile soils and the extended domains of the landed proprietors. Here are abundant troupes of marinos, but the Negretti dominates, modified by local conditions, the fleece gaining in weight, but falling off somewhat in fineness. The fine and extra fine wools of Western Russia are used for ordinary goods, but those of the south for fine and medium drapery. Next to Russia itself, the wools are used mostly by France, Spain, the original home of merino, and the sole producer of the fine wool of that valuable race, is now greatly distanced by other countries. Beside merinos, there are many kinds of black and white wool in Spain used for native purposes. Portural, with a climate the same as Spain, has no merinos, wanting as it is in those high mountains in which the Spanish merinos feed during Summer The black and white wools are more or less common, and are charged with a gluminous grease which it is difficult to scour. Our remarks on Portuguese wools apply to those of Italy, which has not more than 16,000,000 head of sheep. Sweden has some merenres, but the yield is indifferent.

TURKEY.

We now come to Turkey. Through her admiral natural resources she is enabled to furnish a large supply of wool. France draws from her about 24,000,000 lbs. of of wool per annum. The most part o the indegenerous Turkish races of sheep pertain to the semi-savage state, but some of the wools, such as those of Adrianopie, Salonica, and Pora are exceedingly fine. A large importation of merinos, at the instance of the Turkish Government, has been the means of greatly improving the general yield.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZELAND.

Of the wools of Australia and New Zealand, the general character is a natural whiteness, elasticity, uniform finess and strength. They are generally ductile are easily spun, and may with equal facility be combed or carded. Nearly two-thirds of England's supply of wool comes from Australia. Her importation last year was larger than at any previous period, amounting to 225,38363 pounds. These wools are particularly used for merino tissues and there derivatives. The manufacturers at France, Germany and other continental countries largely supply themselves.

CAPE WOOLS.

The wools of the Cape are less fine those of Australia, less strong, and more soft and more difficult to scour However, they tend to improve from year to year. England's import last year from her South African possessions was the largest on record, amounting to 42,332,672, pounds.

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

shipped last year 13,000 bales from the port of Montevideo. It has largely improved Spanish black sheep and English south downs. The wools of the province of Entre Rios are least esteemed being poor and hard. Some of the wools imported from the province of Buenos Ayres is used at Elbeuf for black cloth, and articles of novelty, finding favor from its extreme natural softness The british import of wool from South America was last year 11, 308.698, a decrease of some 10,000,000 pounds on the preceding year, on lief the importations from Germany, Spain and other European countries last year amounted to 27,706,616 pounds of wool, and from British India 19,127,538 poun ls Th total import of wool into Great Britain reached 344,470,897 pounds, but of foreign and colonial wools she exported 144,204,663, p unds. In the wool growing industry advances.

EMINENT MEN OF SCIENCE have discovered that electricity and magnetism are developed in the system from the iron in the blood. This account for the debility, low spirits, and lack of energy a person feels when this vital element becomes reduced. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, supplies the blood with its iron element, and is the only form in which it is possible for to enter the circulation.

THE RIGHT OF APPEAL.

It is the right of every British subject—the in alienable right to appeal to the foot of the Throne: (there, here and cheers,) it is the inalienable right of every British subject, that if in any Provincial, Colonial or Inferior Court, he has not received justice, to go to the Queen, our common mother; it is the great mark of our allegiance—it is the great mark of our being a portion of this great empire, that we all of us, whether living in Canada or at the Cape of Good Hope, or in Australia, have a right to appeal to the foot of the Throne.—Sir John's Montreal Speech.

An able man like Sir John should be ashamed to talk such rubbish. The clause in the Surpreme Court Act, which is unjustly said to take away the right of appeal to England, has no more to do with appeals to the foot of the Throne the Grits with the visit of the potato bug. Sir John ought to know and does know that an appeal to the foot of the Throne which nothing can destroy—and an appeal to the Privy Council are two widely different matters. And he knows too that the right to appeal to the Privy Council is not taken away, and yet he goes on repeating the mis-statement that it so. It is a poor cause that has to be bolstered up with such brasen misrepresentations repeated over and over again—Whig

But why did Sir John pay $500 to draft an act that would prohibit an appeal to the Privy Council? Ed Ex.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

THOUSANDS PROCLAIM VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases,—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

IN FAVOUR OF

J. A. DELANEY & SON'S

"Empire" Fanning Mill,

WHICH THEY ARE NOW BUILDING

AT THEIR SHOP ON DOWNIE STREET PETERBORO',

(Next to Mr. Wm. Hamilton's Foundry.)

This is to certify that I have seen Messrs. J. A. Delaney & Sons' "Empire." I have one of the same mills which I have thoroughly tested, and have no hesitation in recommending it to Farmers as the best Fanning Mill for separating or cleaning grain either for seed, market, or mail, (of which I have any knowledge), and believe grown cleaned with this Mill will bring a higher price in Market than that done by any other mills now in use. The Separating Sieves supplies a want long felt by Farmers, and is a most desirable improvement, and with the additional arrangement for Grass Seed, it is decidedly ahead of any other mill known to me.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The remarkable and excellent success of this concentrated extract of the roots of certain plants, in the cure of the various diseases and disorders arising from impurities of the blood, has induced many unprincipled persons to attempt the manufacture of preparations which they call Sarsaparilla, hoping to benefit by the reputation which this has deservedly obtained. Many of these are utterly worthless, and all are inferior to this, as the public will find by trial. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the result of long years of study, research and experiment into the best remedies that can be found for the cure of blood diseases. Every bottle of this Sarsaparilla is perfect in its combination, strength and appearance, and we warrant it to be what it is represented, a concentrated extract of the best Sarsaparilla that can be made. Those who have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla know that it is the best blood purifier that can be had, and will have no other. Those who have not used it should do so at once, and thus avoid the scrofulous sores and other troubles which are sure to appear sooner or later, even in the most robust constitutions. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is offered to the afflicted with the confident belief that it will do them more good than any other medicine they can take. Even when the disease has become chronic and seated in the bones, when the liver is torpid and the whole system saturated with corruption, when even the most powerful remedies fail, a bottle of this Sarsaparilla will often give new life and health to the sufferer. Scrofulous and other obstinate sores, which refuse to heal under the influence of local applications, quickly yield to the purifying and vitalizing effects of this Sarsaparilla. Those who have long been afflicted with Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, Blotches, Tetter, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Mercurial Sores, Ulcers, Old Sores, Syphilitic Taints, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses, Uterine Diseases, Leucorrhœa, Sterility, Impotency, Nervousness, Debility, Loss of Vital Power, Diseases of the Bladder, Gravel, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Neuralgia, Tumors, Cancers, Humors of all kinds, Fever Sores, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Blotches, Eruptions, Pimples, Pustules, Blains, Sores, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Scrofulous Inflammations, Chronic Rheumatism, Syphilis, Mercurial Affections, and all other complaints arising from Impure Blood, will find in this preparation a remedy which will thoroughly cleanse their systems of all such impurities, and restore them to perfect health. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is also the best remedy for Children that can be procured. Under its use the most delicate invalid will find the vital forces invigorated, the appetite restored, and the whole system built up and strengthened. For all complaints of a Scrofulous nature, this Sarsaparilla is the most reliable medicine yet discovered. Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. Practical and Analytical Chemists.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is not only pleasant but healthful. Its use will prevent baldness, and consequent baldness, and will soon restore gray or faded hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair may be thickened, and bald heads in many cases repeopled with a new growth of hair, by the occasional application of this Vigor. Nothing can be found so destructive of dandruff, or so healthful and agreeable as a dressing. By its tonic action on the roots of the hair, the Vigor imparts to it the nourishment required to keep it in healthy action. Hence its use prevents the hair from becoming thin and falling off, and consequently prevents baldness. Those whose hair is turning gray or white will find in this preparation the restorative they desire. It will gradually restore the original color, and the beauty and gloss of youth will be seen in the luxuriance of the hair. Being entirely free from those destructive ingredients which render many preparations for the hair so pernicious, this Vigor can be used with perfect confidence by any person, old or young, who desires to have a beautiful head of hair. As a dressing for the hair in the nursery, it is unequaled. Mothers will find it the best preparation ever used to make children's hair grow freely, and to keep it from becoming dry, harsh, or turning gray or prematurely white. Those who have used the Vigor for years, and who have tried many other preparations, concur in saying that this is the best article they have ever used for dressing the hair, and that it does all that is claimed for it. Ayer's Hair Vigor is sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

PREPARED BY DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. Practical and Analytical Chemists.

SAVED!

A STORY SUCCESSFULLY TOLD.

Pretty plump Mrs. Archibald Steele wrote the following paragraph in one of her letters to her husband the other day:—

'John must come down here at once, whether you can spare him or not. Our dear little Laura is greatly taken with a tall, thin, young man with a hooked nose and thin lips, called Stuyvesant. It is whispered about the hotel that it is a very good match, and he has the veritable blood of the old Dutch Governor in his veins. I must say it has a very poor way of showing itself, for the young man is as pale as a spectre, and dressed in that white duck, with his sunken eye and billious skin, is enough to frighten one. I have grown to hate him, and Laura is growing to quite the contrary, I'm afraid. All the evening he leans up against the wall, never dancing or opening his mouth, save to give vent to some hateful sarcastic criticism upon the scene around him, and yet dear little Laura's eyes—as, indeed, all the other pretty eyes about—are perpetually beseeching him for attention. In the day time he is always with a long black horse that covers more ground with its legs when it is going that any animal I ever saw. When Laura goes out to drive behind it, and vanishes out of sight with the bony creature, I tremble to think how dreadful it would be if our dear little girl would ever become part and parcel of this wretched man and his wicked beast. So I think John had better come down at once; I quite long to see his handsome face, and hear his honest voice, and I think it is about time John should tell his little story to Laura and have things settled comfortably.'

Mr. Archibald Steele smiled when he put the letter back in his pocket and picking up the paper scanned through his spectacles the news of the day. Finding nothing therein to ruffle the satisfactory condition of affairs, he put it down and smiled again as only a prosperous contented merchant can smile. He was one of those happy exceptions to the ordinary rule of mortals, with whom everything went well. His whole appearance was an exclamation point to that effect. If he ventured a little hazardously in trade, fortune trimmed her sails to favor him. If he set his heart upon anything relating to domestic felicity, all the elements of art and nature conspired to bring it about. So when he went to the door of his office and beckoned to a young man with a strip of commercial paper in his hand and a pencil behind his ear, with that general air of briskness and shrewdness about him that betokened a successful merchant in embryo, Mr. Steele smiled a third time, with the air of one who was not at all afraid of any obstacle that might be thrown in the path of a domestic happiness which he firmly believed had been arranged by an omnipotent hand.

'John,' said Mr. Steele, closing the door of his private office, and looking upon his young clerk benevolently, 'I've got an order here from Mrs. Steele, which I wish you would attend to.'

'Certainly, sir,' said John. 'Shall I go out and get the articles myself?'

'Why, the fact is, John,' said the merchant, enjoying the joke more and more. 'It's only one article—a rather bulky one. It was bargained for long ago. I think you will have to go with it, John.'

'Down to the sea-shore?' said John, getting a little hot and flustered. 'Is it a very valuable parcel, sir?'

'Well, perhaps your natural modesty may depreciate its worth. John, Mrs. Steele and I think a good deal of it, and Laura, too—I'm sure she does. The commodity is yourself John. Mrs. Steele wants you to go down and take a little holliday there.'

When the name of Laura was mentioned, the young man's face grew more hot and flustered than before.

'You're very kind, sir,' he said, 'Mrs. Steele is always more like an angel than a woman.'

'Rather solid and plump for that,' interposed Mr. Steele, but liking the praise, nevertheless.

'But it is simple madness,' pursued John, 'to dream of further happiness than I now enjoy—your affection and that of your wife, my position here; I don't dare, I can't hope for anything more. Oh, Mr. Steele, I can't tell her my story. She would shrink from me with horror and aversion, she is so young, so beautiful. Let me at least enjoy the present.

'And in the meantime some cadaverous, billious, blue-blooded scoundrel will carry her off from us all!'

Then John's face grew pale and stern, 'If there is the slightest feeling upon her part for—for any one else, then indeed, Mr. Steele, my case is hopeless.

The commercial paper fluttered from his hand; the pencil fell from his ear; he leaned his head against the desk and trembled.

'Why, who would suppose you could be such a coward?' said Mr. Steele, impetuously. 'You can go down with me this very day.'

All the way to the sea-shore John's face wore the look of one who had resolved to storm a deadly breach, but who did not hope to survive the attempt.

Even the ocean, when it confronted them, wore a threatening look. Upon the horizon a pile of clouds formed a back-ground wan and gloomy, a great black mist lay in the south, a dense red vapor almost touched the water.

'A very nasty sea,' said Mr. Steele.

John nauffed it in, his eyes dilating, his head shoulders expanding, his head high in the sea-scented air.

A tramp on the hard, wet sand, and like a meteor a long sleek horse shot by, disappearing in the mist, leaving for John the memory of a charming head crowned with blonde curling hair, love lit eyes bent upon the sea, a white waving hand extended in salutation.

'John,' said Mr. Steele, 'did you see the face of that man?' I cannot open your swing Lizzie. Did you see his face, sweet lips, his flame-colored eyes?'

'I only saw Laura, sir,' said John, 'Laura—'

Laura, the flaxen-haired Neide and plump, pretty wife were alone together in their private parlor. Her dimpled hands lay lovingly in his, her shapely head, fresh from the hands of the coiffeur rested recklessly on his shoulder.

Suddenly the door opened, and there was heard the rustle of silken drapery. A still shapelier little head and fresher from the hands of the coiffeur, all unrumpled by the audacious touch of a mortal, peeped in at the door. Laura was pale; her little white hands were clasped together; her musical voice trembled.

'Oh, papa, mamma, come directly. Mr. Stuyvesant ventured too far, and—and—'

'Was drowned?' said Mr. Steele, with a peculiar combination in his voice of pity and relief.

'No, no; how could you suppose so dreadful a thing? He was rescued, but he is very weak and ill. He has asked for me—and may I go? Will you come with me, mamma? Oh, do, I beg of you! Can't she papa?'

Her blue eyes filled with tears; her little feet seemed panting to fly through the corridor.

'Certainly not,' said Mr. Steele. 'Let him wait till he is able to come to you or to me. Either the man is drowned or he isn't. Because he was imbecile enough to risk his life, that is no reason for your being the talk of the hotel.'

Laura raised her head proudly.

'No danger of that, papa; and besides, everyone is occupied with the one that rescued him.'

'And what mad man was that?' said poor Mr. Steele, who could not reconcile himself to the present state of affairs.

'I don't know; a stranger, I believe; I was so interested in Mr. Stuyvesant I forgot to ask.

'Bah!' said Mr. Steele, getting upon his feet and walking to the door; 'I'll go and find out about it. You stay here till I return.'

Before he had gone far Mr. Steele heard from the excited guests several different versions of the affair; but one and all agreed that the rescuer could be nothing less than a champion swimmer.

'A regular water dog,' said one gentleman to Mr. Steele; and as he had heard this epithet but once before in his life, and that on an occasion of vital interest to himself, he sought out the hero of the hour, and found to his unbounded astonishment that it was John Waters himself.

He was quite enveloped in the flounces and furbelows of pretty and sympathetic women, who insisted upon knowing every half second if he was sure he felt strong and well, and how in the world could he buffet those dreadful waves in that grand heroic way, and how did he manage to drag Mr. Stuyvesant in to the shore?

John, like any other hero of the hour, enjoyed this womanly adulation, but he looked anxiously at Mr. Steele when he approached.

'Hum?' growled the worthy merchant, 'a pretty fellow you to interfere with other people's plans! How did you know he wanted to be rescued?'

'He appeared anxious that way, sir,' said John. 'He wrapped himself about me like a devil-fish. I thought one time we'd both go down together. There ought to be a school for teaching people how to let themselves be saved. It's the easiest thing in the world; the water itself is an accessory, if you manage it right.'

'Oh, do tell us, Mr. Waters, please!' chorused the pretty and sympathetic young women; and as John began his lesson, Mr. Steele slipped away.

'Oh, pa,' began Laura, 'how is Mr. Stuyvesant?'

'I don't know—I didn't ask,' he replied, 'I was so interested in the fellow that dragged him ashore. He is an old friend of ours. The way we made his acquaintance was on just such an occasion; he saved a lady from drowning.'

'Why he must be a splendid fellow,' said Laura.

'Magnificent!' said Mr. Steele. 'You see, we have travelled over the world together, your mother and I, while you were yet a baby. And we found it rather odd one morning to discover that having crossed the ocean and the Alps, loitered on the Hudson Highlands, travelled thence down the Mississippi Valley, across the American desert to California, and back again by another route, your mother had never been up the East River as far as Morrisania. It seemed so absurd to have neglected this home excursion that we determined upon it at once. The morning was wet, but that didn't matter. Your mother looked prettier in a water-proof and rubbers, with a shovel hat tied down under her chin, than most women would in a ball dress. She wasn't a bit afraid of rain or mud. She was a little reckless, for on getting ashore to see one of the institutions of the vagabond boys, her foot slipped off the plank, and she disappeared.'

Mr. Steele stopped a minute; his voice faltered; the little plump hand of his wife slipped into his own; he clutched it and continued.

'One minute I saw her as neat and trim a little figure as ever graced a water-proof and shovel-hat; the next she was gone.

'Gone!' cried Laura, 'Gone where?'

'Into the water, child; into the hungry, greedy waves that surged up to take her away from the fondest heart in the universe; and if it hadn't been for one of those very vagabond boys, who had been lurking there for a chance to escape from the island, you'd have lost us both, my dear, for I made an open tied plunge after her, though I'm ashamed to say I could not swim a stroke, and should only have gone to the bottom like a pleasmeat of lead, but an official stranding by caught and held me, and cried out that Johnny Waters had her safe and a-rived; and presently that va-liant boy came up with your

PETERBOROUGH, DEC. 30, 1875.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION

At the nomination on Monday, Mr Toole in coming forward said he had stood before them twelve months ago seeking the suffrages of the electors for the highest honor in their gift. They had honored him with their confidence and he in return had done his utmost to manage the business of the town as economically as the interests of the town would admit. He now was to be opposed, not because he had done anything wrong, but because Mr. Edmison aspired to the position. The affairs of the town were going to ruin it was said, but to show the falsity of the assertion he had directed the Clerk to write to several towns for statement of liabilities, rate of taxes and general information, and he would now submit a statement of seven or eight of them.

The Town of Cobourg had a rate of 27 to 30 mills in the dollar, a population of about 5,000 and raised this year $27,640 or about $5.50 to $6 per capita.

Brantford has a rate of 15 mills in the dollar, raises $48,418 of taxes or about $5 per capita, and a permanent debt of $20 per capita.

Chatham is rated at 27 mills on the dollar, total taxes $34,347 or $6 per capita and a permanent debt of $16 per head.

He further compared St. Catherines at 16½ mills and Guelph at 20 mills, and drew the conclusion that this showed Peterborough very lightly taxed at 10½ mills about $4.50 per capita. He referred to the rates from '70 to '75, in '70 the rate was 15 mills, '71 13½ mills, '72 14½ mills, '73 11 mills, '74 15 mills, and '75 10½ mills, and thought that this was a fair record. He had done his utmost to manage the town affairs satisfactorily, and had given a great deal of time and attention to them. He explained that the town clock changes would cost about $200 but that the people were well pleased with that job. The matter of the small pox patients had been made a handle of, but it had been customary to give orders on account, and he and Mr. Beal had given an order to Dr. Kincaid on account, awaiting the vote of the council, and not knowing that he had received his salary, but this had been done with other parties as well as with him and was all right in his opinion. He entered into little personal discussion then, but the people do not care to hear these wars of words.

Mr. Edmison being called on addressed the electors present. He said he had no old stewardship to defend and as he did not intend to cast a single reflection on Mr. Toole he would confine his remarks to matters before the rate payers. He did not consider Mr. Toole had a divine right to the position and hence he had consented to become a candidate. He defended himself against Mr. Toole's charges and explained his position in former contests, and showed that when the people decided they had generally done so in his favor. He had found fault with the clock fixtures as too expensive and badly managed, and with the payment of $200 to Dr. Kincaid for one small-pox patient, and he believed the people were dissatisfied also. He explained his position in reference to opening streets satisfactorily and expressed himself willing to abide by the vote of the electors.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

(EXAMINATION FOR PROMOTION.)

The examiners have completed their work and forwarded the result to Toronto for final revision. The number of candidates was 43 :—boys, 16 ; girls, 28. Of these, nine girls and five boys passed with very fair honors. Of the remaining 29 about 7 took over 50 per cent of the total marks, but failing somewhat in dictation they are compelled to go to work with a view to being better prepared the next time.

In comparing results it must be borne in mind that at the last examination, a very large number succeeded, and as the term since that has been a short one, since the holidays, sufficient time has not been given to those who came forward this time ; but, even with this disadvantage they did fairly.

Geography and Dictation were the subjects which caused the greatest number of failures. Knowing this, teachers and pupils may prepare to meet the worst contingencies at next examination ; and this is their wisest course. But, they should not forget that the programme may be changed, and that the difficulties may next be found in other papers. Therefore let them prepare geography and dictation, but not forget arithmetic and English Grammar while preparing the former subjects.

It may not be amiss to let them know where their weak parts in English Grammar lies, viz : converting poetry into prose, and in transposing prose without changing the meaning ; and, also, in giving their reason in correcting false syntax.

The penmanship in numerous cases was very good. In spelling they were aged from 50 to 90 per cent of the maximum marks. But the selections in the dictation paper were really difficult, and then when it is understood that eleven mistakes would destroy the whole paper, it is not to be wondered at that several candidates failed in this subject.

They have six months to prepare for the next examination, when we hope to be able to chronicle better things of those who aspire to promotion.

THE BALLOT IN TOWNSHIP.

Enquiry has been make whether, in the case of township not divided into wards, but divided into electoral divisions, two kinds of ballot papers are necessary, viz ; one for Reeve and another for Councillors. The law on the point is quite clear, that two sets of ballot papers for townships are only needed where the township is divided into wards. This is the enactment:—

"And in townships divided into wards, "one kind or set of ballot papers shall be "prepared for all the wards, containing "the names af the candidates for Reeve, "and another kind or set shall be prepared for each ward containing the name of Councillors in the ward. In the case of a division into electoral districts, and not wards, the names of both the Reeve and Councillors should be on the same paper.

It is believed that a movement is in progress which will make the Canada Southern practically a part of the New York Central under the control of Commodore Vanderbilt.

The United States Government has informed the authorities of England that British postal matter crossing this continent in the charge of the former, after January 1st, will be charged thirty-three cents per pound for carriage, instead of six cents, as at present.

BELLEVILLE.—From our Belleville exchanges we see that excommunication does not hurt Mr. Dunnett. At the Bible Society meeting he was elected President. The Rev. Dr. O'Meara was on the platform and made a very favorable speech in favor of Bible circulation. The Dr. must be more evangelical than many of the Episcopal clergy as some of them will not appear on a platform with dissenters. Mr Dunnet cannot be blamed for the company he keeps while found side by side with Reverend Doctor O'Meara.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

ASHBURNHAM.

The old council elected without opposition, viz., Mr. John Burnham, Reeve, and Messrs R. Mowry, H. Calcutt, W. Rombough and H. Bennett, councillors.

SMITH.

There was no opposition in this Township. Mr. I Garbutt retired, and Mr. M Sanderson was elected Reeve, Mr. F. Bell Deputy Reeve ; and Messrs A. Montgomery, T. E. Fitzgerald and James Middleton councillors.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

Mr. H. Collins, re-elected by acclamation ; but there will be a contest for councillors, as Messrs W. Robson, C Leary, G. Birney, W. Brownscombe, and George Young have been nominated.

John Garvey's and E. Whitfield's accounts were referred to the Finance Committee, and R. White's was ordered to be paid.

Mr. Cahill said that he considered $5 for drawing the engine to a fire in the day time was too much, and that if there was $2.50 allowed in day time from 7 o'clock to 6 p.m., and $5.00 after that might be some inducement to parties to draw the engine to fires after night.

In the absence of Mr. Beal, Chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. Rutherford read over the Finance Report which on motion was read and adopted.

John Delany, $3.00 ; Wm Hamilton, $21.00 ; R. Kingan, $14 ; John Parnall, $12.50.

Mr. Paterson read a petition and a letter from John C. Holmes, asking that Mr. Holmes get something as he is a worthy person for charity, and it was moved by Mr. Helm, seconded by Mr. Paterson, that the prayer of the petition of J. C. Holmes, be granted ; and the Treasurer is hereby instructed to pay his rent and taxes, and the Clerk is also instructed to notify the said Holmes that this Council cannot entertain any further petition so long as he continues to pay his present high rent.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill said that his name was to that petition and he would not sign it if he thought he was not worthy of it.

Mr. Hamilton said that he was a pretty costly person to keep up as he had already received $26.00.

Mr. Rutherford said that he had gave notice at last meeting that he would move a by-law for to compel persons to clean the snow off the streets, and that he would now move for the first reading of the same.

In amendment it was moved by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Hopkins that the by law be read this day six months.

For the amendment :

YEAS :—Cook, Elliott, Hopkins, Paterson, Hamilton.

NAYS :—Rutherford, Thornton, McDonald, Helm and Cahill.

The amendment and the original motion were both lost.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Hamilton, that the communication of Mr Howden, proposing to deposit stumps on the banks of the Little Lake, be referred to a Special Committee composed of Messrs Helm, Paterson, Dixon and the mover with power to act, also with power to deal with other parties who may be desirous of depositing in the same place also.

Moved by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Hopkins, that the balance of Mr. Belcher's account regarding the care of and construction of the Bridge across the Otonabee be paid.

Mr. Cook wished to know what they pay the $250 of a yearly salary to Mr. Belcher for.

Mr. Hamilton said that it was for attending to streets and bridges, as he had done a great deal of work through the town.

Mr. Rutherford moved that the two gentlemen submitted to this Council by the Fire Department for their approval be John Gibbs' Chief Engineer, and Wm English Assistant Engineer.

Mr. Cahill said that he thought it would not be fair for the Council to pass that resolution and also that the present Fire Committee had attended to the wants of the Fire Company better than the committee heretofore,

Mr Rutherford wanted to know who had a better right to send in two names than the company, and that they wished to please the company, and that the company should send in 4 names, and also that the Captain said that they wanted the men appointed forthwith.

Mr. Cahill said that Mr. Rutherford with his usual eloquence might get around it the best way he could

The motion was then put and lost.

Mr. Cahill, as Chairman of the Fire Committee submitted a report thanking the Rev. Mr. Lynch and the Rev. Mr. Beck for the use of their bells for fire alarm purposes, and also recommending the Council to try and get them for the use of the town for a while as the electric fire alarm would cost about $1000 and he felt that the town would not like to erect them at present, which on motion was received and adopted.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

LAKEFIELD.

THE NOMINATION.—On Monday last in accordance with the municipal law, the nomination of candidates for the Reeve and Council of the Village for the ensuing year, was held in the school house at 12 o'clock, being the second nomination for the same purpose held in our village. The only candidate for the Reeveship was Major Boulton, who has occupied that position during the past year, and was again elected by acclamation. There were eight nominations for councillors, viz., Messrs. George Strickland, Dinwoodie, Hall, Neelson, Sherin, Griffin, Shields and Saulter. Messrs. Sherin, Griffin and Saulter thanked their supporters, and expressed their desire not to become candidates, and at 1 o'clock the Returning Office declared the Reeve elected, Messrs. Strickland, Dinwoodie, Hall, Nelson, and Shields, candidates for councillors, and declared a poll for Monday the 3rd inst. The Reeve being called upon, thanked the electors for the trust reposed in him, and the honor that had been conferred upon him by being elected a second time by acclamation to fill the chief position in the municipal council. He gave a review of the work of the past year, commencing with the school affairs, which, he stated, since incorporation had become part of the duties of the council in conjunction with the board of school trustees. He stated that the debt of the school, with the accruing interest, had been added together and divided into eight equal parts, and that debentures had been issued to take up the notes of the old school trustees made payable at dates to pay off the debt as prescribed by law, viz., 10 per cent every year, and that $837.50 had been paid off during the past year. He stated that about $3,500 was the amount of money raised this year to carry on the business of the village for all purposes, and that the sum was so large it was fortunate that under incorporation we were enabled to control its expenditure in our midst; that $671 had been expended on roads and sidewalks, and he claimed that economy had been used in expending that, tenders were called for and the lumber cost only $7.50 per thousand feet, the nails $3.50 per 100 lbs., and that there was no charge for supervision, but at the same the experience of the council was that a road commissioner should be employed to collect the poll tax and lay out the appropriation for roads and sidewalks in future. He stated that the salaries were kept down to the small sum of $125, which had obtained the services of a clerk, assessors, a treasurer, a collector, an inspector of taverns, and 2 auditors; the miscellaneous expenditure, consisting of legal expenses, elections, &c., among which was included a map of the village defining the boundary and the lots laid out within it, amounted to $369. The tavern licenses were limited to three, and he recommended that that number should not be exceeded as they were sufficient for the wants of the village, In referring to the petition presented for the purpose of opening up the concession line and the side line, coming from John Richardson's house and to the road through R. C Strickland & Co's property, he recommended that no action should be taken on the side line as it would result in the destruction of valuable property and not be a better prize of the village, but that a road should be legally established to the river by mutual agreement with R. C. Strickland irrespective of the legal aspect of the case. He thought that a market place should be established to enable farmers to find a market for their produce in the village, instead of passing through the village to Peterborough. He referred to the active part he had taken in the passing of the By law for the Huron and Quebec Railway, which though viewed in the village as injurious to its interests, was of so much benefit to the county at large, he felt called on to give it his support. After expressing a hope that he would merit the confidence reposed in him for doing his duty to the village in the forthcoming year He was followed by Mr. G Strickland who expressed his willingness to remain a candidate, and hoped the election would give him their support. Mr Dinwoodie also thanked his supporters for nominating him and said he would serve the interests of the village to the best of his ability. Mr Hall said that as the Reeve had given such full explanations it would be unnecessary for him to review the past year's work, he said that he had taken the Reeve's place in settling in conjunction with Messrs Holt Strickland and Sherin the division of assets and liabilities between the township of Smith and Douro in consequence of separation, and said he thought he had obtained the full amount due to the village and that in addion there was an amount of about $50 still to come. He read over the statement of the finances of the village and said that after meeting all our liabilities we had $300 to commence the new year with, which was a satisfactory statement, that though his taxes were three times as great as under the old system, the taxes generally were no greater, he said that he had served the interests of the village to the best of his ability in the past year and would continue to do so if elected. Mr Nelson said that he had already run for councillor six times and had sometimes gained and sometimes got beaten, that he would have preferred not to have come into the council in the middle of the year as he had done, but as he had been nominated by his friends in his absence, he would not go back on them, that he was a candidate for re-election, and if elected would do his duty to the best of his ability. Mr Shields said that as he was the fifth, and that four councillors had expressed their willingness to run, he would resign and save trouble, that he had done his duty in the past year and was not afraid of taking the responsibility of any part that he had had in the past year's work. Upon being informed that it was too late to resign and that a poll must be demanded, he said under those circumstances he would fight it out. If Mr Shields had been able to carryout his determination, the village would have lost an honest man in their arbitrations but a good council would have been elected without any polling and well distributed over the village. In the absence of a division into wards it is important if possible that all sections of the village should have a representative, and as all are good candidates and it is impossible to make invidious distinction, it would be well if the votes were polled so as to give an equal voice in every section of the village. The Polling takes place on Monday the 3rd of January.—Com.

BELMONT.

The district lodge U. F. Order of the County of Peterborough, held their quarterly session of Mount Zion School House Rockdale Evergreen Lodge Room Belmont on the 15th December, 1875. The attendance was large considering the stormy day, there being fifty members present. The most important question that came up for discussion was whether it was advisable to petition the County Council to submit the Dunkin By-Law. After able addresses in its favor by the Rev. M. Noris, Mr. Roseborough, Mr Meickle, and others A resolution was carried unanimously to petition the County Council at its next meeting in January, to submit the Dunkin By law to prohibit the sale and manufacture of liquors in the County of Peterborough, and also to have a public meeting in the village of Norwood, on the 28th December 1875, to which all in its favor are cordiall invited to attend. A vote of thanks was given to the members of the Rockdale Evergreen Lodge for their hospitality in furnishing a free dinner and tea. Next meeting to be in Hastings, on the first Wednesday in March at 1 o'clock p.m.

The great event of the day was the open Temple which was held in the school house in the evening. The school house was neatly dressed with evergreens and appropriate Mottoes, the large school house was crowded with a large and intelligent audience who expressed their sympathy with the temperance cause. The proceedings commenced with singing after which the Rev. Mr. Narris, offered an appropriate prayer for the occasion, Mr. Mark, was called to the chair which he filled in an admirable manner, the first in the programme was a Dialogue, "The wonderful Scholar." Singing. Dialogue, 'Country Cousins." speech from Mr. Scriver. Dialogue, "A world of trouble." Singing. Dialogue, "Barney Mooney." Speech by Mr. Roseborough, Dialogue, "The Reclaimed." Singing. Dialogue, "Marry no man that drinks." Speech by the Rev Mr. Narris, the Sisters young and Brother Morton and Meikle enlivened the proceedings by some very fine singing, the several speakers strongly advocated the passage of the Dunkin Act and in doing so were loudly cheered by the large audience, the Dialogues "Reclaimed," and "Marry no man that drinks." were splendid, the meeting was closed after all having spent a pleasant evening.

I would ask what are the Temperance men and women of the town of Peterborough doing to have the Dunkin Act submitted to the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough.—Com.

COBOURG.

Mr. Cuthbert, of Cobourg, the well known builder, intends this week to lay the keell of a first-class yacht to be taken to the Centennial at Philadelphia next year. She will be built after the model of the Annie Cuthbert, with such improvements as experience may suggest. She will be a schooner rigged, of about 140 tons measurement, and will cost about $15,000 Mr. Cuthbert expects to have her completed by the opening of navagation. It is intended to take her first trip to Philadelphia and afterwards to New York, where she will take part in the great international regatta.

CANADIAN FINANCE.

Under the above heading the London Hour, (Conservative, and the organ of the present Government of Great Britain) has the following :

When the Government of the Dominion through their financial agents, Messrs. Barrings & Glynns, invited subscriptions in October last, for a loan of £2,600,000, the prospectus was accompanied by a compendious statement signed by Mr. Cartwright, the Minister of Finance, giving a concise account of the public debt, and the purposes to which it had been applied, also the aggregate import and export trade and revenue and expenditure, commencing with the corporation of the provinces in 1867, and ending with fiscal year the 30th of June, 1874.

At this period the public debt amounted to £23,800,000, entailing an annual charge of £1,300,000 or about 6s. 8d. per head of the population. The whole of this debt is shown to have been expended on works of public utility, viz :—

On Canals	£ 5,300,000
Railways, including advances in and the cost of those actually owned by Canada	12,000,000
Compensation to the various provinces for property and revenue surrendered to the Dominion, the purchase and organization of territories and the freeing of lands in the Province of Quebec from feudal tenure, &c.	6,000,000
Being a total of	£24,800,000

The revenue for the year ending the 30th June, 1875, amounted to £5,900,000, and the expenditure to £4,850,000 showing a surplus of £200,000, and in the eight years since confederation there has been a total surplus of £2,443,111, exclusive of the sinking fund, which amounts to about £700,000 a year, which is charged to current expenditure.

The aggregate trade of Canada has increased from £26,923,428 in the year ending June 30th, 1868, to about £41,000,000 in the year ending June 30th 1875. During the same period the paid up capital of the banks has increased from £6,055,041 to £12,076,873, and the deposits from £5,898,149 to £14,042,867, the deposits in the savings banks and societies have also increased from £1,240,069 in 1867 to £3,754,820 in 1875.

The subject for which the late loan was contracted are declared to be as follows :

1. To provide for the construction of several great works of internal improvement, chiefly in connection with the enlargement of the existing canal system, by which it is proposed to improve the communication between Lake Superior and the ocean to such an extent as to permit the passage of vessels of 1,500 tons burthen, carrying from 50,000 to 60,000 bushels of grain, the largest size heretofore admitted being about 500 tons, carrying less than 20,000 bushels.

2. To defray expenditure incurred on works of communication with the North West territories and the Pacific Railway.

3. To recoup the Exchequer for bonds actually paid bearing a higher rate of interest, and to provide for others falling due.

Owing to the present limited capacity of the Welland Canal the bulk of the vessels navigation the upper lakes are compelled to stop at Buffalo, diverting the Western grain and produce trade from [illegible] channel via the Erie Canal to the harbors and seaports of New York and Boston, thereby enriching the former at the expense of Canada. The latter would be the natural outlet through Canada, for the benefit alike of the Western producer and the European consumer.

The canadian canals, even in their present imperfect state, return a moderate net revenue to the Canadian Treasury, and there is every reasonable probability that there receipts will be very largely increased when the cost of maintenance will be very slight if at all in excess of the amount now expended for that purpose.

We are induced to bring this subject under public notice for many reasons—first, for the purpose of showing that the Dominion Government Bonds are an undoubted first class security ; secondly, that depended as we are for an annual supply of grain from foreign countries of the value of from ten to fifteen millions sterling, it is our interest to obtain it as cheaply as possible and particularly from our own colony, which takes such a large portion of our manufactured goods in return ; and, lastly, because an attempt is being made by the managers and advocates of some of the great Canadian railways to cast discredit on the Dominion and Provincial Governments for the public spirit they have displayed in undertaking these great national works, which create a Suez Canal of the West at the public expense ; the managers and advocates of the existing railways interests, alleging that the Governments are not justified in doing so until such time as the existing companies pay satisfactory dividends.

STONES AND STUMPS.

A farmer tells how he gets rid of large rocks about his farm as follows : He digs a hole below the reach of the plow, alongside, and with a lever tumbles them in and buries them. Where stone is abundant this is much better than blowing them to pieces with powder and carting them away. Stumps may be got rid of in the same way, but here is one who burns them out. He has a large tin funnel made so as to fit over the largest of the stumps, and has an opening at the bottom like the opening to a furnace. In this opening he builds a small fire, and the draft through the furnace keeps the fire burning until the whole stump is burned away. We should suppose by this plan the stumps would not burn below the line of the draught, and that it would still leave all beneath the surface of the ground, and thus would the plow be as much impeded as if the stump was still there. Yet there seemed the rudiments of a cheap and easy way of getting rid of stumps and it is worth knowing.

THE FINANCIAL POSITION.

(From the Monetary Times.)

A singular condition of ease and plentifulness of money has succeeded to the financial pressure with which we have been familiar for some time back. The reserves of the banks have been very largely augmented, and there is undoubtedly a diminished demand for accommodation. The condition resembles in its main features that which always succeeds a panic in the great centres, and it is a question whether during this present year Canada has not passed through just such an experience as New York did three years ago, or England in 1866. That masters have not been worse is very largely due to two causes : first, the sound principles on which a majority of our banking institutions have been conducted for a long time back ; and second, to the bountiful harvests we have enjoyed almost without interruption of late years. There has been, it is true, a considerable amount of bad banking, but its influence has been confined to a well defined circle ; and it has borne its fruit in the disasters that have overtaken certain institutions, and the many failures amongst their connections. And to a certain extent the spirit of inflation has crept in and influenced all our institutions. But it has not had influence enough to do very serious damage. A very cautious and intelligent spirit has governed most of the operations of the banks, and we apprehend they have seen the worst of any bad consequences that have ensued from any marked complicances with unfortunate customers.

As to good harvests, these add directly to our wealth. Many millions of money have been poured into the country during the last two months, and this is but a repetition of what has occurred every year at this season.

Whether we shall have money easy all winter, is the practical question just now. It is difficult to forecast the future and it would be very unwise for engagements to be made on the strength of the present case continuing. Money was almost as easy a year ago as it is now, yet before the winter was over we experienced the most severe pressure we have known for years. It is not safe therefore to presume. We have probably far fewer engagements abroad this winter than last. If so, it will be shown in decreased demand for discounts for exchange, and indeed for bills generally. But only time can show, and in the meantime a very cautious policy is best for all parties.

The Pacific Railway rumors, lately started by Opposition journals, are contradicted from Ottawa. The Georgian Bay branch will take the route fixed upon, the line having been found easy except for four miles which do not furnish more than ordinary difficulties. The Government will be saved from a goood deal of criticism by the route having proved to be practicable, but the granting of the contract without an instrumental survey was not the less a departure from sound principles. The $750,000 bonds offered to British Columbia is only in lieu of the Nanaimo and Esquimalt line, which the Senate refused to authorize last session, Conservative members for party purposes voting against it, and one from British Columbia itself, both by his vote and his utterances being of the chief causes of its rejection. There is no agreement between the Premier and Mr. Blake to defer construction on the mainland of the Pacific Province but many people would be very glad if such a course could honorably be adopted.—Montreal Witness.

GENTLEMEN,—Having allowed myself, at the eleventh hour, to become a candidate for your suffrages as Councillor, and as I still not have time to call on you personally for your votes, nor would I, if I had time, go round and do so, as I think it would be throwing a slur on the intelligent voters of the Ward. Thomas, and on Sunday the [illegible], two sermons will be preached [illegible] of the missionary society, at [illegible] the pastor at 6.30 p.m. by [illegible]. J. Kinner.

PRESENTATION.—A chief duty of the [illegible] is to hoard up happy memories [illegible] middle life and grey age when we [illegible] ourselves back to live by repitition [illegible] again and again. Miss Mary E. Dixon, teacher of S. S. Dr, Jeffers is very highly spoken of wherever he has been, and no doubt his name will invite a large attendance on Saturday evening.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE.—This very handsome work for 1876 has been issued and fully equals any of the past numbers issued by Mr. Vick. It cannot be surpassed as a means of becoming acquainted with floral culture and the most beautiful and suitable plants for house and garden. The price, 25 cents, makes it a marvel of cheapness. Every lover of flowers should send for a copy of the "Guide." Address, James Vick. Rochester, N. Y.

FIRE.—On Thursday morning last, between three and four o'clock the sheds at the Episcopal Church were discovered on fire; but, very fortunately enough people some gathered to pull down a portion of the wood sheds of Mr. Fred Hall, which were contiguous to the burning sheds, and thus stopped the progress of the flames in that direction, and by a timely application of water to his dwelling saved it from injury. The loss of the sheds and Mr. Hall's stable may be about $100 to $200. Ashes in a barrel in the sheds near the church are supposed to have been the origin of the fire. The evening previous Mr. English had placed a fire alarm on the church bell, and thus, parties discovering the fire were enabled to give the alarm.

EXTREME FICKLENESS.—The weather has manifested more than its usual fickleness since our last issue. More than one change taking place daily. Saturday afternoon was cold, freezing keenly and snowing. At ten o'clock it was raining heavily, before morning there was a violent thunder storm and heavy rain. During Sunday afternoon it froze keenly, but before ten oclock in the evening there was a heavy rain again Monday was cold but bright, and Tuesday pretty much the same. Where are the weather prophets? If here now the burden of their prophecy would require to be changed about hourly. Judging from the past, there may be a variety of weather before spring bursts forth in its beauty again.

ACCIDENTS.—Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, of Smith, met with an accident on Wednesday last which resulted in a broken leg and one broken rib. Mr. F. had several hands that day sawing wood with a machine. At noon he and Mr. C. Boyce were riding home on a bob-sleigh, he being driving and on the front bob, The horses got into a hold a large stone had been taken ing, caused Mr Fitzgerald to wards and across the beam of His leg caught through the was broken, and the other leg on another part of the sleigh badly bruised; by the fall was broken. The bruised limb painful to him at first. He was home and Dr. Harvey sent for the leg and otherwise attending bruises. We are pleased to learn is doing well under the doctor's care we trust will soon be round again.

ORANGE SOIREE.—A successful was held at Bridgenorth on Christ under the auspices of Loyal Lodge, No. 484. After tea, &c., Dean, was called to the chair, and a neat speech in reference to the election, its requirements and objects, and asserted that its principles were that any protestant at least, could it, and he remarked that it was not with no man or set of men, but sought for its members and the generally, the right to think for himself. Mr. Stratton also addressed those present on the history of the association, and aims of the institution to William of Immortal memory to England and the causes which led to its accepting that invitation, of which not only in England and Ireland but in every place where reformed principles have been accepted and acted upon. He compared the growth of Protestantism with other isms since the Reformation, and especially since 1689, and showed that at the present time the nations holding those principles control the whole world, even the actions to a large extent of those who manipulate matters at the vatican. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen provided the musical part of the entertainment The whole was very orderly and locals and successful.

PRESENTATION.—On Friday night last (Christmas eve), a pleasant incident occurred in the boot and shoe establishment of Mr. Samuel White About 8 o'clock Mr. White was called into the workshop, where he found his employes assembled to present him with a Christmas gift, and the following address:—

Peterborough, Dec 24th 1875.

To Samuel White, Esq.

DEAR SIR:—We, your employees, being desirous of expressing our feelings of satisfaction toward you as our employer, beg you to accept the accompanying Christmas gift as a practical proof of our personal esteem and regard for you.

We are glad to be able to assure you that we have been well paid with the manner in which you have always dealt with us, and we can only trust that we have had your approval in return. and that in general, satisfaction has been mutual

We also beg of Mrs. White to accept of this gift. which, while it will serve as a slight token of the respect in which she is held by your employees, may also in this connection indicate to her the regard we entertain for yourself.

Wishing you and all your family a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and praying that you may be yet spared to see many happy and prosperous years in business.

We remain, yours faithfully,
(Signed by the Workmen).

The gift to Mr. White was a very hand some silver revolving butter cooler of new and chaste design, with dove head pattern. The gift to Mrs. White was an excellent work-box, inlaid with different kinds of stained wood, and lined inside with blue and white satin and contained a number of very handy and cunningly devised apartments for storing away in a cosy corner the numberless valuable little trinkets of the toilet and boudoir.

MR. WHITE said he was entirely unprepared for the presentation, and asked to be excused if he was unable to make a suitable reply. It gave him great satisfaction, however, to know that his men entertained the respect for him which the address contained, and that he had the knowledge that in his dealings with them, he had given satisfaction. That was something to be proud of. He thanked them for their handsome gift, and only regretted that the state of business just now was such that he was unable to keep more men employed. He remembered what a pleasure it was for him only a short time ago, to go round his 40 or 45 men every Saturday night and pay them their wages. But he supposed he must bear with the hard times as well as others, and it was comforting to know that he was no worse off than his neighbours in facing the difficulties of the present hard season. He invited them all to his residence that evening, to partake of his hospitality.

CHURCH OPENING.

On Sabbath, the 12th inst., the new Presbyterian Church at Otonabee Springs was dedicated to the service of God. It is built on the site of the old church, which was destroyed by fire about fifteen months ago. The new building is of red brick, beautifully finished, with a capacity to seat 500 persons. The vestry is in rear of the pulpit. The first service was at 10.30 A.M., when the building was filled, vestry and all, many having to remain standing during the whole service.

The Rev. Mr. Little of Hamilton, after the singing of the 21st Psalm, read Isaiah xl chap., also II Corinthians v. chap., after which he engaged in very impressive dedicatory prayer. His text was II Corinthians, v. 17. In delivering the message, he declared, as to all, if any be in Christ he is a new creature. The sermon was about forty minutes. At the close a collection was taken up. After the congregated, refreshments were served in the hall for all those who were the good things so liberally provided.

At 2 o'clock P.M., the church was again full to overflowing, and the Rev. Mr. McWilliams, of Ashburnham, gave a very earnest and impressive discourse from Isaiah lv. 1, after which collection was taken up and the assembly was dismissed to meet again at 7 o'clock, P.M., to hear Mr. Little.

At the close of the service we were very kindly asked again at a friends, after which home, where we arrived safely, and satisfied with the services of the day.

On Monday evening a successful tea meeting was held in the town hall, which was very largely attended. The congregation is pronounced under the ministry of their pastor, Rev Mr. McKay, who lives in the hearts of his people, and earnestly of his Master. Cox.

You will save time, your Sewing Machine & CO.'S Best Six Cord Sewing Cotton. Notice each Spool.

It is anticipated that the Huron & Bruce Railway will be opened for traffic in less than a month. The laying of the rails is completed on Monday.

COMMERCIAL.

A London French Presbyterian paper thinks that the financial result of the Moody and Sankey revival at London was better than the spiritual. "The revival balance sheet" showed total receipts of $140,000, nearly all given in sums which could be afforded only by people in affluent or comfortable circumstances. Only 27 subscribed a half crown each, and only 15 gave a shilling. The inference is that a very small share of those who attended the meetings contributed to carry the gospel to the wealthy classes. This is certainly a significant fact. As to the spiritual results, according to our Irish authority the prayer meeting established by Moody and Sankey has dwindled down to almost nothing, and while it was expected that the membership of the churches in the part of London where the revival meetings were held would increase, it has since their occurence actually decreased. Meantime, the receipts of the London home missionary societies have fallen off. These facts indicate that the making of converts is of comparatively little lasting good unless they are safely anchored in churches where they will enjoy the shelter of a harbor. A revival is of little account if it does no more than kindle a seeming dying flame of religious zeal. It should rather plant the germs of religious life and that deeply, in the heart of the people.

Romantic Marriage in Donegal.

A marriage of a rather romantic description was celebrated in the Roman Chapel at Donegal lately. A number of persons were starting from Kilcar, to proceed to America. One of the intending emigrants was a young man who had crossed the Atlantic previously, and who had been for some time on a visit to his relatives. When neighbors and friends had said their adieus, a good looking young girl, with a shawl about her head, approached the car where the emigrants were seated to say the last good-bye to her departing friends. "One glance in her eye, and one word in her ear" and she was beside the young Yankee-Irishman on the car, the horses got the whip, and the emigrants numbered one more. On reaching Donegal, the pair hastened to the chapel, where in a short time the solemn words that made them man and wife were pronounced. Soon after the party left for Ballybofey, the newly made wife, still wrapped in her shawl, to take the train for Derry, en route for America.—Derry Journal

No use of any longer taking large repulsive griping drastic and nauseous pills composed of crude and bulky ingredients, and put up in cheap wood or pasteboard boxes, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the chartic and other medicinal properities from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensitive stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug stores. From their wonderful cathartic power, in proportions to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized, one by the other, as to produce a most searching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating cathartic. The Pellets are sold by dealers in medicines.

EXCOMMUNICATION.—From a correspondence in the Belleville Intelligencer we learn that Mr James W. Dunnet, one of the members of Christ's Church—Anglican—of that town has been "excommunicated" by the Rev. R. S Forneri the pastor, because he did not contribute to the support of the church, "according to his means" From Mr. Dunnet's reply it would appear that the pastor has become very suddenly a stickler in the matter of enforcing Church laws, as he admit ed Mr. Dunnet some eleven years go to membership, although the latter had never been confirmed. Mr Dunnet thinks it strange that the privilge of membership in the church should depend upon the amount of subscripion, and asks if those "who seek the 'water of life' must come with money and with price." The cause of the dispute appears to arise out of the fact that Mr. Forneri is introducing ritualistic innovations into the church, and Mr. Dunnet objectiug to these proceedings on principle. refuses to contribute from his means the farther the schemes of the pastor.—Ex

The Rev. John Sunday, Methodist Missionary, died at his residence, Aldersville, on the 14th inst. He had been a missionary for 40 years, more than half of which were passed with the Ojibway tribe, of which he was chief on the reserve, Township of Alnwick. He was once presented to the Queen, when in England with a missionary deputation. He was a loyal British subject, and served his country at Chrysler's Farm in 1812, and other places receiving for his services three medals, and also $20 at the late payment of veterans at Colborne. He was much respected by those who knew him and was gathered to the "happy hunting ground" at the advanced age of four-score years.

—Latest advices from Newfoundland represent that the reported distress among the fishermen is not so great as was anticipated. The admitedly short catch is to some extent counterbalanced by high prices of all kinds of fish and low prices of food and supplies. Work on the roads will be finished by the Government, and some of the large houses will do their best to help their employers. A shoe factory is about going into operation, and some enterprising people from Nova Scotia work large copper mines and saw mills, all of which gives employment to hundreds of workmen. On the whole, Newfoundland will pull through the winter without starvation, as was heard.

THE CHINESE QUARTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28, 1875.

As you enter that part of San Francisco occupied by the Chinese you might imagine yourself in China, judging from the great number of Chinese you see on the streets, passing up and down. Those who have booths appear to be doing a flourishing business.

You are going now to the Chinese Theatre, and in looking for it you must pass through narrow streets filled with stores and shops lighted up, many of them, with Chinese lanterns and other Chinese devices for attracting trade. Soon you see a larger crowd than before in front of a shabby frame building, and recognize it at once as the theatre. You enter and walk up a long hallway, lined on one side by stands kept by Chinamen, where fruit and all sorts of queer things necessary to the palate of a Chinaman are sold. At the end of this dirty hall you ascend two or three steps and you are then at the entrance proper.

Two white men are stationed here, one of whom takes your money and the other shows you a seat—and bids you not stand upon ceremony, but sit right upon the back of the seat so that you can see.

The theatre is small and dirty looking, with wooden benches. It was crowded with Chinamen on this occasion, and not a woman was to be seen. The play had commenced when we entered. We beheld a man in a long, patriarchal white beard and gorgous apparel and a younger man dressed in black, who had a distressingly shrill voice. They were having a fierce discussion about some matter which excited them greatly, and which eventually grew to be so heated that it resulted in a fight. The old man began to chastise the younger with a bundle of switches; the young man then instantly tore off his clothing until he was naked to the waist. From which proceeding he appeared to gain vigour for he arrested the baton from he of the white beard and thrashed him so that he disappeared through a side door. During this time the orchestra, which is situated on the stage behind the actors, kept up a lively tune—tune did I say? no, it was only a most horrid squeak. One musician (there are three of them) plays continually on a funny looking and funnier acting instrument, something like a violin. He succeeds in eliciting from it a noise somewhat like that which a pig makes when it is in dire distress, only it is a great deal more shrill and varied. Every now and again a still more shrill noise is given, by way of variety. This "music" continues the whole time the actors are speaking, whenever there is an interlude in the play, or when an interview between two actors is about to terminate in an explosion. Then at this moment, the orchestra also prepares to explode, and musician No. 2 adds to this ravishing musical strain by beating on an instrument which sounds exactly like a very much cracked pot, and I should not be at all surprised if it was one. Musician No 3 also beats upon drum, to make the harmony still more perfect.

There is no scenery or curtain, and at the end of each scene or act they simply vanish by a side door to the right, always coming on by a door to the left. Every now and again some one in civil dress comes on to the stage, looks around or attends to some business not connected with the play, and then disappears. Scene two is as follows; Three women present themselves (the parts played by men) with their cheeks outrageously painted. One dressed in white, with mammoth sleeves so large that she cannot find her hands, appeared to be the chief among them, and was evidently in great distress. The other two, who were dressed in black, talked to her and she wept and wiped her eyes in her long white sleeves, then they were kind enough to help her to a seat covered with dirty red flannel. Occasionally she would rise and enter into conversation with them, and in the middle of it faint and have to be supported and deposited in her chair. Her method of fainting was very novel; she jumped up from the floor, landed, turned on her heel to the right, at the same time twisting her head to the left and backward, and throwing both arms into the air. The sound of their voices corresponded to the excruciating notes of the musical instruments.

Through all this the audience kept quiet and looked happy.

One peculiarity about these plays is, that one piece will last for weeks, sometimes as long as two months. They are historical plays, the history of their country and of their gods. I need hardly tell you that all is said is quite unintelligible to any but a Chinaman.

We left the theatre with the man who showed us our seats, he is a special policeman for the district and is quite familiar with the Chinese and their habits.

We went with him to their temple. After traversing numerous alleys and by-streets in the dark, and where the odors warned you that you were not in the cleanliest part of the city, we arrived at a doorway and followed him along a narrow, dark hall and then up about fourteen pairs of stairs constructed in a zigzag manner and built on the outside of a brick building. At the top we landed on a wooden veranda and entered a door cut in the side of the building on the top floor. Here it was so very dark that Mr. Headly, the policeman, lighted a candle and led us into the temple and sanctum sanctorum of the Chinese gods and their chosen teacher. I saw so many gods, one after the other, that it would be impossible to describe them all, most of them are as large as a four year old child and they all sit in shrines surrounded by other small gods or other objects of veneration.

One god has a very red face and ferocious look, another an immense black beard and solemn face. We saw only one goddess, and she had not a Chinese phosionomy. Strange to say all of the gods had round, plump feathers. The goddess looked benign, sweet and cheerful, and like all true women, seemed to shed happiness and joy around her. She was sitting on a flower that looked like an artieboke, and she was surrounded on all sides by flowers of every variety in full bloom. One old fellow appeared to be the god that protects them from wild beast, next him was a ferocious wild beast, (to what class and order he belonged I was unable to determine) with an immense mouth, wide open, seeking whom he could devour, and with such an extensive tail thrown over his back that the end of it rested on the top of his head. Next to this beast stands a small one, which is somewhat after the character of Barnum's live lion stuffed with straw, for he is cut out of a piece of brown paper and made to look as ferocious as a brown paper wild beast can possibly look. They are in the habit of bringing food for these animals, bacon and all sorts of things.

We saw numerous old looking instruments of prayer, the precise use and meaning of which is unknown to any but Chinese, and apparently to all Chinese except the priests. Before each of these images is a lot of paper in small squares in the centre of which is a small square of silver foil, a piece of which the priest burns before the god whenever he prays to him. On a table in front of each shrine is a large porcelain bowl full of ashes. It is the custom each night before the priest retires, to stick into the ashes of each of these bowls three or four small sticks about three inches in length and about the thickness of a match, at the end of which is a long pencil of something that looks like punk, but which is a mixture of odoriferous gums, a kind of incense which they light and burn before their gods. They also place some of these lighted sticks in the doorways of their houses at night to keep the evil one away. All the ashes in these basins are the accumulations from the burning of these odoriferous sticks, and this all sent back to China. Everything about the temple is of the rudest kind; they never dust anything, and they appear not to have a great deal of respect for their deities, for they have piles of kindling wood in the corners and even next to a god.

As we made our exit from this temple Mr. Headly held up the light and called our attention to the wall, outside of which was completely covered from top to bottom with strips of red paper about four inches long and one and a half wide with Chinese characters on them. Each of these strips records the name and amount given by each Chinaman to the church last year.

We next visited the abodes of some Chinamen who were smoking opium. As you enter their very small rooms you observe that there are two or three shelves along the walls somewhat like berths on a steamer, but much larger as on each reclines a Chinaman resting his head upon a pillow stuffed with grass, quite square, and a little larger than a brick and about as hard. Near him is lamp of peculiar construction, a small pair of scissors, two knives and one or two stiff steel wires and his opium. In this lamp he heats his opium to dryness, and then places it on the top of his pipe in a dexterous manner, then holds it near the light and keeps it there while he puffs away for a few seconds, holding the smoke as long as he can before ejecting it. They use very little at a time, about the size of half or a quarter of a very small pea. It takes about ten times as long to prepare his pipe as it does to smoke it out.

After this I saw many places dark, dirty and with horrible odors. These people threw everything into the street and alleys and never dust their houses. There are very few Chinese women here, and most of them are low and bad.

As a rule, the Chinese men, here at least, are not a marrying set, and, in fact, care little about those women, virtuous or otherwise, and they take every opportunity of insulting them on the street, and very true we found it that the manner in which the men of a nation treat their women is a true estimate of the civilisation of the nation. In the midst of this apparent condition of universal dirt, it is a fact that the Chinese are exceedingly clean about their persons; most of them, men and women, take a warm sponge bath two or three times a day, and their clothing is always clean. The women look bright and cheerful, and have rosy cheeks.

We next visited a Chinese restaurant, and had some tea in true Chinese style. The room was furnished with Chinese furniture and decorations. At one end was a shelf with a pipe and opium, where you could enjoy an opium smoke, if you desired. The table was covered with a nice, clean, white cloth. In the centre was placed a large wooden tray of biscuits, the shape of our "hot biscuits," but of all shades, from white to dark brown. On the top of each was some figure in odd appearance. Preserved ginger and tea made up the repast. Each of us was provided with a cup of Chinese pattern placed on a metallic stand; also two other cups, not as large as the first; a porcelain spoon, of a peculiar shape, on the inside of which was a red dragon of great length and innumerable teeth and feet, by way of ornament.

The tea leaves are placed in the largest cup; hot water is placed on it and covered with one of the smaller cups turned upside down. After a few seconds, the waiter pours the clear infusion of tea into the third cup, and you drink it without sugar or milk. We did not eat any of the biscuits, but the preserved ginger was very nice, and the tea would have made glad the hearts of the most fastidious ladies' tea party.

A NOBLE WIFE.

During the revolution in Poland, which followed the revolution of Thaddeus Kosciusko, many of the truest and best of the sons of that ill-fated country were forced to flee for their lives, forsaking home and friends. Of those who had been the most eager for the liberty of Poland, and most bitter in the enmity against Russia and Prussia, was Michael Sobieski, whose ancestors had been kings a hundred and fifty years before.

Sobieski had two sons in the patriot ranks, and father and sons had been of those who persisted in what the Russians had been pleased to term rebellion, and a price had been set upon their heads.

The Archduke Constantine was eager to apprehend Michael Sobieski, and learned that the wife of the Polish hero was at home in Cracow, and he waited upon her. "Madam," he said, politely, for the lady was beautiful and queenly, "I think you know where your husband and sons are hiding?"

"I know, sir."

"If you will tell me where your husband is your sons shall be pardoned."

"And shall be safe?"

"Yes, madam. I swear it. Tell me where your husband is concealed, and both you and your sons shall be safe and unharmed.

"Then, sir," answered the noble woman, rising with a noble dignity sublime, and laying her hand upon her bosom. "he lies concealed here—in the heart of his wife—and you will have to tear this heart out to find."

Tyrant as he was, the Archduc admired the answer, and the spirit which had inspired it, and deeming the good will of such a woman worth securing, he forthwith published a pardon of the father and sons.

A drag driven by an elegantly attired lady, and with a trim and neatly dressed colored boy perched on the footman's seat behind, was passing through the streets, when it was espied by an old nego woman. "Bress de Lord," she exclaimed, raising her hands as she spoke "Bress de Lord, I never 'spected to see dat. Wander what dat called young gemman pays dat young white 'ooman fur drivin' dat kerridge? I knowed it'd come, but never 'spected to lib to see it. Dis nigga's ready to go away now.

A fool in a high station is like a man on the top of a high mountain—everything appears small to him and he appears small to everybody.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELL WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS

CURATIVE PROPERTIES PECULIAR TO VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worm, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD

Scrofulous persons are one of the most distressing exemplifications of the evil consequences resulting from the contamination of the blood with the poison of hereditary disease. Some have a running sore, others have pimples, blotches, or boils, while the system is filled with corruption, and ready to be developed by the slightest exposure to cold or impure air. Others, again, are afflicted with rheumatism or neuralgia, and suffer excruciating pain, while every organ is deranged by the scrofulous poison. Many such cases have been cured by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which, by its searching and powerful effects upon the blood, has driven out the hereditary taint, and restored the patient to perfect health. Scrofulous persons should not neglect a remedy which has been tried and proved by the experience of the world, and which, wherever it is known, is regarded as the most reliable antidote for this terrible disease. Even when the scrofula has developed itself in some dreadful form, such as Tumors, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other manifestations of visible forms of Scrofulous Disease. Also in the more concealed forms of Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various grievous affections of the nervous and vital organs of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in families, even where no active scrofulous taint appears, will be found to keep the blood pure, the stomach strong, the liver active, and the whole system in vigorous health, thereby warding off disease and prolonging life. For all Blood Diseases, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores, Scrofula, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Tetter, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Mercurial Diseases, Female Weaknesses, Uterine Complaints, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Neuralgia, Kidney and Liver Complaints, Fits, Epilepsy, Spinal Affections, and all Diseases that arise from Impure Blood, it is the best medicine that can be taken. Prepared by Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass., Practical and Analytical Chemists.

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is in every way desirable, pleasant, and effectual for preserving the hair. [illegible] Faded or gray hair is thickened, and baldness often, but not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands entirely decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a gummy sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It is warranted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Housefurnishing Establishment,

GEORGE STREET.

Is now receiving their Winter Stock of

Stoves, Coal, Coal Oil, Lamps,

And Household Furnishings in General.

The question is repeatedly asked where can you purchase the best and cheapest articles for the least money? The answer is, at the Giant T. How is this? because they get their goods direct, either from the Manufacturers, or leading houses in the Dominion.

COAL! COAL! COAL!

Talk about Coal! Why, there is as much difference in quality as there is between Maple and Slam wood. We have the only Screened Hardwood Coal in the town, which is one of our leading qualities.

COAL OIL! COAL OIL!

What! do you think at LAWRY'S they smile, They open a barrel and give away Oil.

Well, if this be so let no one sit in dark nors the coming winter, but come along and get a plentiful supply while the Oil is flowing.

STOVES! STOVES!

The latest improved patterns both for wood and Coal stoves in all sizes to suit the times. Remember we are selling the new Colonial, combined with Fire-chum underneath.

N.B.—We have lately engaged a First-class Tinsmith, and are manufacturing Tinware, and can only say that our prices will be found as low as any house in the trade. Eavestroughing, Roofing, &c., done on the shortest notice. Remember the Giant T. Sign of the Big Kettle, George street.

GRANNY GREY POW.

BY ALEX ANDERSON, ("BURY-CHEAP.")

Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Fetch the bairnies in;
Bring them frae the stair head
Where they mak' the din.
Chase them frae the washin' pool
Thrang at slippin' stanes—
Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Gather hame the weans.

Bring in Rab to get him wash'd,
Weel I ken the loon;
Canna dae unless he be
Dirt frae fit to croon.
Tam and Walt are just the same,
For a' I tak' the pains—
Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Gather hame the weans.

Fetch my ain wee Jeanie in,
Mammy's pet o' a,
Jamsy, wha age stops about,
And speaks nae much ava.
Bring them to their cosie bed,
There to rest their banes—
Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Gather hame the weans.

Here they come; ill Rab is first
Tam an' Walt ahin;
Jeanie has wee Jamsie's hand,
An' baith begin to rin.
Whaten fuss has they a'—
Dirt laid on in grains!
Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Gather hame the weans.

In they toddle ane by ane:
Weel, what's aye the fash,
Quarrels wi' ill Rab about,
Whase plaid it's for the stule.
Jeanie bathers at my feet,
While sleep upon her gains—
Auld Granny Grey Pow.
I has a' my wants.

Auld Granny Grey Pow,
Stook the door fu' tight,
Na a wean, if I can help,
Gangs out at the door this nicht.
There they lie in cosie beds,
The mom's mark in their hairs
Auld Granny Grey Pow.
Bless my pleasin' weans.

Many a fit we has to gang,
Many a care to dantan;
Joy an' we are thrawn about
In the web we weave
Let us work fo to the en',
Be that life who reigns
May whisper, when life's gloamin' comes,
"Gather hame the weans."

KORN KOBB ON LEAP YEAR.

From the London Free Press.

It is coming, Mr. Editor—the crisis is fast culminating. The signs of the times are pregnant with matrimony.—The winds whisper it, the forests echo it, and the stars tremble for joy. It is leap year, and bachelerdom trembles.—Anno Domini eighteen hundred and seventy six is divisible by four, and unmarried mankind is preparing for squalls. It is an awful thing to contemplate. For a whole year—twelve long months and a day extra—innocent young men, who never knowingly harmed any one, are at the mercy of incendiary females going about seeking whom they may devour—I mean marry. It's a nice prospect for the people of the male persuasion to look forward to.—The traps that will be set for them, the little ambushes skilifully prepared to lead them from the paths of single blessedness. Oh! It's too horrible! Well may the lords of creation shake in their shoes. Well may they shiver and turn pale. The edict has gone forth—"man was made not to live alone."

As I said before, the signs of the times are portentious. Matrimony is looking up, and bachelors are looking down. Swells who were wont to feel well satisfied with themselves, and the world in general, now look ill at ease. They pride themselves no longer on their face or figure. They care no more for the set of their trousers or the cut of their coat. They depreciate their star-lit eyes, and the curl of their whiskers gives them pain. Their strut and swagger has deserted them. They swell it no more. Their pride of manhood has departed, and they sneak along with a miserable hang dog expression pitiful to behold. The spirit of misfortune is upon them. Already they feel that they are doomed. Already they feel their privileges are curtailed.

Already they see a hoop-skirt hanging at the foot of their bed, a pair of stays folded up in their best coat, garters mixed up with their neckties, and unlimited calico hung up in their closet. Already they can discern long bills for silks and velvets, feathers and laces, bonnets and gloves, scent, powder and perfumeries. Already they see their happiness gone, their night key ditto, their brandy and water tabooed, and their cigars dissolved into thin air. All this and a great deal more they foresee, and foreseeing it they tremble accordingly.

Unmarried men, a word with you. The last stroke of the clock, proclaiming the hour of midnight, on the 31st of December, 1875, placed you entirely at the mercy of your relentless foes. The law of the land no longer protects you, the constitution is null and void, and the Magna Charter a dead letter. You're in for it, and will have to make the best of it. If you will take the advice of one who has fished in the troubled sea of matrimony, you may perhaps save yourself some unpleasantness. I have been bagged my

THE TEMPERANCE BILLS.

Dr. Clarke, of Waterloo, has a Bill before the Ontario Legislature to make some provisions for ameliorating the evils of intemperance, and restricting the sale of liquors. Many of the measures proposed are well considered, and will meet with popular favor, but fears are expressed that the law will be a dead letter. To prevent this latter evil, could not the government provide a remedy by making it the duty of some municipal officer to see it carried out and respected. The principle of disqualification for office for three or four years is a good one, and has even more effect than fines and penalties.

A necessity for some Public Guardian or prosecutor has been felt all along. Women with drunken husbands are afraid to become informers, they fear the brutal treatment of their drunken husbands, and they dread not being able to obtain a loaf of bread on credit, as the dealer generally sells both, and can stop the supply of both when he wills. A public guardian whose duty it should be to furnish a list to the township clerk of all who get drunk occasionally. Then make it the duty of the clerk to give legal notice to all who sell or deal in intoxicating liquors in the county, or within four miles of the county, not to sell, give, or allow to be given or taken to or by those persons, under a penalty of fine and loss of license and disqualification to obtain license for a term of years.

Something of this kind would tend to prevent the sale of liquors to those whose appetites are too strong for their reason, and whose families suffer in consequence. At present the law that provides for giving notice is a dead letter, just from fear on the part of those who are made to suffer, and from the dread they have of the name of informer.

THE PUBLIC.

The country is very quiet just now.—There is considerable alarm for the poor during the winter, and different municipal authorities are making provisions for giving employment to as many as they can with a view to assisting them and turning their labor to account also. It is to be hoped that the efforts will succeed by lessen the danger of the suffering, and enable the late president to provide for the demands for bread and fuel until spring opens up other channels of industry.

It is very remarkable that hard as the times are money can be found to secure enough whiskey to make men appear foolish. Can this not be stopped? Can saloons not be closed for a season, at least, and effective means be taken to prevent those who require bread, spending their means on whiskey. Even those who are from time to time employed by the Town Council through charity, can manage to get a bottle of whiskey and get drunk. This could be prevented, and should be, without fear, and those Councillors who will take steps to that end will be public benefactors, and deserve the best wishes of the people generally, as well as of the foolish men who suffer from it.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board met on Tuesday evening.

Present, Mr. Stevenson, chairman, and Messrs. Edwards, A. Smith, McClelland, Robertson, White, Johnston, J. A. Smith and Rutherford.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Two or three small accounts were submitted and ordered to be paid if found correct.

The Secretary was instructed to give Mrs. Flavelle, (by request) a certificate of the time she taught under the Board.

Mr. Smith, chairman of Finance Committee reported payment of accounts, amounting to about $50 in all.

Mr. J. M. Smith advised that all matters of salaries be referred to the committee on appointments for 1876, immediately after their appointment, and let them fix all salaries for the year.

This was agreed to.

Mr. Rowe handed in plans of the Union School building in a very safe state

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the thanks of the Board were tendered to Mr. Rowe for the safe manner in which he had kept the plans.

Mr. McClelland said that no agreement had yet been arrived at in reference to School Sites, but if the Board were agreed as to the kind of building to be erected the committee could report in two weeks.

The prevailing opinion appeared to be in favor of two schools, one for the North and one for the West portions of the town, especially to provide for small children, and that the larger pupils could still attend at the Union School.

Mr. McClelland further said he had made application for the Methodist Sabbath School rooms for the use of the Board for a while, and had not received an answer yet.

The chairman said that the application would be understood, be complied with.

On motion of Mr. J. A. Smith, seconded by Mr. White, The Secretary was instructed to ask the Town Council to provide the funds required by the School Board for the year.

The Board adjourned.

ASHBURNHAM.—Mr. Christy, Liberal, has been returned by acclamation. Mr. Thos White, junr. was expected to oppose him, but feared the result. The fact of four defeats already is no inducement to return another.

TOWN [illegible].

The new council consists of nine of the old council and three new men. The new men are Messrs McClelland, Taylor and Douglas. They are favorably spoken of as good men. Mr. McClelland has been a school trustee for several years, and has discharged his duties on the Board faithfully. He will make an excellent councillor. Mr. Douglass is also said to be firm, and unflinching and careful, and Mr. Taylor is well reported of by the people of the South Ward. Of the old council Messrs Hamilton, Beal and McDonald retired. They were among the most active of the council and fairly discharged their duties. That their successors can retain office a year without blame, would be too much too expect. The Mayor's one error was not wholly his, but even so the business of the year was not more extravagant than that of other years. Mr. Beal was a good chairman of Finance, and although the little item was talked of he kept the rate moderately low, With all their faults let us hope that the new council may be no worse.

TOWN ELECTIONS.

FOR MAYOR.	TOOLE.	EDMISON.
Ward No. 1.	180	76
No. 2.	143	107
No. 3.	181	115
No. 4.	59	66
Total	563	364

Majority for Mr. Toole, 199.

Total votes polled

No. 1, 285, No. 2, 328, No. 3. 332, No. 4, 135. Total 1080.

Several electors have not voted for Mayor, and some it is believed only voted for one councillor. This was to checkmate a little clique to run a "ticket" and by voting for only one candidate the sport was spoiled.

FOR COUNCILLORS.

Ward No. 1.—Cahill, 233; Helm, 190; Taylor, 179; White, 158. The first three elected.

Ward No. 2.—Hopkins, 232; Patterson, 216; McLelland, 169; Lynch, 167. The first three elected.

Ward No. 3.—Douglass, 206; Rutherford, 202; Thornton, 187; Langford, 139; Ritchie, 138. The first three elected.

Ward No. 4.—Dixon, 105; Cook, 93; Elliott, 95; Richardson, 82. The first three elected.

MR. CAUCHON was elected in Quebec without opposition.

BOSS TWEED was believed to be in Lower Canada and detectives followed him several days, but he always eluded them.

MONTREAL.—The protestants of Montreal have organized a protestant defence association, in view of the Oka outrage. It is to be regretted that such a society is needed.

CROMWELL.—A Statue to Cromwell has been erected at Manchester, by a Mrs Heywood. A Colossal Bronze Statue placed on an enormous block of unhewn Stone.

TORONTO.—Mr. Metcalf was defeate in Toronto. He tried during the Catholic Jubilee to sit on a Protestant chair and also on a green one, but got down between them: Deserved it. Both parties forsook him and fled.

ROBBING THE GRAND TRUNK.—Robert Watt has been arested in Toronto, charged with receiving goods stolen from the Grand Trunk storehouse. He got the goods from a fisherman named Adamson.

HOW FOOLISH.—Toronto Divines are disputing about what the Fathers have said or have not said, and how it was said. What does it all amount to? What saith the Lord, is a more pertinent question

RUSSIA.—Stagnation of trade and money stringency has reached Russia. Owned it is said by the indefatigable Yankee. It is a shame to acknowledge that Yankees are more than a match for Englishmen, Frenchmen, Russians and even Canadians.

The Legislature of Spain, Madrid paper, [illegible] has addressed a kind written to King Alfonso of Spain a very friendly letter, promising that on his return from his travels in India, he will be lodged at the "Palacio d'Oriente," Madrid. Another of the sons of Queen Victoria has asked for permission from the Spanish Government to belong to the Royal Staff of King Alfonso in the military operations of the north of Spain.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.—Will meet on the 19th Instant. It is thought the Cabinet will be somewhat changed then, if not soon after, and that Mr. Crooks will take his place as Minister of Education, and Mr. Woods as Treasurer. Mr. Thos. Hodgins to take Mr. Woods place. These may be surmises. Changes if not made at once will take place as they are expected, and adjournment of the House. The wisdom of having a Minister of Education is doubted by some. It is a fancy of Dr. Ryerson's and is with a view to his being the first and last Chief Superintendent of Education. A few years of trial will enable the people to judge of the efficiency of the new scheme, and if found satisfactory it can be retained. Fears are entertained of making our educational institution political, but perhaps those fears are without foundation.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

We have received the following circular which agricultural societies would do well to consider, and as it may not reach every individual interested for and against such a movement, we insert it for the benefit of all our readers:

Port Hope, Dec. 21, 1875

At a meeting of the Central Exhibition Committee, held at Peterborough on the 13th of Oct. last, it was resolved (with a view to perpetuate the Central Exhibition) that all the Agricultural Societies within the Central Exhibition District, should be addressed by circular letter, requesting them at their annual meetings to be held in January next, to appoint delegates to attend a meeting to be held in Port Hope sometime in the following February

By this arrangement the Societies will be saved the trouble of calling a meeting of their directors for this purpose.

It is hoped that the great success which attended the Peterboro Exhibition will be the means of stimulating the Societies both Agricultural and Horticultural with in the district, to a great and united effort, so that the Exhibition of 1876, which by common consent is to be held in Port Hope, shall be still more successful.

A very efficient committee has been appointed by the East Durham and Township of Hope Societies to make preliminary arrangements. Ample grounds have been secured, beautifully situated and convenient. Contracts are being entered into for the erection of a commodious Exhibition Building, convenient stables and sheds for horses, cattle, sheep pigs and poultry and for everything requiring protection and care. The whole to be surrounded by a substantial fence eight feet high.

It is presumed that the delegates will be appointed on the basis that were arranged at Peterboro, i.e. one delegate for every fifty dollars contributed by the society which they respectively represent.

The said meeting of delegates will be held in the Town Hall, Port Hope, on Tuesday, the Eighth day of February, 1876.

I have the honor to be,
Your Obedient Servant,
JOHN FOOT,
Sec. E. D. Ag. Soc'y.

N. B.—You will please lay this communication before your annual meeting, and forward to me the names of the person or persons appointed as delegates

EXAMINATION AND PRESENTATION IN SEC. NO. 3.—On Thursday, Dec. 10th, the semi-annual examination of this school was held in the presence of a large assembly of the friends and neighbors, and was conducted with success. The Rev. Dr. Smithett and Mr. Gilson assisted the master, Mr. John Dobbin, in the exercises, and addressed both parents and pupils. The school house was handsomely decorated. After the examination a splendid and valuable assortment of prizes were distributed, graded in value according to the capacity and proficiency of the respective scholars, but we forbear the invidious task of particularizing on this occasion. After the children had received their rewards an incident took place of a pleasing character, not set down in the programme. The following address, anent the subject, tells its own story:—Ops S. S. No. 3. To MR. JOHN DOBBIN. Dear Teacher,—It is with feelings of regret that circumstances have caused you at last to bid us farewell, and although we feel sad at your departure, we take pleasure in tendering to you our best wishes for your success in the future hoping that you may be long spared to successfully accomplish the tedious and toilsome duties of your vocation. We trust that you will accept this present, not for its pecuniary value, but as a token of our appreciation of your untiring energy and devoted attention in further, ing our practical interests, elevating our moral principles, and faithfully fulfilling all other duties that you were called upon to perform. Signed on behalf of the scholars of Sec. No. 3. EMMA SMALE, CATHERINE MCKINNON, MARY E. O'-HARA. Upon receiving the testimonial, a handsome watch and chain, Mr. Dobbin briefly responded. He said that during the four years he had been among them he had simply done his duty as he understood it, and certainly would never fail to carry about with him this memento, such a mark of their appreciation and favor. He concluded by wishing them the same happiness and success that they had so feelingly expressed in his behalf, and the blessing of god upon them. COM

Narrow Escape.

On Sunday morning, between three and four o'clock, Mr. George Lowry, and his family had a narrow escape from death. Their house is situate on Lot. 3, con. 2. Somerville, and was substantially built of loga. About three o'clock on Sunday morning Mr. Lowrey was awakened by a roaring noise all aro und the house, and on arising found the entire house enveloped in flames, which were just breaking through the logs into the interior. He snatched up a bed containing three children, and carried it out. The opening of the door gave a fresh draught, and with the exception of the second bed nothing more could be got out, all the family being in their night clothes. Mr. Lowrey placed the family on the beds, and Mr. James Foster went off to Mr. Haley's a neighbour, about half a mile distant, for a horse and cutter to bring the suffering family away. The cold was intense, the the thermometer showing about 15 below zero, and before the party could be got to shelter they were badly frozen. Mr. Haley made them as comfortable as circumstances permited, and in the morning Mr. Foster removed them to his own house. Everything in the house was consumed except the two beds.—Bobcaygeon Independant.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Presentation.

A complimentary social was gave to Miss May Shaw on Friday evening, the 24th inst., in the School Room in the place. The room was tastefully decorated with evergreens and appropriate mottos. Many were present and a pleasant time was spent. Miss Shaw has been a good and faithful teacher for the past two years, and as she was about to take her departure her friends throughout the section thought it was their duty to offer her a token of respect for the manner in which she has so ably conducted the school, having always done her utternost to advance the scholars in their studies. They accordingly got up a social to enable them to show that they greatly respected her. Although the weather was unpleasant, it did not prevent her friends from coming to bid her farewell. After all had partaken heartily of the good things provided by the ladies, Mr. James Smith was called upon to occupy the chair. In a brief manner he stated the object of the social and then having called upon the scholars of the school to sing, they sang "We Love Our Teacher," with admirable effect. Frankie Envicott then read the "Old Bachelor." Miss McLean performed some instrumental music with great taste; Miss Hattie Wilson read "Green Joe;" Miss Emma Smith gave some instrumental music in a pleasing manner for one so young; Miss Annie Dent read "About Ice Cream," which was well received; the scholars sang "The Christmas Carol;" W. McLean and F. Mills gave a dialogue, "The Irish Servant," which brought down the house; Miss Smith played instrumental music; Elijah Porter recited "The Kittens;" Miss McLean performed some music which was exceedingly good; Miss Emma Mitchell recited "The Hen and Chickens; Miss Smith played instrumental music; Messrs. J Thompson, Joseph Jones and A. Best each addressed the company and spoke in regard to the able manner the school had been conducted for the past two years, and made some remarks on educational matters, and expressed their regret at losing so good a teacher. Mrs. James Smith then presented Miss Shaw with a very handsome four story cake, ornamented with the motto, "We love our Teacher," on behalf of her children who attended the school. The scholars now came forward and presented their teacher with a handsome set of china accompanied by the following address:—

DEAR TEACHER.—At the close of your labours amongst us, and at the eve of your departure, we, the scholars of School Section No. two, in the Village of Mount Pleasant, have met this evening to express our regret at your unexpected removal from our school as teacher. From the feeling expressed at the meeting called for the express purpose of obtaining the minds of the people in reference to re-engaging you for the ensuing year, which was almost unanimous, we were led to believe that you would continue to labour in our midst, but the fact of your removal teaches us the uncertainty of all things. We shall never forget your kindness, sympathy and encouragement in our school, ever anxious that we should excel in every branch of studies. While we thus grieve over your departure, we trust your mission is the find a field of labour elsewhere. In conclusion accept this token of our regard for you, with the desire that it may call to your remembrance the happy times we have spent in this school room together, and also our fervent wish for your present and future welfare.

Signed.
W. MCLEAN,
S. PATERSON,
ANNIE DENT,
JUNIE BOULTEN.

On behalf of the scholars of the school.

Miss Shaw replied:

DEAR SCHOLARS:—I have spent two happy years in your midst, during that time strong affections have grown between you and me, and it is with extreme regret I contemplate the severing the ties that have bound us together. Love prompts me to wish you every success and happiness earth can bestow, and while you are preparing for this present life may you not neglect that preparation necessary for the higher life, but seek and find while you are school boys and girls. In accepting your beautiful present words fail me to express what my heart desires to say and every time I shall look upon your gift it will with pleasure remind me of my fellow Pleasant scholars and friends. My parting wish for you is that we may all meet in that blessed abode where there will be no parting, no sorrow, and let us each remember to acknowledge Him in all our ways and he will direct our paths.

Signed. MAY SHAW.

The Chairman then called upon Mr. McLean to address the meeting. He obeyed the summons and referred to the success attending Miss Shaw's labours in the school during the term of two years she has been with them. This fact he proved from his own personal examination of the school at different times, and from prizes obtained at the competition examination held in Millbrook in March, 1875, Mount Pleasant school standing second in the Township. He argued that considering the manner in which Trustees conduct themselves towards teachers it is almost a miracle that they succeed at all. He illustrated this by the fact that two of the Trustees of this school, one who has held office for three years, and the other for one year, neither of them visited the school during the time mentioned, either to attend the examinations or to give one word of advice or encouragement to the teacher. How could it be expected that Trustees who discharge their duties in such a manner are competent to say whether a teacher should be re-engaged or not? Such is the nature of the circumstances which have called us together this evening, and is fully explained in the address read by the scholars. No sympathy is manifested toward the teacher although they must know that their work is so very arduous. He concluded by speaking of the beautiful present given to her by the scholars of the section, and also of the large, rich cake given to her by Mrs. James Smith, with the appropriate words inscribed on it in large letters, "We love our teacher." The meeting was then brought to a close by the Chairman calling on the numerous audience to rise and sing "God Save the Queen," which was sung as British subjects only can sing it.

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis Consumption. A Wonderful Cure.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.,

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in the worst form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May '72, had many nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in the New York City, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four ounces bleeding spells at intervals each week, and first three inside of one day. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to to be about, though in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was exceeding worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state raising blood almost daily until about the first of march; 73 when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me no good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understand your business at least. I finally obtained a sympathy of Dr. Pierce's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commended their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my apetite improved, gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no Cough when ever and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhage from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received is a heavy one, which no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise. Respectfully yours

WM. H. SPENCER.

OUR LUMBER REGION AND ACCESS THERETO

A very well executed railway map of that part of the Province of Ontario bounded by Lake Ontario, the Ottawa River, Lake Nipissing, and the Georgian Bay, published by M. Murgach, of Lindsay, has been laid before us The survey lines are all distinctly marked, together with the lakes and water courses which are so abundant in this district; and the railway lines, both completed and projected, are presented with admirable clearness We noticed some time ago the railway extension from Port Hope by way of Lindsay and Haliburton to a junction with the Georgian Bay section of the Pacific Railway, and from thence to the Ottawa river and its junction with the Mattawan, and we appointed out the obvious importance of this line. The map before us shows the distance from Lake Ontario at Port Hope Harbour to the several important points on this line, called the Victoria Railway to be as follows:—From Port Hope to Lindsay by the Midland Railway 33 miles; from Lindsay to Haliburton 52 miles; and from Haliburton to the junction with the Pacific 64 miles, making in all 158 miles from the navigable waters of Lake Ontario to the connexion with the Pacific Railway. The route from the junction with the Pacific by this line to Lake Ontario is shewn to be 47 miles shorter than by the Ontario and Pacific Junction projected line, and to Toronto seventeen miles shorter. It even appears to have the advantage, in distance to navigable water, over the route by the Canada Central to Ottawa; but of course, the latter in the important respect of distance to tide water at Quebec, or ocean navigation at Montreal, must excell all competitors.

The distance to be built from the junction of the Victoria Railway with the Pacific to Toronto, could be materially shortened by merging that line with the Nipissing Railway at Coboconk, the nearest point of contract where the two lines approach to within five or six miles of each other. The importance of the extension from Lindsay northward by way of Haliburton as long been fully recognized. For colonization and lumbering purposes, no line of equal length within the limits of Ontario possesses such promising features. It is projected to pass through the townships of Guilford, Harburn Eyre, Clyde, Nightingale, and from thence through the unsurveyed territory to the Pacific Junction more or minutes by the shortest and most practicable, and likely to be the most productive of traffic of any line by which Toronto can gain a Pacific Junction or access to Lake Nipissing to the western portion of Ontario the importance of this line will appear without argument. The supplies to the Ottawa lumbering country would seek this route, as a matter of course, since it would lie directly through the heart of the lumbering region. And for this same reason that of directness would the lumber and timber produced seek an outlet over this line to navigable water. It will be quite safe to say that the day is not far distant when this line and the Georgian Bay branch of the Pacific will be the inlet and the outlet to a country studded over with steam saw mills, making lumber for our own and the American market; a country, too rapidly yielding to the settler and becoming, in a great measure, both and becoming in a great measure, both in from and substance, more important than what is now practically only a narrow strip of frontier upon Lake Ontario.

The popular route to the American market, for the lumber products of the region owned by this railway, will doubtless be by bay of Port Hope; and if this should prove to be the case, that port must become one of the most prosperous and important on the Lake a Canadian Oswego in fact The Ottawa and Quebec route will of course, maintain its monopoly of the square pine lumber trade, that being much the shorter and cheaper line to the latter port. The timber limits which will be immediately benefitted by this road will be those of Levi Young Bronson & Co., J. R Booth Perley & Patter, Robert and James Skead, and Jonathan Francis, It is impossible at present to estimate the value of these properties, the Georgian Bay Branch of the Pacific and the Victoria, to the lumbering interests of the Ottawa Valley. The capital invested in supplies can be largely diminished in consequence of accessibility to market; while, for the same reason, prompt returns of capital can be made, where, at present, the business is known as a long-winded one. The Victoria Railway, we are told, will make the lumber traffic a specialty, thus affording the lowest possible rates of carriage, and inducing the largest possible flow of traffic We learn upon good authority that the portion of the Georgian Bay Branch of the Pacific Railway, from Douglas to Barn Lake will be under contract within a very few days. This will be good news to poor men in want of employment, and to those who are interested in the speedy prosecution and completion of this important section of a grand scheme of national development.—Ottawa Times

On Tuesday, 21st of December, Elizabeth Jane, a child two years of age, daughter of Mr. John R Stewart, of Renfrew village, lost her life by being accidentally drowned in a tub of water.

A young man by the name of Rogan thought it fine fun to put cayenne pepper on a stove in the town hall when the bazaar was held there. He was fined $5 by his Worship the Mayor, and probably has learned a wholesome lesson.—Sherbrooke "Gazette."

MARKHAM, Dec. 27th.—Yesterday morning about one o'clock, a fire was discovered in the barns of Mr. Thomas Robson of this place. Five large building were entirely consumed, together with thirteen head of cattle, eight hogs, two horses, a threshing machine and a number of other farming implements, also nearly all of last falls harvest of grain; estimated loss, $6,000; no insurance It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Says the Hamilton "Times":—Mr. Macdougall is in a chronic condition of not knowing who he is politically. Sir John Macdonald and Mr. M C Cameron secured his election for South Simcoe. Now Mr. Mowat has brought in a bill to give him a legal title of his seat. He thus becomes the joint property of Messrs Cameron and Mowat. The result will probably be that he will disown both and stand out for himself.

The proprietary of the Ottawa "Times" has changed. Messrs. Maclean, Roger & Co., government and parliamentary printers, having sold the paper to Mr. A. M Burgess, the official reporter of the debates in Parliament, who has been its editor for about a year and a half. We congratulate our talented and genial friend, Mr. Burgess, on the acquisition of such a valuable property as the "Times" and wish him the largest possible measure of success in his new enterprise.

Conscious Conservatism.—The writer that the Conservative journals are making a great ado over some unfavorable comments of two or three Reform journals on M Cauchon, when that gentleman was a colleague of Sir John's. The stupidity of such criticisms is simply amusing. Do the organs remember what they used to say about Mr Wm. Mac dougall some years ago? Surely they cannot have forgotten the abuse they heaped upon that gentleman's devoted head; and yet they now support him as one of the leaders of their party. No public man of his standing in Canada was ever accused of more political crimes by the Tory press. The articles denouncing him would fill volumes. Some of these were published by the leading journals within the last few years. Now the party not only supports him but found him a seat. Yet the very organs that thus weekly follow the lead of the man they for years accused of all manner of political crimes and even of treason itself, profess to be shocked because M. Cauchon has been given a subordinate position in the Ottawa Government.—Consistent organs!—Beacon.

The Toronto Nation "feels considerable satisfaction in being able to state, on indisputable authority, that the charges brought against the integrity of Hon. L S Huntington, in connection with the affairs of the Copper Prices Company, have been formally withdrawn, and that Mr Huntington's character remains entirely free from stain. In pressing for an investigation of the Pacific Railway affair, he rendered the country a great and indispensable, though unpleasant service. The part, we may presume, was not one which he would have chosen for himself; but, being called to it by circumstances, he performed it well. He was straightforward and explicit in his statements; he advanced no charge which he was not able to make good; he persisted resolutely in his impeachment, not allowing himself to be turned from his mark, but at the same time anllying the cause of national justice by no vituperative violence or unseemly altercations—Nor was his task one unattended by danger, as was shown by the attempt at moral assassination which immediately followed, and the final miscarriage of which it gives us pleasure in the interest and for the honor of the country to record

IN A FIX.—The Dominion Government have offered the people of British Columbia $750,000 as compensation for the Nanaimo and Esquimault railway the Bill for the promotion of which was thrown out last session by the Senate, though its passage was strongly recommended by the Home Government. The Opposition organs don't know what to say about this matter, because Sir John and Dr. Tupper voted for the Bill in the Commons, while Senators Campbell and Aikens voted against it in the Senate. It is not very easy to follow such leaders. No doubt the requisite amount of docility and readiness to turn sharp curves is at hand, as usual, but when two members of the defunct Cabinet go one way and other two the opposite, the most obsequious organist must feel considerably puzzled how to act.

A STRANGE BURGLAR.—On Tuesday night occured one of the strangest things in the burglary line that we have heard of yet. Mr. Henry, a clerk in Mackintosh & Stennett's Store, who, together with Mr. Stennett, boards with Mr. Mackie on Albert Street, had retired to his room at about 11 o'clock. Shortly afterwards he heard a step come up stairs and enter the bedroom, but thought it was Mr. Stennett. He laid down the book which he was reading and on looking up was surprised at the apparation of a man standing with a revolver presented at his (Henry's) head, and with a heavy bla lgeon in the other hand. Mr. Henry still thought it was Mr. Stennett and when the man approached his clothes told him "there is no money there" in a joking tone. The burglar threatened Mr. Henry three times though never speaking a word, and at last he went out of the room and touching the knob of an other door when Mr. Henry, still under the belief that it was Stennett, said "dont go in their or you will scare the children." The man then went down stairs, slammed the door as he went out, and fell upon the door step. Mr. Stennett came in shortly afterwards and on being asked, he informed the astonished Mr. Henry that he had not been in, and that it must have been some stranger. The party was of medium stature, had black heavy whiskers. There is no clue as to who he is.—Aurora Banner

The society would again ask kind friends to send in contributions of cast-off clothing, &c., to enable the society to carry on the good work more effectually.

S. S. OPENING.—We have been requested to state that the formal opening of the New Hall in connection with St. Andrew's Church, designed for Sabbath School and other congregational purposes, will take place on Tuesday next, the eleventh inst and will consist of sacred music and addresses. The exercises of the evening will begin at 7.30 o'clock. Admission by ticket 25cts., to be had at the door.

METHODIST CHURCH.—The Sunday services were very successful. A very large attendance at each service and free collections. The church is really beautiful inside, and will be outside when completed; but $60,000 ought to secure a good church. The Social Tea in connection with the opening services have been as successful as could be expected, owing to the very unfavorable weather.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.—On New Year's eve a number of the young people from Zion appointment on the Keene Circuit met at the Methodist Parsonage and presented an address and a beautiful new cutter to their pastor, the Rev. Mr. Wisher. In a few cordial impromptu remarks he expressed his gratitude for their generous and unexpected gift, and his fervent desire and prayer for their future prosperity and welfare.

A REMARKABLE SEASON.—Mr R Goodfellow and sons of North Monaghan, were taking cut timber on the two last days of the year, and being thirsty, tapped a maple tree and drank freely of the sap, and their neighbor George Lockie, had a drink with them. Mr. Goodfellow says he has been fifty-two years in Canada and never saw the tap run so freely at the last of the year This is surely a remarkable season, summer and winter following each other on alternate days.

THE MAYORALITY.—Mr. Toole is the successful candidate, and is therefore Mayor for the current year, by a majority of 190. We must maintain our neutrality and neither express pleasure at his election, nor sorrow at Mr. Edmison's defeat. Either would suit our aims, and as Mr. Toole is the choice of the people let us hope that he will be worthy of the confidence reposed in him. at the end of the year, His greatest error last year was voting a certain $800. But twice that amount could be easily squandered.

SUNRISE TO SUNSET.—On Monday night about 11 o'clock, the new clock lost all power of speech. It is not known whether this was the result of joyfulness at Mr. Toole's victory, or sadness at Mr Edmison's defeat. In many cases excessive joy has had a wonderful influence on the powers of speech. The wind whistling through the tower and playing with the hands produced this unexpected difficulty. Until this end event the hour excellent time. The trouble was removed on Tuesday, and the hours are regularly called clear.

CONCERT.—The Peterborough Philharmonic Society will give a Concert on Thursday, 13th inst. in the old Methodist Church. The programme is a good one, consisting of classic and operatic music. Mr. Hamilton-Smith their excellent music director will make this Concert a success. A plan of the meeting can be seen at Davidson & Co's warerooms.

PRESBYTERIAN YEAR BOOK.—We have received the Presbyterian Year Book and Almanac for 1876, published by C B, Robinson Toronto, and edited by Rev James Cameron Chatsworth. It contains a very full account of the Presbyterian Church of the Dominion, and a brief account of the union The list of the ministers of the church and a large amount of information that every Presbyterian should acquaint himself with, and of importance to every citizen in the country. It is neatly printed, well arranged, and should be secured at once

PRESENTATION.—The men in the employment of Mr. Wm McCullagh made him a New Year's gift of a valuable Gold Chain and Locket on the first day of the year. They assembled at his house quite unexpectedly and Mr. W. J Lamarsh on behalf of the men read the following short address and presented their gift;

To Wm McCullagh, Esq.

Dear Sir,—This being the season of friendly greetings we, your employees, beg to supplement our good wishes for you with a small token of our regard and kind feeling towards you, and beg your acceptance of the accompanying present. Wishing yourself and family a happy new year, we are, yours etc

W. J LAMARSH Foreman, in behalf of the Employees.

Mr. McCullagh in accepting it made some appropriate remarks, thanking them for the beautiful token of their good will towards him and his family, and assuring them that it was his greatest desire to act towards them so that he might be able to secure their respect and remain. After receiving of the hospitality of Mr. McCullagh they left. On Monday evening Mr. McCullagh gave all his men an oyster supper, where a very happy and pleasant time was spent. These tokens of good feeling between employers and employed are manifestations of fair and upright dealing on the part of both, and just appreciation of it, and they tend to make even dull times pleasant and for seasons even more enjoyable and happy

Our California Letter.

ANAHEIM Los Angeles, Dec. 23rd, 1875

To the Editor of the Examiner,

DEAR SIR:—I have not written you for a long time; not that material was wanting but seeing from week to week your columns taken up with election matters, I thought your space would be fully occupied; and I observe you are likely to have still more of it, I think that your election laws are much too cumbersome; the law here I think is simpler In every Election Precinct there are appointed by the Municipal Council, (otherwise called here the Board of Supervisors) three persons whose duty it is to attend at the poll on the day named and be prepared with ballot boxes wherein to deposit the ballots They may employ a Clerk where necessary. The poll is opened one hour after sunrise and kept open until sundown The ballots are of a certain kind of paper, shaded The size is about 3x6 inches. The names of the candidates are generally printed A voter selects the names on the tickets himself. Any name appearing there for whom he does not wish to vote he takes a pen or pencil and draws a line through the name and writes another one in stead. The he must do at least two hundred feet from the poll. Thus, armed with his ticket, the instignia of American Sovereignty, he proceeds to the window, his name is called, and number as per register The Clerk records the name and the ballot is deposited into the box. This register is printed and corrected before the election takes place, and contains a record of the names of all voters in the county, and each name is numbered Any vote tendered can be objected to for cause, at the close of the poll The ballots are counted and entered for the different candidates as they appear on the ballots. The candidates or their agents may be present during the whole proceedings. The ballots actually lists are then enclosed in an envelope and properly sealed and forwarded to the County Clerk who lays the whole papers relative to the election before the board of Supervisors for the County who finally examines the vote and issue certificates to the parties entitled; an appeal will lie from their decision to the County Judge; and how many more appeals are allowed I am not sure, yet I presume as in other cases—so long as money lasts appeals will lie

We have had an election this fall; the State went completely Democrat—and County also In all the speeches that I heard during the canvas which was generally done by Agents, I presume hired for the purpose, no thing but praise on the one side and praise on the other of the parties in or out of office was discussed All were crying for retrenchment; yet no one idea were put forth; it seemed only to be with one party I want to reach the office, and with another put me in as usual a while, you have stolen long enough

I cannot say much more at present but in my next will tell you about the crops of last year

The weather just now is pleasant, four inches of rain fell here on the last of October which brightened everything so that now the whole country is clothed in green. So far this year we have had no frost or cold or windy days in fact a year such as house the other day I noticed a good many little fellows wearing no hat and seem determined that this will show you the state of the weather as well as if the glass was in the stands.

In conclusion I wish you the compliments of the season, as well as my old friends in your town and County.

Yours, &c.,

JOHN HUNTER.

MONTREAL, Dec 24.—The whole of the barracks on St Helen's Island were destroyed by fire to night with the exception of the basement, which is fire-proof and bomb proof. INFECTION.

The process by which disease is usually conveyed from one person is termed infection and the means by which infection is carried are often very curious.

In Scotland a servant girl fell ill with scarlet fever, and died. Her "kist" or trunk, containing her clothing, was sent home to her relations. On the way it lay some weeks at a station on the railroad. The children of the ticket agent played about it, and were soon struck down with scarlet fever. Its contents were finally dispersed as presents amongst the relations of the deceased girl, and where ever they were taken in scarlet fever found its victims. The only good resulting from the prevalence of the fever was that it afforded a barrier to a more virulent type coming from another quarter. As reaching this village the latter wave was arrested, persons being very rarely attacked a second time.

Infection is sometimes carried by animals. A gentleman, who lost two children by malignant scarlet fever, made great search for the origin of the disease. For a long time he could discover nothing. At last it appeared that a pup with which his children had played had been reared in a house where there was scarlatina, and had carried the ptienons matter in his woolly hair.

Causes and Results of the Herzegovinian Rebellion.

It is not the first time in this country nor will it be the last, that the world will look with pity and sadness on the vain efforts of christian provinces and people, bound politically under the Osman yoke, to rise and free themselves from tyranny, and the crushing incubus of Mohammedan rule. They are left by their fellow christians to struggle alone, and if brave, and determined in their resistance, they are finally crushed in the end. Thus Poland, Hungary, Crete, and the insurrection under Tabalowski, were all symptoms of the same national disease, out of which grew this last and now almost finished revolt in the north west Provinces of Turkey. This ungodly subjugation and enslavement was most readily in the utter incapacity of the Turkish government to develope the resources of these subjugated provinces, and in the advance of civilation in the development of every branch of industry to secure for their own subjects a position at all comparable with that of peoples immediately contiguous. These things have been felt the most keenly of late by the inhabitants of the wild and half deserted provinces of Albania, Bosnia, and Herzegovina. It is the crushing poverty of these regions, which along with miserable harvests and oppressive tribute, drives them to desperation, and into revolt against a Government, which neither attempts nor cares to relieve them.

This fact explains the reason why Mohammedan Begs took part in the last rebellion. This was the case, however, only in Herzegovina, not in Bosnia. The Mohammedan Bosnians starve, but never grumble, because they know that every struggle will only increase their wretchedness. They have nothing to lose. The marvellous improvement in the condition of Servia, the rapid advancement of Montenegro, awakened in the breast of these poor Christain people, the hope that the fellow Saxonians in Russia and in the great Austrain empire, under whose sceptre so many millions of their race lived and flourished in peace and prosperity, would take pity on them and come to their rescue, if they would rise to free themselves. Too late they learned that they had made a mistake in their calculations. Austria and Russia certainly hold in their hands the fate of these Christian peoples. But they were not yet in a position to utilize the rebellion in Turkey. In Austria the predominant feeling is at present against all enlargement of the slavonian element on that side of the empire. Russia has not finished and indeed is not in a position to finish her European war. She has too much to do with her own internal affairs, especially serious is the socialistic fermentation which grows more threatening every day. The great powers try to satisfy the demands of humanity by a conference of the Consuls, to which never makes comes all the way from Constantinople to Mostar, laden with propositions and promises of reform. The excellence and value of these reforms on paper no one understands better than the diplomatists of Turkey, who have carried on ever since 1856 a most splendid business with that sort of Capital. And that some business will be carried on in the same way until Turkish misrule is ended by some conqueror of the future, who will put the whole thing into other hands, and re-adjust the map of Europe. This most desirable end was frustrated in 1860 by the stupid interference of France and England, who have seen their shortsightedness when it was too late to mend matters.

A sad winter lies before the poor Herzegovinians. We cannot but sympathise with them, foolish as their rebellion may have been. Better than any conference of consuls would have been a European committee of help, as proposed by old Lord Russel. Here is a field for christian activity, and work of faith, in the improvements of which the christain people of Europe and the world should unite, especially as this great shame of the 19th century becomes more apparent— that the great power of the world can do nothing to save the whole provinces in favored Europe from the deepest moral, political material misery and degradation.

WOMEN haters—Women.

Newsreading—To the poor, all things are poor.

SHEARS to produce short crops—Barbers' shears.

How much does a fool usually weigh?—A simple ton.

You need write but one single letter to make Mary marry.

WHEN are wounds like ironclads?—When the heal over and disappear.

Mothers think very well of a girl until they discover that she is going to marry their son.

A LITTLE boy at Sunday School being asked, "What is the chief end of end man?" replied, "The end that's got the end on."

WHAT'S the difference a betting man and a gravel digger?—One "takes to the spade" and the other "spades it up."

INVIOLABLE fidelity, good humor, and complacency of temper outlive all the charms of a fine face, and mane the decay of a farthing.

BAYLE was asked if women could keep a secret. "There is one secret," said he, "that is the only one they can keep—their age."

CALL a lady a "chicken," and ten to one she is angry with you. Tell her she is "no chicken," and twenty to one she is more angry still.

"So," said Mrs. Podgers, very pleasantly; "if I go into the country, Mr. Podgers goes with me. This city ain't no safe place to leave a man alone in.

In this country there is this undeniable advantage to the bearer of a title—be he ever so great a fool or knave he may be always sure of a dinner somewhere.

It may seem paradox, but it is nevertheless a truth, that, hit a man upon whatever part of the body you will, the blow is sure to go against his stomach.

HOUSEHOLD AND FARM.

A LITTLE camphine dropped between the steel and stopper of a glass bottle will render the latter easily removed if jamed fast.

WHEN insects work on the roots of house plants, put a few drops of carbolic acid in a cup of water, and pour it around the roots.

To prevent hard soap, prepared with soda, from crumbling the brin may be in a mixture of rosin soap, beef tallow and wax.

Oysters never turn an omlet while trying as that will make it heavy and tough. When done, brown it by holding a red hot shovel or salamander close above the top.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.—It is asserted that this painful disease may be cured by bathing the parts affected with oil and saltpeter—half an ounce of pulverized saltpeter in half a pint of the oil.

To wash linen, put in the water a little dissolved pipeclay; it will give the dirtiest linen the appearance of having been bleached, and cleans more thoroughly with one half the labor, and one-forth the soap.

BUTTER is composed of fat and a little albumen. When the temperature is raised the albumen acts as a ferment and decomposes the fat, convorting it into acid—butyric. This is soluble in water. No matter how rancid your butter, it may be made perfectly sweet by washing.

IF you get a fishbone in your throat and sticking fast there, swallow an egg raw; it will be almost sure to carry down a bone easy and certainly. When as sometimes happens by accident, corrosive sublimate in swallowed, the white of one or two eggs will neutralize the poison, and change the effect to that of a dose of calomee.

CEMENTS FOR RANDERING CORKS TIGHT.—The corks should be brushed several times with a mixture of a solution of shellac, of the consistency of syrup, prepared by the aid of heat, and with a similar solution of esontchouc in benzine, separately prepared; care being taken that one coat is perfectly dry before another is laid on.

TO REMOVE GREASE FROM LEATHER.—Apply the white of an egg to the spot and dry in the sun, or mix two tablespoonfuls of oil of turpentine, half an ounce of mutton suet melted and the same quantity of lighted mustard, add a little vinegar and rub the mixture tubbing it in well dry. This preparation will improve the appearance of soiled leather-bound books.

REMEDY FOR ASTHAM.—Either tincture of, then [illegible] A teaspoonful to be taken whenever the symptoms are urgent. Tincture of lobella or ipecac is very good when there is considerable stricture and difficulty in breathing. There are a great many remedies for this disease a light nutritious diet is the main thing to observe, and to avoid all kinds of stimulating drinks.

TO REMOVE STAINS FROM MARBLE.—Make of very strong lye and unslacked lime a mortar, with which cover the stain thickly and leave it on six weeks. Wash it off perfectly clean, and rub hard with a brush dipped in a lather of soap and water. Polish with a smooth, hard brush. Or—pulverize a little stone blue with four ounces of whiting, mix them with an ounce of soda dissolved in very little water and four ounces of soft soap, boil the mixture quarter of an hour over a slow fire, stirring constantly; lay it on the marble with a brush while hot, and let lie halt an hour; wash it in warm wato with flannel and scrubbing brush and wipe it dry. When turned yellow, marble may sometimes be whitened by whitened by occasionally wetting it with weak lime water.

MANURE FOR GRASS. No crop gets less attention than grass. If manured at all, it is only incidently with some other crop—rarely for itself alone. Corn, wheat and barley get the manure, and when seeded the young clover takes what is left. After that, if the field be pastured, the droppings of animals left in lumps over the field, are all that the lands get till ploughed again. This is considered improving the soil: and it is. No matter how mismanaged clover is a benefit, and whatever else he may do, the farmer who sows and grows clover, is making his farm better. What, then, might not the result be if the same care were taken of the clover field as of other crops? It does not need cultivating, the long, deep reaching roots mellow and pulverize the the soil as nothing else can. If the clover grows thriftily, the top acts as a mulch, shading the ground and keeping it moist. A crop of two tons or more of clover, whither ploughed under or cut for hay, can hardly fail to leave the soil better than it was before. It should be the farmer's aim to grow the largest possible crop of clover. A slight dressing of gypsum—one hundred pounds per acre in early spring—often produces wonderful results. But if a farmer has a little well rotted manure, the scrapings of barnyards, fall in the time to apply to it. Clover is often injured by [illegible] in winter and a very slight covering of manure will afford a great deal of protection. Rich earth from corners of the fences is well drawing a short distance on young clover, provided the ground is hard and firm. If the field is not to be moved next season, coarser manure can be used.—Country Gentleman.

SAW SETTING.—After filing a saw place it on a levelboard and pass a whetstone over the side of the teeth until all that were [illegible] them. This will make the saw cut true and smooth, and it will remain sharp longer. The saw must be set true with a saw-set.

DETAIL HARNESS.—When you think of buying harness, examine the leather of the hame strap and the near tuck of the throat latch, and likewise of the crupper. If these ends are of slazy stuff, calculated to squash the plauge you will be trying to take them enter their loops, don't buy. The man who cut the harness did not have the interest of the purchases in his mind. At three seperate and distinct scowls for such bungling the harness would be dear as a gift. And most likely faults and oversights run through the entire rig.

A NEW CEMENT.—A French chemist is said to have succeeded in preparing a mineral compound, said to be superior to hydraulic lime for uniting stone and resting the action of water; it becomes as hard as a stone, is unchangeable by the air, and is proof against the action of acids. It is made by mixing together 19 pounds of sulphur and 45 pounds of pulverized stoneware and [illegible] exposed to a gentle heat, which melts the sulphur, and then the materials stired until it becomes thoroughly homogeneous, when it is fit for use, cements as with asphalte. If needful, it may be rendered [illegible] by using a gentle heat. The whole mass melts at about 248 degrees F. At 290 degrees F. it becomes as hard as stone, and preserves its solidity in boiling water.—J.F.W.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE. FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS

THOUSANDS PROCLAIM VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored, viscid matter, with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove to a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Painters, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

[illegible] Purgative [illegible] combined [illegible] a cathartic medicine [illegible] they before [illegible] adapted [illegible] in general [illegible] and among [illegible] disease, as little [illegible] but efficient purgative [illegible] The obvious reasons [illegible] that a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that is, never fails. Brought near [illegible] its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Their operation by their powerful influence on the internal viscera purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Langour and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the disease or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild purge is usually necessary.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppressions a large dose should be taken, as it restores the required effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

As an occasional dose it stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous in cases where no serious derangement exists. Every one will occasionally feel, often times, that a dose of Pills makes him feel decidedly better. For such a case [illegible] is the best medicine ever used.

NEW YEAR AND OLD.

BY THOMAS HOOD.

The World Speaks.

Good thou mayhap hast wrought us,
But we grow weary now the end to near,
And so think most about the ills you brought us:
Die, then, old year!

Back to His cradle we catch thee,
By stretching forth a hand to keep thee here,
Think'st thou that we should care from down to snatch thee?
No! die, Old Year!

Come then for when we're waiting—
Mate of the noon, child whose birth we cheer:
Thou shalt find welcome thine arrival letting:
Come, then, New Year!

Hark, how the glad bells greet thee,
Ringing with silver tongues so sweet and clear!
Behold how all our homes go footer to meet thee!
Welcome, New Year!

The New Year Replies:

Heard I not bonus upbraiding?
I saw a dim shape from your presence hurl'd;
Ere long I too must fade as that is fading,
Ungrateful world!

Think not to win a blessing
By selfish hopes in honey-speeches furl'd;
I go my way, and heed not your caresses,
Old cold hard world!

The voice of the old year is heard:

Not within my bestowing
Were moments sunn'd with joy, or sorrow pearl'd
I lived with you—I loves you—I am going:
Farewell, false world.

A COOL MILLION.

'A cool million!' said Mrs. Archibald of New York, oracularly. 'I know it is not less than a cool million.' She was very exact, you will observe, in stating the precise amount of this large sum of money.

She ment John Warbeck's fortune, made in Colorado, with which he was now on his way, after long years of absence, to his sist r's home. There certainly never was a family in such a state of excitement over an approaching event as was ours now. Nothing else had been talked of for weeks. The only person who appeared the least bit calm was Mr. Archibald; but then he, you know, was a nonentity.

After his wife had spoken on the above words he folded up the letter he had been reading, sheathed it in its envelope, and resumed his breakfast.

Mrs. Archibald eyed him impatiently for some time, and then said, rather severely, 'Well, Mr. Archibald, if you can find time to tell me, I should like to know what my brother John says When will he arrive? Pray do not choke!'

'To-morrow morning,' answered the old gentleman; 'but not with a cool million.'

'Something very near it, then—only a little less.'

'Considerably less, my dear—a twenty-dollar note.'

'What! Please talk sensibly, Mr; Archibald. I hate jokes and riddles. I don't understand them.'

'He says he never had more than two hundred thousand dollars, and that he lost last week in St. Louis as early. You know his weak point. He always would play. Everybody gambles at the mines. He sat up two days and two nights over the game they call faro, and left the table with fifty dollars in his pocket. When he arrives he will have about twenty. He intends to begin the world again, and I suppose we shall have to take care of him till he can get an opening.'

Mrs. Archibald had turned deadly pale. She seized her husband's letter and hastily read it through. Yes, it was quite true; and John Warbeck was coming back, after so long an absence, just as he had gone—a beggar.

'Very well,' said his affectionate sister; 'I'll take care to teach the gentleman that this is not the almshouse.—He always was a fool; but he shall find that I am not one, at any rate.'

Fannie eyed her ma with some curiosity. All the past week she had heard nothing but praises of Uncle John's shrewdness and industry, and pr ticularly of his self-sacrifice and good sense in never marrying.

'If anything should happen, my love, he is old, you know, and has led a wearing life—it would—would distress me beyond measure. I should never recover, I fear. But, you see, Fanny, everything—positively every penny he has—would go to you. You must be very attentive to your uncle, darling.'

So mamma had previously often said, and now the charge of sentiment was as startling as it was sudden. Instead, the new instructions were, 'Your uncle has no claim upon us, child. You must take very little notice of him.'

Fanny was a pretty, and also a good girl, and she felt much distressed at the idea of ill-treating her poor old uncle; and so, when Lucina Mallory came that evening she confided everything to him. Lucina was her admirer, under strong protest from the maternal head of the house, and his pecuniary prospects were at present rather dismal; but he was allowed to visit the young lady once or twice a week, strictly as a friend. And I think it needs no assurance to tell us that the two young people were not dreaming of any such thing as marriage. As to the ring in the little trunk upstairs, kept always locked up, where it came from or what it meant, I express no opinion.

'I doubt it would be a shame, and, really, a sin, Fannie,' said Lucina, firing up, for he was young and chivalrous. 'If you must twist the old gentleman coaly in public—I mean before your mamma—you ought to let him know the reason in private.' And this is just what Fannie determined to do.

So, the next morning Uncle John arrived. He was tall, and big-boned, and gray, and certainly very rough in his appearance; but he had an honest, smiling face, and a wonderfully hearty way about him, that certainly would have won the kindness and sympathy of almost anybody except Mrs. William Archibald.

William Archibald himself shook hands with the old man, and was rather cordial despite the threatening eye of his wife, but she was grand and dignified, and assuredly so startled in her bearing that his meaning could not be understood.

When Fannie kissed her uncle, her mamma's fingers tingled to inflict a certain nursery chastisement long disused; but the elder lady commanded her temper, and only said, 'Fanny, you have not watered the flowers, I think.'

Uncle John seemed rather surprised. He had received reams of letters from his sister Clara, imploring him to pay his long promised visit; and how he boasted to his friends of the kind hearts that were beating with so much warmth and good feelings towards him!

'They will eat me up if he had said, over and over—his corded and weather beaten face radiant with happy anticipations. 'It makes a fellow feel joyous to think there's somebody cares for him. Let's wind up again, boys.'

I fear it was because he was entirely too well wound up that he parted with his money so speedily in St. Louis.—But he did not care now!

'I've a home and good friends to take care of me the rest of my life,' he said, and this speech considerably annoyed the gentleman who heard it, for they remarked amongst themselves, 'That old fogey has piles of money hidden somewhere. What we've won isn't a drop in the ocean. Let's go for some more.'

But uncle John declined to play again, and nothing could persuade him to break his resolution. He went to bed and had a good rest, and then, as we know, started at once for his sister's

He was surprised, as has been said, and not without cause. He really could not understand it. Had he omitted any polite form in his reintroduction into civilized society, or was the whole matter merely fancy, after all? No; certainly that hauteur and those cold monosyllables were an unpleasant reality as one could experience; and that neglect by the servants, that consignment to the stuffy little attic in the back building, that second table and those cold dishes—these were the grimmest kind of facts. So, in a day or two poor Uncle John was perfectly miserable. No one had anything to say to him, and he moped in his miserable little den alone, wishing he had remained at the mines, at St. Louis, anywhere rather than have come here. But one evening there was a tap at the door, which interrupted the most dismal reverie he had yet had, and who should enter but miss Fannie!

She threw her arms around the old man's neck, and began to cry a little, and he, rather bewildered, responded by such words as he could command and presently she said, 'Oh, Uncle John, what must you think of us all? You are treated so badly! I am going to tell you the truth, dear Uncle John, it's mamma's fault. Lucina says it's a sin and a shame, and so it is, and I won't encourage or take part in it.'

There was a good deal more sobbing, rather unintelligible and very afflicting to the listener, but the truth soon peeped out, and John Warbeck, in a flash, saw it all.

The revelation was the greatest grief of his life. His sister, the pretty, kind Clara of long ago, changed to this!

'She loved my money, and not me,' he thought. 'It's worth a quarter of a million, and in me, to find out a thing like this. Now, what shall I do about it?'

Fannie's countenance soon cleared up, seeing he was more cheerful; and so they talked a long time in the soft twilight of the little room, and she told him, as he tenderly smoothed her pretty hair, a little secret. It was of course something in regard to Lucina. She and Lucina were secretly engaged to be married.

'And you see this pretty ring, Uncle John? Well, he gave me that—isn't it beautiful?—and it's a pledge, you know, of his fidelity and truth.—We are going to wait for each other ever so long?'

And truly they were if poor

PETERBOROUGH, JAN 13, 1876.

RELIGION AND THE WORLD

The dividing line between the world and the church of 1876 is not as easily discovered as the friends of true religion could wish it to be Not unfrequently do we hear the strongest condemnation almost anathemas, pronounced against the mixing of the two sets of principles. But the practice and preaching of even the denouncers of the alliance differ so, that their sincerity is often questioned.

In Lower Canada the church is now, and has for many years been, ruling the state, and its manifestations of worldly mindedness are so easily distinguished, that no one can mistake which set of principles predominate. But, of course, all for the church.

In Ontario, the settlement of the Clergy Reserve question and the accompanying discussions anent that difficulty betrayed the strong worldly leanings of Episcopalians and their determination ever since, with a few honorable exceptions, has been to maintain the corruption of the body politic at the expense of decency and morality in that body. Witness how unitedly they went to the polls for the whole Pacific Scandal gang, and how earnestly they await the return to power of that prince of political smashups, their darling idol, Sir John.

The grants to denominational colleges largely demoralized the sensibilities of the Methodist church. The loss of a few thousand dollars a year, alienated their affections from those who were fighting the country's battles, and they allied themselves with the enemies of justice and fair play, and have ever since largely gloried in the alliance with any set of men that would punish the party who sought to establish equal rights to every man and for every association, but favors to none.

At the present almost all, nay, may we not say ALL the churches are satisfied to maintain the liquor traffic in their midst for the sake of the thousands of dollars it is bringing into the treasury, and in too many cases for the sake of the gratification it affords to those whose appetite for it is stronger than their devotional feelings and much stronger than their love for the Head of the Church. Let any one stand and watch them slipping into saloons to gratify that appetite, and try if he can discover the dividing line between men of the world and members of the church, with exceptions of course.

Only one Minister in Peterboro was bold enough to denounce the custom of New Year's treating and wining "callers", which has done its part towards defacing the lines that ought to separate the world and church, meaning the members thereof.

The deepest struggle for clerical supremacy that now prevails, (can it be said, in all the churches?) proves conclusively the strong love of honor, position and advantages that has usurped the place of more elevated sentiment and the obstinacy with which supposed divine rights are contended for, indicate a tendency toward worldly things that requires correction. This struggle for clerical supremacy must be met, not by the people assuming to Lord it over God's heritage, but by a fixed and steady determination to maintain their rights and to confine those who assume to be more spiritual, to spiritual matters exclusively. To this end men must prepare for the coming struggle and be ready to oppose the inroads of principles at variance with the rights of free and open discussion, with the right of private judgement and with the non-intermingling of religion and the world.

When we consider how far men clothed with sacerdotal power can err from the path of duty, like other men, how they can go to gregeries and other such places to canvass for pet parties, how they unite with that which they denounced but a few weeks ago or, years at most When we find them ready to use excommunication, threatenings and persecutions to attain their ends, then without reference to party men must unite for principles more dear to them than the the success of John A or A McKenzie, and the scourge the wise heads amongst men see this the better will it be for this Canada of ours.

We cannot return to the mistake of John A McDonald, but we cannot allow any other party to drag us into the mud and mire through which John A McDonald dragged his party: and we cannot permit an alliance of the state with any set of men whose object we believe to be self aggrandizement, or power to crush the people under the iron heel of any species of despotism, whether lay or clerical.

PUBLIC CHARITY.

Our Town Council have been seized with a fit of charitableness, and are devising means by which those who may be in need of assistance could be aided by giving them employment. This is praiseworthy, and should be cautiously encouraged. There is, however, a difference of opinion as to how those who need it can be employed and aided.

One plan is to obtain stones from some source and employ men in breaking them. There are about four loads in a cord of stones, these would cost about $1.50 a load or $6 a cord. This would go into some farmer's pocket who does not need it. A man would rank about two to three loads daily—but suppose the less number two loads for which he would get about 75cts or about one-eighth of the money expended. Now that would be dispensing charities, truly.

Another scheme is to crib the head of the Little Lake and fill in the road or street way with stumps from some adjoining lots, and for this some one in the neighborhood has offered to put in stumps at half what the labor will cost How many of the suffering class have stumps to dispose of? and how many of that class would be employed in hauling the stumps to the place? not three.

The third scheme is to construct roads and build bridges. This is the best plan of the three proposed. A road down the valley of the Midland Railway to Fraserville would shorten the distance to South Monaghan and South Cavan several miles, and would employ several of the very class requiring aid. By shortening the distance trade is invited to Peterboro, and all our people would be benefited.

Rose's Bridge should be rebuilt as soon as possible, and inducements held out to the eastern part of South Monaghan to come here to trade.

If there are hills to be cut down or hollows filled, let the Council get this done if they can advantageously. But the giving of about five dollars out of every six expended, to farmers to draw stones, while our whole town sits on magnificent beds of gravel, savors of folly

Tenders for Cedar are also issued. Now how much cedar have the poor to dispose of? and how much labor would building piers afford those who require labor or money to assist them through the winter? The attempt to provide labor appears to be more an attempt to gain favor than to, aid the poor, except so far as the roads proposed or the cutting down of hills is concerned. But it is really foolish to set men at breaking stones unless the parties are criminals. Would it not be as well to afford relief as has been done in the past?

A question arises out of this charity matter, viz. How many are seeking assistance or require it? Committees have been appointed to find out, but they will tend to invite applications for aid rather than afford it. Two ladies would find out the cases of suffering and afford the necessary aid without such a bleat of trumpets as a pompous Committee will be sure to make.

MURDER IN HAMILTON.

Hamilton seems to be the abode or, a haunt of some of the roughest characters in this Dominion. Scarcely a week passes without the recital of a murder, a highway robbery, a burglary or something to give cause for alarm. A shocking murder has been perpetrated this time, in a most beastly and fiendish manner.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Nelson Mills, a prominent and an old and respected citizen was murderously assaulted by Michael McConnell, a butcher in the market. McConnell is a tenant of Mr Mills and was in arrears for rent. A landlord's warrant was issued and executed by Bailiff Smith. McConnell' wife went down to the market and told her husband. After hearing the particulars, he said that he would fix him, at the same time he sharpened his knife, the blade of which is eleven inches, put it up his sleeve and drove up to Mr. Mills' house on George Street. The latter came to the front gate to see him, and after a few remarks McConnell stabbed him in the shoulder and face. Mr. Mills turned round to go to the house and fell. McConnell then stabbed him in the stomach and divers other places while he was prostrate. He then deliberately wiped the blood from the knife on his sleeve, and coolly walked away.

Bailiff Smith and Detective McPherson went in pursuit of him and arrested him in his house. Upon being arrested he said he wanted to teach Mr. Mills how to behave himself. Upon his person the knife and revolver were found Mr. Mills has since died.

McConnel's character is not such as to warrant his being at large Although he may not be convicted of murder, he will be placed out of the way of committing acts of such a character again.

QUID PRO QUO

The Conservatives are generally (?) immaculate, they make no impure, unjust or selfish contracts They support the candidates for popular favor on their real merits, they never propose their assistance to secure any personal or local favor, and never when in power get things legalised to secure local or personal support. They are the incorruptable, the salt of the earth, yet the following may be read with interest;

"The Quebec Conservatives have been making a proposition to Mr Cauchon Before the nomination of Mr. Tarte, his present opponent, promised that he would not appear as a candidate if Mr Cauchon would sign a paper pledging himself that the Graving Dock would be built where it would do most good to the city of Quebec. Not only was the proposition a thoroughly dishonest one, but had Mr Cauchon signed such a paper and been elected by acclamation, the probable result would have been that his election would have been voided and he himself disqualified Of course he refused to assent to the corrupt Tory proposition, and now Mr Tarte opposes him and assigns as one reason therefore that Mr Cauchon has refused to pledge himself to act for the special interests of Quebec city. These are the kind of gentlemen who hold Mr Cauchon to be the chief of sinners, while at the same time they propose to him something worse than with all his past transgressions he has ever been guilty of. Bad as he may be, he is not yet quite bad enough to suit the Quebec Tories."

PUBLIC MEETING.

The Liberal Visitors interviewed the Ontario Government on the 6th inst. Hon Frank Smith introduced the members of the Association. They met for:

That closed Taverns on Saturday night be abolished

They want the Crook's Act to remain in force.

That Inspection be not confined to ones, and that Licenses be only granted to parties having full accommodation.

That character should be the test of an applicant's success for License.

That parties holding a license and convicted for violation of the law be fined for the first offence, lose their license 60 days for the second offence, and for the third offence that they be cancelled altogether

That parties drinking intoxicating liquor at unlawful times or under unlawful circumstances be fined as well as the person who sells the liquor.

And then they add "Let everyone change his own conscience with the solemn duty of enforcing the law." But if a man's conscience be seared, or if he possess no such faculty, what then?

The deputation remarked that there are 1,000 houses selling liquor in Toronto without license, that there is more drunkenness on Sundays than on all the other days of the week together, that liquor is taken to boarding houses and drank.

That Grocers sell liquor to their customers and allow it to be drunk on the premises.

Are these not strong arguments in favor of Prohibition.

QUEBEC has organized a Protestant Defence Association.

YORK COUNTY.—A convention has been held at Richmond Hill with a view to passing the Dunkin Act in the County.

THE OTTAWA PARLIAMENT will meet for despatch of business on the 10th of February.

OTTAWA.—Owing to the excitement over the Municipal Elections in Ottawa, there was a trifling row, and the Returning Officer held a second days polling.

THE GAZETTE was not published on the 1st Instant, as Mr. Hands' hands were seriously indisposed through disease of the throat, a good and valid reason, as man's hands can't do much without sufficient ventilation.

PACIFIC R. R.—The engineers who have been engaged for the past year surveying the line of the Canada Pacific Railway, working east and west, met on Christmas Day at Battle River, in the Saskatchewan country.

REACTION.—The Conservative County of Argenteuil has been carried by a Liberal, D. Christy. Where is Mr. Carnegie's Conservative reaction? It must be oozing out in Argenteuil, when Mr. White had to leave it for one more congenial to his wishes.

PUBLIC CHARITIES.—The Globe says, that, in Toronto, "there is a trace of suspicion that indiscreet philanthropists are pushing many people to apply to the House of Industry for assistance when it is scarcely needed." This may be the case in other places where charities are represented as required.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—The Official Gazette, issued this afternoon, contains the announcement that Parliament is called together for the despatch of business on the 10th of February, proximo. This intelligence will be received with satisfaction by the residents of the Capital.

MINISTERS' SALARIES.—The London Free Press (Opposition) is in favour of increasing the salaries of the Ontario Ministers, so that they may be able to devote themselves more entirely to their Departmental duties. It urges that this is a question "not of politics but of justice."

NORTH RENFREW.—The writ for the election of a member to represent North Renfrew in the House of Commons was issued last evening. The nomination will take place on the 14th. Mr. Irving Registrar of the county, is appointed Returning Officer.

TAXING CHURCH PROPERTY.—The Roman Catholic Bishops of Quebec have issued a pastoral defining their position against taxing church property. Opposition to this just principle is useless. If it does carry now, it will only require a year or two to educate the people to the justice of it and then will follow the taxation of all property for municipal purposes. It must come to this.

QUEBEC.—It is stated that important changes will soon take place in the Quebec Cabinet. Hon. Mr. Chapleau is to enter the Cabinet taking the place of the Hon Mr. Malhiot, who will retire. Hon. Mr Robertson, Provincial Treasurer, will be appointed Railway Commissioner, and will be succeeded by Mr. Baker, Missisquoi. The present speaker of the Legislative Council, Hon. Mr Lemaire, will be succeeded by Hon. Dr. Ross.

THE OPPOSITION IN ONTARIO.—Our contemporary, the Kingston Whig, calls attention to the position of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature at the adjournment of the House, and contrasts that position with what was predicted by the Opposition journals after the elections.—even Hon Mr. McDougall has not wanted them to promote their anticipated journey across the floor of the House, and it is quite evident that the opponents of Mr. Mowat's Government are as far off from the "promised land" of power and patronage as they were four years ago.

WINE AT COMMUNION.—A religious vote for Alcoholic Wine:—Another and a peculiar phase of the "unfermented communion wine agitation" was enacted in the U. P. Presbytery lately. For some time past, difficulties have existed between two of the elders of Leviathan Road U. P. Church—Mr. John Jeffrey and Mr. John S. Macadam—and the remainder of the Kirk Session, regarding this subject. The matter was brought before the last U. P. Synod, and a somewhat equivocal resolution adopted. The two elders named contended that by this resolution they and those who supported their views should be supplied with unfermented wine at the communion. The remainder of the Kirk Session rejected this interpretation, and refused to furnish the wine desired Consequently, at the communion service, the two elders left the table while the wine was being served, Mr Jeffrey declaring that he could not partake of the "Devil's cup." The Session subsequently resolved to depose the two obstinate recusants from the eldership. Against this decision they appealed, but the Presbytery unanimously resolved to depose the appeal, and affirmed the decision of the Session. An appeal to the Synod was intimated.

The "Session" and Presbyterians must respect the feelings of the conscientious portion of the congregation.

Three boys broke through the ice while skating on the mill pond at Kingsdine on the 31st ult, and one of them, a son of M. H. Gibbon, was drowned.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening, 10th instant. All the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Cerille Blais, asking the Council for a pass down to Point Levis, as he had been hurt in the country and was not able to work.—Referred to Charity Committee with power to act.

From Wm. Spence, asking the Council to grant him a license as Butcher, two doors North of Brock Street.—Referred to License Inspector.

The following communication from Dr. Kincaid was read:

Peterboro, January 10th, 1876.

To Wm. Tools, Esq, Mayor;

SIR,—According to your order I have visited John Holmes, W. Quinn Robe Innes and young Riordan and found, upon careful examination, that Holmes is suffering from disease of a very serious nature rendering him unfit for work of any kind, and that Quinn has become almost blind from brain disease and I am afraid that the latter is incurable, but in order that he may receive every opportunity of recovering his sight. I would recommend that he be sent to an Hospital for special treatment

Robert Innes is not afflicted with any disease, but is suffering from old age and consequent infirmity, which in my opinion will render him incapable of helping himself in future.

I have also the honor to report that I am in receipt of a resolution passed by the Council requesting me to report the number of cases I have attended on corporation account during the past year, together with my authority for such attendance, and the diseases with which these poor people were afflicted.

I can only say with reference to this resolution that I have kept no record of my attendance upon the poor during the past three years, as I was paid by the year, and considered it unnecessary to enter those visits in my books.

You are aware, however, that I attended a unanimously your order, and I also can refer to Messrs. Edwards, Helm and Patterson, upon whose orders I have acted, but believing it to be my duty. I have not refused my services to any one even without an order, and in this connection I will only mention the case of a widow whose husband was killed at Norwood some months ago who sent for me at night, and whose trouble was of such a nature that had I waited for an order she would in all probability have been a corpse before I could have reached her residence.

I think, however, that even from memory and from consultation with the gentlemen I have mentioned, I can make out a pretty accurate report, and as this will cause me considerable trouble, I cannot agree to do so unless the Council pay me for my services.

Least I should be misunderstood I will explain that as I have never been called upon for such a report before, and as my opponents appear to have carefully read the terms of my appointment they will find that there is no mention of my having to perform such a duty. Indeed I cannot see the object of such information as is asked for, nor do I consider it fair even to the poor to have the disease they happened to suffer from published for the gratification of the public. True, certain Councillors have made themselves acquainted with the meaning of an epidemic but if I were to report that I attended Tom Jones because he's a Lenator labi super 6-ris abrupe nasi——— was out of order I don't think it would be much satisfaction to any one

I hope the Council will give my opponents a chance so that I may be saved the satisfaction of having my name handled about the streets at the next election by every demagogue who may aspire to municipal office.

I remain,
Mr. Mayor & Gents of Council,
Your very obedient servant,
R. KINCAID,
Town Physician.

From J Lavele stating that he had kept a man for some time, and asking the Council to take him off his hands and refund him a part of the money he has laid out upon him.—Referred to Charity Committee.

From E. B. Howard & Co. Boston, in reference to the clock; enclosing a guarantee to keep it in good running order for 10 years, but would give no bond.

From T. Beavis, License Inspector, as follows:—

REPORT OF LICENSE INSPECTOR.

The undersigned begs to report as follows:

I have this day visited all the places where liquors are old and I have to say that I found all the licensed hotels and taverns in the Town clean, orderly and having all the requirements necessary as the By-law directed. I am not aware of any one selling liquor without license.—There have been no convictions for breach of the License By-law since my last report.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Inspector.

Peterboro, 10th Jan'y; 1876.

P. S.—I may state that I have this day visited every place personally where intoxicating liquors are sold according to law—T B

The Mayor stated that in view of the necessity of providing employment for the unemployed he had bills put out calling a public meeting of the citizens of the town and county for to-day, but very few attended, and the following resolution was read, submitted and carried:

Moved by Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr Stratton.—That for the purpose of increasing the Agricultural Country which is tributary to Peterborough for purposes of trade, and in order to give employment to such of our townsmen as are in need of work, this meeting of the citizens of the Town of Peterboro hereby respectfully recommend to the Council the necessity for taking immediate action to construct a road from the Town of Peterborough to a point on the gravel road near Fraserville, this meeting suggesting that the people of North Monaghan and South Monaghan and the owners of land on the route of the proposed road be invited to co-operate with Peterborough in the undertaking.—Carried.

AFTER CONSIDERABLE DISCUSSION IT WAS

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm.—That this Council are willing to co-operate with the municipalities of North and South Monaghan in the construction of a road along the valley of the Otonabee River, and that they report to this council.—Carried

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm,—That the Committee appointed to receive tenders for cedar for the crib work at the Little Lake, be instructed to purchase a quantity of cedar suitable for sleepers for sidewalks.—Carried.

Moved by Mr Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm,—That the time for returning the collector's roll be extended 15 days from this date.—Carried.

The Committee on the Council Chamber was authorized to confer with Mr Beamish regarding the furnishing of the same with power to act.—Carried

The Council then adjourned

DUMMER.

Mr. Editor—The following account of the closing portion of the examination in S.S N. 4. Dummer will be read with interest by a large number of your readers, and its insertion will be considered a favor.

After the examination was concluded, Mr S R Johnson was appointed chairman. After a few remarks he called on Mr J J Crowe, Trustee, on behalf of the pupils and parents of the section, to make a presentation to Mr Wm Darling, Teacher on his retirement from the school, of a beautiful Bible value $7, Writing Desk and Stationery, value $6; and Printing Stamp and Type, $1.50. In doing so, Mr. Crowe said it gave him great pleasure at the end of a little over eighteen years continuous teaching in the section, to present to the teacher the present provided for the occasion, and trusted that the teacher would receive them as a mark of esteem from his scholars and their parents; and that the boys and girls before him, with such smiling, happy faces, would so conduct themselves through life that they too would receive and retain the respect and esteem of their fellowmen, and that at some future time some of them would be receiving a presentation to mark the esteem in which they were held, and that it was in their name, and for them, that he made the present presentation to their teacher.

The teacher then came forward and expressed his inability to suitably acknowledge their kindness in presenting him with such beautiful presents, and although their money value was considerable, he did not value them chiefly on that account, but he prized them most as a mark of esteem from his pupils and their parents, among whom he had taught over eighteen years, and as showing an interest in the cause of education that speaks well for the future. He briefly recounted the circumstances under which he took charge of the school on Sept. 1st 1857 and the strong feelings that at times came over him, so strong that many times he was on the point of resigning his charge as teacher, that he was in the wrong place. He said it was a responsible position to stand between the parent and child for nearly seven hours each day the child was at school. He said on taking charge of the school he laid down as a rule with himself never to bring any outside feeling or influence into the school it was a maxim of British law that in the eyes of the law all men were equal, it spoke alike to the Prince and the beggar, and as far as weak human nature could do it, he had always treated every child placed under his charge as equal. Men, short comings and defects characterize him as a teacher, but in connection he could look every parent in the section in the face and say, he had tried to do his duty, he had also tried to bring out of the school boys as little as possible of its trials and difficulties—for the school room had its trials; the teacher was not always on a "bed of roses."—adherence to these rules brought its reward Part of that reward was seen to-day, in the promptness and cheerfulness with which each scholar in the school replied to any question, or did anything assigned to the best of his or her ability. He said that a large number of the ratepayers had been trustees since he began teaching and that they had always honorably and faithfully fulfilled their obligations with him. His relationship with the parents had been friendly. He was far within the mark when he said that parents had not been to the school once a year on an average to find fault about their children, or the management of the school He briefly referred to the advantages the children of the present day had over their parents in the matter of education and contrasted a school now with that of twenty or thirty years ago. He felt proud of the position Canada, and especially Ontario was taking as an Educational Country.—Addressing himself to his scholars he advised them not to throw aside their school books on leaving school, but to review from time to time what they had learned and try to advance far beyond that point as they must expect to be, the good conduct of the large scholars and the great aid their example had been to him in the school, and to quote for his younger the same prompt response observed on obedience they had given him. In bidding them farewell as their teacher, he had not an unfriendly feeling towards any scholar that had ever been under his charge, and he ignored ill-concealed ones towards him.

In conclusion, he thanked them again for their token of esteem and respect, and for their presence on the occasion.

Mr Hunter as a parent, and Mr R McCracken as a former pupil of the school made short addresses

A vote of thanks was given to the chairman for his conduct in the chair, and as "the Curtain of Evening" began to fall the visitors, to the number of about fifty, scholars and teacher, gave three hearty cheers for the Queen, and wended their way to their respective homes.—Com

STREET BRIDGE.

Your committee beg leave to report that they have, with the assistance of the Town Engineer examined the site for the proposed new bridge across the Otonabee River on Smith St. We find that the approach on the East side will be something considerable, and on this account would recommend asking the County Council for a grant of $500 to assist in defraying the cost of said approach; and in case of such grant, being given this corporation would bind themselves to keep up and maintain both approaches and bridge for all future. And in the event of the County granting the above sum your Committee would urge the necessity of at once commencing work of so great importance to both Town and County.

All of which is respectfully submitted

(Signed) A. RUTHERFORD
Chairman

Moved by Mr Beal, seconded by Mr. Helm.—That the Town Clerk be instructed to consult the Town Solicitor with reference to D G Henthorn's claim, and reply to Mr. Henthorn in accordance with the solicitor's opinion.—Carried

It was moved and carried that the clerk be instructed to accept the draft of E B. Howard & Co. for the purchase of the Town Clock, if the amount be correct

On motion a By-law was passed to authorize the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow from the bank to the amount of $20,000, to meet current expenses during 1876

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Thurston,—That the Clerk be authorized to send a copy of that portion of the report submitted to this Council and adopted, asking the county Council to grant the sum of $300 to continue on the East side of the Otonabee River

Moved by Mr. Dixon, seconded by Mr McDonald,—That the Special Committee to proceed with making the approaches to the proposed bridge across the river on South street, be a deputation to wait on the county council to urge on that body the granting of a sum of $500 or more, to assist in making said approaches.—Carried

Moved by Mr Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm,—That his Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Helm, Hopkins, Dixon and Rutherford, be a special committee to wait upon the municipalities of North and South Monaghan and any other parties interested in the construction of a road along the valley of the Otonabee River, and that they report to this council.—Carried

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm,—That the Committee appointed to receive tenders for cedar for the crib work at the Little Lake, be instructed to purchase a quantity of cedar suitable for sleepers for sidewalks.—Carried.

Moved by Mr Cahill, seconded by Mr Helm,—That the time for returning the collector's roll be extended 15 days from this date.—Carried.

The Committee on the Council Chamber was authorized to confer with Mr Beamish regarding the furnishing of the same with power to act.—Carried

COBOURG.

The World says On Wednesday evening, three of the prisoners in the Cobourg gaol made a rush for liberty, but found the monkey, Mr Higgins, a little too much for them Their names were Wm Harlow, just sentenced to penitentiary for four years for stealing wheat in Murray, and Edward Carson and Wm Hall, sentenced to jail for 6 and 4 months respectively, for stealing clothing in Port Hope On Mr Higgins going into the corridor, Harlow seized him behind, while Carson tasted a towel around his neck and attempted to gag him and Hall knocked out the light and tried to get the keys. Mr Higgins got clear from them and called to one of the prisoners to ring the bell, and he himself caught a wire leading to his own apartments Another scuffle ensued, when the three fellows started for the door, hoping to find it locked on the inside, but Mr Higgins had taken the usual precaution on entering to have it locked on the outside. They then slunk back to their cells and were locked up Mr Higgins afterwards laid an information against Carson and Hall for the attempt Harlow having been forwarded to Kingston to serve out his sentence. The police Magistrate committed them for the offence, and the Judge added six months to the sentence of each.

On Christmas day, Mr John Cameron, Mill Road, Tuckersmith, ploughed three quarters of an acre of land.

PLAIN INDIANS.—Rev. Geo. McDougall who last summer undertook a mission to the Crees and Plain Indians, has effected satisfactory arrangements with them.—They now avail the final settlement of the whole matter during next summer.

DROPPED DEAD.—On Saturday, an old citizen named Patrick Haffey, aged about 82 or 83 years, of age, dropped dead on the street just at Mr. Carr's pump shop. He was carried into the shop but life had fled. Old age and debility being the cause.

NUMBER 1.—Macdonald & Elder are now offering great inducements for three weeks. Their stock is large and seasonable goods. This will afford a good chance for buyers, as times are hard people want to save all they can. They should visit Macdonald & Elder's.

GRIP IS COMING.—Mr. Benough will lecture in the Music Hall on Thursday next, at 7.30, p.m. Mr. Benough's name is no. w a household word in Canada, and will command a full house. No one should fail to hear him. Tickets can be obtained Mr. Menzies Bookstore.

A NEW PAPER.—The Toronto Witness is the name of a new venture in the newspaper line. It is to be devoted to the interests of Religion, Temperance, Education and Social Reform. It is in the form of a twelve page paper, and the first number offers fairly. It is to be $1 per year.

ATTEMPTED MURDER AND SUICIDE AT CHATHAM.—A man named Joseph Slater attempted on the 3rd inst. to shoot his wife. The shot took effect in the neck and breast. He then attempted to cut his own throat. He came there from Michigan, and is a dissipated character. Whiskey again!

A RAILROAD KISS.—A Railway Conductor on the Chicago and Northwestern Railway found a pretty lady sleeping in one of the cars, her pretty pouting lips just in a position for a kiss, and he couldn't resist the temptation. Several parties in the car saw him. The young lady sued the Company and obtained $1,000 damages, for this kiss by proxy.—The Company don't care for another like it.

A FRAUD. About the middle of last summer the Editor of a little periodical entitled "The Theological Instructor", induced us to subscribe for a copy, with the understanding that it was in defence of the principles of the Church of England, and purely Protestant. The instructor seems entirely devoted to the dissemination of Ritualism, and so far as its general teaching is concerned is anti protestant.

PRESENTATION.—On the opening of the Ashburnham School after the holidays, the pupils of Miss Stratton's division presented her with a nice Bible and a pair of vases, accompanied by an address.—The address was read by Miss Sarah Hamilton, and the presentation made by Miss Janet Lyle, to which Miss S. replied in appropriate terms, thanking her pupils for this very unexpected token of their goodwill towards her.

COMPLIMENTARY.—On Thursday evening last, the friends of Mr. E Walton, entertained him to an excellent supper at the Huffman House, on the occasion of his leaving town to commence business in Lakefield. Samuel White, Esq., presided. On his right was the guest of the evening, Mr. Edgerton Walton, and on his left Mr. Robert Elder. The usual loyal toasts were given and heartily received. Then the guest of the evening was given by the Chairman, in a neat speech, and cordially received by all present. Mr Walton responded thanking the chairman and friends for the great kindness and goodwill manifested toward him on the occasion of leaving to take up his abode in another place. The evening was very pleasantly spent by all, and many were the good wishes expressed for Mr. W's health and prosperous future.

FIRE.—On Monday morning about half past two, a fire was discovered in a rough cast house belonging to Mr. T. Leonard, on Reid Street. The bell of the R. C. Church was rung but people did not understand it for a time. The alarm on the Episcopal Church was then rung, and the engine got out. The fire had smouldered so long in the cellar kitchen that by means of the stairway it made progress to the upper portion of the building. It was over 30 minutes before it was observable outside, except by the smoke. The water was applied as soon possible, but the extreme length the water had to be forced from Helm's Foundry, and the heavy pressure necessary in consequence, caused the hose to burst, and then followed a delay to replace the useless hose. Owing to the delay the fire made headway in the building, but water being again applied confined it the house where it originated. The excessive rain on Sunday had saturated all of the adjacent roofs of buildings, otherwise it would have been impossible to prevent the extension, as a very high westward wind prevailed at the time. The house was occupied, but the occupants fortunately got out all the furniture. It was a desperate night to be left houseless.
